The toad as an insect destroyer is becoming quite popular in Europe. Once a week a "toad market" is held regularly in Paris, to which these little animals are brought carefully assorted, according to their strength and size, and packed by the hundred in baskets of damp moss. The market is never overstocked, and those of moderate size find ready purchasers at prices ranging from 75 to 80 francs per 100. The majority of them are bought up for the use of English market gardens, and it is stated that orders are on hand for the purchase, at those rates, of every basketful that reaches the market.

MR. WATTS, the authorized dog-catcher of Boston, uses for the destruction of unclaimed dogs a most subtle poison, recommended by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and which he is forbidden to make public, through fear of its use for suicidal purposes. A half teaspoonful of the powder is put in the dog's mouth, and almost instantly the body swells and life is extinguished.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$7 25	@12 00
HOGS	5 25	@ 6 12½
COTTON	11	@ 11½
FLOUR—Superfine	5 00	@ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 31	@ 1 33
CORN—Western Mixed	57	@ 58
OATS—Mixed	32	@ 37
RYE—Western	71	@ 72
PORK—New Mess	14 40	@14 50
LARD	9	@ 9¼
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 40	@ 5 75
Choice Natives	5 00	@ 5 30
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 50
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 60
Medium to Fair	3 80	@ 4 40
HOGS—Live	4 50	@ 5 70
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 60	@ 5 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 09	@ 1 10
No. 3 Spring	1 04	@ 1 06
CORN—No. 2	42	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	23	@ 24
RYE—No. 2	53	@ 54
BARLEY—No. 2	59	@ 60
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	28	@ 30
EGGS—Fresh	16½	@ 17
PORK—Mess	14 50	@14 65
LARD	8½	@ 8¾
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 13	@ 1 15
No. 2	1 10	@ 1 11
CORN—No. 2	41	@ 42
OATS—No. 2	23	@ 23
RYE—No. 1	53	@ 54
BARLEY—No. 2	62	@ 63
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 3 Red Fall	1 19	@ 1 20
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	41	@ 42
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
RYE	55	@ 56
PORK—Mess	14 00	@ ....
LARD	8½	@ 9
HOGS	4 60	@ 5 60
CATTLE	3 50	@ 5 50
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 18	@ 1 25
CORN	45	@ 47
OATS	28	@ 30
RYE	57	@ 59
PORK—Mess	14 50	@ ....
LARD	8½	@ 10
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White Michigan	1 31	@ 1 33
No. 3 Red Wabash	1 18	@ 1 19
CORN	47	@ 48
OATS—No. 2	26	@ 27
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Choice White	6 62½	@ 6 85
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 32	@ 1 33
No. 1 Amber	1 26	@ 1 27
CORN—No. 1	47	@ 48
OATS—Mixed	26	@ 27
BARLEY (per cental)	1 10	@ 1 40
PORK—Mess	14 50	@14 75
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	5 35	@ 5 90
Fair	4 75	@ 5 00
Common	4 00	@ 4 25
HOGS	5 00	@ 5 90
SHEEP	3 00	@ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

"THAT IS THE QUESTION."

Letter from Hon. Alexander Campbell, of Illinois.

Shall We Have Paper Money Issued by the Government for the Use of the People, or National-Bank Currency for the Benefit of the Shylocks?—The Results of the Two Systems—An Appalling Prospect.

So far as the question of currency or money is concerned, the issue is not between greenbacks and coin, but whether our circulating medium other than coin is to consist of all greenbacks or all bank currency. It is a question of high interest on loanable capital, and low wages for labor and low prices for property.

The clamor for a return to specie payments is a "trick" to deceive and mislead the people. The system of one currency redeemable in another before it will perform the functions of a circulating medium always has been and always must, in the very nature of things, be a cheat and a fraud—a scheme for enriching the few bankers and usurers at the expense of all useful industry and legitimate enterprise. Although the national banks are now only required to redeem their circulation in greenbacks, yet their notes are never put in circulation in the localities of the banks issuing them, but are exchanged with other institutions in distant localities, so that redemption under the system is next to a practical impossibility, and it would be still more difficult under the specie-basis fallacy.

If the parties who advocate this policy were honest, they certainly would not oppose the remonetization and free coinage of the old silver dollar, for if this were done we would have specie payments at once. The legal tenders are at this time 5 per cent. above the old silver dollar, and beyond all doubt would at least continue at par with it, for there is not one intelligent man in a hundred that would not prefer legal tenders to coin in the transaction of his business so that we could apply the coin, whether silver or gold, to the payment of the interest on the debt, and the payment of the principal at par when the bonds became due and payable or due and redeemable at the pleasure of the Government. The honest course, then, for us as a nation to pursue in the present exigency is to provide for the free coinage of the silver dollar, not that we need or want it as a currency, but to apply it to the payment of our coin debt. I think it would be good policy to appeal to the patriotism of the old ladies to surrender their dilapidated teapots and other table service to the refining pot and furnish their tables with earthenware until we get out of debt. If this appeal were made, I have no doubt it would be cheerfully responded to, and would add largely to our supply of bullion, and enable us to pay our coin debt much sooner than we otherwise could.

But it is objected that to restore the silver dollar and apply it to the payment of the debt would impair the credit of the Government, and prevent the funding of $700,000,000 of our 6 per cent. bonds—the income upon which is taxable—into 4 per cent. bonds, having thirty years to run, and exempt from all taxes—national, State and municipal.

Now, the question is, would the Government be the gainer or loser by this conversion. I think it can be shown that it will suffer a heavy loss by the operation.

To arrive at an intelligent judgment in the premises, we must take into consideration what is contemplated by the financial policy of those who oppose the restoration of the silver dollar. The proposition is to retire and cancel all the greenbacks by converting them into interest-bearing bonds, and to surrender the control of the currency or money of the nation to the national banks, with power to expand and contract its volume, and to raise and lower the rate of interest so as to render every other interest subservient to their cupidity.

I think it will be conceded that to encourage the development of our agricultural and mineral resources and our manufacturing industries to the extent of supplying our own wants will require a circulation of at least $900,000,000 (which is about $20 per capita), beside what coin we will be able to retain while we have a large foreign indebtedness. This must either be furnished through the banks or issued directly to the people in the form of legal tenders in the payment of the debts and current expenditures of the Government. If the banks are successful in their demand for the cancellation of the greenbacks they will demand the issue of currency to the par value of the bonds deposited by them, and that their currency be received for duties and imports—if not that it be declared a legal tender for all debts. They will also demand exemption from tax on their circulation, and all other taxes by the National Government, and that the banks be made the financial agents of the Government, which will exempt them from all State and municipal tax, leaving the interest on the bonds net profit to them. These privileges and grants of power being necessary to firmly establish this money oligarchy, the bankers will certainly demand that they be granted, and nothing but a united and determined protest on the part of the people will prevent their representatives from obeying these behests of the Shylocks. Judging from the past history of our financial legislation, it would seem that our law-makers considered it their highest duty to merely register the edicts of the bankers and usurers, and the officers of the Treasury Department to do their bidding, and draw their pay from the Government.

To show the profits of the bankers I will suppose them to deposit 4 per cent. bonds, which is the lowest rate established on any class of Government securities, and that it will require $900,000,000 of currency for the transaction of the business of the country. Four per cent. on this sum, with the interest added to the principal quarterly, will amount to $36,553,600 per annum, and to $2,070,300,000 in thirty years, this being the time for which the new bonds, into which it is proposed to convert the greenbacks, have to run. This is the main, and is of itself sufficient, reason for the opposition of the bankers, usurers and speculators of every character, to the legal-tender currency and the recoinage of the silver dollar.

While this would be the measure of the profit of the bankers in this respect, it would not be the extent of the cost to the tax-payers. The extra interest and cost of the syndicate in placing the bonds in the first instance, with the cost of assessing, collecting and paying the interest and principal of the bonds, would be equal to at least one-fifth of 1 per cent., which would make the cost to the tax-payer 4 1-5 per cent. This rate on $900,000,000, compounded quarter-yearly, would amount to $38,411,000 per annum, and to $2,251,300,000 in thirty years, being $250,000,000 more than the national debt at this time. But, if only $700,000,000 of currency were required, the loss to the tax-payers would be $1,751,000,000—equal to seven-eighths of the debt.

This ought to be sufficient to arouse and unite those who produce and distribute the wealth and pay the taxes in demanding the abolishment of the banking system, and the substitution of greenbacks for the bank currency, and the restoration and free coinage of the silver dollar. But the still greater objection to this system is that it gives the bondholders and bankers absolute control over the currency or money of the nation. Under the law, as it now stands, they can deposit bonds and take out currency to the extent of the whole amount of the national debt, or they can reduce it to the smallest amount they choose by returning it to the Treasury Department and taking up the bonds. In this way they can and will regulate the rate of interest on loanable capital as well as the value of all property, and fix the rewards of labor and enterprise in all departments of useful industry and legitimate business. This is the "interconvertible system" in the worst possible form. It is delegating to a privileged class of corporations and denying to the whole the right to exercise this, one of the most essential attributes of sovereignty. But we are told by the bondholders, bankers and usurers at home and abroad, and by their retainers in and out of official position, that we can have no permanent prosperity until we reach specie payments—which a few months ago meant gold and silver, but which, if we are to accept the dictum of their agents in official position, now means gold only—and that it were better to reduce the value of all property, to prostrate all branches of productive industry and paralyze all legitimate business than to fail to reach this end. It would be more truthful to say than to fail to comply with the demands of the Shylocks.

It is difficult to conceive of a more impudent assumption or greater insult to the intelligence of the American people than is contained in this proposition. It is a cheat and a fraud, a clumsy disguised villainy, nothing more, nothing less. If for the avowed purpose of reducing and regulating the cost of fares and transportation the stockholders and directors of the New York Central and New York and Erie railways were to propose the destruction of the Pennsylvania Central and Baltimore and Ohio railroads they would be regarded as knaves and fools, and yet it would not be more unreasonable and unjust—not more knavish—than for the bankers, bondholders, and money-lending class generally to demand the cancellation of greenbacks and the demonetization of silver. Compliance with the demand of these railroad magnates would enrich their stockholders and give New York city a monopoly of the trade of the West, while the adoption of the financial policy of the Shylocks would give the bankers and usurers—whether Jew or Gentile—a monopoly of the currency or money of the whole nation, and enable them to practice extortion without let or hindrance, and to lay every other interest under tribute to their insatiable and unhallowed avarice. But we have a large and onerous debt, which must be paid in strict accordance with the laws under which it was contracted—and should be discharged in no other way—and we must have a circulating medium which, whether of coin or paper, should be issued under the authority of the National Government, and a legal tender in payment of all debts, public or private.

Now we must and will have a paper currency in some form or other. The most bigoted and devoted worshipers of the so-called precious metals admit that the business of the country cannot be transacted with an exclusively metallic currency, even if we had gold and silver in abundance. The only question on this point is as to how it shall be supplied. The bankers have had a monopoly from the organization of the Government up to the time of the issue of legal tenders during the late war, and the issue now is whether they shall resign this monopoly, or that the currency shall be issued by the Government in the form of legal tenders.

All interest paid for the use of loanable capital must in the end be borne by the producers and distributors of the wealth, and that, when the rate exceeds the average rate of increase in the national wealth by productive industry, the inevitable result is to enrich the few money-lenders, and to impoverish the industrial classes. It will, I think, be conceded that the rate of interest on loanable capital has in the past averaged as much as 8 per cent., and that this rate will be maintained so long as the bankers and usurers retain control of the currency. On the other hand, it is susceptible of demonstration that the average rate of increase in the national wealth has not in the past exceeded 3 per cent. per annum, and it is certain that it cannot exceed this rate in the future; indeed there are many reasons why it should fall below it. The vital issue involved in the present financial controversy is not then so much a question of the quantity and quality of the currency, as of the establishment of a more equitable standard of distribution to capital and labor. Currency is only a means to an end. If our circulating medium were all gold, and the volume as large as it now is, it could afford no relief to the business interests so long as the present rates of interest are maintained on loanable capital. The industrial and financial evils we are now experiencing are the legitimate fruits of the excessive cost of capital, and they must and will continue and grow still more oppressive until we are successful in devising and adopting a system that will greatly lower and keep more uniform the rate of interest on money or loanable capital.

I think it safe to estimate the amount of capital upon which the industrial classes are paying interest (outside of the national debt) at $8,000,000,000. Eight per cent. on this sum would give, as the annual cost of capital, $640,000,000. Add to this $36,553,600, being the amount paid to the bankers by way of interest on the bonds deposited to secure the redemption of their currency, and you have as the annual cost of their system $676,543,600. By the adoption of the greenback, and the substitution of legal tenders for the banks' currency, $900,000,000 of the bonds could be paid at par, and the interest paid to the banks saved.

To obtain the relative results of the two systems in the payment of the debt, I will estimate the debt at $2,000,000,000, and assume that it is all in bonds bearing 4 per cent., payable quarter-yearly and running thirty years. If the bankers' system be adopted, the whole amount of the debt will draw interest, which, which the interest added to the principal, according to the tenor of the bond (allowing one-fifth of 1 per cent. for cost of collection, etc.) for thirty years will amount to $7,002,000,000. Deduct the $2,000,000,000 of principal, and it will have, as the accumulations by interest, $5,002,000,000, which is equal to two and one-half times the principal of the debt. After having paid this enormous sum, the whole of the principal will still remain unpaid. Now, if the greenback system, or people's financial policy, be adopted, the old silver dollar restored and applied to the payment of debt, and $900,000,000 of legal tenders issued in lieu of the bank currency, we can pay at par an equal amount of the bonds. This will leave to bear interest $1,100,000,000, which, with the interest computed as above for thirty years, will amount to $3,851,000,000. Deduct the $1,100,000,000 of principal and you have as the accumulations of interest in the case $2,751,000,000. Difference in favor of this over the bankers' system in the item of interest for the thirty years, $2,251,000,000, or $250,000,000 more than the principal of the debt.

Again, if we should continue to collect the $80,000,000 yearly—the amount required to pay the interest in case the bankers' system should be adopted—and apply it to the payment of the interest and principal of the $1,100,000,000 that would be left to draw interest in case the greenback or people's system should be adopted, the interest and principal of this portion of the debt would be liquidated in twenty years, leaving as the amount of the debt the $900,000,000 of currency, which would always be needed as a circulating medium. Thus the taxpayers would be relieved from the burden of the debt in twenty years without any increase of taxes in the meantime.

But, should it be thought advisable to retire the legal tenders after twenty years, it would only be necessary to continue the collection of the $80,000,000 for eleven and one-quarter years to redeem the whole amount. Under this system the whole debt would be discharged in thirty and one-quarter years at a cost of $1,680,000,000 for interest, and for interest and principal $3,680,000,000, while under the bankers' system the cost for interest for same time would be $5,478,000,000, or over three times the amount under the former system. And, to pay the interest and principal in same time under this system, would require $7,378,000,000, or just twice as much as under the greenback or people's system. Still again, it is proposed to so manage the national debt that the present generation shall pay the interest leaving the payment of the principal to the next or future ones. Let us look at the result of this policy before permanently adopting it. The lifetime of a generation is reckoned at thirty-four years. Two thousand million dollars at 4 1-5 per cent. with the interest added to the principal quarter-yearly for this time, will amount to $8,279,000,000. Deduct the $2,000,000,000 of principal, and you have as the accumulation by interest to be paid by the present generation $6,279,000,000, or over three times the amount of the principal. Now, under the operation of the greenback system, the interest and principal of the debt can be honestly and honorably discharged in less than a generation (thirty-one and a quarter years) at a cost of but 68⅘ per cent. of the amount required to pay the interest for thirty-four years under the bankers' and financiers' system.

I have presented this question of interest on money or loanable capital in these various phases, first, for the purpose of showing the pecuniary interest the bankers and their confederates have in maintaining the present financial policy, and the reason for their opposition to the adoption of any system having for its object the diminution of their excessive profits and the promotion of the general interests. Second, for the purpose of impressing on the minds of those seeking to effect reforms for the common good that the extortionate rates of interest on money is the prime, the underlying cause of all our industrial and financial troubles and embarrassments; that we can have no permanent substantial prosperity, nor can we develop our natural resources so as to become industrially and financially what we are politically—self-sustaining and independent—[illegible] ing a financial policy that will greatly reduce and keep more uniform the rates of interest on money or loanable capital; a system that will secure all in the right to enjoy the fruits of their labor and talents, and "give to all an unfettered start and fair chance in the race of life."

Corporations Without a Heart.

It would not be a pleasant task to review the list of influences which led to the great strike. Some of them—more important than has been popularly imagined—have had little notice; and they lie so far back or so deep down that they are not likely to be talked about. That the railroad force of the country has been very badly demoralized is evident enough; but if we should say that its demoralization had come mainly through its rulers and employers we should be met with pretty universal incredulity, if not with indignant protest.

The example which directors and managers have set to those in their employ has not been a good one. The men who have done the hard work of the railroads have looked on and seen others get rich by illegitimate means. They have seen whole boards of directors drop off gorged from schemes that have left the stock interests without a drop of blood in their veins. They have seen stock watered, tampered with, robbed. They have seen railroads which had absorbed the livings of trustful widows and orphans managed solely for the private interests of their Presidents and directors. They have seen roads built with bonds that were lies, and were known to be lies. They have seen roads in ruinous competition with each other, while they were compelled by this competition to do their work at small wages. They have been made to work upon the Sabbath, and have been practically shut away from all religious instruction by those who, with sanctimonious faces and conveniently obtuse consciences, have "taken sweet counsel together, and walked to the house of God in company." The railroad corporations are very few that have manifested the slightest interest in their employes, beyond getting out of them what it was possible to get for the consideration agreed upon.—Dr. J. G. Holland on "The Great Strike;" Scribner for October.

The Great Wall of China.

The great wall of China was measured in many places by Mr. Unthank, an American engineer, lately engaged on a survey for a Chinese railroad. His measurements give the height at eighteen feet, and a width on top of fifteen feet. Every few hundred yards there is a tower twenty-four feet square, and from twenty to forty-five feet high. The foundation of the wall is of solid granite. Mr. Unthank brought with him a brick from the wall which is supposed to have been made 200 years before the time of Christ. In building this immense stone fence to keep out the Tartars, the builders never attempted to avoid mountains or chasms to save expense. For 1,300 miles the wall goes over plain and mountain, and every foot of the foundation is in solid granite, and the rest of the structure solid masonry. In some places the wall is built smooth up against the bank, or canons, or precipices, where there is a sheer descent of 1,000 feet. Small streams are arched over, but in the larger streams the wall runs to the water's edge, and a tower is built on each side. On the top of the wall there are breastworks, or defenses, facing in and out, so the defending force can pass from one tower to another without being exposed to an enemy from either side. To calculate the time of building or cost of this wall is beyond human skill. So far as the magnitude of the work is concerned, it surpasses everything in ancient or modern times of which there is any trace. The pyramids of Egypt are nothing compared to it.—London News.

Why Young Women Marry Elderly Men.

Jennie Jane says that money is not so often the reason why young women marry elderly men as people imagine. She says that the young man of the day is not the desirable husband that the young man of fifty years ago was; he is not so thoughtful, sober, painstaking and conscientious; he lives in a club, has no love of home life nor desire to build up character and reputation as a man and a citizen; his ideas of life are bounded by the theater and the doings of his little set; and in too many cases his ambition is to own a racer and be on intimate terms with the ballet. Naturally mothers "shrink from intrusting their daughters to such youths as these, even if they have the opportunity, and are better pleased to bestow them on older men—men who have sown their wild oats; who know how little of real value there is in the temporary excitement of pleasure; who have, perhaps, been married once, and have learned to value home and the guarantees it affords for permanent happiness."

A Curiosity of Nature.

On the bank of the race, and about 100 yards above the Palmer lead furnace, Washington county, stand two trees—a sycamore and a maple. A limb of the sycamore has grown into and through the maple. Not a great while ago the limb broke from its sycamore mother, and has since grown sycamore leaves and balls, through the nourishment of the maple.—Sedalia Bazoo.

The local authorities of twenty towns in England are considering the propriety of substituting petroleum for gas in the public streets.

THE GREAT FRAUD.

Speech of Hon. Allen G. Thurman, at Marion, Ohio.

I take it for granted that the most of you believe—I feel certain that a large majority of the people of the United States believe—I know that I believe that Samuel Tilden was elected President of the United States at the last election. But we all know that he was not inaugurated. We all know that his competitor, Gen. Hayes, was inaugurated, and we all know, more or less, some more and some less, the means by which Mr. Tilden came to lose his inauguration and by which Gen. Hayes gained it. But now, if a Democratic speaker alludes to the subject, he is forthwith assailed by Republican orators, and the Republican press with a great show of affected indignation. They say that he is attempting to spoil the judiciary and bring the judiciary into disrepute. As if the Electoral Commission was a part of the judiciary of the United States! and as if these men, who had no language too severe when they were condemning a majority of the Supreme Court of the United States for the Dred Scott decision, and attributed to the Judges the basest motives that could influence the human heart, and kept up that denunciation for many long years, and kept it up at the risk of the peace of the country and the very union of the States! I say it comes with poor grace from them to talk about injuring the fame and standing of the judiciary. But there is no trouble in that charge. The Electoral Commission was bound to act judicially, I admit; but it was no part of the judiciary of the United States.

Again, they say: But you bring the Presidential office into disrepute. Well, my friends, if the Presidential office is brought into disrepute by the Presidential chair being obtained through usurpation and fraud, I cannot help it, and you cannot help it; if that chair does not appear as high and noble an object of ambition as it was when Washington and Jackson occupied it, it is not our fault, my Democratic friends.

Now, in respect to the title of Gen. Hayes to the Presidency, I admit, every one admits, that we are bound to recognize him as the President of the United States. He has been declared President in a mode—that is to say, by the Congress of the United States—which I believe to be constitutional. He is, therefore, to be considered President of the United States. But does that seal our mouths as to the means by which he became President. A decision of a court may bind everybody, but if that decision was erroneous are we not at liberty to point out its errors? If a decision was obtained by fraud, are you not at liberty to condemn the fraud? Nay, is it not a duty to condemn it? And if President Hayes, however pure he may be, however well-meaning he may be, however perfect his title to the Presidency must now be considered—if he has obtained that high office by usurpation and by fraud of canvassing boards, then, as good citizens; then, as friends of our free institutions; then, as lovers of truth and justice, we are bound to condemn the means by which that result was achieved. And now, what were those means? Why, they were, in the first place, the most glaring usurpations and frauds in Louisiana and Florida that ever disgraced any country that had an election system. And, in the second place, they were the refusal of the Electoral Commission to go behind fraudulent certificates of the returning officers and look into their usurpations and into their frauds.

To explain this—and I must do it briefly, for I want to be brief in what I have to say to-day:

First, look at Louisiana. How were the votes of the election counted? They were counted first by the Judges of the Election, just as they are counted in Ohio by your Judges of Election. Then the returns were sent to county officers called the Supervisors of Registration, by whom they were sent to New Orleans to a Returning Board, and that Returning Board then canvassed those returns and declared the result.

Now the law of Louisiana provided—and I shall not stop here to inquire whether it was a constitutional law or not, though I am perfectly convinced it was not—the law provided that the Judges of Election or the Supervisors of Registration should send up with the returns a certificate that a fair election could not be held in a particular precinct, or in a particular parish (as they are called there, which is the same as our county), if such were the fact, and that this certificate be fortified by the oaths of two respectable citizens of the precinct or parish; that then the Returning Board might proceed to investigate whether there was a fair election in that precinct or parish.

They were to hear testimony on the subject, and, if convinced that a fair election was prevented by fraud or violence or the like, the vote of that precinct might be cast out. Now mark it; that Returning Board had no more power to cast out the vote of a precinct, or a parish, unless these certificates came up from the county or precinct officials, than you had to cast it out. The sole jurisdiction to cast it out depended upon these coming with the returns, the certificate of the precinct officers, supported by the affidavits of two respectable citizens, certifying that a fair and peaceable election had been prevented. Without the certificate the Returning Board had no more authority or right to throw out the vote of a single precinct than you in the State of Ohio, had to interfere and throw out the vote of a precinct or county in Louisiana. And yet, what did that Returning Board last fall do? Without a single one of these certificates, which the law required in order to give them any jurisdiction whatever; without a single one of them sent up with the election returns, they threw out the votes of county after county, precinct after precinct, until they threw out from 6,000 to 10,000 votes that had been cast for the Tilden electors, and by that means created an apparent majority for the Hayes electors, and gave the Hayes electors an election certificate. Not only did they do that, but they cast out precincts all over the State in order to give the Republicans a majority in the Legislature. Now, it was by that usurpation and fraud that that Returning Board disfranchised the people of the State of Louisiana, deprived the majority of the people of that State of their choice for President, and gave the certificates to men who were defeated by from six thousand to ten thousand votes. And then when the proof, the most abundant proof, was offered at Washington before the Electoral Commission, which sat there to try the case, that commission, by a vote of eight to seven, declared that they would not look into the testimony at all. Wouldn't you think it strange if the court that occupies this bench should call a case for trial and begin the trial by announcing that it would not hear any evidence? Wouldn't you think that it was a strange mode of judicial procedure in a court? Wouldn't that Judge hear some notes of condemnation in this goodly county of Marion? I fancy he would—notes that he would not forget for a lifetime. And yet that, in substance, is precisely what took place at Washington last February, when the amplest proof of the usurpation and frauds of those Returning Boards was offered to be brought before the Electoral Commission, and the door was shut in the face of the proof, and those who offered it were told by the Commissioners, "We won't look behind the certificates of the Returning Boards"—of those men who had been guilty of these frauds and this usurpation.

But let us turn now to Florida. There was another board, a Canvassing Board. The majority of the votes cast in Florida were for Tilden electors. I never yet have seen a man who denied that fact. Then how could the vote of that State be thrown for Hayes? Why, because the Canvassing Board of that State did precisely what the Returning Board of Louisiana did, cast out enough Democratic votes to give the Hayes electors a majority. Had they any right to do that? Why, the Supreme Court of that State, composed entirely, I believe, of Republican Judges, certainly a majority of them, solemnly decided in the case of the Governor of that State, who was elected at the same election, that the Canvassing Board had no authority whatever for casting out votes, that they were bound to count the votes that were given, and declare the result according to the votes that were given; and hence, although that Canvassing Board gave a fraudulent certificate that the Republican candidate for Governor was elected, yet the Supreme Court compelled them to reverse that decision, and the Democratic candidate who was elected received the office, and just in the same way as the Democratic candidate for Governor was elected so was the Democratic candidate for the office of President elected, and so the decision of the Supreme Court of that State, the highest court in the State, that this Canvassing Board must count the vote for the Democratic candidate for Governor as would have compelled them to count in the Democratic electors, but they paid no heed to that decision, but threw out Democratic votes to give the State to Hayes. Why? Because Hayes could not be declared elected without he got all the votes of Florida and all the votes of Louisiana. Without those States Mr. Tilden had 185 votes, and needed but one more. It was necessary then to give Hayes all the votes of Louisiana and all the votes of Florida, and they did it. And now, my friends, whether the Electoral Commission decided correctly or incorrectly in saying they would not go behind the returns, yet the fact remains that it was by the usurpation and fraud of the Returning Boards of those two States that Rutherford B. Hayes is seated in the Presidential chair to-day. And now I do say to any one who tells me that I ought not to stir up the matter, I say to him I will—so long as my feeble strength will enable me to do it—I will stir it up, for if the people of this country can condone such a thing as that; if they can forgive it, I ask any man of you when will you ever see a man inaugurated as President in a close election if fraud and usurpation of the subordinate officers of the States, the Canvassing Boards of the States, can prevent his being elected? Why, if that can be done in Louisiana and Florida, it can be done in Ohio. Who has the counting of the votes here in Ohio? The Secretary of State, in the presence of such Sheriffs as see fit to attend, yet the counting is done by the Secretary of State. Why, suppose that at the last election Mr. Bell, the Democratic Secretary of State at that time, and having the canvassing of those votes for President and Vice President in Ohio, had seen fit to follow the same plan of the Returning Boards of Florida and Louisiana, and had thrown out enough Republican counties in Ohio to give the votes of the State to Tilden, would we ever have heard the last of it? Would he ever have heard the last of it? Wouldn't the loudest voice of condemnation have gone out denouncing the man who had been guilty of that usurpation and fraud? And yet Mr. Bell had just as much right when he canvassed the vote of Ohio last fall for President and Vice President to throw out Ashtabula and Geauga, and half a dozen more counties on the Western Reserve, and declare the Ohio vote for Tilden, as had those Returning Boards to throw out 6,000 or 10,000 votes in Louisiana and hundreds of votes in Florida, and give the votes of those States to Hayes.

Now, my friends, if the people overlook these things, if they don't condemn them in the only manner in which they can condemn them, by their votes, if they don't set the seal of their condemnation upon them it will be in vain in the future to hope for an honest declaration of the Presidential election wherever the vote is at all close between the candidates. Therefore it is, my friends, that I consider it a matter of the first importance to call your attention to this to-day that you may bear it in mind, for unless you condemn this great injustice it will grow into a precedent, and will be followed hereafter, and, instead of the President being made by the votes of the people, he will be made by the frauds and usurpations of the servants of the people, whose duty it is to count the votes.

But how does the administration treat those who were guilty of those frauds and usurpations? I am very sorry to say that it treats them just exactly in the opposite manner in which they should be treated.

Who was the head and front of the Returning Board in Louisiana? A man named James Madison Wells—I am sorry his parents christened him with so good a name as James Madison. He was the head and front of it. What was he? Surveyor of the port of New Orleans, one of the most lucrative of the Federal offices in the gift of the President within the State of Louisiana. Did he lose that office? Did his frauds and usurpations cause him to lose that office under this civil-service reform administration? Has it carried civil-service reform sufficiently far to take hold of this corrupt man and shake him out of that office that he holds by the commission of the President? Not the least bit of it. But Mr. James Madison Wells still holds that office, and, if report is true, not a few of his followers and hangers-on are also provided for.

Who is the next man? One Anderson—Gen. Anderson, I think, he is called. He was a Confederate General, but that don't make any difference in these latter days, when the lion and the lamb lie down together in office.

How is it with him? Has he any influence with the administration? Why, according to statements I have seen, and which I have never seen contradicted and believe to be true nearly all that man's family are in office in Louisiana.

How was it with those men in Florida—those bogus Hayes electors, who took their title by the rascality I have mentioned and cast their vote for Hayes? Have they been frowned upon by this civil-service reform administration? Not at all. But a few days since I saw an announcement in a New York paper that one of them had been appointed to an office of high trust and honor.

Well, now, if the Government does not condemn and frown upon men who employ such means, such frauds and usurpations as I have named, how much more necessary is it that the people should do it, and by their sovereign voice declare that such things shall take place no more?

Leaving this subject, I want to congratulate you, my Democratic friends, upon the success of Democracy and Democratic principles. We lost the Presidency by the means to which I referred, but, although we lost the officers, the cause for which we contended has triumphed in the most remarkable manner.

What did we tell those Republicans for ten long years since the close of the war? What have I, in my humble way, from this very spot, speaking where I now speak, said to you year after year since 1865? Why, that if you wanted peace and prosperity and good-will between all the people, white and black, down South; if you wanted quiet and order down there; if you wanted that country to recover from its depressed and almost destitute condition, all you had to do was to let the Southern States govern themselves as the Northern States govern themselves, and it would be all right. What did we hear in answer to this? Ah, those Southern men cannot be trusted. So, the first thing was to give the ballot to the negroes, in order that the negroes, under the dictation of carpet-baggers and supported by the army of the United States, might govern the whites. And, from that time forward, no matter how carpet-baggers plundered and consumed their substance, no matter how much the republic and its institutions were brought into disrepute, there was but one cry on the part of Republican leaders in or out of Congress, "this is necessary, for the white men down there cannot be trusted." We said to them, "Wherever they have been trusted, instantly there is law and order. When finally you trusted them in Virginia, Virginia became as orderly as the State of Ohio. When finally you trusted them in North Carolina, North Carolina became an orderly State, and if you will do by South Carolina and Florida and Alabama and Mississippi and Louisiana what you have done by North Carolina and Virginia and Tennessee, you will have just as orderly governments down there, just as peaceable a society down there, just as perfect protection of the rights of all men, white and black, down there as they have in North Carolina, Virginia, or Ohio itself. They wouldn't listen to us because the leaders of that party knew full well that it was not by peace and prosperity in the South that the Republican party was to flourish; they knew full well that the moment they were left to govern themselves, as you in Ohio govern yourselves without the interference of the Federal Government, without the interference of Federal bayonets, that moment the intelligent portion of the people of the country would exercise their natural influence, and then there would be an end to carpet-bag governments in the Southern States, then there would be an end to the Republican party pretty much in the Southern States. That these men knew, and, therefore, they insisted upon the carpet-bag and bayonet governments throughout the South. And do you remember last year what was the staple of their speeches?

Mr. President Hayes now refers to a resolution in the platform of the Cincinnati Convention, and to his letter of acceptance, as showing that he intended to be kind toward the people of the South. Did any body hear that kind of talk from Republicans here last fall when they were on the stump in Ohio? I think we might offer a reward for any man who heard that kind of sweet talk last year from a radical speaker. Not a word of it. Nothing but a denunciation of the South. We heard it said, if you leave the Southern people to manage themselves, and especially if the Democratic party succeed, they will inflict upon this country ten times as much evil as the war itself did; that they would pile upon the country the Confederate war debt and make the Government pay a pension to every Confederate soldier, and flood the treasury with false claims.

Not only that, but that they would kill the negroes, put them down by the bayonet, and there would be no such thing as peace and security in the South [illegible]. And not only were these things sounded abroad, but we saw the bloody shirt sent up to the gaze of the people all over the continent; but not one word of this cooing of the turtle-dove that we now hear.

That is the way it was. Very well. They succeeded in getting the Presidency, but we succeeded in getting our ideas of constitutional law and of good sense and of humanity so strongly into the minds of the people of this country that even the Radical President was compelled, as soon as he was seated—some people say before, but as soon as he was seated—he was compelled to turn right around and do all that Sam Tilden could have done if Sam had been inaugurated in his stead. Well, now, I give him credit for doing it, and yet it is a little funny. Is it not strange to see the President sending down a set of fellows there to seduce Packard's niggers away from his Legislature, and by that means ousting Packard from being Governor of Louisiana, when Packard got 1,000 votes more than Hayes did? Ain't that a little strange? And yet you have seen it. I have no doubt but Tilden would have done the same thing in effect, but not in exactly the same way. Then what a howl there would have been! Then you would have heard that the Democrats had turned out the lawfully-elected Legislature and a lawfully-elected Governor.

LIGHTNING SPEED.

A Run of 111 Miles in 109 Minutes on the Canada Southern Railroad.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

There was to be only one stop in the 111 miles that separates St. Thomas from Amherstburg. Conductor A. B. Crawford sang out "All aboard!" and the special pulled out from St. Thomas at 5:27 p. m. A grand hurrah from the platform signaled the departure.

Once the bridge was cleared Macomber "let her out." Bishop Borgess, in the palace car, after receiving the salutations of the gentlemen of the party, sat down, and dinner was served to him and his traveling companions upon a small table. No one noticed any particular motion in the car. There was no disarrangement of the dishes, crowded and small as was the table. The hum of the train was somewhat sharper than usual, and the rushing air against the windows sounded like the sweeping of a rain-storm. Otherwise there was no indication of unusual speed to a person in the car.

Presently watches were taken out and observations made. The reverend clergy, as well as the more worldly laity, became interested.

"A mile in sixty seconds!" ejaculated one.

Shortly after—"A mile in fifty-eight seconds!"

Again—"A mile in fifty-seven seconds!" and the enthusiastic Frank Moran, with a cheer that intensified the excitement, announced that his stop-watch marked but fifty-five seconds to the mile.

Before one could point out an object it had vanished. Before a question could be asked and answered a mile had sped; five miles were traversed in the interval while cigars were handed around and lighted by as many men. A flock of blackbirds flying toward the west, with all their fleetness in cleaving the air, were soon left behind and lost to view.

The wires on the telegraph-poles swung up and down from the movement of the train. The bushes on the side of the ditches shook as if swept by a hurricane, and the tall and gaudy yellow coxcombs that grew beside the fences bent to the ground in a seemingly overpowering desire to get loose from the earth and follow the rushing train. The dust from newly-ballasted portions of the track and the chips and leaves rose up fiercely against the force of gravitation and whirled and gyrated like vapory clouds in a tempest. A thin line of smoke stretched interminably in the distance. The impetus of the train increased; the vehemence with which it rushed forward created a vacuum that apparently took nature some seconds to overcome, and the spirits of the passengers were exhilarated by the unprecedented speed at which they moved through space.

A side-track passenger train saluted us with cheers and locomotive whistles. Neither was heard; before the sound could reach the ears of the passengers in the special it was beyond hearing. One could see the rushing steam and the waving handkerchiefs. Train-Dispatcher Noble reported that six miles between Highwood and Ridgeton were made in five minutes; the fifty-seven miles between St. Thomas and Charing Cross were made in fifty-six and a half minutes. A halt at Charing Cross of four minutes for water, and then on again with the same overpowering velocity. But, go as fast as it might, the Canada Southern train could not overtake the sun; it sunk, and nightfall came on. Then could be seen the work of the fireman. Each time he opened the furnace a volume of sparks shot out, and the trailing fire came down upon the track like the pyrotechnics of an aerial mine.

Finally, a sharp twist that sent the standing passengers over to the right, and directly another that sent them in the other direction, and the yard of Amherstburg station was reached.

Hurrah! 111 miles in 109 minutes! The fastest time in America—beating by three minutes the remarkable run of Vanderbilt's special train.

Gen. McClellan says, in Harper's Magazine, that our army loses a larger proportion of officers killed in time of peace than the British army loses in peace and war together. Taking the number killed in the half century from 1804 to 1854, and deducting the wars of 1812, of Mexico, of Florida, and the Black Hawk, and consider the intervening peaceful periods, the percentage of killed is greater to the whole force than that of the British army in the same period, though Great Britain was at war nearly the whole time.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
EnglishBreakfastTea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents. Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents. Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.
Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the owest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $4.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS, OILS, OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

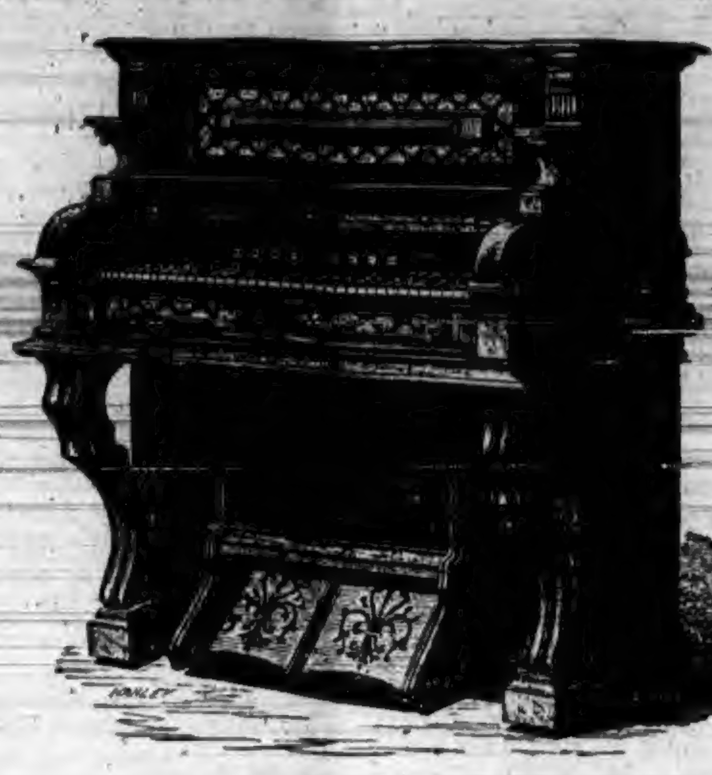
Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TIN M R and is prepared to do all kinds of Eaves-Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STRFET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSF AUBURN, IND

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.



T heESTEY ORGAN

tands unri valled. It has stood the test of years, and has never be excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

RY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry.
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on [illegible]tice and in good style.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do shoul'd give them a call. mal ew

---

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash tor goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well establishdd fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Soutl ern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 17a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 04 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 35 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 51 "	2 40 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 51 "	7 17 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	[illegible] "	4 12 "	9 25 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Elkhart	7 58 p m	9 50 p m	7 40 "
Goshen	8 06 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 02 "
Kendallville	8 40 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
T ledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. H. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	3 55	12 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 40	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 10
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Nig t ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 20 am	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20.
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 [illegible] pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "	1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "	3 05	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "	4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm	5 30	6 35
Reading	1 43 "	7	7 32
Bankers	2 01 "	7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "	7	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "	9	9 20
Detroit	6 20 "	12	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "	4	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m		3 55p
Lansing	10 10 "		7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "	11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "		9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am	5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 [illegible]0 pm	7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "	7	7 29
Reading	1 22 "	8	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "	9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "	10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "	11 31	9 36
Auburn Junction		1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "		10 35
Indianapolis	" 45 "		5 55
St. Louis	8 30 pm		7 25
Louisville	8 30 am		10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 20pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 30	5 00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 20
Zanesville	11 55	2	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5
Shawnee	4 30	10
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 [illegible]am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	4 35	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6 15	10 00
Shelby	4 54	6 47	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 10
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 00	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Express	Cum'l A
Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 20pm	1 14am	11 20am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 48	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 00
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 25
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:30 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.
Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mail.	3. Express.	5. Accom.
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 25 pm	....
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm	....
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm	....
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm	....
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am	....	6 35 p m
Cambridge City	9 45 am	....	7 45 p m
Connersville	10 20 am	....	8 50 p m
Cincinnati	1 20 pm	....	11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 00 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 30 am
Terre Haute	5 [illegible] pm	7 00 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

GOING NORTH

STATIONS	2	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis	....	8 00 am	....
Terre Haute	....	2 55 pm	....
Louisville	....	3 30 pm	....
Cincinnati	7 00 am	....	7 00 am
Indianapolis	....	6 20 pm	....
Connersville	10 40 am	....	10 40 am
Cambridge City	11 13 am	....	11 44 am
New Castle	11 50 am	....	12 55 pm
Muncie	12 45 pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	1 36 pm	11 25 pm	....
Montpelier	2 0[illegible] pm	11 57 pm	....
Bluffton	2 40 pm	12 25 pm	....
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am	....

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL. No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 6.	LOCAL FT No. 8.
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 06	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 [illegible]
Columbia City	10 25	11 15	1 30
Collins	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 53
La Otto	11 21	12 31pm	3 55
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 46	4 1[illegible]
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 57
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1.	No. [illegible]	No. 7.
Logansport ar	6 [illegible]5 pm	1 00pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16	12 10 m	4 10
Denver	6 07	11 40am	4 00
Chili	6 00		3 20
Roann	5 47		2 40
Laketon	5 32		2 00
North Manchester	5 23		1 30
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 06
Collamar	5 05		12 30am
South Whitley	5 02		12 20
Columbia City	4 40		10 25
Collin's	4 21		9 40
Cherubusco	4 14		9 26
La Otto	3 55		8 44
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 54	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 [illegible]	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER, Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or Infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 275 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. CARLTON, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

The Mayer House, at Fort Wayne, is now under the management of Searbrough & Kepler, two gentlemen who understand their business, and attend to it.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, OCTOBER 18th, 1877. Number 42.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year..........$2. | Six Months..........

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	3.00	5.00	7.00	12.00
¼ Column........	6.00	12.00	18.00	30.00
½ Column........	10.00	15.00	20.00	40.00
1 Column........	15.00	25.00	50.00	100.00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY, P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

E. A. FRANKS. O. E. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WM. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the state. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, O. Sands,
[Late of City Hotel,] C erk. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Hauling good teams and reasonable

EAGLE MILL

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

P. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Seybt, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST. Kendallville, Ind.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAINS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy,

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended.

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

suffer so much with Neuralgia or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with scores who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent clergymen and editors recommend it from a knowledge of its effects.

Rheumatism,
Dyspepsia,
Neuralgia,
Pleurisy,
Swollen Joints,
Headache,
Lame Back,
Erysipelas,

Diphtheria,
Sciatica,
Toothache,
Sore Throat,
Chilblains,
Sprains,
Burns,
Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

Is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of De-Kalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal Liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the De Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Funk deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WM. H. MADDEN, Adm'r.

Octber 1, 1877 no41.

Why Silver is Depreciated

Dr. Linderman, the director of the mint, believes that the fall in the price of silver during the past year is no argument against its use as money. He thinks the causes of the depreciation of silver were:

1. Change from the silver to the gold standard in Germany and Scandinavia. 2. Use of a forced paper currency in Russia, Austria and other States. 3. Diminishing demand for exports to India and China. 4. The limitations placed on the coinage of silver by countries of the double standard. 5. Increased production.

The causes he states in the order of their importance, "Increased Production" being placed at the bottom of the list. It is evidens that with a renewad demand for silver for use as money its price will soon advance.

A Scotch Courtship.

A shy young man of Scotland for fourteen years had wooed the lassie of his heart. One night Jamie, for that was the young man's name, called to see Jennie, and there was a terrible look about his eyes—just as there is sometimes when they've made up their minds to pop the question. And Jamie came in and sat down by the fire just as he had done Tuesday and Friday nights for fourteen years; and they talked about the weather; and the crops, stock market, I was going to say—but no, they didn't talk about that. And finally Jamie said;

"Jennie, I've known you for a long time.'

"Yes, Jamie,' said she.

"And—I've thought I'd always like to know you, Jennie.'

"Y-e-s, Jamie'

"And so I've bought—a lot—Jennie.'

"Y-e-s, J-a-m-i-e.'

"So—that—when—'

"Yes—Jamie—yes.'

"We're dead we can lay our bones together.'

The fool had gone and bought a lot in a graveyard, but Jennie was not discouraged. She knew her man well—after fourteen years she ought to—and so she said gently. —

"Jamie.'

Yes, Jennie."

"Don't you think 'twould be better to lay our bones together while we're yet alive?'

An Oriental Question.

The Russo-Turkish war revives an old story. A Turkish and a Russian officer once fell into a dispute as to the superiority in discipline of their respective soldiers.

"I can prove to you on the spot," said the Russian, "how perfectly our men ere trained." And he called his orderly.

',Ivan!"

"Sir."

"Go to Mehemet's, buy me a pound of tobacco, and come back at once."

The soldier saluted, turned on his heel and went out.

"Now," said the Russian officer, taking out his watch, "my orderly is walking straight to the next corner, where he must turn—now he is turning—now he is opposite the white mosque—now he is crossing the maydan—now he is at Mehemet's—now he is buying the tobacco—now he is coming back—now he is on the block below us—now he is at the door—now"—and the Russian called out:

"Ivan!"

"Sir."

"Where's the tobacco?"

"Here, sir."

The Turkish officer showing no sign of surprise at the precision of this Russo tobacco movement, promptly broke out;

"Ho! ho! my soldier can do that every day in the week," and then he called:

"Muhctar!"

"Sir."

"Go to Ali Effendi's and see that you bring me a pound of tobacco. My pipe is empty."

"Instantly, sir.

Following the tactics of the Russian officer, the Turk pulled out his watch and went on:

"Now Muhctar is in the street; now he is passing palpooch bazaar; now it is noon and he is staying for prayers; now he is drinking at the stone fountain; now Ali Effendi hails him and asks about my health; now Muhctar is paying for the tobacco; now he is coming back by another way; now he is on our street; now he is at the door; and now"—

"Muhctar!" shouted the officer.

"Sir."

"Where is my tobacco?"

"I haven't found my shoes yet!"

Horse shoeing promptly attended to. The Best workmen in town. Prices reasonable. Don't fail to give me a call. JAMES ANDERSON. tf.

Mark Twain's Cheek

Mark Twain and Dan De Quille once roomed together during the early days of Virginia City, when everything was in its primitive state, and before the advancing hand of civilization provided the comforts of a metropolitan life

Both were employed on the Enterprise—Dan as the "rock sharp" and Mark as the "funny man."

One of Mark's eccentricities was to shirk all kinds of responsibility, and he invaribly let Dan do all the buying, rent-paying, etc., and by dint of much perseverence and an equal amount of forcible persuasion Dan managed to make Mark pap his quota toward the expenses—not that the latter regretted separating himself from a few shekels, of course not; but from an indisposition to be bothered with such trifles, as his mind soared to higher things that a "dollar's worth of coal," "four bits' worth of washing soap," etc. Mark carried his indifferences to extremes; but there was really no limit to his. He possessed the pure, genuine, unadulterated article. He would borrow Dan's comb, use it, put it in his pocket, and blow Dan up for not possessing a better one. In those days he was never known to own a pair of drawers or an undershirt, or even a pair of socks; but he would walk the streets in a suit of Dan's best, which he had appropriated from the latter's trunk, and then swear because these happened to be a button off the shirt. He would go to Dan's trunk, examine the articles therein, and then turn to that person and ask him if he didn't have a pair of socks without a hole in the heel.

Mark and Dan were both inveterate smokers, and of course we know who bought the tobacco. If Dan should happen to get hold of an interior brand and fill the box with it, Mark would intimate that "when people bought tobacco they might excercise a little judgment, and not get stuff that a man couldn't use." These little peculiarities of Mark's nature, though somewhat expensive to Dan, were nevertheless enjoyed by him; but one day Mark overleaped the bounds of Dan's amiability and that individual got mad. Think of it—Dan DeQuille in a passion!

It seems Mark ran out of a tooth-brush, and how to replace it without sacrificing some of the mining stock puzzled him considerably. But a brilliant idea one day thrust itself into his troubled sconce.

"Heaven be praised for the thought!" soliloquized he; "genius will be rewarded!"

So one morning standing by the wash-stand just after rising, he picked up the coveted article, and turning it round and round in his hand, said to Dan, who was still snugly ensconced between his blankets, but with one eye on Mark:

"Say, Dan, that looks like my tooth-brush."

"Liar!" shouted Dan; "that brush did an old Egyptian to my mother give!"

"And how long, my perfumed blanket-sweater, have you cleaned those foul snags of yours with it?"

"Nine years," faintly murmured Dan, who was beginning to have suspicions that his old dental companion was about to leave him.

"Nine years," said Mark, rubbing the article on the soap. "Bully! If there is anything I hate to do it is to break in a new tooth-brush." And in a quarter of a second that almost hairless piece of ivory was exploring the cavern under Mark's nose.

Dan could not brook the insult. A bootheel instanceusly sunk into Mark's skull, and the two great wits of Nevada were friends no more.—California Footlight.

The Bankrupt Law.

The present bankrupt law is becoming more and more odious to the business men of the country, and it is not unlikely that the demand for its repeal will yet become to strong to resist. It is urged that it furnishes a strong inducement to rascally men to engage in business for no other purpose or expectation than to take advantage of its provissions. They manage to secure credit for the outstanding stock of goods; pay up promptly long enough to increase their credit purchases to the utmost limit; force sales far a time as fast as possible and pocket the cash, and then go into bankruptcy and buy up claims against them for 25 cents on the dollar and start in again. The stock with which they renew business can be sold at prices which defy competition, and the honest dealer must not only suffer in this respect, but also by paying still higher prices for his goods in order to make up to the wholesaler his loss sustained by the retailer's knavery. It is not pretended that honest men do not fail, and that their misfortunes entitle them to consideration. But it is declared that no set of creditors finding that a debtor had conscientiously given up to them all he had, would refuse to give them a receipt in full, enabling him to start over again in life, unincumbered. To those debtors, however, whose failures were voluntarily brought about for fraudulent purposes no such forbearance would be exhibited, and they would not be able to force the creditors to cancel the accounts honestly due them for 25 per cent., when the other 75 per cent. was jingling in the honest debtors' pockets.—The absence of any bankrupt law would result in hardship to a few, but it may certainly be questioned if such hardship is not largely over-balanced by the evils to which the existance of the law subjects the dealers who pay their debts, and who are obliged to carry on their business in the face of competition with those who are constantly compounding with their creditors.—South Bend Tribune.

More Than a Mile a Minute.

There was only one stop in the 111 miles that separated St. Thomas from Amherstburg on the Canada Southern railroad. The engineer, Macomber, was surrounded by an admiring throng, and passengers and railroaders commented on the handsome appearance of his iron steed. The steam gague just before starting showed a pressure of eighty-five pounds, a moderate figure for a locomotive. Conductor Crawford sang out "All aboard!" and the special train with Bishop Burgess on board pulled out for St. Thomas at 5:27 p. m. A grand hurrah from the platform signaled the departure.

Once the bridge was cleared, Macomber "let her out." Bishop Burgess, in the palace car, after receiving the salutations of the gentlemen of the party, sat down, and dinner was served to him and his traveling companions upon a small table. No one noticed any particular motion in the car. There was no disarragement in the dishes, crowded and small as was the table. The hum of the train was somewhat sharper than usual, and the rushing air against the windows sounded like the sweeping of a rain storm. Otherwise there was no indication of unusual speed to a person in the car.

Presently watches were taken out and observations made. The reverend clergy, as well as the more worldly laity, became interested.

"A mile in sixty seconds!" ejaculated one.

Shortly after—"A mile in fifty-eight seconds!"

Again—"A mile in fifty-seven seconds!" and the entusiastic Frank Moran, with a cheer that intensified the excitement, announced that his stopwatch marked fifty-five second to the mile.

Before one could point out an object it had vanished. Before a question could be asked and answered a mile had sped; five miles were traversed in the interval while cigars were handed around and lighted by as many men. A flock of blackbirds flying toward the west with all their fleetness in cleaving the ais were soon behind and lost to view.

The wires on the telegraph poles swung up and down from the movement of the train. The bushes on the side of the ditches shook as if swept by a hurricane, and the tall and gaudy yellow coxcombs that grew beside the fences bent to the ground in a seemingly overpowering desire to get loose from the earth and follow the rushing-train. The dust from newly balasted portions of the track and the chips and leaves rose up fircely against the force of gravitation and whirled and gyrated like vapory clouds in a tempest. A thin line of smoke stretched interminably in the distance. The impetus of the train increased, the vehemence with which it rushed forward created a vacum that appearently took nature some seconds to overcome, and the spirits of the passengers were exhilerated by the unprecedented speed at which they moved through space.

A side-track passenger train saluted us with cheers and locomotive whistles. Neither was heard; before the sound could reach the ears of the passengers in the special it was beyond hearing. One could see the rushing Steam and the waving hankerchiefs. Train Despatcher Noble reported that six miles between Highwood and Ridgeton were made in five minutes; the fifty-seven miles between St. Thomas and Charing Cross were made in fifty-six and a half minutes. A halt at Charing Cross for four minutes for water, and then on again with the same overpowering velocity. But go as fast as it might, the Canada Southern train could not overtake the sun; it sank, and nightfall came on. Then could be seen the work of the fireman. Every time he opened the furnace a volume of sparks shot out, and the trailing fire came down upon the track like the pyrotechnics of an aerial mine.

Finally a sharp twist that sent the standing passengers over to the right, and then another that sent them in the other direction, and the yard of Amherstburg Station was reached.

Hurrah! One hundred and eleven miles in one hundred and nine minutes! The fastest time in America—beating by three minutes the run of Vanderbilt's special train.—Detroit Free Press.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once,

H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

October 11,—6m no41.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the De-Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of James I. Patterson, Jr., deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

GILBERT I. PATTERSON, Adm'r,

Sept. 28, 1877 no41

THE SEPTEMBER GALE.

BY O. W. HOLMES.

I'm not a chicken; I have seen
Full many a chill September,
And though I was a youngster then,
That gale I well remember;
The day before my kite-string snapped,
And I my kite pursuing,
The wind whisked off my palm-leaf hat,
For me two storms were brewing.

It came as quarrels sometimes do,
When married folks get clashing;
There was a heavy sigh or two,
Before the fire was flashing,
A little stir among the clouds
Before they rent asunder,
A little rocking of the trees,
And then came on the thunder.

Lord! how the ponds and rivers boiled,
And how the shingles rattled!
And oaks were scattered on the ground
As if the Titans battled;
And all above was in a howl,
And all below a clatter,
The earth was like a frying-pan,
Or some such hissing matter.

It chanced to be our washing day,
And all our things were drying;
The storm came roaring through the lines
And set them all a flying.
I saw the shirts and petticoats
Go riding off like witches;
I lost—ah! bitterly I wept—
I lost my Sunday breeches!

I saw them straddling through the air,
Alas! too late to win them;
I saw them chase the clouds, as if
The devil had been in them.
They were my darlings and my pride,
My boyhood's only riches;
"Farewell, farewell," I faintly cried,
"My breeches! Oh, my breeches!"

That night I saw them in my dreams,
How strange from what I knew them;
The dews had steeped their faded threads,
The winds had whistled through them,
I saw the wide and ghastly rents,
Where demon claws had torn them;
A hole was in their amplest parts,
As if an imp had worn them.

I have had many happy years,
And tailors kind and clever,
But those young pantaloons have gone
Forever and forever.
And not till time has cut the last
Of all my earthly stitches,
This aching heart shall cease to mourn
My loved, my long-lost breeches.

NELLIE DARE'S LOVE.

It was a March morning, and yet the sky was as blue as in June. Manfred Lowth stood on Wilson's hill, looking down upon the city. It gleamed white and beautiful from the plains, and the hills, green with their covering of pine forests, rose still and stately beyond. The "dull-gray meadows" within sight had peaks of snow upon them, and the breeze brought the atmosphere of snow from the mountains, though the sunshine fell so bright.

Manfred Lowth stood with his arms folded across his breast, and his tall, powerful figure outlined against the clear sky. As he stood thus, still and resolute in his solitude, with his absorbed, masterful eyes, and a face of Spartan firmness, he looked every inch a king. It was his 35th birthday. There may have been something sad in the thought to him, for he was utterly alone in life, and the circumstances which give a sense of airy freedom at 30, bring a feeling of desolation at 60. Possibly Manfred Lowth thought of this as he hailed his birthday morn, and thought how much of his life had gone. Not that there were any signs of advancing age in his vigorous figure and abundant dark hair. As he suddenly placed one hand upon the stone wall before him and leaped lightly over he displayed a vigorous agility of exceeding grace, and his step, as he walked rapidly down the hill, had the buoyant elasticity of youth and hope. If his thoughts had been grave, they were so no longer. He went down the hill whistling cheerily.

There was a long road of yellow clay stretching before him to the city, patches of bare scrub oaks at either side. In one place the road went over a slight elevation, at the commencement of which a space beyond was concealed by the hill, and just here Manfred Lowth ceased whistling, and began searching his pockets eagerly. He laughed merrily as he finally brought forth from the breast pocket of his inner coat a little white worsted mitten. This is how he came by it:

The morning before he had been going over that very hill, but not whistling as then. Reaching the top, he looked down upon a little figure seated upon a stone by a lonely roadside, where hardly a house was in sight. It was a perfect picture. The girl wore a dress of crimson merino, and a pretty, snowy hood, which was pushed back from her rose of a face, over the sweet, low forehead of which little tresses of golden hair were blowing in the mild March wind. She was altogether too intensely occupied to put back her hair, curiously occupied, too. She had pulled her stocking and shoe from her left foot, and was intently examining the small sole of the white worsted stocking, while the little bare, snowy foot rested unnoticed on the frozen ground.

Manfred Lowth recognized Nellie Dare, and thought she must be crazy. What in the world was the child doing?

Suddenly a quick smile flashed over Nellie's face, her cheek dimpled, she tossed back her hair, and looked up and saw the watcher on the hill. The stocking was turned and slipped on in a flash, the little boot put on (Manfred Lowth was sure it was only half put on, by the tracks it made in a patch of snow near by), and Nellie Dare sprung into the cross-road, and hurried out of sight. Arriving at the place, Lowth pick up the little white mitten. He put two fingers into it—walking on looking at it, and smiling. Such a dainty little thing—and then Nellie had looked so pretty and frightened. But why had she uncovered her foot and examined her stocking by the roadside? Surely there were no thorns or thistles about at that time of the year.

When he came to the cross-road by the pines he hesitated, and finally struck into it. Then he put the mitten back into his pocket, buttoned his coat, and walked faster.

Nellie Dare's home was on the Auburn road, a little white cottage with bare lilacs and rose vines clinging about it—the loveliest place around in the summer time. Now there was a face prettier than any rose at one of the windows, and Manfred Lowth looked up and bowed to it.

Nellie's fresh young blood flooded her heart as she caught sight of the face which personified all her girlish, ideal dreams. She dropped her book and rose trembling as Manfred Lowth entered the room. He looked with laughing eyes into the prettiest flushing face as he took her hands.

"Miss Nellie, I have called out of the purest curiosity to know why you have taken to the fashion of the chick-a-dee-dees, and go barefoot in snowy weather?" he said, after a moment.

"Oh, Mr. Lowth!"

"Well, Miss Nellie?"

"I was trying a trick."

Mr. Lowth looked mystified.

"That of the first robin," said Nellie, very much ashamed to show her childishness to her companion, yet half amused at Lowth's expression.

"Did you expect to find him in your stocking?"

"No. Oh, Mr. Lowth, didn't you ever hear the old saying—"

"Well, Nellie?"

"That when you heard the first robin of spring singing, if you had pulled the stocking from your left foot, you would find on the inside of the sole—"

"What?"

"A hair like that of the person's you are going to marry."

"You ridiculous child!"

Nellie's face was burning hot at her foolishness, but she could not help laughing at Lowth's evident appreciation of it, and his thorough astonishment.

"Nellie, I'll buy you a rattle the next time I go into town!"

Nellie pouted.

"Well, did you find the hair?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was it like mine?" tossing back the loose masses of dark-brown hair.

A little quivering smile spoiled Nellie's pout.

"The rest is a secret."

"Then you don't intend to tell whose the hair was like?"

"No, I shall not tell."

"May I guess?"

"I can't help your guessing, sir."

"Was it like Ned Howland's ambrosial locks, little Dignity?"

"I haven't promised to tell if you guess."

"So you haven't! Then I shall not waste my time guessing. But tell me one thing."

"What is that?"

"If you have faith in the tricks."

"Utter faith," Nellie said, smiling and shaking her head.

"Then I wish—I do wish that the hair may be like mine."

Manfred Lowth spoke with no raillery, yet he hardly knew why he spoke as he did. Nellie Dare turned pale as a lily. There was a moment of swift thought in both their minds.

Manfred Lowth had committed himself; as an honorable man he had committed himself. He had no right to say such a thing in such a tone, unless he meant what he said. So he stood, half-condemned, looking down at Nellie's sweet, agitated face.

She was lovely. As he knew her, she was a sweet, innocent, affectionate girl; but the thought of marrying her never entered his head until that moment. His ideal was older, graver, as one to understand him thoroughly must have been. He fancied a face of more power, deeper eyes, and a stronger effect; but, if he read aright the eyes and lips before him, their meaning was very sweet and thrilling.

Nellie blushed with distress under his eyes. He searched her face resolutely. Such a face had deceived him once, when he was a mere boy, and loved with his passionate first love. He dropped her hands at last, and stepped back.

"Are you going to school this summer?" he asked, plucking a dry leaf from a geranium on the window-sill.

"Yes. I graduate in July."

"Oh, yes; I had forgotten. And in July comes your birthday?"

"Yes; I am 18 in July."

She was womanly for her age after all. If he could only be sure that she was not as light-hearted as she was fair! But that pretty way of tossing back her curls was Bessie Bradford's own. He did not wish to be fooled twice by the same style; so he chatted about the school exhibition, the closing of the library, and the military review in April, and finally took his leave.

"He thinks me only a child, and I love him so," she murmured, sobbing bitterly. "I hate my baby face! And he always finds me doing some childish thing. I wish I was dead."

She cried herself nearly ill, but escaped undetected to her room when her brother came in. The next day she heard that Manfred Lowth had gone to New York.

The spring wore on. Nellie Dare grew pale and grave. Her mother became anxious. Nellie was surely studying too hard; she never could bear the excitement of the exhibition. So Nellie was taken almost by force from school, and sent to Nahant.

Nahant's sea breeze had no effect. Nellie's chaperone, Mrs. Bertram, of Boston, recommended tonics and bathing, drives and flirting, and did her best to have her prescription carried into effect; but Nellie endured everything listlessly, and finally begged, in answer to her aunt's expostulations, to be let entirely alone. She should do better so. Mrs. Bertram gave up in despair, and Nellie read and dreamed in solitude, or sat idly on the rock watching the sea. The wild wind browned her face and blew very faint roses in her cheeks, but days and weeks crept by, while Mrs. Bertram bemoaned that Nellie never would be like the other girls.

One morning a fishing party came to the hotel. They were entered upon the books as "Manfred Lowth, of Boston;" "Edward Howland, of Manchester, New Hampshire," etc.

"Nellie, my dear, do hurry! Mr. Lowth is here, from Boston—the finest man! Well off, well connected, gentlemanly, and of excellent character. You can never expect to make a very brilliant match, having no expectations yourself. I consider this just the thing for you. Now, Nellie, if you only will have your wits about you, instead of being so indifferent to everything, I shall be thankful. Why, there is no answering what that pretty face of yours might do, if you would only see your chances! Terry Holmes declares you the prettiest girl here, and his father is a millionaire. Just think of it, Nellie!"

Nellie, strangely pale, with her back to her aunt, turned Macassa upon her handkerchief, saying, chokingly:

"What Mr. Lowth, auntie?"

"Manfred Lowth. He's a shipper from Boston. Belongs in my set."

Nellie found another handkerchief, gave a defiant glance at her pale face in the mirror, and turned to her aunt.

"I am ready."

They went down to the dining-room and took their places side by side. Exactly opposite Nellie sat Manfred Lowth, mixing lobster salad, and chatting softly and gayly with Mrs. Vernon, from New York. At Nellie's right side sat Ned Howland, her old beau from Manchester.

Lowth looked up and bowed to her. She returned the salutation, then turned to Ned Howland.

Perhaps for an hour she flirted—never afterward. After dinner she went to her room, bathed her head, which ached horribly, then joined her aunt in the parlor. There was Manfred Lowth, who stood at her side a moment and exchanged a few words with her, then sauntered away. But Ned Howland bent over her chair all the afternoon. At night she went to bed feverish and ill.

A week passed. Nellie became aware that Ned Howland loved her. He was a good-hearted, good-looking, but rather effeminate young man; handsome and very winning, however, and a year before Nellie might have loved him, but, truly loving Lowth as she did, the thing was impossible. She finally told him, frankly and kindly, that she did not love him.

They were sitting on the rocks at twilight.

"You used to like me, Nellie," said Howland, his lips growing pale under his pretty mustache.

"I like you now, Ned."

"But I think you used to love me—a little, Nellie."

She clasped her hands nervously.

"That was not love, Ned—oh! it was nothing like love! Don't talk to me any more, please. I am sorry you are grieved, but I can't help it. Don't blame me, and be kind to me. I have my own troubles to bear."

He got up and went down the rocks. She did not know whether he was offended or not, and, suffering from a keen sense of her sorrows, she hardly cared. She knew he would be in love with some one else within a week.

There were bitter tears in her eyes as she looked over the ocean. Suddenly a firm hand was laid on her shoulder.

"Nellie, how do you know so well what love is?"

She turned her head and looked into Manfred Lowth's grave face.

"Because I have reason to know," she answered, passionately.

"Nellie, Nellie," he said, "I love you. Will you answer me as you did Howland?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Because I love you."

She was in a passion of tears, sobbing as if her heart was broken.

"Nellie, little pet, what are you crying in this way for?"

"All this time—" she began.

"All this time," he interrupted, "I have been waiting to see if you really loved me. If you really loved, I knew that you ought to love me even though I was indifferent to you. I left you, and you did not forget me, but lost your roses, and turned pale when we met. Your words to Ned Howland, which I overheard, proved what a true-hearted little girl you are, and, if I promise to devote the rest of my life to your happiness, will you forgive me for causing you this pain?"

Nellie expressed her forgiveness very concisely and sweetly, and Mrs. Bertram's heart was made glad by the announcement of her niece's engagement to Mr. Manfred Lowth.

I think it was on their wedding day that Nellie showed Manfred Lowth a shining brown hair, carefully preserved, which she had found in her stocking that March morning, and it was very like Mr. Lowth's own.

So much for the sign of the first robin.

A Heroic Dog.

The following is the record of a brave dog that lately perished: In 1862 a man with delirium tremens jumped overboard from the schooner Hero, on a voyage to Labrador. The dog bounded over the taffrail, and for half an hour held to the man with his teeth fastened in the collar of his woolen shirt. The delay was occasioned by the capsizing of the first boat that was lowered. In 1864 the dog saved a baby that had fallen through a sewer-hole in a wharf at Catalina, N. F. He jumped through the hole and was too large to swim between the posts of the wharf, but he held the baby's head out of the water and swam briskly in every direction in search of an opening. In 1869 he saved the life of a Swedish sailor, who, while drunk, walked into the land-wash at Bonavista, N. F. Between 1870 and 1873 Billy saved three children and one grown boy. Thenceforth his strength failed, and all his fangs fell out one by one, until last winter he had not one left. He was a huge, genuine Newfoundland.

A Prospective Millionaire.

"I have no occasion to work," said an individual when called up in a San Francisco Police Court to plead to a charge of vagrancy. "The question is, are you guilty or not guilty?" asked the Clerk. "I said I've no occasion to work," said the accused, "I have mining stocks, and when they go up I'll be a millionaire. Why, look here," continued the prisoner, reading from a scrap of paper he took from his pocket, "I've got five shares of Belmont, ten of Rock Island, five of Wells Fargo, five of Leviathan, five of Monumental, and five of Venture. Them's thirty-five shares of stock, and I tell you, Judge, when there's a booming market I'll be rich." A stock sharp figured up the value of the stock enumerated and found that at highest rates the defendant could realize $10.30, providing the market did not "drop" on him before he could sell.

Youthful Depravity.

A horrible case of cruelty has just come to light which occurred three days ago. Two boys who lived on the Warsaw pike bathed the left leg of a companion, Willie Lindsey, in gasoline, and then deliberately set fire to it. The leg of the victim was literally roasted to a crisp, and the boy suffered agonies too great to be described. One of the persecutors was a lighter of the gasoline lamps on that road, and he used for his devilish purpose the gasoline with which he was filling lamps. The boy will not die. His tormentors are still at large.—Cincinnati Times.

THE UNTUTORED RED MAN.

An Account of the Final Conference with the Sioux Delegation at Washington.

The Indians wore citizens' dress. President Hayes remarked that he was ready to hear what further his friends had to say. Spotted Tail took a seat at his side, and informed the President that he had decided to have his agency on Wounded Knee creek, and he wanted his provisions and clothing sent there. He wanted his great father to agree to this. "We don't want to move just now. We want some time to sell what property we have at our present homes. We will move in the spring or at any time after that. We want our provisions moved to the agency that I have named. You told us that your nation increases. We want to increase, too, in property and in numbers. You said you wished us to live like white men, and so we are here to-day dressed in white men's clothes. I want the kind of cattle the white men have—short-horns. I want everything in writing before I go home, so that there be no mistake. We want teachers of English. We want Catholic priests to teach us. We should like saw and grist-mills, and agricultural implements, and seeds. We want five or six stores; then we could buy cheaper at one than at another. I am very well dressed, and so are the others. They want $40 apiece to buy things for their women and children; and they would like to have a trunk apiece to carry their clothing in. As the weather is getting to be a little cold, we should like to have an overcoat apiece. We see you wearing overcoats, and we should like to have them."

Red Cloud next spoke. He said he had roamed the country where he now lived for fifty-six years, and should like to save his agency at White Clay creek; that ground he could not give up. If they should be sent to the Missouri river, the long-tailed rats there would get into the boxes and destroy them. "If you were in our country, and looked at our people, water would come to your eyes. I am poorer than any of them. Army officers took my horses, and other horses have been stolen from me and my crops destroyed. The injury is at least $10,000. I want half of this in money, and the remainder in other things."

The President then addressed the Indians as follows: "MY FRIENDS: I am glad to see you this morning. I am glad to see you dressed like white people. You look well in your clothes—like white people. It shows that you wish to live like white people. I have not much to say about the business that brought you here, in addition to what I said to you last week. You have spoken about the places where you wish to have your agencies. I am glad you would be satisfied to have agencies on reservations allotted to you, but, as I told you, it is too late in the season to change your agencies. It is too late to remove your supplies to the places you have named. The winter will soon come on, the streams be frozen up, and therefore no movement of supplies can be made. We wish you to help your people to remove near to the supplies, and Gen. Crook will assist you to do so. Next spring places can be selected near White river that will suit you; and now, as to the things that you have asked for. You want trunks, overcoats, and money. The great council of my nation has put money and property for you in charge of the Secretary of the Interior. He can give you whatever the great council has authorized him to give you, and I think he can satisfy you. This is the end of our grand council. I am glad you came. Let me advise you to move as near the supplies as you can, and next spring you can go to your reservation. I am glad you are satisfied with White river. I hope you will all reach your homes safely and in good health. Before you go, the Secretary will give you as many of the things you have asked for as he can, and now I will be glad to shake hands with each one of you, and wish you well."

The Indians then shook hands with the President and Secretary of the Interior, and appeared satisfied with the remarks of the President.

A Perambulating Printing Office.

The Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise says: "Some printers of this city are contemplating the fitting up of a small printing office which can be moved from place to place on wheels, as are the traveling photograph galleries. They intend making their start in California, and will travel through the small towns where there are no papers published and no printing offices. Once they are anchored in a town, they will send their 'devil' flying about the place with all the latest news of the neighborhood and the advertisements of the business men. They will print cards, bill-heads, circulars, and all else required, and when they have supplied the wants of a town in the printing line they will give some ranchman or livery-stable keeper a big puff and an acrostic on the name of his favorite daughter to hitch to their office and to haul them to the next town, where the devil will again be set flying about, and where the 'bugle blast of freedom' will again be heard. Thus they will go from town to town, remaining from a week to a month or two in a place, making money and friends wherever they go, and having a jolly good time at all the balls, parties, weddings and funerals. Their little paper will be called the Postal Card."

How to Achieve Greatness.

Do you ever reflect upon the fact that a man's name often has much to do with his claim to fame and immortality? No man with a comic name ever achieved greatness. How, for instance, could Moses ever have been respected by the Israelites if his name had been Mortimer J. Byng? Or how would Pharaoh have supported real dignity with such a title as Joe McClafferty? Imagine Cæsar laboring under the name of Lemuel S. Toombs, or Hannibal signing himself B. Tomlinsen Pugh. They would have died first. Cleopatra would not have been loved by Antony had her clothes been marked Amelia Duffy, and if Joan of Arc had been baptized Matilda G. Melloy, probably we should never have heard of her. Napoleon reached a throne only because his parents persisted in not calling him William Henry Jonson, and Mary Queen of Scots escaped oblivion because she did not appear in the directory as Mary Jane Bumgardner. And so if Shakspeare had been known as Sam Macilhenny, or Calvin as Washington T. Smooth, both would have sunk into forgotten graves. These things are suggestive to parents who want their children to achieve greatness.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE NATIONAL TREASURY.

Condition on Oct. 1, 1876, and Oct. 1, 1877.

Secretary Sherman has begun the publication of a useful supplement to the monthly debt statement in the shape of a comparison of the condition of the treasury at the date of each statement with that a year before. The condition of the treasury on Oct. 1, 1877, compares with that of Oct. 1, 1876, as follows:

Balances.	1876.	1877.
Currency	$12,824,945	$14,206,417
Special deposit for redemption of fractional currency	....	[illegible]
Special deposit of legal tenders for redemption of certificates of deposit	34,570,000	43,110,000
Coin	64,881,124	119,182,043
Coin certificates	29,777,200	37,997,500
Coin, less coin certificates	[illegible]	[illegible]
Outstanding called bonds	1,097,880	18,858,150
Other outstanding coin liabilities	21,130,116	[illegible]
Outstanding legal tenders	368,184,740	358,914,932
Outstanding fractional currency	29,858,415	18,786,642
Outstanding silver coin	[illegible]	[illegible]
Total debt, less cash in treasury	[illegible]	[illegible]
Reduction of debt for September	2,915,265	3,862,524
Reduction of debt since July 1	7,172,789	8,570,969
Market value of gold	110	103
Imports (12 months ending Aug. 31)	441,180,100	455,531,845
Exports (12 months ending Aug. 31)	472,180,378	522,998,940

The recovery of our foreign trade is shown in the increase of the imports and exports, and the former will add directly in the accumulation of gold by the treasury. The gold premium has dropped during the year from 110¼ to 103. The reduction of the debt has proceeded much more rapidly this year than last, and, as a result, the debt is now but $2,051,587,254.57, against $2,092,266,575.70 a year ago. The outstanding silver coin has been almost doubled; the outstanding fractional currency is but $18,786,642.27, against $29,858,415.62 in October, 1876.

Snoring.

Dr. John Wyeth is entitled to the gratitude of all who are afflicted with the habit of snoring for the simple device he has contrived to counteract the vile tendency. The apparatus is described by him in the Popular Science Monthly, and an explanation is at the same time given of the cause of snoring. In the act of breathing, the air may travel to and from the lungs through the channels of the mouth or the nose. Both channels unite in a common cavity just below the soft palate, which is attached by one end to the hard palate or bone forming the roof of the mouth and the floor of the nose. The other end of the soft palate hangs loose, and is moved by the currents of air passing in and out of the lungs, as a window-curtain is flapped by a breeze. If the air passes through the nose alone, the end of the palate is pressed gently down upon the tongue so as to lessen the movement or vibration, and no sound is heard. But if the mouth as well as the nose be open, so that two currents of air pass in and out together during the acts of breathing, the soft palate is thrown into rapid and sonorous vibration, and what we call snoring is the result.

It follows that the remedy for snoring is to keep the mouth shut, and admit air to the lungs only through the channel of the nose. This can be effected by means of a simple cap fitting the head snugly, and united by an elastic band, near the ear on each side, to a cap of soft material fitting the chin.

Love and Astronomy.

"By Jupiter! these are lovely nights. Nothing Mars the serenity of the scene," exclaimed young Jones the other night as he Saturn the porch 'neath the silvery rays of the crescent moon, with his arm around the waist of Venus. But when the old woman opened the window above them, and turned a pitcher of water out on their devoted heads, they thought they had encountered Neptune. She simply remarked to them as they started for the gate: "Here, come back! You can't comet over my daughter in that milky way." Jones retorted: "Uranus off, and I'll be hanged if I come back till I get ready," and his girl took his arm and he started off with a speed like the messenger Mercury, who is said to have wings on his heels, and silence reigned once more. The old woman says she will planet different next time.—Napa Register.

Romantic.

There is a young lady staying in Joliet, Ill., whose history is romantic. One evening three years ago, in the southern part of Illinois, she was out walking with her lover. They stepped into an oyster-house for refreshments, and, while seated at the table, a drunken rough came staggering in and insulted the lady. Her lover warned him not to do so again under penalty of death. The rough was just drunk enough to repeat his insult, and the lover pulled his revolver and shot him dead. For this the lover was arrested, tried, and sentenced to two years in the Joliet penitentiary. The young lady is there, awaiting the time when he will regain his liberty, which will be shortly. She has elegant clothing, jewelry, and plenty of money awaiting his release, and then they both expect to be happy.

Lawyer's Catechism.

What is law?

Law is a complicated and ingenious method of finding the bottom of the client's purse.

What is the essential quality of legal success?

Procrastination. Procrastination, the thief of time. Here we set a thief to help a thief.

What is injurious and often fatal to legal success?

Conscience. A lawyer may afford to keep a carriage, or even a harem—but never a conscience.

Why is law like a 200-pound gun?

Because it needs heavy charges to keep the ball rolling.

Who bandaged the eyes of justice?

We lawyers.—New York Graphic.

ONE of the advantages of being a negro is, that the color of your nose don't give you away.—Oil City Call.

THE LEAVES ARE FADING

The leaves are fading and falling,
The winds are rough and wild,
The birds have ceased their calling,
But let me tell you, my child,

Though day by day, as it closes,
Doth darker and colder grow,
The roots of the bright red roses
Will keep alive in the snow.

And when the winter is over,
The boughs will get new leaves,
The quail come back to the clover,
And the swallow back to the eaves;

The robin will wear on his bosom
A vest that is bright and new,
And the loveliest wayside blossom
Will shine with the sun and dew.

The leaves to-day are whirling,
The brooks are all dry and dumb;
But let me tell you, my darling,
The spring will be sure to come,

There must be rough, cold weather,
And winds and rains so wild;
Not all good things together
Come to us here, my child;

So, when some dear joy loses
Its beauteous summer glow,
Think how the roots of the roses
Are kept alive in the snow.

PITH AND POINT.

"TIME flies," suggested she. "Yes," he answered, sadly taking a dark object out of the cream, "time flies were gone."

SOMEBODY says: "Every failure is a step to success." This will explain why the oftener some men fail the richer they become.

"THE best way to cure a crying child," says an advertisement, "is to buy a baby carriage." That is, to keep the bawl rolling.

THE Kansas City Times exclaims: "There is anarchy in our midst." Ah, ha! Been at the green apples again, have you?—Hawk-Eye.

IT is a little singular how much valuable time a woman will take up in studying the postmark of a letter to see where it comes from, when she can open the letter and find out at once.

"YOU always lose your temper in my company," said an individual of doubtful reputation to a gentleman. "True, sir," replied the other. "And I shouldn't wonder if I lost everything I had about me."

THE young lovers who last spring were married and swore by all that is beautiful that only the great blue vault of heaven should overspread them are now quarreling with each other because he lets mosquitoes in on his side and she rolls all the covers off.

A PASSIONATE and revengeful temper renders a man unfit for advice, deprives him of his reason, robs him of all that is great and noble in his nature, and occasionally sends him home with a black eye when he attempts to try it on a man who won't have it.

THE Philadelphia Chronicle yells out in agony, "What is going to become of the last man?" We don't care a cent what becomes of the last man, or of the first one either. It is what is to become of the intermediate fellows that interests us.—Daily Derrick.

NOW COME the days when the sturdy farmer dumps a load of dirt into some mud-hole in the highway, yells "Haw, buck!" at his off ox, pricks the nigh one with a bradawl, and goes home under the impression that he has worked out his road tax in full.

A LAWYER in Strasburg being in a dying state sent for a brother lawyer to make his will, by which he bequeathed his estate to the Hospital des Fous (idiots). His brother advocate expressed his surprise at his request. "Why not bestow it upon them?" said the dying man, "you know I obtained my money from fools, and to fools it ought to return."

WHEN Macready was playing Macbeth in the English provinces, the actor cast for the part of the messenger in the last act was absent. So the stage manager sent a supernumerary on to speak the lines set down for the messenger, viz.: "As I did stand my watch upon the hill, I look toward Birnam, and anon, methought, the wood began to move." Macbeth—"Liar, and slave!" Super—"'Pon my soul, Mr. Macready, they told me to say it."

NERVOUS little Bob R. was nearly frightened into fits one day when bungling Parson Pew, in his hard, unsmiling way, with a voice like thunder, asked him, suddenly, "Who made the world in six days and rested the seventh?" "I did!" screamed the child, bursting into tears, "but—I'll—never—do so—any more." Poor Bob was bothered into assuming to himself the formation of a universe, and told a sinless lie in order to blurt out a promise of future good conduct.

JAMES T. FIELDS says that an admirer of Shakespeare discovered among his friends a Bostonian who had never read the plays of the immortal William, and advised him to do so at once. Several months later the giver of the advice again met his friend, asked him if he had read any of the plays, and what he thought of them. Yes, he had read them all, and he added, with effusion, "They are glorious, sir—far beyond my expectations! Why, sir, there are not twenty men in Boston who could have written them."

"HOME THEY BROUGHT," ETC.

Home they brought her sailor son,
Grown a man across the sea;
Tall, and broad, and black of beard,
And hoarse of voice as man may be.
Hand to shake and mouth to kiss,
Both he offered ere he spoke.
But she said: "What man is this,
Comes to play a sorry joke?"
Then they praised him—called him "smart;
Tightest lad that ever stept."
But her son she did not know,
And she neither smiled nor wept.
Rose, a nurse of ninety years,
Set a pigeon pie in sight.
She saw him eat: "'Tis he! 'tis he!"
She knew him by his appetite.

No Printers Need Apply.

The Government Printer in Washington writes to an applicant for work who resides at a distance: "There is no possible chance for employment here. There are hundreds of good, sober and competent printers here with almost starving families to support. While this is the fact no one from a distance need apply."

OSMAN PASHA has ordered that a copy of every American paper calling him "Relaycrawford" be obtained and laid aside for future reference. He vows a terrible vengeance on the writers as soon as he has disposed of his little disagreement with Skobeleff.

THE MASSACRES IN ROUMELIA.

A Series of Horrors—Murder, Desolation and Starvation—Victims by Thousands.

[Adrianople Cor. New York Times.]

Philippopolis is, as you know, mainly a Bulgarian town, and it was natural that the majority of refugees who had found shelter within its walls should be Bulgarians. In company with a Greek doctor who has devoted himself with rare energy and self-devotion to the amelioration of the misery about him, I visited the various hospitals, all of which were overcrowded. I saw in these places such sickening sights of horror as are not frequently to be met with, thank Heaven, even in war. The sufferers were all women and children. They had fled from the Bulgarian villages which used to surround Kasanlik, but which are now leveled to the ground. Among them all there was but one man. No other male adult had escaped from the fearful massacre perpetrated by the Turkish irregulars. There were children who had never learned to walk who were horribly cut and mangled. I saw one child of 6 months only who had been shot through the jaws by a wretch who had murderously pursued its mother. There was a woman in the Greek hospital whose right hand had been chopped off by another savage, who found that the readiest way to the gold bracelet which she, in common with most women of her people, wore as her wedding dower.

The people received us with the liveliest signs of gratitude, kissing our hands, kneeling before us and weeping. Some of them who had been in times of peace among the more well-to-do took us into their houses and showed us the desolation to which they had been reduced. They showed us the bloodstains on walls and floors which marked the spot of the murder of their male relatives. One dreadful story, which has since been amply confirmed, was told us of the death of an elderly Bulgarian gentleman who had the misfortune to be second cousin to the Russian Vice Consul at Philippopolis. The relationship was known to the Zeibecks and Circassians, and he himself was perfectly aware that if ever those savages occupied the town his death was certain. He resolved to defend himself, at least, and to that end secured arms. His house was broken into, and after a brief but desperate resistance he was seized and bound. A huge Bashi-Bazouk set him down upon the floor, and then deliberately hacked him to pieces, prolonging the sufferings of the unhappy man as long as possible, and pausing after the infliction of each wound to watch the effect of his stroke, and rejoicing at every expression of agony which his cruelty succeeded in wresting from his victim. This barbarity was perpetrated in the presence of the man's female relatives, who were compelled to stay and witness it.

Quitting Carlova, we made our way to Calofre along a road which led us through the lower ranges of the Balkans. Calofre was once a place of 10,000 inhabitants. We found it a still-smoldering heap of ruins, without a single roof remaining, or a single whole wall left standing. The stench of burned carcasses and rotting men and cattle was in places almost insupportable. The place is one of indescribable and fearful desolation.

We returned then to our camp of the previous night, packed up our traps, and pushed on to Sopot, which we reached at nightfall. What remains of the town stands under a sheer wall of mountain, and as we first saw it beneath the rising moon the aspect of the place was beyond description weird and desolate. Our earliest impression was that it was as complete a ruin as Calofre, but in the morning we found that many of the houses remained standing, and that there was still a hundred people in the town. They were all that were left out of 5,000, and, except for those who had been killed before their eyes, they could make no guess as to what had become of their old townsfolk. They told us that the Balkans, which overlooked the town, were thickly strewn with the bodies of men, women, and children who had been slain by the Circassians in attempting to escape. The destruction of the people of this place and of Calofre had been so fearfully complete that in all my travels through hospitals and places of refuge further south I had not met, to my knowledge, with one creature who had escaped from either of them. These are at present the two most awful examples of the fashion in which war is made in this miserable country. The country is already depopulated, and there are no longer roofs and walls to cover a tithe of that gigantic army of refugees which is scattered in hundreds and in thousands throughout the length and breadth of the land. I myself have seen more than 20,000 homeless fugitives, and I have seen a very small proportion. When the statistics of this war come to be published they will amount to appalling figures.

When I passed through Adrianople on my return journey I found the hangings going on with more than their old rapidity. On the day of my arrival thirty Bulgarians were strung up in the streets, and as I drove to the railway station on the following morning the executions were still going on, and my carriage passed one newly-hanged man who had not ceased to struggle. A mere tripod had been set up as a gallows, and half the street was blockaded by it. A knot of women and children stood about this edifying spectacle, which is now growing so familiar that a hanging excites no more popular attention than would be created by the merest trifle of street interest in New York or London.

Celestial Enjoyment.

After the labor of the day is over the weary Chinaman in San Francisco betakes himself to the club-room, theater or opium-den for an evening's enjoyment. The club-rooms are filled nightly. The Chinaman is an inveterate gambler. With him it is one of the necessities of life. He will stint his stomach to save a few cents to gratify his insatiable desire to win or lose. He does not seem to care what the game is. It is said that in many places in China it is no unusual sight to see rich merchants carrying large beetles and grasshoppers in the large sleeves of their coats. A certain mark is placed on each insect. A saucer is produced, and two of the beetles are placed in it to fight a battle. The respective owners make their bets, and the battle goes on until one or the other of the insects is killed. The same thing is done with tame quails, which are bred and trained in the same manner as game-cocks. Since the effectual raids made by the police upon the game of tan-tan, and the severe penalties imposed upon all who are arrested for playing it, that game has been generally abandoned. The game which is now universally played is "dominoes."

Cassius M. Clay Kills His Man.

Hon. Cassius M. Clay, formerly Minister to Russia under President Lincoln's administration, recently shot and killed a negro man, Perry White. The affair, which occurred on the farm of Gen. Clay, near Richmond, Ky., is thus described by a correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"Gen. Clay has had in his employ as cook for some time a negro woman, the mother of Perry White. A few days ago he discovered that she had been robbing him of his silver plate, his table service, and other articles, and he discharged her. Being a very violent woman, she swore vengeance against her employer. Previous to this Perry had also been ordered from the place, being known in the neighborhood as a negro who lived by stealing, who had frequently been implicated in robberies, and was otherwise notorious as a bold, daring man and desperate negro. The negro, on his own account, and to avenge his mother, had resolved to kill Clay, and a letter written by White, containing a threat to carry out his murderous purpose, was shown to Clay. The latter has anticipated trouble with the negro, and for ten days past when he went out on his farm he carried his pistol. This morning Gen. Clay mounted his horse, with a small white boy behind him, and started to a negro church in the neighborhood, where he intended to hire a cook, in place of the one discharged. He had proceeded but a short distance from his house when he saw a loose horse in a pasture near the roadside. Just as he was passing, the little boy remarked, 'There is Perry White,' looking in the direction of the horse, which had neither bridle nor saddle on. Clay saw the negro in the act of hiding or dodging behind the animal. Knowing White had no business there, and believing that he had come for some bad purpose while all the other darkies were at church, and at once supposing that the negro intended to make an attack upon him from the cover, Clay leaped down, and, passing immediately in front of the horse, confronted the negro and ordered him to throw up his hands. The negro obeyed, sinking to the ground. Clay then talked to him roughly, ordering him from the place, and telling him if he moved from his position until he (Clay) got on his horse he would kill him.

"Clay then turned and started to his horse, when the negro rose suddenly and made at Clay, at which time the latter drew his pistol and fired twice. Both balls took effect, one in the neck and the other in the breast, and the negro fell dead. Gen. Clay immediately rode to town and gave himself into the hands of an officer of the law."

An Arkansas man lately snapped both barrels of his gun at his bed-ridden wife. The gun, as if endowed with the humanity of which its owner was devoid, refused to be discharged, but, when the monster took it by the muzzle and attempted to dash out the sufferer's brains, the breech glanced on the bed-post, both barrels "went off," and their respective charges of buckshot took lodgings in the would-be murderer's lungs.

A Model Life Insurance Co.

We have just been favored with copies of the official report of the Insurance Commissioners for New York, Massachusetts, Maryland, Illinois and Wisconsin, who were some time ago deputed to make a thorough examination of the affairs of the greatest Life Insurance Company of the Northwest, the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee. The examination made by them was undoubtedly one of the most exact and complete on record, for every one of the gentlemen named is practically conversant with every detail of the insurance business. The Commissioners say that "every facility was granted them for the full examination." The examination of the investments of the Company, the Commissioners say —"on loans and mortgages are nearly two-thirds of the assets, and develops the most vigilant care and faithfulness in determining the validity of titles, and the margin of security appears in every instance to have been largely in excess of that required by the insurance laws, being, in the aggregate, nearly four times greater than the amount loaned."

The Examining Commission further say: "We have caused a re-valuation of all the real estate on which the Company has placed its loans. This re-valuation has been made entirely independent of the Company or its managers, by competent and experienced appraisers appointed by the Commission in each of the seventeen States in which the loans are distributed."

ASSETS.
Real estate, Company's office....			$ 320,000.00
Real estate, special..................			430,000.00
Loans on bonds and mortgages..			11,846,404.82
Premium notes..........................			3,796,965.94
United States and other bonds owned (market value)...........			810,420.00
Interest accrued on bonds and mortgages.........................		$279,177.98
Interest due and unpaid on bonds and mortgages......................		222,511.06
Interest due and accrued on premium notes.........................		141,500.92
			643,189.90
Bills receivable...........................			17,818.94
Deferred premiums.....................		314,946.56
New "		29,977.65
Renewal "		314,865.66
			459,789.88
Cash in office............................		2,759.00
Cash in bank..............................		627,208.65
			629,967.65
Ledger accounts.........	$ 2,552.89
Agents' debits............	29,936.41
		32,489.30
Deduct Company's debits.......................	8,371.21
Deduct remittances account.....................	9,798.45
		18,063.66
			14,425.64
Furniture and fixtures..............		8,325.99
Accrued rents............................		537.40
			8,863.49
Total assets..			$18,400,528.95
LIABILITIES.
Death claims adjusted and unpaid..................		$	186,347.98
Matured endowments...................................			14,800.00
Accrued commissions...................................			861.38
Premiums paid in advance...........................			19,581.99
Reserve on policies entitled to paid-up insurance..			7,448.00
Reserve, Actuaries' 4 per cent....................			15,298,349.00
Total liabilities...			$15,521,298.33
Surplus as regards policy-holders..............			2,887,225.63

In conclusion, the Commissioners say: "A careful examination of the Company's books and accounts, covering a period of six or seven years, has shown that only reasonable salaries are paid to its officers and employes, and that no officer receives, directly or indirectly, any compensation whatever, contingent on the business done, or by way of commission on surplus, or in any other manner than by fixed salary, established annually by the Board of Trustees. It is due to the Company to state that its books and accounts in every department of its business show a degree of accuracy not easily surpassed. The system of accountability and accuracy throughout finds unqualified approval."

A Black Hills Tragedy.

A letter from Central City, D. T., says: "A fatal shooting affray occurred here this afternoon. John S. Bryant, owning a placer claim here, claimed the surface ground of his claim as a mill site. A. W. Adams, formerly correspondent of the Salt Lake Tribune and Chicago papers, nom de plume "Old Pioneer" and "Ching Foo," also claimed the ground by right of purchase. They met on the ground, when Adams shot Bryant through the body, then turned and fled. Bryant, then drawing a navy revolver, fired three shots at Adams, the first missing. At the second shot Adams fell. Bryant, still advancing, placed his pistol at Adams' head and sent a bullet through his brain, killing him instantly. Bryant is not expected to recover."

The St. Louis artesian well has reached a depth of 3,800 feet.

How to Grow Cheerful.

Disease is in a great many—perhaps the majority—of instances the underlying cause of mental depression. It will almost invariably be found, for instance, that hypochondriacs are dyspeptic, bilious subjects, and all persons who have had any experience of such cases are aware that sufferers from diseases of the kidneys and bladder are especially subject to fits of despondency. The sure way to overcome depression is to try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a cheering cordial which is peculiarly antagonistic to the "blues," as well as to the causes which produce them. This popular and efficacious corrective of a disordered condition of the system remedies the most obstinate cases of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, overcomes disorders of the urinary organs, purifies and enriches the blood, and restores vigor to the body as well as elasticity to the mind.

Wonder Upon Wonder.

Given away—A strange, mysterious and most extraordinary Book, entitled "THE BOOK OF WONDERS." Containing, with numerous curious pictorial illustrations, the mysteries of the Heavens and Earth, Natural and Supernatural, Oddities, Whimsical, Strange Curiosities, Witches and Witchcraft, Dreams, Superstitions, Absurdities, Fabulous, Enchantment, &c. In order that all may see this curious book, the publishers have resolved to give it away to all that desire to see it. Address by postal card, F. Gleason & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

Gleason's Publications.

Great reduction in price for 1878 of Gleason's Pictorial to $2 a year. Single copies 5 cents.

The Home Circle to $2 a year, single copies 5 cents; for sale by all newsdealers.

Gleason's Monthly Companion to $1 a year, single copies 10 cents. All postage free.

The price of Chromos has just been greatly reduced. No one now gives such liberal terms to agents as we do. Send for new free circular. Address F. Gleason & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

Bread is the Staff of Life.

By bread we mean all the various forms into which it is customary to convert cereal flour. When is bread good? Bread is good when light, sweet and nutritious, and without deleterious qualities. How are these properties best secured? In no way, we answer, so well and certainly as by the use of Dooley's Yeast Powder. Try it thoroughly and convince yourself.

You'll scratch a poor man's nose as long as you live, if you don't forsake the old monopolists. Five Ton Wagon Scales, $50 each. On trial, freight prepaid, by Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"Matchless"
Wood Tag Plug
Tobacco.
The Pioneer Tobacco Company,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

Hofmann's Hop Pills cure the Ague at once.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World! An Effectual Specific for all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen. Regulate the Liver and prevent CHILLS AND FEVER, MALARIOUS FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, RESTLESSNESS, JAUNDICE AND NAUSEA.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

BAD BREATH!

Nothing is so unpleasant, nothing so common as bad breath, and in nearly every case it comes from the stomach, and can be so easily corrected if you will take Simmons' Liver Regulator. Do not neglect so sure a remedy for this repulsive disorder. It will also improve your appetite, Complexion and General Health.

CONSTIPATION!

SHOULD not be regarded as a trifling ailment—in fact, nature demands the utmost regularity of the bowels, and any deviation from this demand paves the way often to serious danger. It is quite as necessary to remove impure accumulations from the bowels as it is to eat or sleep, and no health can be expected where a costive habit of body prevails.

SICK HEADACHE!

This distressing affliction occurs most frequently. The disturbance of the stomach, arising from the imperfectly digested contents, causes a severe pain in the head, accompanied with disagreeable nausea, and this constitutes what is popularly known as Sick Headache; for the relief of which, Take Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine.

Manufactured only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

The Cincinnati Weekly Times

FREE FOR ONE YEAR.

The Times is in the Thirty-fourth year of its existence, with a National Character and influence second to no other paper. Its patrons are of all parties in politics, all sects in religion, all classes in society, and of every State and Territory on the American Continent. Its contents are adapted to the wants and tastes of all.

EVERY PATRON of the Weekly Times is presented, free of charge, with a copy of the Times Illustrated Year-Book

An elegantly-printed volume of scientific and miscellaneous articles, illustrated with the finest engravings. It also contains a DIARY FOR THE YEAR 1878, and the Election Returns for 1877. In value and attractiveness it is superior to any present ever before offered by newspaper publishers.

Terms—Single Subscribers, per year.............$2.00
Clubs of Five Subscribers, per year each 1.60
Clubs of Ten and upward, per year each 1.50

THE DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

Comprising its Antiquities, Biography, Geography and Natural History. Edited by Wm. Smith, LL.D., of the University of London. Containing 800 double-columned pages, 24 full-page steel and wood engravings, and 125 minor engravings, of scenes, cities and memorial places of the Holy Land. Price, in extra English cloth, $3.50.

Any person sending the publishers of the Weekly Times the price of this book will receive a copy of the same postpaid, and also the Weekly Times (with the Year-Book) FREE FOR ONE YEAR. Or the Dictionary will be sent as a premium to any Agent for a Club of Eight Subscribers at $1.50.

A Special Agent for each County in all the States is wanted, to whom extraordinary Cash inducements will be offered, in addition to an opportunity to secure a valuable Premium Watch.

☞ For Specimen Copies of the Times, and circulars, etc., address TIMES CO., Cincinnati, O.

A KEY TO BOOKKEEPING!

The Best Text Book and Self-Instructor in the World. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of Fifty Cents, by the author, GEO. B. WELSH, Savannah, Georgia.

SELF-INKING TRIUMPH PRINTING PRESS, $8.50; Outfit & Press, $8.50. Young America hand & self-inkers the best for business. Send 2 stamps for catalogue to D. W. WATSON, 73 Cornhill, Boston, Mass.

POND'S EXTRACT

CATARRH.—Pond's Extract is nearly a Specific for this disease. It can hardly be excelled, even in old and obstinate cases. The relief is so prompt that no one who has ever tried it will be without it.

CHAPPED HANDS AND FACE.—Pond's Extract should be in every family this rough weather. It removes the soreness and roughness, and softens and heals the skin promptly.

RHEUMATISM.—During severe and changeable weather, no one subject to Rheumatic Pains should be one day without Pond's Extract, which always relieves.

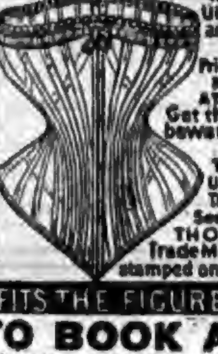
SORE LUNGS, CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS.—This cold weather tries the Lungs sorely. Have Pond's Extract on hand always. It relieves the pain and cures the disease.

CHILBLAINS will be promptly relieved and ultimately cured by bathing the afflicted parts with Pond's Extract.

FROSTED LIMBS.—Pond's Extract invariably relieves the pain and finally Cures.

SORE THROAT, QUINSY, INFLAMED TONSILS AND AIR PASSAGES are promptly cured by the use of Pond's Extract. It never fails.

HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT CO., 98 Maiden Lane, New York. Sold by Druggists.



THOMSON'S PATENT GLOVE-FITTING CORSETS.

SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT

GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION

The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark, a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.

FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

TO BOOK AGENTS!

We have in press a book—not yet announced—that has been in preparation over three years, costing $20,000.

124 Superb, Full-Page Engravings make it one of the most completely illustrated volumes in the world. It is a magnificent work, and will command the attention and approval of everybody. We will make most liberal arrangements with agents to introduce it, and it is worthy their notice. Advance sheets, with full information, sent on application to AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

CHICAGO VOLTAIC AND TRUSS CO.

Their Voltaic Belts and Bands cure Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Nervous Diseases. Belt, $5; Bands according to size. The Digital Syringe combines Syringe, Speculum, Forceps; a complete article, $5. Adjustable Uterine Supporter. Most natural in use. $6. It is easily converted into a Truss. Extra, $1; or alone, $4. Pile Supporter, cures Piles. Worn sitting, walking, riding horseback. $3.50. Discount to Trade and Physicians. Goods sent C. O. D. For circulars address, with stamp, CHICAGO V. & T. CO., 86 Washington Street, CHICAGO.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

THE NEW YORK
Commercial Advertiser.

Terms—Postage Prepaid—Daily, one year, $9; six months, $4.50; three months, $2.25; one month, 75 cents.

Weekly, one year, $1; six months, 50 cents. Specimen numbers sent on application. An extra copy to Club Agents for club of ten; the Daily for club of thirty.

The Commercial Advertiser is the best Republican paper published in this country. Its Weekly edition is unsurpassed. Special terms to Agents.

All letters should be sent to HUGH J. HASTINGS, 126 Fulton St., N. Y. City.

THE NEWARK
DAILY and WEEKLY COURIER,
NEWARK, NEW JERSEY.
F. F. PATTERSON, Editor and Proprietor.
THE LEADING REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER OF NEW JERSEY.

Terms—Daily, $8.00 per annum; Weekly, $2.00. Advertisements inserted on liberal terms. Send for Price-List.

AGENTS WANTED!

FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS
WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.
829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.

MILITARY

and Band Uniforms—Officers' Equipments, etc., manufactured by M. C. LILLEY & CO., Columbus, Ohio. Send for Price Lists.

BUTTER COLOR.

The best Liquid Color in the world, and the only one awarded Centennial Prize Medal. It gives to butter a golden yellow color like June grass butter, producing better sales and at higher price, besides improving butter in color and flavor and keeping, is far superior to Annatto, carrots or any other color manufactured, and the only fluid-color that will not color buttermilk, if added to cream before churning. 1 pound will color 1000 pounds of butter. The best and cheapest to re-color white butter. I will send, on receipt of money, free by express, to any office East of Mississippi River, 1 lb., $2.00; 2 lbs., $3.25. Farmers club together and try it. Agents Wanted. Cut out and preserve. MRS. S. SMITH, 827 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

ONLY $1

For SIX BEAUTIFUL PICTURES, (different subjects,) 14x17 inches; Or for FIVE PICTURES, 17x22; Or for FOUR PICTURES, 19x24. Fac-simile copies of FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS, made by the celebrated GRAPHIC process, printed on Heavy Plate Paper for framing. Send ten cents for Illustrated Catalogue containing over 100 pictures. Address, THE DAILY GRAPHIC, New York City.

AMERICAN DIAMOND WHEAT OR MAMMOTH RYE.

Awarded a prize medal at the Centennial Exhibition. This grain is entirely distinct from any other ever introduced, making bread equal to the best wheat, and producing 50 to 75 bushels to the acre, weighing 60 pounds to the bushel. In 1-lb packages by mail, postpaid, 50c., and by freight or express, 10 lbs $2; 100 lbs $15. Liberal discount to the trade. Samples by mail on receipt of a 3c. stamp. Colorado White Wheat $5 per bushel. Address C. B. ROGERS, Seed Merchant, 133 Market St., Philadelphia.

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,

Desiring the Best Book extant, should try FAVORITE SONGS. An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. R. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $6.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 60 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 35 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co., Charlestown, Mass.

THE UNITED STATES
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY,
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
261, 262, 263 Broadway
ORGANIZED 1850
ASSETS, $4,827,176.52
SURPLUS, $820,000
EVERY APPROVED FORM OF POLICY ISSUED ON MOST FAVORABLE TERMS
ALL ENDOWMENT POLICIES
AND APPROVED CLAIMS
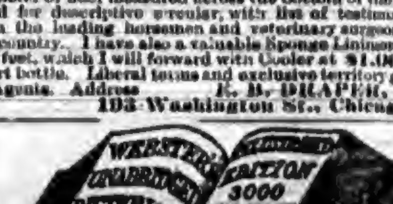
MATURING IN 1877
WILL BE DISCOUNTED AT 7%
ON PRESENTATION.
JAMES BUELL, . . . PRESIDENT.

HELP FOR THE HORSE!

Every man who owns a horse should have a pair of

Furlong's Patent
FOOT COOLERS & EXPANDERS

Which remove all fever from the feet, and keep them in a clean, moist and healthy condition, absolutely preventing corns, contracted feet, quarter-cracks and scratches. The moist sponge is held securely on the bottom of the foot, keeping the frog in a healthy, natural condition. They can be used for a Stuffing-Boot, and do not cost one-fourth as much as the old leather one. The cut represents the Holder and Sponge on the foot. The best horsemen of the country heartily indorse it as one of the most humane and valuable inventions of the day. Horses' feet have been restored from an unsound condition to a healthy one in three weeks' time. Its result surprises every one. For sale by Harness-Makers and dealers in Turf goods. Single pairs sent to any address upon receipt of price, $1.50 per pair. In ordering, send diameter of hoof measured across the bottom of the foot. Send for descriptive circular, with list of testimonials from the leading horsemen and veterinary surgeons of the country. I have also a valuable Sponge Liniment for bad feet, which I will forward with Cooler at $1.00 per quart bottle. Liberal terms and exclusive territory given to Agents. Address E. B. DRAPER, 193 Washington St., Chicago.



3,000 Engravings; 1,840 Pages Quarto.

10,000 Words and Meanings not in other Dictionaries.

Four Pages Colored Plates—Invaluable in Any Family and in Any School.

More than 30,000 copies have been placed in the public schools of the United States.

Recommended by State Superintendents of Schools in 30 different States.

The sale of Webster's Dictionaries is 20 times as great as the sale of any other series of Dictionaries.

Contains 3,000 illustrations, nearly three times as many as any other Dictionary.

[☞ LOOK AT the three pictures of a Ship, on page 1751. These alone illustrate the meaning of more than 100 words and terms far better than they can be defined in words.]

"August 4, 1877. The Dictionary used in the Government Printing Office is Webster's Unabridged."

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

The Wise Men of the Land, the Divine, the Physician, the Judge, use daily, in their own homes, and recommend to all invalids and sufferers from Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Heartburn, Indigestion, Piles, Bilious Attacks, Liver Complaints, Gout and Rheumatic Affections, Nature's own great and good remedy,

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

as the best and most reliable medicine ever offered to the people for the above class of diseases. The nursing babe, its brothers and sisters, its parents and grandparents, will all find this pleasant remedy adapted for their different complaints. Sold by all druggists.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.

For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address B. T. BABBITT, New York City. ☞ For Sale by all Druggists.

WILHOFT'S
Anti-Periodic,
— OR —
FEVER AND AGUE
TONIC.
For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.
A Warranted Cure!
G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.
☞ FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"The Best Polish in the World."
THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

A Special Offer
TO THE READERS
OF THIS PAPER.

A Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper, a perfect Gem for everybody desiring a reliable Time-Piece, and also a superior Compass, usual watch size, steel works, glass crystal, all in a superb Oroide Hunting-Case, warranted to denote correct time, and keep in order for two years—Perfection guaranteed—will be Given away to every patron of this paper as a Free Gift.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON AND MAIL IT.

COUPON.

On receipt of this Coupon and 50 cents to pay for packing, boxing and mailing charges, we promise to send each patron of this paper a Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper. Address, Magnetic Watch Co., ASHLAND, MASS.

This is your ONLY OPPORTUNITY to obtain this beautiful premium, so order AT ONCE. This offer will hold good for 30 days. If currency cannot be sent conveniently, postage stamps will be taken instead.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address. MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., Original Grange Supply House, 227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$50 to $150 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Pub'g House, Chicago.

$300 a month to Agents. Don't go to the poor-house. Send stamp for Immense illustrated catalogue. O. G. BRYANT, Chicago, Ill.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$2½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Good works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & Co., Chicago.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded ... W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Ag't, Washington, D. C.

WANTED Men to travel and take orders of Merchants. Salary $1200 a year and all traveling expenses paid. Address Geo. Man'f'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

WANTED Detectives. A few men in each State for the Detective Service. Pay liberal. Position permanent. Send stamp for particulars. U. S. SECRET SERVICE CO., 220 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

THE RAILWAY AGE—Leading, largest and best journal of transportation published. Weekly, 24 pages. Departments for every class of railway men, president to station agent. $4 per year; $1 for 3 mos. Specimens free. Ad's RAILWAY AGE PUB. CO., Chicago.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as time-keepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT

The best family newspaper published; eight pages; fifty-six columns reading. Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of eleven, $15 per annum, in advance. SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.

WORK FOR ALL

In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged) Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

Ho! Farmers, for Iowa!

Send a Postal Card for description and maps of 1,000,000 acres of R. R. Lands for sale on long time. Soil first-class. Tickets FREE to land-buyers from Chicago and return. Address J. B. CALHOUN, Land Commissioner Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph Street, CHICAGO, or CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa.

GREENBACKS. THE BEST, most comprehensive work yet written on the money question is the history of money and legislation on Bonds, Greenbacks and National Banks, called American Finance, by M. M. POMEROY, Editor of Pomeroy's Democrat. A fresh, live, understandable book of 160 pages. Sample copies 30 cents. Four for $1. Address M. M. POMEROY, 140 Grand Boulevard, Chicago. It is the clearest book on this subject ever written.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT.

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $5. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss will CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.

POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

HULL & SCOTNEY, General Commission Merchants, 346 N. Water St., Philadelphia, and wholesale dealers in Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Poultry, Game, Potatoes, Apples, Grain, Flour, Fur, Wool, Cotton, Peanuts, Broom Corn, Foreign and Domestic Fruits, and, in fact, we can sell any and everything at the highest market price, make prompt returns, and LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES made on all shipments except perishable articles. To show that we do an extensive business, any game dealer in Philadelphia will tell you we handled more game last season than all other Houses in Philadelphia put together. Send for Price-List, Stencil, &c., &c. REFERENCE CASH, or we refer you to any responsible House in our city.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER
TAKEN INTERNALLY

There is nothing to equal it, relieving you of pain in a short time, and curing all bowel complaints, such as colic, cramps, spasms, heartburn, diarrhea, dysentery, flux, wind in the bowels, sour stomach, dyspepsia, sick headache. In sections of the country where Fever and Ague prevails there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or bowel troubles from change of water. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY
THE GREAT RIOTS

It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible conflagrations and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE
GOOD OLD STAND-BY.
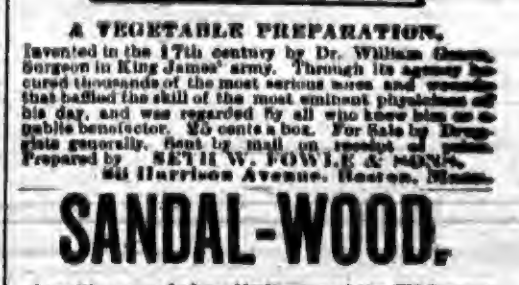
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

Established 35 Years. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will. SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

GRACE'S
SALVE



A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,

Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

SANDAL-WOOD.

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

C. N. U. No. 41

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, OCT. 18, 1877.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 15, 1877.

DEAR COURIER.—There goes a small party down the avenue, and, as I can see from the hotel window, several of them have bonquets of red flowers. This, with the warm sunshine and balmy air, speaks more of spring-time and hardly serves to remind one of the near approach of Old Boreas, with his hands of shivering cold. That's the state of the weather. After an absence of six months I find the city as attractive as ever, but the crowd on the occasion of the assembling of Congress is not near so large nor animated as it was two years ago. In fact, with the exception of hotel lobbies, the increase is scarcely noticeable. There is no city like Washington. Other places are given over to the sordid pursuits of trade and oppressed by municipal governments, but Washington has neither. The city is regulated on the Kintercarten plan, baby wagons have the right of way against street cars and fire engines, and the police is politely requested not to be obstreperous. The Washington nigger is numerous, he toils not, neither does he spin, but earns a livelihood by marching in perpetual procession. There is no mystery about this method of getting a living, but it has always been a conundrum to me who pays the brass band. A valuable improvement could be suggested, and that is, the public squares should be provided with cradles and trundlebeds, and wet nurses might be stationed at proper intervals for the succor of the tender youth, to whose convenience these thoroughfares seem to be given. I over heard a knowing one remark that the entire energies of Washington were annually exhausted in raising hell and children—the former in congress and the latter in the street.

The present session opens a new era in public affairs. Heretofore we have had large majorities and dead locks were quite frequent. Now we have a House democratic by the skin of its teeth, a Senate scarcely republican and an administration a tie. This makes the situation interesting. As you will know before this reaches you, Randall had an easy victory for speaker, and all the other officers were re-elected except the door keeper. We went to bed last night under republican rule in the Senate at least, and may be to-day transferred to a democratic administration without knowing what hour of the stilly night the transformation took place. Why I say this session was the beginning of a new era, is because I learn so from the general impression. I met a lobbyiest from New York yesterday. "Why," he said, "there is no chance for any body when majorities are so close. There is a fellow here who has often cleared $20,000, and now he can't find employment sufficient to keep him alive. There was a time when champagne suppers were as frequent as April showers, and now Milwaukee beer at ten cents a bottle is seized upon as a great relish. The forty-fifth Congress will not resemble any of its predecessors in many respects. Of course it will be made up of democrats and Republicans, but it will require the most watchful old hen, accustomed to raising large broods of speckeled chickens, to tell them apart much of the time. When we see Jim Blaine and Ben Hill rejoicing over a democratic victory in Ohio, you may have some idea of the mingled condition of things.

There are many new members in both Houses and many of them an improvement on their predecessors. The most striking feature in the House will be a Mr. Butler, of Massachusetts, Benjamin F. I think they call him. He has already achieved considerable reputation here as a lawyer and claim agent. He also figured conspicuously in army on the union side at Barcumda Hundred the occasion of a great confederate victory. Mr. Butler has some warm friends among the old members of the House. Charley Foster is perhaps the most intimate, and there is something really touching in their relations. I predict that Butler will make his mark in the new Congress.

Of the old members there is our Cox, the gentle and the good. Statesmen come and statesmen go—some to private life, some to the grave, and some to jail, but our Cox stays with us forever. Bill Morrison, the contentious, bald headed veteran, of the Old Guard, calls Cox "out vivandiere—Child of Regiment." Delightful though! And Wood remains with us—deportment, white mustache, profound eye glasses and all. Likewise Tom Swann, the bulky. And Proctor Knott, with his hieroglyphic face and tongue of Aristophanes.

Some of the old heads are gone, but enough of them remain to hold the House level, and take efficient command of all the committees. Clymer, Sayler, Blackburn, John B Clark, Whitthorne, Walker, Springer, Williams, of Michigan, Banning and many others of that school, are just developing into "old membership" after the customary probation of two terms. They represent the good sense and sound jugment of districts which are wise enough to select their strong men for Congress, and sagacious enough to keep them there. Statesmen are made to represent districts. Districts are not made to serve the convenience of small bore politicians in rotation. Wherever this rule is observed the people are well represented. Districts which violate it are never heard of in Congress.

Nor is the Senate that which we were wont to survey of old. There is a vacant chair in the place where Morton used to bend his dark scowl, like a shadow of bad tidings upon the land They say he will never sit there any more; helpless in limb, but all-powerful in head and strong of heart as of old I hope he will never sit there any more, but I can't find it in me to say that I would like to see God interfered to end the long struggle between Morton and Democracy. There are men whose funeral sermons would be music to my ear but Morton is not one of them. Rather may he live to see the good old democratic time that is coming, and repent at leisure.

In the place whence Bogy's benevolence used to beam upon mankind will appear a well-shaped, stubborn head, set in a bristling fringe of white hair. The face is a pleasant one in repose, but in moments of passion, to which it is no stronger, becomes forbidding. I saw a newspaper statement the other day that this new Senator from Missouri resembled Andrew Jackson in personal appearance. There are points of physical resemblence, but they are not striking; rather, I should say, in the manner of wearing the hair, and in the drawing of the hard, firm lines about the mouth than in the general facial contour. But Senator Armstrong does resemble Old Hickory in the depth and abidingness of his democracy, and in the profanity with which he is wont to give it emphasis.

The number of office seekers here this session is quite modest compared to the last session. There are enough, however, to fill all the offices with some to spare. After the organization and appointment of committees the work of the session will begin and from the general impression there will be no adjournment until they adjourn for the holidays. I expect, however, to return in a few days.

TOM.

* * *

Under the head of "the political influence of Indiana," the Indianapolis Sentinel says: "There is probably no state in the Union that exercises so great an influence upon the politics of the country as Indiana. New York, which greatly exceeds her in population and wealth, is shorn of her relative strength by the divisions which exist in her parties. The democracy is divided between Tammany and anti-Tammany, and the republicans between Conkling and Hayes. Division has existed in the political parties of the Empire state for more than a generation. There were the Hunkers and the Barnburners, the Hardshells and the Softshells among democrats, and the Silver Grey and the Sewardites among the whigs. These factions fought each other with as much warmth as they fought the common enemy. There has scarcely been a state convention in New York, or a national convention of either party for a generation, without having to settle contested seats and disputed credentials growing out of these divisions. The consequence has been that New York has not had the influence in national politics she would have had had the two great political parties which divide the country been united and at peace among themselves. In Indiana the case has always been different. Barring the campaign of 1860, the democratic party of this state has ever been united. Under the leadership of Bright and Wright its members marched in solid columns, and voted the ticket straight. In latter days, since Mr. Hendricks has been its acknowledged leader neither division nor discord has entered its ranks. It has encountered defeat without demoralization and victory without being rendered supine. It has always been the solid and compact body it now is, and it will continue to be thus, so long as its leaders are wise. Its influence upon the country has not been weakened by internal dissensions, consequently in all national conventions of the party the position of Indiana has been potential. As with the democracy so with the republican party. Under the leadership of Senator Morton it has ever been united. He has been its leader since its birth, and when he is gone it may suffer division and internal dissensions, but not before. He holds it firmly in his grasp, and will not loosen his hold until his hand forgets its cunning.

The unity of both the democratic and republican parties in this state gives Indiana great influence in the politics of the country. As we remarked at the commencement of this article no state in the Union has greater influence in the politics of the country than Indiana, and this influence was begotten and is maintained mainly by the unity and completeness of both political parties and the ability with which they are officered and led.

* * *

The committee appointed to investigate public buildings at Washington, report that "there is not a single fire proof Government building at Washington." The question naturally arises, is there no architect the Government can get, who is capable to construct a fire proof building? If the contract were let to competent men irrespective of political favorites, perhaps, the thing might be remodeled. The people want competent men to fill such places, and all favorites should be made to take back seats.

* * *

The republicans around here don't have much to say in regard to the Ohio election. They are all under the impression that they have had their say, and it strikes us they have hit the nail on the head when they get these ideas.

The grand success of the democratic party in Ohio last week, made glad the hearts of many an Indiana voter of that ticket. One of our oldest and most rank democrats was heard to remark, on receiving the news of 30,000 majority for governor, raised his hat and said: "Thank God that he has spared me to live to see this long, long needed change in that good old Buckeye state." From the utterance of these few words it was plainly to be seen that they came from the deepest cell in his heart and would have had some effect upon any one who has a love for his country and the people, if they could have heard them from the old veterans lips themselves.

* * *

The Ligonier Banner has not forgot the laborer in one line of food, at least it says: "Although the abundant yield of potatoes this year may be disappointing to the farmers on account of the consequent low prices, it will be a great blessing to the poorer classes, who make potatoes one of the principal articles of food. It is a lamentable fact the Salem Democrat observes, that while wages are being lowered every day, and workingmen are obliged to accept what is offered, provisions continue nearly as high as they were four years ago, when wages were nearly double what they are now."

* * *

The Defiance Democrat is now certainly happy since the glorious result of the democracy over there. It has fought nobly since the opening campaign and not only did it lend a helping hand to the democrats of that county and state, but it beat the republican press in that city badly—in fact it had to "cully down."

NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives due notice that he will not be responsible for debts contracted by any one in his name, no matter who they may be.

HENRY MAXWELL.

Oct. 4th, 1877. 3w.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Moser, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH MOSER, Adm'x.

October 1st, 1877—no11.

CHRONIC Diseases Cured. New paths marked out by that plainest of all books—"Plain Home Talk and Medical Common sense,"—nearly 1,000 pages, 200 illustrations by Dr. E. B. Foote of 120 Lexington Avenue, N. Y. Purchasers of this book are at liberty to consult its author, in person or by mail free. Price by mail $[illegible] for the standard edition, or $[illegible] for the popular edition, which contains all the same matter and illustrations. Contents free. Agents wanted. MURRAY HILL PUBLISHING CO. 129 East 28th st., N. Y.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK AT AUBURN, IN THE STATE OF INDIANA, AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS, OCT. 1st, 1877.

RESOURCES:

Loans and discounts	$52,781.50
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	50,000.00
Due from approved reserve agents	2,570.67
Due from other National Banks	2,397.50
Due from State banks and bankers
Real estate furniture and fixtures	8,000.00
Current expenses and taxes paid	328.20
Premiums paid	5,150.00
Bills on other national banks	1,500.00
Fractional currency, including nickels,	358.31
Specie including gold Treasury certificates,	[illegible]
Legal-tender notes	3,100.00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer,	2,250.00
Due from U. S. Treasurer
Total	$129,492.10

LIABILITIES:

Capital stock paid in	$50,000.00
Surplus fund	2,000.00
Other undivided profits	1,924.13
National Bank notes outstanding	45,000.00
Individual deposits subject to check	15,245.34
Demand certificates of deposit	14,322.63
Due to other National banks
Bills Payable	1,000.00
Total	$129,492.10

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss.
DeKalb County

I, Jas. V. Hazzard, cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

JAS. V. HAZZARD, CASHIER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of Oct., 1877. Attest:

EZRA D. HARTMAN, N. P.

W. McIntyre, }
Isaac Hague, } Directors.
Guy Plum. }

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein G. V. Barnes is plaintiff and Robert Shaffer et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and sixty dollars and Seven cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Part of lot twelve (12) in the old plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana, described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south east corner of said lot No. (12) running thence north thirty (30) feet, thence west forty two (42) feet, thence south thirty (30) feet, thence east forty two (42) feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose to public sale, the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Guy Plum, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, October 3, A. D. 1877.

Pr. fee $[illegible]

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50; Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all points east, north and south. These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff, and John A. Schaifield, et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and nineteen dollars and thirteen cents ($419.13) with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3rd, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

South half of the West half of the Northeast quarter of Sec. Ten (10), Township number thirty-five (35), North of Range Fourteen, East, containing 40 acres, more or less, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation of appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR Sheriff

McBride, Morris and Leas Attorneys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Oct. 16th 1877. 42

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Singer Manufacturing Co. is plaintiff, and Jesse Treesh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Sixty-Three Dollars and Fifty cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY OCTOBER, 20th, 1877,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit;

Lot number twenty-seven (27) in the western addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

Bope & Baxler, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, Sept. 26th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein J. W. Case is plaintiff and Thomas L. Brown is Defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Fifty-Two Dollars and Ninety Three cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided two-fifteenths (2-15) of the west half of the south-west quarter of section thirty-one (31), township thirty-four (34) north of range fourteen (14) east.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

W. L. Penfield, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept 29th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs, and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five (25) township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

McBride, Morris & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 26th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Herman Froehlich is plaintiff, and William B. Dancer is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of forty-two dollars and forty cents ($42.40), with interest on said judgment and cost, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided one-half of the west half of the south-east quarter of section twenty (20) in township thirty-three (33) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Rose & Hinman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Sept. 18th, 1877. Pf. $4.85.

BOOK STORE

WILLIS & CO.

Successors to C. P. Houser, having purchased the above named stock, we wish to say to the people of Auburn, and vicinity that by the patronage that we hope to merit, we expect to build up a first class

BOOK AND NEWS STORE,

that will be a credit to the place. We are adding a large variety of goods, and shall endeavor to keep on hand the novelties of the season. We solicit orders for

Books, Magazines, Papers, etc.,

which will be furnished promptly at the publishers prices by

WILLIS & CO.

October 11, '77—no11.

ROOT & COMPANY.

GRAND FALL OPENING!

Will commence Thursday, October 11th, and continue during the week. Upon that occasion we shall desplay by far the finest line of

SEAL SACQUES!

and Circulars, fur lined Silk Garments, Matalasse and plain Cloaks, made and trimmed in the most elegant modes ever before shown by us. Also a magnificent line of made

SILK AND STUFF DRESSES AND SUITS

Also Silks and Dress goods, in all the new and elegant colors and effects, with trimmings to match. Also many elegant designs in well worth seeing. Besides articles of taste and elegance, not to be found elsewhere. We are now selling all goods kept by us much cheaper than they have ever been sold since 1860, and cotten goods generally are much lower than before the war. People living within a distance of 50 miles of Fort Wayne, can will afford to come and do their trading with us, if they wish to buy but ten dollars worth of goods. Our stock is so large and well assorted that no one can fail to find what is wanted, and the immense business we are doing is ample evidence that our prices are satisfactory.

CARPETS, RUGS, MATS, OTBOMANS, &C.

Root & Company,
46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

BIG STOCK COMING
AT
SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO'S.
AUBURN, INDIANA.

DRESS GOODS,
New Calicos, Shirtings, Woolens,
Jeans, Cloths and Cashmeres,
For Men, Boys and
Everybodys Wear

OUR SUCCESS:
No Goods Allowed to be Misrepresented. All the Newest Novelties in Fall and Winter Suits for Men, Youths and Boys

CLOTHING CUT

In the most approved pattern and warranted to be perfect fitting at Hard Time Prices.

STILL AHEAD
AT
F. E. DAVENPORT'S
DRUG STORE!
NE ASS ORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes,
Stereoscopic Views, Toilet
Articles, Perfumery,
Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools, Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. J. NEWTON SMITH'S
HAIR RESTORATIVE
POSITIVELY RESTORES HAIR TO BALD HEADS.

SMITH'S Is not a hair dye.
SMITH'S Does not contain poison.
SMITH'S Restores hair to the head.
SMITH'S Checks hair from falling.
SMITH'S Makes hair grow six feet.
SMITH'S Makes whiskers grow.
SMITH'S Takes out all dandruff.
SMITH'S Is 1st class hair dressing.
SMITH'S Is admired by all ladies.
SMITH'S Is death to all wigs.

This is the only Hair Restorative manufactured expressly to promote the growth of hair, and to arrest its falling out.

Thousands of men who were bald-headed, now have a full suit of hair, and one lady in Kentucky, who was once bald, now has flowing hair SIX FEET in length produced by the use of Dr. J. Newton Smith's Hair Restorative.

Send for positive, unmistakable, and undeniable home proof in pamphlet form, free to all.

It stops the hair from falling out, at once cleanses the scalp from all dandruff, and is a highly perfumed and elegant hair dressing, much admired by the ladies.

Price $[illegible] for 3 bottles, expressed on receipt of price. Call on your druggist, or address,

F. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Louisville, Ky.

Auburn Courier.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. J. E. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. E. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. [illegible], pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock A. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH.

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS

AND

MILLINERY STORE

North of Court House, Auburn, Ind.

You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in

LADIES HATS,

AND MILLINERY GOODS

Fancy Dry Goods,

Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and Ties in all designs. Also

LADIES CLOAKS,

of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every description. The lines in the new goods are complete.

J. R. LANNING.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 15c.
—Butter 15c.
—Potatoes 25c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $4 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.18 @ 1.20
—The Courier $2.00 a year.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Care not for that which you can never possess.

Boots made to order at the boot upside down.

Pickpockets reaped a rich harvest at Waterloo during the fair.

A good 75c tea for 50c at Schaab, Beugnot & Co.

The time for gathering walnuts and hickory nuts has come

Call at the Boot upside down when you want to be made happy.

Ladies Cloaks at the New York Store from $4.00 to $25.00.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Bargains in over coats this fall at Schaab, Beugnot & Co.

Remember the New York Store will not allow any one to undersell them.

Mr. H. Purple, who is connected with the B. & O. Railroad, is again in the city.

J. C. Somers, foreman of the Waterloo Press, has been admitted to the bar.

The county fairs in this neighborhood all seem to have met with good success, financially.

If you want to get a good boot or shoe made to order go to the boot upside down.

The boss place to buy groceries, such as coffees, shugars, teas, is at Schaab, Beugnot & Co.

It is said that four grains of morphine will cure the worst case of inflamatory rheumatism.

Schaab, Beugnot & Co., will sell you cassimeres 15 per cent. cheaper than any other store in town.

At Warsaw last week death relieved a man who has been having a chill every day for three years.

Monday a large number of our farmer friends were in town and a brisk trade was realized by our merchants.

The hop at Ensley's Hall Tuesday evening was well attended, and all seemed to enjoy themselves hugely.

We hear of a little difficulty in one of the churches at Corunna. It was settled however with a "connon shot."

A. O. Meyers and wife, have gone to Chicago to celebrate under the paternal roof in their eighteenth weeding anniversary.

It requires ten men to do the business at Auburn Junction, just now a large number of cars are brought here for transhipment.

Mr. Platt McDonald has sold his interest in the Plymouth Democrat to his brother. We hope both will meet with good success.

The excursion from Auburn to Kansas did not meet with much success. We have not heard of any person going from this section.

The Democratic majority on joint ballot in the California legislature is 51. The House consists of 80 members and the senate of 40.

Tramps have been setting fire to freight cars and fences near the gravel pit at Fort Wayne. Between 25 and 30 were locked up last Saturday.

If we were to judge from appearances house-cleaning is now in full blast, and the old man will for the next few days take his meals as he can get them.

The scholars of our public schools had re-hearsal of their books last Friday. The regular examination will not be had until the close of the school.

This is the time of year that the setting room stove is brought into requisition, and the kitchen stove moved from its summer resort into its winter quarters.

This thing is settled at last. A noted English surgeon says the reason women can't throw stones as accurately as men is because their shoulder blades are set too far forward.

Some of our exchanges are speaking of their clean and tasty streets. Wonder how it would look if our streets were to be cleaned and the gutters scraped out.

Autumn leaves are falling from the trees. So are the small boys who go nutting. The gorgeous crimson on the former is only equaled by the latter when they fall on their nose.

Mr. Samuel Haverstock, the largest farmer in this vicinity, says that the fly has injured the early sown wheat much worse this fall than he has ever known it to do before.—Butler Record.

The Lagrange Standard issued a large Supplement last week in connection with her weekly paper, appertaining to war news and accidents of the present day.

A great many well informed men, who have given the matter some attention, think that the price of wheat will not vary much from present prices during the remainder of the season.

Annie Hensell, of Fort Wayne, recovered a judgment for $7,500 in the Allen circuit court, last week, against the P. Ft. W. & C. R. R. company, for the loss of one of her legs by an engine running over it.

Joe Beugnot offers a prize of a gold medal worth about five dollars, to the person making the highest run at fifteen ball pool for the next two weeks. Here is a chance for some of our pool players

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has sole exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

At the montly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, October 10th, a dividend of 3 per cent. was declared on the main stock. The 5 per cent. dividend declared in April, make with this 8 per cent. for the year 1877.

Ehrick's Fashion Quarterly for autumn is before us with its usual amount of the latest fashions. Considering the amount of subscription only 50 cts., a year, it is a remarkable fine production. Send for a specimen copy to Ehrick & Co., 287 & 289 Eighth street, N. Y.

James Anderson is now fully prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing, at his shop on Seventh street. Mr. Anderson makes a specialty of shoeing horses that interfere; give him a call, and you will be satisfied that he does as he says.

MARRIED.—At the residence of Mr. C. Mauer, on Thursday evening, Oct. 11, 1877, by Rev. P. Ruhl. Mr. G. A. Mauer to Miss Emma Garver.

The young couple have the best wishes of THE COURIER for their future happiness.

From all parts of the county comes the cry of "hog cholera, what can I do with my stock." A receipt is given us by an old farmer who claims he has never lost a head since he commenced using it. It consists of merely giving to each hog about one gill of soft soap once a week.

A great many people seem to miss their vocation because their bodies do not happen to fit their souls. This is one of the advantages of middle age, people have got used to their bodies and to their faults, they know how to use them and do not expect too much of others.

The man who examines corn husks had been around, and predicts a severe winter. This does not agree with the man who baises his prediction on the catapiller. Who claims December cold, January warm and pleasant, and February blustering, with heavy snow. We leave the matter with the prophets.

Prevention is better than cure. Check a cough or cold at once which may lead to consumption, by using Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, an old reliable remedy which never fails. Price only 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

A word to the wise. If you are troubled with a cough or cold procure a bottle of Dr. Bull's cough syrup at once. Its use may save you from severe sickness. Your druggist, F. E. Davenport keeps it. Price, 24 cents.

Julius Rhodes leaped from a platform 84 feet high into the current just above the Niagara Falls. He went over head first and came out alive.—Sam Patch was killed 45 years ago in a similar attempt, and another attempt or two from the foolish Julius will furnish him a through ticket to where Samuel Patch now holds forth.

A number of our sporting men and boys are now having a game harvest. The squirrels are said to be quite plenty, at least they think so from the fact that that kind of game has been very scarce for several years past. A party of three brought home twenty the other day [illegible] effort to get them.

The Danbury News man has written a book the title of which is, "They All Do It." We could get up a better book with the title that, "They All Don't Do It," and take for our prominent argument the question of the delinquent subscribers to the COURIER. We hope some of them will pay up pretty soon as we may be induced to publish a pamphlet with this title.

Put a rose in the window. If you are in grief, the care and pleasure of attending to its daily wants, will lead your thoughts from their darkness into the light of gentleness and beauty. If you are happy it will be greater joy to watch the unfolding blossoms of innocence attend your footsteps, you will hold sweet communion with the emblem of innocence.

The Athletics of this place have bid adieu to the diamond field for 1877, and during the remainder of the year will devote their time to more profitable persuits. May they succeed in their business as well as they have with the bat.—Angola Republican.

That's what we thought would become of that ball club after their last game with our boys. The boys were surely sensible. After one or two more put up games, as the one in question, they would have found trouble in getting another club to play with them—hence their withdrawal, no doubt.

By a recent decision of the Indiana supreme court, sheriff sales, to be legal must be advertised in a newspaper for a period of not less than twenty-one days previous to the sale. The statute says "Three weeks successively," and this the court holds to mean three weeks successively next before the day of sale. In the case on which the decission was rendered it was but twenty days from the first publication of the advertisement until the day appointed for the sale, and the sale was declared void.

The Angola Republican after exhausting itself in informing the public of the swindling peddlers, has got down to a fine point on the matter. It says, "women will buy of peddlers; there's no use of talking, you can't prevent it. But that infatuation might have availed great happiness to the world, at one time, had there only been any peddlers. If Eve had only been visited by an apple peddler on a certain occasion, Adam's last ticket might have gone in such a manner as to have made clothing stores in Angola and elsewhere wholly unnecessary.

Every day we notice little boys going to the woods with guns and we call the attention of their parents to the following item, from the Goshen Democrat: "Little Freddy Van Frank, of Bristol, went out hunting with another boy one day last week, and the first time that he shot off his gun it bursted and wounded him seriously in the head. On dressing his wounds it was not known whether he would recover or not. A warning to parents to keep firearms out of the hands of their little boys until they have sufficient judgment to handle them.

From the Fort Wayne "Gazette" we learn that Father Murphy, the great temperance agitator was billed for that city for three nights. It was expected that he would be a card that would draw well, and his speaking would be a good financial investment for the society; but the reverse has proved true. Expenses have not been paid. Whether a great good has been accomplished by his coming, time only can tell. Sunday night he spoke to about eight hundred people, and among the number many of the best citizens. He goes to Cleveland to continue his work.

An unsuccessful attempt of the prisoners in the county Jail at Lafayette, Ind. to escape was made on Wednesday of last week. A straw mattress was placed in the hallway and set on fire, the object of the prisoners being to secure the keys from the turnkey while he was extinguishing the fire, and thus escape. They were fustrated in their plans, however, as the keeper upon discovering the fire, immediately secured the service of several policemen, who returned and smothered the blaze, and in time to rescue the prisoners from suffocation.

A word to the wise. If you are suffering with a severere cough or cold, call on your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, and save large Doctor bills. It relieves almost instantly. Price 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

Large sales indicate the merits of all good articles. Druggists sell more of Dr Bull's Baby Syrup than of all other remedies for the cure of Baby disorders. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

A Woman Shot Dead and her Husband Badly Wounded.

Tuesday morning our town was thrown into intense excitement by the report that a man living just south of town had been badly wounded, and his wife instantly killed. A rush was immediately made to that quarter, and, sad to relate, the rumor was found to be true. It appears that a Mrs. Maxfield was moving. Directly opposite lived Mr. John C. Ault, who, with his wife was standing in front of their own house. A young man named Isaac Squires was assisting the drayman to unload some goods among which was a loaded gun, which he picked up at the same time calling out, "John, John, your money or your life," the gun which he was just in the act of placing to his shoulder, was pointed at Mr. and Mrs. Ault, the latter standing on a step a couple of feet above her husband, was discharged, the contents taking effect in the head and neck of Ault, and the heart of his wife, who fell on her knees and clasped both hands over her heart. The lady raised herself to an upright position and in a voice of anguish exclaimed "Oh my poor children, you have shot me in my poor heart and immediately fell inanimate at the side of her husband who had fallen at the discharge of the gun, insensible from the effects of the shot in his head. Medical aid was immediately called and all done for the wounded man that could be, and it is the opinion of the Doctors that he will recover, should no inflamation set in.

By this act of gross carelessness, two bright children are left motherless, and a husband to mourn the loss of a near and dear companion, whose many virtues are summed up in this remark of a neighbor "we all loved her, not only for her kind and pleasant ways, but the persistant zeal she displayed as a christian woman, a true wife, and a loving mother."

The coroner being notified of the accident impanelled a jury and below we give the evidence as taken before it:

Don E. Lawerance being duly sworn states as follows: I have been within the town of Auburn during the entire day of the 16th, 1877. I was at the south end of Auburn this morning, Oct. 16th, 1877 about 8 o'clock a. m. and saw and heard the shooting of the deceased at and near the residence of her husband, John C. Ault. I was assisting in moving Mrs. Maxfield's goods to a house situated opposite the house of Mr Ault, just across the street. One Mr. Isaac Squires assisted us in moving said goods, while at the house opposite Mr. Ault's, heard Mr. Squires call Mr. John Ault and said "John," Mr. and Mrs. Ault were standing in front of Mr. Ault's house, Mrs. Ault was standing on the second step from the ground, and Mr. Ault just in front of her as Squires called to John. Mr. and Mrs. Ault turned about, facing Squires, just at that Squires called out, "your money or your life," and instantly I heard the report of the gun, and saw Mr. Ault turn about once or two times and fall. Mrs. Ault she was standing on on the second step, and came down off of the step and walked along near the house, and then turn away from the house, as she steped down she said: "Oh, God my poor children," and turned toward her husband who was on the ground, and says "you have shot me in my poor heart," and fell forward on her face on the ground. I went to her and raised her up and after raising her up, proceeded to the well and procured some water etc. Returning to her I took her head and held it in my lap until she died, which was within fifteen minutes after she was shot. Immediately after the report of the gun I saw Isaac Squires standing on the ground six or eight feet from me with a shot gun in his hand, at the time of the report of the gun there was no person or persons at or in front of the house except Isaac Squires and myself, and the report of the gun was at or near the wagon.

D. E. LWRENCE.

Holly Lawrence being duly sworn states as follows: I was at Mr. Maxfield's house just opposite when Mr. John C. Ault lives, in the town of Auburn, Indiana, this morning, Oct. 16th, 1877, and heard the report of a gun, my brother called and requested me to go for a Doctor, as he said Mr. and Mrs. Ault were shot. I saw a shot gun on the wagon before we came to the house. It was capped at that time. I next saw the gun after the shooting occurred and the cap was bursted.

H. LAWRENCE.

Low Maxfield being duly sworn states as follows: I was in my house which is situated just across the street from Mr John Ault's in the town of Auburn, Indiana, when I heard the report of a gun. I ran to the door and saw Mr. and Mrs. Ault in front of their house, and heard Mrs. Ault say "I am shot through my heart." Mrs. Ault requested me to unfasten her dress. I remained with Mrs. Ault until she died At the time we were moving, before the shooting occurred, I told the men that the gun was loaded, and in the presence of Isaac Squires, but do not know that he heard me or not.

MRS L. MAXFIELD

Isaac Squires being duly sworn states as follow: I was assisting Mr. Maxfield in moving this morning and while at the house opposite Mr. John Ault's I took up a shot gun from the dray and called to Mr. Ault. He responded. I then said, "your money or your life" and pulled back the lock, and it slipped and discharged the contents of the gun in the persons of Mr and Mrs. Ault, who were standing at, and in front of their house just across the street. At the time I called to Mr. Ault he laughed and I laughed. I did not know that the gun was loaded. I had not examined it to see.

ISAAC SQUIRES.

The following is the verdict as rendered by the coroner's jury.

We the undersigned Jurors empanelled and sworn on the 16th, day of October, 1877, at Union township, in the county of DeKalb, in the State of Indiana by James J. Latson, Coroner of said county, to inquire into and true presentment make, in what manner and by whom Sarah Ault, whose body is at and near the front door of the house of John C. Ault, in the town of Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana, on the 16th day of October 1877, came to her death.

After having heard the evidence, and examined the body, we do find that the deceased came to her death by a gun shot wound, the gun being discharged by one Isaac A. Squires, who accidentally, but in a careless manner, discharged the gun while holding the muzzle of said gun toward Mrs. Sarah Ault, that the deceased received about thirty two gun shot wounds, which occasioned he immediate death.

Given under our hands at the time and place of said inquisition above named.

NICHOLAS ENSLEY,	S. B. WARD,
R. H. WEAMER,	GEO. W. GORDON,
C. C. SHAFFER,	JAMES GRISWOLD,

Jurors.

Harper's magazine for November is the concluding number of the fifty-fifth volume. The publishers announce for the coming year, new serial novels by Miss Thackery, Miss Mulock and Thomas Hardy. "Back to Back," begun in the current number, is to be concluded in the December issue. H. W. Elliott, who knows all about Alaska, contributes a wonderful picturesque article on that region with twelve illustrations.—Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford's profusely illustrated paper on San Antonio, deals not alone with the almost topical flora and the historical romance of that region; it is also a faithful representation of the wonderful agricultural resources of Western Texas.

T. Robinson Warren contributes an exhilarating illustrated article on "Yachting in Blue Waters."

By no means the least interesting article in Number is Olive Logan's facinating narrative of Houdin's remarkable career as a prestidigitateur. His most wonderful tricks are explained and illustrated.

"Madelena" is a very beautiful story, by Mrs. C. V. Hamilton, with three effective illustrations by Abbey.

Mr. Blackmore's "Erema" is conculded in this number. It has been a serial story of the brilliant author, whose "Lorna Doon" and "Alice Lorraine" captivate the most intelligent readers in England and America.

Mrs. General Fremont begins in this dumber a short series of autobiographical papers—a narrative of her California experience twelve years ago. In this first paper we have some very interesting glimpses of the scenes amidst which her early years were passed in St. Louis, Washington and New Orleans.

Very interesting and lively are the sketches of social life among the miners of Scranton, contributed by Phebe E. Gibbons, the author of "Pennsylvania Dutch."

Miss Henrietta Hohlich contributes a bright short story, entitled "My Mother's Objections."

The poetry of the number is contributed by Ellis Gray, Kate Hillard, Helen S. Conant, Fannie R. Robinson and Philip Bourke Marston.

The editorial department, with their serial gossip, scientific and literary intelligence, historical summary, and humorous anecdotes, are as varied and comprehensive as usual, including a very amusing "Drawer."

From heresay we find that the red ribbon clubs throughout the country, have greatly depreciated in numbers. We are sorry to note this fact as our minds eye now rests on several in this city who would have fared better had they dared to continue to do right, and we suppose that our neighboring towns have some dissipated citizens whom they wish good, as we do for those in our midst. Before the fair at Waterloo, Butler had the largest order in the county. Corunna stood by the red ribbon first rate, and both places are talking of a re-organization. If the right kind of temperance then make an effort to reform a drinking man, it is invaribly accomplished, but there are certain professors of temperance who should never dictate to a man of this class.

Garrett Items.

Bro. Parker has not yet moved his office, but will probably in a few days.

A young married man of Garrett does not believe a "thing of beauty is a joy forever." He says the author of that saying ought to see his his pretty wife when she "gets her dander up."

Mr. William Hopkins, the genial round house foreman, is lying at Zanesville, Ohio, in a very precarious condition. He left here a week or two ago taking with him his family, and on arriving at home was attacked with typhoid fever.

For some weeks past business has picked up wonderfully on the B. & O, and correspondingly smiling faces are [illegible] caused by the prospect of a good pay on the next arrival of the pay car.

Dr. Pratt, who left our town some three weeks ago for Fort Scott, Kansas, has been heard from, and he gives a very glowing account of that part of "Bleeding" Kansas.

No little excitement was created among business men in our town a few day since by the report that our bank had gone under, but on inquiring we found that the rumor originated from the fact that an attachment had been issued against the bank in the interest of some eastern parties who were under the impression that Mr. Carver was the owner, but such not being the case, the bank was released and business resumed.

Sheriff's Sale.

I will sell at public auction at Waterloo, DeKalb county, Ind., commencing on Thursday, October 25th, 1877, and continue from day to day until all is sold, at the shop of James A. Matson, consisting of Buggies, Single and Double Waggons, Mowers and Reapers of all kinds; Plow Beams and Land sides, and all kinds of material for the manufacturing of Buggies and Wagons, also lumber and other articles to tedious to mention. Sale to commence each day at 10 o'clock a. m.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff.

For reliableness, legitamate and upright dealing, we suppose there is not a consumer in DeKalb county stands higher than the New York Store. They sell first class goods, keep no shoddy goods, buy no auction goods, nor misrepresent goods in order to effect sales and we think our community will do well to give them a trial, and if it should find them otherwise than strictly honest drop them.

With all the testimony in its favor, together with our personal knowledge of it, we commend Lawson's Curative to our friends, with confidence that it will do them good. For rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous headache, pains in the back or limbs, in fact, whenever a cooling and healing embrocation is needed, use the Curative. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Billy Free, one of the fastest typos in Northern Indiana, and during the last few years has been a hard drinker, is now making temperance lectures. The Ligonier Banner, where he was formerly a compositor, invites him to that place to lend his influence to his old friends and associates.

HURRAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE.
HAS SELF THREADING SHUTTLE
RUNS THE LIGHTEST OF ALL HAS SELF SETTING NEEDLE
SHUTTLE MACHINE
SIMPLEST & BEST.

A MAN CRAZY

Selling

SEWING MACHINES!

AT

35 DOLLARS

Go and see them.

G. H. YESBRA, AG'T.

Auburn, Indiana.

"THEY ALL DO IT!"

SAVE MONEY.

BUY YOUR

CLOTHONG AND UNDERWEAR

OF

SAM, PETE & MAX.

FORT WAYNE.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

A STORM of unusual violence swept over portions of Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware on the night of the 4th inst., causing many serious wash-outs on railroads. An excursion train was wrecked near Phœnixville, Pa., killing twelve persons and wounding about fifty. A passenger train was precipitated into the Delaware river, at Frenchtown, N. J., by which five persons lost their lives. Ten schooners were sunk by the fury of the storm in the harbor of Lewes, Del. The steamer [illegible], from Providence for New York, was blown ashore on Long Island sound, and will probably prove a total wreck; all the passengers fortunately escaped. The loss by the gale in the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., is estimated at $100,000.

ALLIGER BROTHERS, prominent insurance agents of New York city, have defaulted to the extent of about $160,000. An English company for whom they were acting are the sufferers.

THE recent disaster on the Pickering Valley railroad, near Phœnixville, was one of the worst of the kind we have been called upon to chronicle for some time. The train, consisting of two passenger coaches and a milk-car, dashed down a ditch nearly 100 feet deep. In an instant the work of destruction was done. The engine plunged headlong down to the bottom of the ditch, instantly killing the engineer and fireman. A passenger coach came next, shot across the opening, broke the foremost end, and fell upon the wrecked engine. The cars then piled in one upon another, and in the terrible darkness of the night the scene that followed was more fearful than pen can picture. Eleven persons were almost instantly killed, and a large number wounded, five or six of whom have since died.

THE Pennsylvania Coal Company's miners have nearly all resumed work.... A monster devil-fish, captured on the coast of Newfoundland, has arrived at New York, and will find a home in the aquarium. It is forty feet long, and is probably the largest sea monster ever captured.

COL. SIBLEY, a prominent citizen of Boston, and late department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, has been arrested for forgery.

THE Grand Jury of Paterson, N. J., have indicted all the officers of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company for conspiracy in removing the assets of the bank after it failed.... Col. John W. Forney has sold the Philadelphia Press for $180,000. Col. W. W. Nevin is the purchaser.... The remains of the gallant Custer were interred at West Point, N. Y., on the 11th inst. About 2,000 people were in attendance, and the funeral ceremonies were quite imposing.

THE WEST.

INDICTMENTS have been found by the Grand Jury of the United States District Court at St. Paul against a large number of persons charged with stealing timber from Government lands.

THE United States District Court at St. Louis has decided that Gen. Grant's pardon relieved Gen. John McDonald, the notorious whisky crook, from further prosecution.... Ex-Minister Washburne has arrived at his home in Galena, Ill.... A battle was fought on the 30th of September, in the Bear Paw mountains, between Gen. Miles' command and Chief Joseph's band of Nez Perces Indians, and resulted in a victory for the soldiers, but at a fearful cost, as attested by the long list of killed and wounded. Gen. Miles furnishes the following brief report of the engagement: "This command moved rapidly to Snake creek, striking the fresh trail of the hostile Nez Perces, coming out of Bear Paw mountains, at 7 o'clock on the 30th. Met and surprised the camp at 8 o'clock, capturing the larger part of their herd, about 600 horses, mules and ponies. The engagement was quite severe, and the inclosed is a list of our killed and wounded. The Indians lost seventeen killed, including Looking Glass and Joseph's brother and three other chiefs, and forty wounded. Joseph gave me his solemn pledge on yesterday that he would surrender, but did not, and they are evidently waiting for aid from other Indians. They say that the Sioux are coming to their aid. They are closely invested in some deep ravines, and kept under fire. To take them by assault would cost many lives. I may wear them out, and eventually compel them to give up. They fight with more desperation than any Indians I have ever met. I believe there are many escaped villains in the village, who expect to be hung when caught. I believe there is communication between the camp and Sitting Bull, and I have used every effort to prevent a junction." Gen. Miles' losses in this sanguinary affair were: Killed—Capt. Hale, Lieut. Joseph W. Biddle, seven sergeants, one corporal, and thirteen privates, or a total of twenty-three. Wounded—Capts. Maylon and Godfrey, Adjt. Baird, Lieut. Romeyn, and thirty-nine non-commissioned officers and privates. Total killed and wounded, sixty-seven.

ALMOST the entire business portion of the village of Vacaville, Solano county, Cal., together with a number of residences, has been destroyed by fire. The loss aggregates upwards of $100,000.... The reported earnings of twenty-four Western railroad companies during the month of September aggregate $8,443,972, against $7,186,872 during the corresponding month last year. The increase is $1,307,100. The greatest increase was in the earnings of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. Nine of the twenty-four roads suffered a decrease as compared with the same month in 1876.

THE SOUTH.

CONGRESSMAN SMALLS (colored), of South Carolina, has been arrested at Columbia on a charge of accepting bribes while a member of the South Carolina Senate.... John Carper, of Cleveland, Tenn., while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity, killed his daughter and niece, and then committed suicide.

FOURTEEN tobacco manufacturers, indicted in the United States Circuit Court at Greensboro, N. C., for reissuing, altering, forging and counterfeiting tobacco stamps, have pleaded guilty.

THE cotton crop at the South this season will fall somewhat short of last year. Picking is progressing rapidly, except in Mississippi, in which State considerable damage has been done by storms. The yield is estimated as follows: In Louisiana, 25 per cent. less than last year; in Mississippi, 10 per cent. less; in Arkansas it compares favorably with last year, and in Texas the decrease will be about 25 per cent.

COLLECTOR MOTT and six revenue officers recently made a raid on the moonshiners in Burke county, N. C., captured two illicit distillers and a large amount of crooked whisky. While returning with their booty they were attacked by the mountaineers, and all but one wounded.

GENERAL.

THE fight for the base-ball championship of the United States, in which the five leading professional clubs, representing the cities of Boston, Brooklyn, Louisville St. Louis and Chicago took part, has been brought to a close for 1877, and has resulted in an easy victory for Boston. The following is a recapitulation of the games won and lost by the respective contestants:

Clubs.	Won.	Lost.	Played.
Boston	31	17	48
Louisville	28	20	48
Hartford	24	24	48
St. Louis	19	29	48
Chicago	18	30	48

A RECENT dispatch from Mesilla, New Mexico, says: "An armed mob of 400 Mexicans—160 from the Mexican side of the river—have possession of the county of El Paso, in Texas, fifty miles below this place. The mob threaten to massacre all the Americans. They have arrested and imprisoned the county officers. Several prominent citizens have fled from the county. A small detachment of the Ninth United States Cavalry started for the scene of the trouble to-day, to protect the United States Custom House and Government property. The Mexicans claim that El Paso county belongs to Mexico." The authorities at Washington have information touching this alleged invasion, to the effect that it is not an international quarrel, but a purely local affair, growing out of the disputed rights of the parties in reference to the possession of some salt mines in that region.

BURNED: Ten million feet of lumber at Hunter's Point, L. I., loss $200,000; Lambert's soap manufactory at Youngstown, Ohio, loss [illegible]; Hamburger's furniture factory, New York city, loss $80,000; a block of buildings in St. Albans, Vt., loss $30,000; a number of buildings at Gouverneur, N. Y., loss $60,000; a flouring mill at Charloe, Ohio, loss $16,000.

THE barge P. C. Williams, was driven ashore, during the gale, at Leamington, Ont. The Captain, four men, and a woman were drowned.

FAILURES: The Pioneer Land and Loan Bank, of San Francisco, liabilities $1,118,000, assets nil; the Franklin Savings Bank, of Pittsburgh, liabilities $200,000; the German-American Bank, of Quincy, Ill., liabilities $100,000.

WASHINGTON.

A WASHINGTON dispatch states that Chief Justice Cartter, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, has received a requisition from Gov. Hampton, of South Carolina, for United States Senator J. J. Patterson.

AN investigation of the Patent Office fire, made by a commission under authority of the Secretary of the Interior, has demonstrated that the fire was not caused by spontaneous combustion or incendiarism. A fire was kindled in a room in the basement and fed with pine boards. Sparks from this fell upon the roof and set fire to a pine grating, and "that's the way it begun."

A NEW YORK dispatch says "the new schedule of freight rates on all Western-bound traffic, as agreed to by all the railroad lines, abolishes all special classes, which are merged into the fourth class. The rates established are on a sliding scale, and will shortly be increased, as they were not fixed for any definite period. Among the special instructions to freight agents are that 20,000 pounds will constitute a car-load, unless otherwise specified, and where special class-rates are made on articles or car-load lots, they must be understood to mean 20,000 pounds or more of each article named, and freight must be delivered on the same day and be all for one consignee."

THE latest speculations about American Ministers abroad keep George P. Marsh in Italy, and Mr. Moran in Portugal. The Belgian and Venezuelan missions, it is intimated, are to be filled by new men, and Collector Arthur, of New York, is said to be on the slate for a third-class mission.

THE President and several members of the Cabinet attended the Maryland Fair, at Frederick, last week.

POLITICAL.

THE Democrats have carried Ohio by a majority of about 25,000, and secured a majority in the Legislature of about forty on joint ballot, which insures a Democratic United States Senator in place of Stanley Matthews.... In Iowa the Republican majority is between 40,000 and 50,000, and the Legislature largely Republican.

A LARGE meeting of New York Republicans, called for the purpose of indorsing President Hayes, was held in Cooper Institute one night last week. Prof. Dwight, of Columbia Law School, presided. George William Curtis was the principal speaker. Resolutions strongly indorsing the national administration were adopted.

THE Republicans of the Black Hills recently held a delegate convention at Deadwood, chose E. C. Brearly a delegate to Washington, and adopted resolutions indorsing the national administration.... The Republican State Committee of Georgia has disbanded.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

REPORTS of the battle fought on the 2d and 3d of October between the Turks and Russians, near the Armenian frontier, show that it was the most destructive engagement of the war in that quarter. The forces of the Grand Duke Michael surprised and captured an important fortified work on the right flank of Mukhtar's position, and endeavored to push forward and establish themselves on the road between Mukhtar's army and Kars. The obstinacy of the resistance at the point first assailed gave the Turks time to get under arms, and a desperate struggle followed, lasting all day, and resulting in the repulse of the Russians at all points except that of the first attack. At the close of the engagement the Russians held the post they had captured, but appear to have found it untenable, for their own reports admit that it was abandoned. They also confess a loss of 3,000 in killed and wounded, claiming that the Turkish loss was equally heavy. From all accounts at this writing it must be set down as a drawn battle.... A Berlin dispatch says: "The Russians officially acknowledge the loss of 52,000 men up to Sept. 27."

THE character of the recent fighting near Kars begins to be better understood. The Russians suffered a check, but the Turks gained no decisive result. The result seems to be something like Plevna or Schipka—desperate fighting, enormous losses, and no gain to either of the combatants. Moukhtar Pasha, in a dispatch dated the 7th inst., reports the retirement of the Russians to the position they occupied before the recent advance on his lines. He claims that his losses in the late battles were about 2,000, while he inflicted a loss of 10,000 on the enemy.... A dispatch from Bucharest says "there are already two feet of snow in Scipka pass. Troops are obliged to sit in frozen trenches, ankle deep in mud."

A SPECIAL correspondent with the Russians in Asia telegraphs from Karajal that Mukhtar Pasha has evacuated his position at Kizil Tepe, which was taken from the Russians a few months ago, and also Subata. In an official telegram from the Russian headquarters it is said to have been in consequence of operations on the 2d and 3d inst., and the occupation of new positions by the Russian troops, that the Turks abandoned most of their positions and commenced retreating.

ANOTHER battle was fought near Kars, in Asia, on the 10th inst. The Turks claim to have repulsed the Russians with disastrous losses.... The Turks have again revictualed Plevna.... The inclement weather and lack of clothing is causing great mortality in the Russian ranks.... Another Turkish monitor has been blown up by a torpedo in the Danube.... Russia has undertaken to pay Servia 1,000,000 rubles monthly from the time the Servian army is sent to the frontier.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

OWING to scarcity of laborers, the result of the enormous drafts of the military service, and heavy rains during the latter part of the summer, the Russian wheat harvest has been "disappointing, both in quality and in quantity."

A MAN in Wales has accomplished the unparalleled feat of walking 1,500 miles in 1,000 hours.... England is going to fit out another Arctic expedition.... The last famine report from India is favorable.

DIAZ has authorized his Collector of Customs at Vera Cruz to remit $25,000 a month to the United States, to be applied in payment of American claims allowed by the Mixed Commission.... The Mexican Congress has appropriated $300,000 for a manufactory of breech-loading arms, and authorized the purchase of $300,000 worth of rifles from American manufacturers.

SPENCER, late President of the State Savings Bank of Chicago, whose whereabouts for a long time were unknown, has turned up in Paris, where he is living in style at the Hotel de Rivoli.

SOUTH AMERICAN advices report the death of Henry Meiggs the great railway builder. Meiggs was a native of New York, and 66 years old. In 1870 he contracted with Peru to build six railways for $125,000,000, and was engaged in completing the last of them when prostrated by sickness.... It is stated in a London dispatch that all immediate apprehensions of famine in Northern India next year has passed away, though high prices and some pressure on the poor will remain until the spring crop is assured.... A terrible mine explosion, resulting in the death of forty persons, has occurred in Lancashire, England.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

THE finest crop of raisins ever produced in California is promised this fall.

WITHIN ten years tobacco culture has become a most important industry in Pennsylvania.

THERE are over 800 Chinese laundries in New York city, giving employment to about 4,000 persons.

THE total number of coal mines in England and Wales is 2,688, with an annual rental of £3,393,696.

IT is estimated that the wheat crop of Ohio this season will be worth $120,000,000, and hay $20,000,000.

THE amount of tax paid on men servants in England in 1876–7 shows that their number has been reduced by 42,000—a proof of hard times.

OVER 1,000,000 gallons of petroleum oil are daily exported from New York. The aggregate exports this year are 121,000,000, against 84,000,000 gallons last year.

THE cotton manufactures of the world run a total of 65,000,000 cotton spindles, and spin 2,676,000,000 pounds of cotton annually. Of the spindles, 35,000,000, or more than one-half, are operated in England.

THE world's annual production of sugar aggregates 2,150,000 tons of cane sugar, 1,320,000 tons of beet-root sugar, 150,000 tons of date sugar, 20,000 tons of maple sugar and 20,000 tons of sorghum sugar.

CALIFORNIA's wool growth is becoming one of her greatest industries, the export last year having been over 50,000,000 pounds, worth $8,000,000. There are several wool-growers who own from 30,000 to 40,000 sheep each.

DURING the year 1876 the sugar exportation from this country amounted to over 73,000,000 pounds, on which the drawback under the law of 1875 was $2,609,876. The sugars thus sent abroad were mostly of the higher grades.

THE State of Iowa is estimating its this year's crop of hogs at 1,500,000 head. This will not only fill the mouths of the people of that prosperous Commonwealth, but, with the vast amount of grain raised, will fill every pocket.

IT is estimated that 20,000 oil wells have thus far been dug in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, at an aggregate cost of $192,000,000. They have yielded about 88,000,000 barrels of oil, valued at the wells at $300,000,000, or $400,000,000 at the seaboard.

IN addition to the home production, opium is imported into China to the annual value of over $40,000,000, principally from British India. More than $1,000,000 worth is annually imported into California for the use of the Chinese in that State.

A POLISH association of Chicago has purchased an extensive tract of land in Arkansas for the purpose of there establishing a colony of their countrymen. Fifty Polish families from the vicinity of Chicago have already settled there, and two hundred more are expected.

A NEW agreement between the Miners' Union of California and the mine superintendents provides that none but members of the union shall be employed underground, and for that concession the union will relieve the companies of expense for the medical treatment of injured miners.

THERE are some 700 carpet-making establishments in the United States which, in prosperous times, furnish employment to between 150,000 and 200,000 operatives—men, women and children. Thirteen million dollars is invested in the business, which includes buildings and machinery, while $4,700,000 is expended yearly for wages. The annual production is valued at between $22,000,000 and $24,000,000. Philadelphia represents three-fourths of the business, and the other fourth is divided up in different manufacturing cities of New England, the two most prominently connected with carpet manufacturing being Hartford, Ct., and Lowell, Mass.

THE bullion product of the Pacific coast mines for the past eight months, according to the tally kept by the San Francisco Bulletin, has been as follows:

January, 15 mines	$3,109,050
February, 16 mines	2,235,500
March, 19 mines	3,688,000
April, 19 mines	3,960,000
May, 21 mines	4,105,000
June, 21 mines	4,121,800
July, 24 mines	3,954,000
August, 29 mines	4,377,100
Total	$30,251,200

A Feast for the Gods.

Jim, a Piute Indian, who haunts the kitchen doors of Eureka, and does odd jobs for householders in return for sundry favors in the way of eatables, declined a proffered meal the other day, explaining that he was not hungry. Seeing the look of surprise that stole over the face of the donor at the unlooked-for rejection, he explained as follows: "Fool Chinaman he bling roast pig glabeyard; ingin catch 'em; Jim eat 'em; too good glub for dead man, he no want 'em." Jim had been feasting off the pious offerings of Celestials to their departed countrymen, and was in high glee over the simplicity of the barbarians.—Eureka (Nev.) Sentinel.

Dentists.

It is estimated that there are over twelve thousand dentists in active practice in the United States, and that they use annually more than half a ton of pure gold, besides employing cheaper fillings. And it is computed that the proportion of persons having sound teeth is but one to eighty. In our early days people were not often afflicted with decayed teeth until old age overtook them. Their habits were more in obedience to sanitary laws than our own. Smoking, hot food and drinks, the too frequent use of sweetmeats, and a little too much "science" that teeth may be saved, make ugly mouths, sunken jaws, and well-marked lines about the mouth frightfully common.

END OF THE NEZ PERCES WAR.

Details of the Defeat and Surrender of Chief Joseph's Band—The Savages Surrounded and Compelled to Lay Down Their Arms.

The special correspondent of the Chicago Times sends from Fort Benton, Mont., the following particulars of the surrender of Chief Joseph's band of Nez Perces savages:

"The capitulation occurred at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the 5th. The savages gave up their guns and ammunition, passing in solemn review before Gen. Miles, and accepting an unconditional surrender. The troops at once occupied the Indians' intrenchments, and the first victory over the redskins during the past two years was signalized. In the charge upon the Indian camp on the first day sixty-four officers and men were killed and wounded. After the camp had been surrounded, and the soldiers had secured defensive positions, only four casualties occurred. The soldiers closed in upon the savages slowly but surely after the first day, all the time extending their line of rifle-pits. It was the purpose of Gen. Miles to lose no more men in the attack. How admirably the plan succeeded is already known. On the last day of the fight the troops had succeeded in securing a position which commanded the stream which flowed in front of the rifle-pits occupied by the enemy, and had the battle lasted another day their supply of water would have been exhausted and a surrender have become imperative. On the fourth day of the fight Joseph raised the white flag for the third time, and, through an interpreter who advanced toward his camp, offered to surrender provided they were allowed to keep their guns. Miles sent word back that he must surrender without any reserve, and the battle was taken up again. The white flag was displayed again on the fifth and last day of the engagement, when Joseph appeared in front of his lines and advanced to meet Gen. Miles, to whom he tendered his gun. He was followed by sixty warriors, who also turned over their arms and shook hands with Miles as they passed. When the troops entered the rifle-pits forty warriors were discovered disabled by wounds. They were removed to the camp hospital, and received all the attention which was given to the troops. The number of Indians killed is not known, as they had already buried their dead. It is supposed that they lost an equal number with the Sioux. Gen. Miles left at noon yesterday for Tongue river, taking with him his dead and wounded and the surrendered band. Gen. Sturgis did not arrive in time to take a hand in the fight, and the glory of the magnificent attack rests with Miles.

"Gen. Howard with an escort of seventeen men arrived on the field on the morning of the surrender. His presence there was not understood, and he made no attempt to assume command. He left his small force of infantry at the Missouri river, and with this small escort of cavalry proceeded to the scene of battle. The intrenchments occupied by the Indians were admirably constructed for a defense. They occupied in all over 160 rifle-pits, which communicated with each other, so that assistance would be rendered if necessary. The squaws fought by the warriors, took care of the wounded, and buried the dead. When the history of the unparalleled march of the Nez Perces is written, they will be accredited with great gallantry in the field and a wonderful humanity. Their defense could not have been excelled by any body of men, nor their generosity. Seven wounded men lying under the intrenchments during the entire battle live to corroborate this. They took away the guns and ammunition from the disabled troops, but did not offer to molest them."

A Little Temperance Tale.

A negro and an Irishman met in a store in Pittsfield, Mass., a few months ago, both in a dilapidated condition as to clothes and general appearance. They agreed together, however, to stop drinking and sign the pledge. About three months after they met again in the same store, when both were arrayed in brand-new suits of clothes, but each failed to recognize the other. Becoming acquainted after a while, they congratulated each other on their mutually improved appearance, but the Irishman "went the negro one better" by declaring he had prospered so well that he had taken to himself a wife three weeks previously.—Springfield Republican.

Wonderful Gold Mines in New Zealand.

The San Francisco Chronicle has mail advices from New Zealand giving the most extraordinary accounts of the productiveness of gold mines in that island. An old mine—the Moanataiari—has been reopened, and a lode found at the depth of 300 feet, 8 to 10 feet wide, and of almost solid gold. In one week the lode yielded 10,298 ounces, and the profits in one fortnight were $215,000. The export of gold from the whole colony for the quarter ending June 30 was $1,861,790.

A Live Texan.

He was a wild Texan, just from the frontier, and had boarded the train at Fort Worth for Dallas. It was his first ride on the "kers," and, as the conductor reached in his hip pocket for his punch, the sharp eye of Texas caught a glimpse of its polished handle, and, quick as thought, he leveled a heavy six on that conductor, saying, "Put 'er up, or I'll blow daylight through you. No man can get the drop on me."—Dallas (Texas) Herald.

MORN, dewy morn, whose rosy fingers tint the glowing sky, is the time to eat fresh fruit, in all its luscious dewy freshness, but night, night is the time to put on your trousers left in front, hang your vest on by one arm-hole, button your coat wrong as you go, and tear off at the rate of a thousand miles a minute to fetch the doctor.—Hawk-Eye.

FALL AND WINTER FASHIONS.

[From Harper's Bazar.]

Reticules.—The old-fashioned reticule is in style again, made of silk or velvet to match the costume, and hung on the wrist by handsome cords.

Collars.—Broad collars of pale blue, rose or cream-colored foulard are made to wear with dark dresses. The wide Anne of Austria cuffs covering the sleeves are of the same foulard. These make a handsome facing for duchesse and other point lace, though the colored collars and cuffs are also worn.

The Hair.—The Recamier style of hair-dressing is a favorite autumn mode. In this the hair is combed up from the nape of the neck, and a pouf of curls is placed at the top of the head. The hair in front is also combed upward, but the fringe over the forehead remains, and may hang out straight across like a child's or be arranged in light frizzes.

Bonnets.—The hair is dressed very softly and with reference to the shape of the hat. For the crownless floral bonnets, or those with feather fronts to be worn on dressy occasions, the coiffure is high soft loops and puffs on top of the head. For the close shapes the back hair is arranged in a flat chatelaine loop very low on the nape of the neck, or else the chatelaine is braided in wide basket braids of seven strands or more. The materials for the new bonnets are plush or velvet trimmed with satin. The feathers and flowers surpass those of any former season. The bird-of-paradise, with its golden plumage, is the choice for expensive bonnets.

Hats.—Felt is especially liked for round hats, its only rival being velvet. Helmet-shaped hats like those worn by gentlemen during the summer, are offered for young ladies. Their only trimming is a wide galloon band and a slender wing. Another jaunty shape comes far down over the brow, with a square, visor-shaped front, while the back and sides are rolled closely against the crown; this is the jockey hat, and is most suitable for young girls in their teens; the feathers, which are two short ostrich plumes, are set on the back of the crown, and made to curl down on the front.

Wraps.—Long slender sacques will again be favorite wraps for fall and winter. Those for general use are of medium length, made of the new rough cloths, double-breasted, buttoned their entire length, and with coat-flaps behind. These are also shown in smooth cloths of various light gray shades, and, moreover, of clear blue and of scarlet. For the latter the trimming is rows of applique embroidery in shaded colors. More dressy sacque cloaks are long enough to envelop the whole figure, which they fit closely, and have side draperies in the way of capes or flowing sleeves. These come in black repped silk, plush cloths, and the knotted curled rough surfaces that are woven of fine camel's hair. Circulars of clinging shapes are shown for carriage wraps. Mantles as long as the sacque cloaks or as small as fichus, in scarf-shape, like Dolmans, and as round capes, are shown, and the materials are as varied as the styles.

Grant and Sumner.

The ex-President's charge that Mr. Sumner was untruthful had its rise in the matter of the annexation of Santo Domingo. The story of that misunderstanding is an interesting one. Mr. Sumner was dining, one Sunday evening, at his own house, with John W. Forney and Ben Perley Poore, when the President was announced, with the message that he very much desired to confer with the Senator on an important matter. The dinner being nearly concluded, the Senator sent word he would see the President at once. Upon this Mr. Poore rose and retired. Mr. Forney was leaving the room as the President was ushered in. "Don't go," said the President, "I should like to have you remain and hear what I have to say." The Colonel accordingly reseated himself, and the Senator and himself composed themselves to hear the President's communication. Gen. Grant then said he had been thinking a good deal about the annexation of Santo Domingo to the United States. The country had been offered to the United States; it was fruitful in many products that we needed, and, moreover, it was eminently fitted for a naval and coaling station; it would prove an important outpost in case of war; and, in short, the advantages were all in favor, as he looked at it, of its acquisition. "Now, I am told," continued the President, "that you are Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, before whom such matters come, and that if you will aid it the thing can be accomplished." The Senator interrupted by saying he was Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, not of the Judiciary, and that that committee would have such a matter in charge. The President accepted the correction (though he subsequently several times made the same mistake), and continued the advocacy with much earnestness, finally appealing to the Senator to personally aid him. The Senator answered these strong entreaties with: "Well, Mr. President, I am a Republican and an administration man, and I will do all I can properly to make your administration a success. I will give the subject my best thought, and will do all I can rightly and consistently to aid you." The interview soon after ended, and the President withdrew.—Boston Commonwealth.

Hog Cholera.

The symptoms of the "hog cholera," so-called, which is prevailing in parts of the West, are thus described: A wheezing cough, which is usually accompanied by panting. At other times the animal is possessed with a mania for running, and will run even in a pen where it has to cut a very small circle. The coughing might be caused by worms crawling into the throat and the running be occasioned by the agony caused by the gnawing of the mucous membrane of the stomach, since dissection has in some cases revealed worms in the throat and entrails. Soda, alum and copperas, in equal parts, form a compound which is recommended as a remedy.

WHEN the Communists in Paris mobbed the residence of Thiers they carried away his bronzes and curiosities, which were sold to dealers. The police subsequently seized wherever they found them articles bearing the private mark of Thiers, which he caused to be engraved or stamped upon his articles de virtu. Judge of his surprise to find many ornaments brought to him bearing this mark which he had never owned. The dealers had counterfeited the mark, and preferred to be robbed rather than confess the trick.

An Unprincipled Performance.

A citizen, who should be preparing himself for the unknown life beyond the grave instead of being up to such tricks, removed the setting from his big gold ring the other day, leaving a marked and decided vacancy. He gets on a street car, holds his hands so that the ring must be seen, and pretty soon a man bends forward and remarks:

"Excuse me, sir, but you have lost the set from your ring."

"So I have," replies the owner as he looks around on the floor.

Every passenger began to peer around, and the man who made the discovery finally asks:

"Was it a valuable set?"

"It was a thousand dollar diamond," is the calm reply.

There is another movement on the part of passengers. Some look along the seat, some under it, and some make a dive for pearl buttons and other small objects.

"When did you miss it?" asks the first man as the search weakens a little.

"A year and a half ago, when I was attending camp-meeting in Illinois!" is the sad reply.

Then every passenger straightens up, every eye looks into vacancy, and not the faintest smile can be seen on any face. A person boarding the car just then would wonder what great man in the city had just died, and if the passengers were on their way to take a sad farewell look at his remains.—Detroit Free Press.

An Eclipse in Turkey.

They take an eclipse rather seriously in Turkey. The Government considered it necessary to issue a proclamation on the subject the day before the last eclipse of the moon took place. The inhabitants were informed that no serious consequences would ensue on account of the partial obscurity of the moon. The Turks always considered it their duty to make a frightful din with tin pans and old muskets in order to frighten away the demon that is trifling with the moon's brilliancy. The proclamation intimated that this proceeding was entirely unnecessary, and would not be tolerated. The line was drawn at guns. The people might vent their feelings in tin pans and horns, but firing a gun would not be allowed. Any Turk who so far forgot himself as to fire a gun was fined 100 piasters. The Government has had enough of this foolishness, and intends to keep the powder for the benefit of the Russians, and let the moon eclipse away in peace and quietness.

Perils of the Telephone.

As Mr. Louis W. Clarke, Rhode Island agent for Bell's telephone, was engaged a few days ago in connecting Rocky Point with this city by the "little talking instrument," he was somewhat surprised at hearing a strange noise, resembling the purring of a very large cat. This settled down in a moment or two, and he found himself unwittingly listening to a conversation between a man at a place of business in this city and the wife of one of the proprietors at his residence down in the country. The wires had got crossed—that was all; but it is easy to conceive how much mischief might be done simply by such a crossing of the wires. No serious results in this case, however, though the parties at each end of the telephone might well have been surprised to find that a third party, miles away, had been listening to their conversation—Providence Journal.

How Savages Poison Arrows.

Archdeacon Dunbar writes to the London Times that, immediately before shooting arrows, savages usually poison them by dipping the points into a small portion of mortified human flesh. Any person pierced with such arrows will die of mortification. The Archdeacon has known cases. Death is certain, but the pain is slight. Vegetable poison kills, he says, when swallowed, but not when applied externally.

LARGE numbers of the San Francisco Chinamen are returning to the Flowery Kingdom.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	$8 00	@12 00
HOGS	5 50	@ 7 50
COTTON	11⅜	@ 11⅝
FLOUR—Superfine	5 50	@ 5 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 35	@ 1 36
CORN—Western Mixed	58	@ 60
OATS—Mixed	32	@ 36
RYE—Western	71	@ 72
PORK—New Mess	14 35	@14 45
LARD	9	@ 9⅛

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 50	@ 6 00
Choice Natives	4 75	@ 5 25
Cows and Heifers	2 60	@ 3 60
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 50
HOGS—Live	4 50	@ 5 50
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 50	@ 5 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 12	@ 1 12½
No. 3 Spring	1 07	@ 1 08
CORN—No. 2	42	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	22	@ 23
RYE—No. 2	53	@ 54
BARLEY—No. 2	59	@ 60
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	30	@ 32
EGGS—Fresh	16	@ 17
PORK—Mess	14 50	@14 55
LARD	8⅜	@ 8½

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 15	@ 1 17½
No. 2	1 13	@ 1 14
CORN—No. 2	41	@ 42
OATS—No. 2	22	@ 23
RYE—No. 1	53	@ 54
BARLEY—No. 2	62	@ 63

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 3 Red Fall	1 28	@ 1 29
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	42	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
RYE	58	@ 56
PORK—Mess	14 30	@14 50
LARD	8⅜	@ 8½
HOGS	5 10	@ 5 65
CATTLE	2 00	@ 6 00

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—Red	1 25	@ 1 35
CORN	46	@ 47
OATS	26	@ 30
RYE	59	@ 60
PORK—Mess	14 20	@ ....
LARD	8⅝	@ 9

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—No. 1 White Michigan	1 37	@ 1 39
No. 2 Red Winter	1 33	@ 1 34
CORN	44	@ 45
OATS—No. 2	26	@ 27

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice White	6 50	@ 6 75
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 37	@ 1 39
No. 1 Amber	1 30	@ 1 31
CORN—No. 1	48	@ 49
OATS—Mixed	26	@ 27
BARLEY (per cental)	1 10	@ 1 40
PORK—Mess	15 00	@ ....

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	5 70	@ 5 90
Fair	4 90	@ 5 10
Common	4 40	@ 4 60
HOGS	5 40	@ 6 00
SHEEP	3 50	@ 5 50

AUBURN COURIER
T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

FRENCH FINANCE.

The Reasons of Its Great Success.

Lessons for the United States Drawn from the French System and from the Recent Experience of Europe.

Tariffs, Banking, Currency, and Bullion—A Letter from Judge Kelley.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia Times:

In grateful compliance with your request I avail myself of the earliest leisure to reply more precisely than I could without reference to official papers to your questions as to the causes of the wonderful power of France as shown in her payment, in anticipation of the time named by her conqueror, of the enormous war fine inflicted upon her, and the maintenance of the industries of the people during the war and the succeeding interval, which has been one of such terrible financial depression to Germany, the recipient of the fine, and to Great Britain and the United States.

Any discussion of French finance would be delusive which did not keep steadily in view the fact that under all changes of dynasty and forms of government since the days of Colbert the labor of France has been protected by the most elaborate and ingenious tariff and system of prohibitions ever devised, and that, until the making of the first commercial treaty with England in 1860, the importation of immense numbers of articles of foreign manufacture was prohibited, and that many of the prohibitions which were until then applicable to all nations still exist in her general tariff, which regulates importations from non-treaty nations. Thus the importation of American cutlery is prohibited by the law of December, 1796, which has not been disturbed during the long interim; and, while our raw cotton is admitted free as material for manufacture, our cotton yarns and fabrics are excluded by a prohibition established in 1809.

Another primary fact in this connection must also be remembered—the patronage of art by the French Government. The diffusion of a love of art and the knowledge of its laws among the producing classes secures a market for French fabrics and wares when the home and foreign markets of other nations are shrinking, as those of Germany, England and the United States now are, and have been for the last three years. While these suffering nations offer substantial commodities—heavy cottons, weighty woolen goods, etc.—France commands markets for her lighter commodities by the genius, taste and skill with which a smaller amount of material is wrought into equal superficial quantities, and so embellished as to commend them to the admiration of the world. This blending of art with utility not only secures France universal markets, but enables her to sell imponderable things, such as genius, taste, art and skill, which may be carried to the most distant commercial countries without such freight charges as burden the heavier goods produced elsewhere. Thus much as an essential preliminary.

THE BASIS OF FRENCH FINANCE.

The distinguishing characteristic of the financial policy of the French Government is found in the fact that it assumes the duty of preventing alternate periods of inflation and their inevitable consequent contraction, and that to accomplish this end whenever war or other exigency has caused an issue of irredeemable paper, it has invested such issue with the character of legal tender—made it available for all purposes to which money could be applied in France, whether the transactions were between citizens or between citizens and the Government or vice versa, and has taken measures to prevent the withdrawal of the paper until a continuous balance of trade had brought into the country metallic money enough to supply the channels temporarily filled by the paper money with which the exigency had been met. Colbert taught the French people and Napoleon emphasized the lessons of Colbert, that it is labor that supports government and society, and that to arrest the employment of productive industry is to impoverish the public treasury and produce discontent and possible disorder among the people. And I hesitate not to say that had this lesson been borne in mind by our Government—had our paper money been, as the House of Representatives when providing for the issue of the greenback insisted that it should be, received by the Government in payment of all dues, and had there been no attempt to retire any part of the paper which had been invested with the character of legal tender until a metallic substitute had been purchased by the export of our surplus commodities, we should never have been without the free use of gold and silver at a rate of premium no greater than that which has prevailed in France, where it never exceeded 2½ per cent., and that but for a brief period, and that the question of the resumption of specie payments would have been one of as little consequence to the American people as it now is to the French people who use gold, silver, and irredeemable bank notes interchangeably. Indeed, it is a fact that, while the Government will not permit the bank to close the operation by which its notes were made legal tender, the bank will not, without a compensatory premium, receive any considerable amount of gold or silver in exchange for its notes, because it holds an excess of bullion, and there is a tax of $1.50 on $1,000 of its circulation. We pay our banks 4, 4½, 5 and 6 per cent. for issuing notes which the Government furnishes them. France, even in the greatest of her exigencies, maintains her power over the money of the country by demanding a slight tax upon circulation whenever she authorizes the bank to issue notes irredeemable, as our national-bank notes are, and pays the bank but 1 per cent. on the amount of such notes loaned it when first issued.

Great Britain and the United States adopt another and opposite financial policy. They restrict the volume of legal-tender money to the narrowest possible limits available as a basis for bank circulation and compel the enterprising and producing classes to pay tribute to capitalists, foreign or native, for credit upon which to conduct their undertakings. France seeks to give the whole people money; we, following the example of England, seek to compel them to use credit or currency obtained through banks at such rates of discount as may prevail.

THE GERMAN SYSTEM.

Germany, prior to the war, was as free from commercial and financial crises as France had been. Her financial system was kindred to that of France. Her circulation consisted of money which was silver and of bank paper. The great volume of paper met with in circulation was notes of small denominations, many of them for less than $1 American money. But after the war she discarded both silver and small bank notes and ordained a gold currency, established the Imperial Bank and prohibited the issue of any bank notes for less than the equivalent of £5 or $25, and the mere attempt, ineffectual as yet, to carry out this scheme, has reduced both Government and people to a condition contrasting painfully with that which they exhibited for years before this mad experiment was undertaken. I now proceed to exhibit some of the facts from which these conclusions have been deduced.

After the French Revolution of 1848, on the night of the 15th of March, the republic, by decree, made the notes of the Bank to France a legal tender, limiting the increase of $350,000,000 and reducing the denomination of the notes to 100 francs, or $20. One of the great difficulties mentioned in the official report of the transaction and its effects was to print these 100-franc notes fast enough for the public consumption, though in ten days the amount issued in this form had reached 80,000,000 francs, and in a valuable article in the London Times on the 16th of February, 1849, a writer for that paper, which [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and one that would inevitably [illegible] situation of the [illegible] [illegible] France, said:

"M. D'Argout [illegible] to make every effort [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the community. Money was to be found to meet not only the demands upon [illegible], public and private, of every rank in society. It was essential to enable the manufacturers to work, lest their workmen, driven to desperation, should fling themselves among the most violent enemies of public order. It was essential to provide money for the food for Paris, for the pay of the troops, and for the daily support of the ateliers nationaux. A failure on any one point would have led to a fresh convulsion."

As illustrative of the truth that it is labor and not coin that maintains society and governments, I cite another brief passage from the article in the Times:

"No sooner was the bank relieved from the necessity of paying away the remnant of its coin than it made every exertion to increase its metallic rest. About forty millions of silver were purchased abroad at a high price. More than one hundred millions were made over in dollars to the Treasury and Executive Departments in Paris. In all, taking into account the branch banks, five hundred and six millions of five-franc pieces have been thrown by the bank into the country since March, and currency was thus supplied to all the channels of the social system."

Had the Government refused, as ours did, to receive the notes which it had made legal tender among the people, gold and silver would have gone to such a premium that the bank, instead of buying specie, would have sold it, as our banks did, whereby some of them were enabled to declare dividends of 100 per cent.; but as paper, silver and gold were at par with each other, the bank could buy bills of exchange on foreign countries from French merchants, and thus procure the specie with which it should soon resume cash payments.

But the recent experience of France, as to which you more particularly invited an expression of my views, is even more striking than the foregoing.

THE WAR AND ITS RESULTS.

The war between France and Germany was declared July 19, 1870, and was terminated by the treaty of May 10, 1871. In April, 1870, the circulation of the Bank of France was $288,750,000, and it held of specie and bullion $261,550,000. In August the Government required it to suspend specie payments, and by the same decree made its notes a legal tender. The first statement published after peace had been restored showed a circulation of $442,000,000, with $110,000,000 of specie. In consideration of the suspension of specie payments and the use of its notes as legal tender, the bank loaned the Government $306,000,000, at 1 per cent. interest, and agreed to pay the tax above referred to on its entire circulation. When, in August, 1870, the French armies had been defeated and consternation had seized upon the people of Paris, the Bank of France and the other credit institutions of that city entered into co-operation and determined as a matter absolutely necessary to the maintenance of society to advance to the people within a fortnight 180,000,000 francs, ($36,000,000), and it is a matter of history that not a single failure of moment took place in France pending the use and liquidation of these loans. If you ask to whom these immense advances were made, I answer, in the language of the late Thomas Balch, Esq., whose long residence in Paris made him familiar with the financial magnates of Europe:

"To merchants, manufacturers, shopkeepers, artisans and mechanics; to any citizens, indeed, whose books showed that their business during a sufficiently long period had been fairly prosperous, and whose industry and integrity were established, and of course much importance was attached to this latter fact. Many of the advances to artisans and mechanics were made without indorsement or collateral at all; on no other security, indeed, than a fair business and an honest name. The effects of this extraordinary operation were of commensurate public importance. In the midst of the most frightful and accumulated military and political calamities in the gradual environment of the French capital by the German hosts, the trade and labor of France were preserved and even stimulated; and it was altogether owing to this patriotic and most sagacious audacity that, in a period of special and terrible trial, no noteworthy commercial or industrial failure occurred, and that France was afterward enabled to provide for the payment, without serious difficulty, of an indemnity intended permanently to crush her, and which excited by its magnitude the astonishment of the whole world!"

The decree of legal tender (cours force) fixed the maximum of the issue of the bank at $480,000,000. It was, however, increased by the law of Dec. 29, 1871, to $560,000,000, and finally by the law of July 15, 1872, to $640,000,000. What effect had the issue of this vast amount of paper money on the premium on gold? Did it, in accordance with the theory of Secretary Sherman and the British economists our free-traders and bullionists so delight to honor, expel the precious metals from France? Or did it show that their wisdom is folly, and that their so-called science, which John Stuart Mill truly said was "a science based on assumptions," is no science at all, but a mere mesh-work of human reason based on false and delusive assumptions? Fortunately the facts of history speak on this point with no uncertain sound.

In November, 1871, when a large payment on account of the war fine, which, as you know, amounted, with interest and charges, to $1,100,000,000, in addition to the surrender of the magnificent provinces of Alsace and Loraine and their wealthy and industrious people to Germany, was due, the premium on gold rose to its highest point, 2½ per cent., at which, to the French people, exorbitant rate it remained for but a few days, and when the irredeemable circulation had subsequently been increased from $460,000,000 to $490,000,000 the premium fell to 1 per cent., and in October, 1873, when the volume of notes had actually reached $614,000,000, the premium was merely nominal, and was only demanded on large sums. Legal tender, gold, silver and paper money were then circulating in common and at par with each other. As I have said, the war fine amounted to $1,100,000,000. The total cost of the war to France has been officially estimated at $2,000,000,000, and the direct loss to agriculture at $600,000,000; yet the last payment on account of the war fine was made on the 5th of September, 1873, or in two years and four months after the conclusion of the treaty of peace. Does history present any such striking illustration as this of the harmony of the interests of a state and its people? The advance of the banks to the manufacturers in August, 1870, enabled them to maintain their industries and by paying living wages to place the whole people in a position to not only respond to the demands of the Government for taxes, but to meet its call for two loans, one for $550,000,000 and the other for $827,000,000, the tenders in response to the latter call amounting to the fabulous sum of $6,600,000,000, or four times the amount of the national debt of the United States.

THE TRANSFER OF BULLION.

But, omitting many facts that would be pregnant and instructive, I must, in view of your limitation as to space, hasten to a conclusion. The German empire entered upon what may prove to be a fatal experiment when, under the mistaken notion that she was to receive the bullion then held by France and that which she might earn in the time stipulated for the payment of the fine, she determined to establish a gold currency, demonetize silver, and to exclude small notes from circulation. The highest estimate I have seen anywhere of the loss of the precious metals by France in the payment of the war fine is $240,000,000, but that this estimate is excessive is shown by French and other official figures. The French Government shipped $100,000,000 of specie and bullion directly to the German Government. Yet the tables of the two countries, and they are confirmed by the British tables of exports and imports of specie, show that France lost from her intercourse with Germany from Jan. 1, 1871, to Dec. 31, 1874, but $140,000,000 in gold and silver.

This is the statement of M. Leon Say, made during the time he was Finance Minister, which he continued to be till MacMahon changed his C[illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] per cent. bonds, to be held as certificates of de[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] more of gold and silver to Germany than she drew from her. Assuming, which there is no good reason for doing, that all th[illegible] [illegible] appears that Germany received but $250,000,000 of cash from France in payment thereof. The truth is that France being, for the reasons stated in my introductory [illegible], the creditor of all commercial nations, paid Germany in bills [illegible] against foreign [illegible] by the French [illegible], in other words, Germany was paid in French merchandise, the imports of [illegible] of exports from Jan. 1, 1870, to Dec. [illegible], having been, according to the Bavarian [illegible], $1,1[illegible]. Many of the earliest of these bills were drawn against German merchants and bankers, and served to transfer money which had been [illegible] in Germany to the imperial treasury, and thus withdrew it from commercial use. Thus the industrial and financial sagacity of the French Government enabled France to revenge herself upon Germany by the methods with which it [illegible] [illegible] the fine imposed upon her.

AN INSTRUCTIVE STUDY.

The legal and actual condition of the Bank of France at this time furnishes an instructive study for those of our statesmen who are [illegible] desirous to bring about a resumption of specie payments by so contracting our legal-tender money as to further reduce the price of wages and commodities, which are already below hard pan, or prices which ruled in the days of 1859-60, when our bank paper was supposed to be convertible into specie on demand. The Bank of France is burdened with an excess of gold, in addition to which, it is said, she holds $100,000,000 of silver, which, like gold, is legal tender; yet the law will not permit her to resume specie payments until January 1, 1878. She now does, and has for nearly two years, paid in gold or silver sums of 1,000 francs or less, and, to escape the tax on circulation, would have resumed more than a year ago had the Government consented. As this statement may seem incredible to those who are not familiar with the facts, it may be well to state that the latest returns of specie held, and they are but three weeks old, coming down to Aug. 30, show that the Bank of England holds $135,146,[illegible], the Bank of Germany $1[illegible],845,000, the Bank of France $442,483,000. Thus it appears that, allowing $100,000,000 of the bullion in the Bank of France to consist of silver, and assuming, what is very far from the fact, that none of the bullion in the Banks of England and Germany is silver, it is shown that the Bank of France has, by the aid of irredeemable paper by which the industries of France were kept active, accumulated nearly $100,000,000 of gold more than the united stock of the banks of England and Germany.

In view of these facts may not the stricken people of the United States wisely order a halt in the work of contraction, and, following the example of France, demand the repeal of the Resumption act, the remonetization of silver, and the maintenance of the existing volume of our legal-tender paper money, which measures will enable them to go to work at honest wages and to earn the gold and silver with which, in due time, we can if desirable resume specie payments? Yours very truly,

WILLIAM D. KELLEY.

"Dad's Financiering."

A farmer's wagon, in which were seated a family of eight, yesterday drove up to a house on Beaubien street, and, leaving his team at the curbstone, the farmer knocked at the door, drummed on the windows, and seemed determined to get in at every hazard. When all efforts had failed, he returned to the wagon, hitched his horses, and the family sat down on the grass to wait. A lad who had watched the performance passed around the corner and suddenly discovered the boy whose parents lived in the house.

"Here—you—there's a whole family trying to get into your house!" he shouted.

"Hush—shut up!" whispered the other.

"But they are visitors," continued the other.

"Don't I know all about it?" growled the hiding boy; "didn't mam and I see 'em drive up, and didn't we scoot out of the back door as the feller came through the gate? I'm here and mam's over in that house, and we feel like some one ought to boot dad all over town!"

"Why? What did your father do?"

"What did he do? Why, he was out in the country buying poultry and rags, and he stopped at a farm-house, made 'em believe he was a distant relashun, and got his dinner for nothing. He came home and told it as a big joke, and he grinned around for a week, but now I want to see him when he comes up to dinner and finds them 'relashuns' squatted around the gate! Do they show any signs of leaving?"

"Nary sign," replied the other as he climbed the fence.

"Well, let 'em stick. Mam won't come home, I'll be gone, and if this turns out a Black Friday for dad it'll serve him right. Let's get where we can see his knees wobble as he turns the corner and sees his distant relashuns covering half an acre of ground!"—Detroit Free Press.

Letter-Writing Statistics.

A good idea of the relative intelligence possessed by the different cities of the country, as well as of the amount of business they transact, may be obtained from the following figures from the Postoffice Department:

	Population.	No. letters sent in four weeks.
New York	942,292	4,277,124
Philadelphia	694,022	2,263,618
Brooklyn	396,099	449,827
St. Louis	310,864	186,132
Chicago	298,979	2,187,032
Baltimore	260,354	903,109
Boston	250,526	1,920,197
Cincinnati	216,239	1,148,906
San Francisco	149,473	517,737
New Orleans	191,418	306,726
Buffalo	117,714	268,209
Washington	109,199	197,519
Newark	105,059	146,136
Louisville	100,753	334,167
Cleveland	92,829	297,267
Pittsburgh	86,076	235,718
Jersey City	82,546	170,643
Detroit	79,577	313,570
Milwaukee	71,440	266,769
Albany	69,422	244,157
Providence	68,904	294,193
Rochester	62,386	182,463
Allegheny	53,180	54,790
Richmond	51,038	151,874
New Haven	50,340	116,355

Judicial Dignity in Kentucky.

Last week 'Squire John Cahill held a term of his court at Knoxville. It is said that Cahill's rulings are equal, if not more severe, than those of the famous Judge McManama. Preparatory to opening his court the 'Squire relieved himself of the following: "Gentlemen, you are not in court yet, but you soon will be, and I want it understood that you must respect the court. If you don't do it, I'll be d—d if I don't make you do it."—Falmouth (Ky.) Independent.

A FARMER out West was recently robbed of a bag containing a large sum of money in silver dollars. It is unnecessary to state that the farmer is now one of the warmest advocates for the restoration of the silver dollar.

THE GREAT FRAUD.

Extract from a Recent Speech by Hon. Henry B. Payne, of Ohio.

The claim of Tilden's counsel to go behind the certificates of the Governor and the Returning Board did not necessitate going behind the returns, or entering upon an indiscriminate and illimitable scrutiny of the polls. It demanded to go to the returns and ascertain whether those canvassing officers had honestly discharged their duties under the law. Several days were consumed by counsel and by members of the commission in abstruse and subtle technicalities arising out of the law of de facto, de jure, quo warranto, quasi judicial, and all other devices to cover up illegality and fraud and shut out the truth.

Disgusted with this special pleading I ventured to remind the commission that what the public expected and demanded was the ascertainment of the true vote of Florida; that the evidence was at the door of the court-room. The Secretary of State of Florida was there with the original returns from the county canvassers, and all that we had to do was to have those returns brought into our presence, when, in the space of one hour, with the law in our hands, we could have verified the vote. The majority of the commission knew perfectly well that such verification would have shown a majority for Tilden of ninety-five, and that was precisely the result they did not intend to reach. All of a sudden the majority of the commission, the immortal eight, became converted to the doctrine of State rights, and, under the miserable plea of State sovereignty, sanctioned an official certificate of a palpable falsehood, while such act was in direct conflict with and defiance of the enactment of the State Legislature, the solemn judgment of her highest courts, and the earnest protest of her executive authorities! The Governor, ex-members of the Legislature, members of Congress, and every minor State, county or township office returned and certified under the same spurious canvass, had abandoned their pretensions on the exposure of the fraud. The Supreme Court of the State (Republican), be it said to their credit and honor, had experienced no difficulty in finding a way to unearth fraud and defeat conspirators. It was reserved for a majority of this commission to lift up the carcass of the defunct canvass, which in its native State had failed to impart title to the most insignificant office, and, by investing it in the holy garments of a certificate signed by the members of a corrupt and dishonest Returning Board, give it power to determine the Presidency of the United States.

In the language of Justice Field, "If this be sound doctrine, it is the only instance in the world where fraud becomes enshrined and sanctified behind a certificate of authority."

Turn now to the case of Louisiana. Trace the outlines of that wicked and infamous conspiracy: The Federal bayonets ordered there by the War Department under the advice of the Attorney General, the State militia, the 1,000 Special Marshals, the colored constables, the miserable creatures constituting the Returning Board, the blank affidavits in the Custom House to be filled as ordered by Government officers; then, to cap the climax, the saintly presence of that select band of high moral ideas gentlemen, all Republican office-holders or expectants of office under Hayes, selected by Grant on the recommendation of Chandler to go there and see that there was a fair count, but whose disinterested labors and ardent wishes failed to get even a Democrat appointed on the board, as the law required, or a Democratic clerk to assist in making up the count he required! Yet a canvass was made and a certificate given to the Hayes electors! Tilden's 7,000 majority had disappeared, and the advisory visitors adjourned!

Now, when proof of all this was tendered to the commission, and other and abundant proof to show that the action of this board was utterly void because of the want of jurisdiction over cases not lawfully before them, and that such results had been reached by forgery, bribery and perjury, lo! this dreadful image of a santified certificate rises up before the commission, and the evidence is aliunde and must be rejected.

Thus it was held, eight to seven, not only that the claims of the Tilden electors shall have no hearing, but, what is more alarming and astounding, that the two houses of Congress, acting separately or together, have no power to inquire whether for irregularity, fraud, crime, intimidation and other causes the vote of a State so obtained should not be rejected—a right which has been repeatedly exercised, and twice in the case of this very State of Louisiana. For the exigencies of this election the false and fraudulent certificate is omnipotent.

This shameful decision (excuse me if I use plain language) stands recorded in the journals of Congress, and, if permitted to stand there unchallenged and unreversed, it will form a most perilous precedent. The Presidency is a magnificent prize. Why may not other States be tempted in the future to organize Returning Boards as corrupt and base as those in Florida and Louisiana, and armed with this all-powerful certificate?

Republicans ask, "For what purpose do you agitate this question? Do you propose to dispute or impeach the title of Mr. Hayes?" I answer, "No." He is doing very well for a six-months' convert. He is endeavoring with the best intentions to execute the Democratic platform, as Mr. Tilden would have done. In some respects he is accomplishing results sooner than Tilden could have accomplished them, especially in destroying the Republican party. In the Southern States it has vanished entirely, and we have already a solid South. The thirty-five votes gained by the abolition of slavery, thus far mainly controlled by carpet-baggers and freedmen, have snugly and happily turned over to the Democratic party.

It was a bold step for "President" Hayes to take in casting off Packard and his fellows. It was a terrible reflection on his own title; we propose to assist and co-operate in his efforts of reconciliation and reform, because it is the policy for which we as a party have been contending since the close of the war, and because it is the true policy for the country. But in the meantime we intend to wage a ceaseless war against the decision of the Electoral Commission until its power [illegible] [illegible]. We [illegible] in history [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] encouragement. I refer to Clay's condemnatory resolution of 1833, charging President Jackson with violating the constitution in his official action relating to the removal of the deposits. It was passed by a party vote, and was felt by the party and the country as unjust and wicked. At once Col. Benton set the ball of agitation in motion. The resolution was everywhere denounced—in convention and through the press—and the excitement was kept up until 1837, when, the majority of the Senate having changed to the Democratic side, the resolution to expunge from the record was carried by a vote of 25 to 19; and, the record being brought into the Senate, the Secretary proceeded, in the open Senate, to draw a square of broad black lines around the recorded resolution and to write across its face in strong letters these words: "Expunged by order of the Senate."

In like manner the Democracy, on the stump, through the press, in county, State and national conventions, on every possible occasion, in season and out of season, propose to impeach, challenge and assail the decision of the Electoral Commission as finally adopted by the Congress and entered upon its journals. There shall be no peace to the wicked. We will agitate and agitate until, in the fullness of time—now, thank God, not very far distant, the Senate having changed its majority and the two houses in Democratic accord, assuredly on the second Wednesday of February, 1881, when assembled in joint convention to count in a Democratic President—the journals of '76 shall be produced, and then and there the Clerk shall proceed to draw a square of broad black lines around the accursed record, and to write across its face, in letters strong and indelible, these words: "Expunged by order of the American people." Then, and not till then, will the wound of the constitution be healed—this great wrong be avenged—the purity and sovereignty of the elective franchise vindicated, and the safety and perpetuity of the republic assured.

A GREAT GIVE-AWAY.

The Hundreds of Millions of Acres of Land that Have Been Wasted in Subsidies.

[From the New York Sun.]

The official figures of grants of lands to railroad companies obtained under the forms of law, without reference to acquisitions outside the law are astounding in the aggregate. An empire has been voted away, larger in area than Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, and Indiana, if massed into one vast domain. The following table made up at the Interior Department bya Republican Secretary, tells the story of Republican legislation during the years of its exorbitant power:

State.		Corporation.	Acres.
	1862-70	Union Pacific, Central Pacific, and Kansas Pacific	35,000,000
	1864-70	Northern Pacific	47,000,000
	1866	Atlantic and Pacific	42,000,000
	1871	Southern Pacific	[illegible]
	[illegible]	Central Pacific	[illegible]
	1871	Texas Pacific	13,460,000
	1863-71	Wagon roads in the Northwest	4,000,000
Wisconsin	1866	Breakwater and ship canal	200,000
Michigan	1865	Portage Lake ship canal	200,000
Michigan	1866	Portage Lake ship canal	200,000
Michigan	1866	La Bois ship canal	100,000
Alabama	1871	S. Alabama railroad	676,000
Alabama	1869	Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad	897,920
Louisiana	1871	N. O., Baton Rouge and Vicksburg R. R.	1,600,000
Arkansas	1866	Cairo and Fulton	[illegible]
Arkansas	1866	Memphis and Little Rock	665,520
Arkansas	1866	Little Rock and Fort Smith	458,771
Arkansas	1866	Iron Mountain R. R.	864,000
Missouri	1866	Cairo & Fulton R. R.	192,718
Missouri	1866	St. Louis and Iron Mountain	1,400,000
Iowa	1866	Burlington and Missouri River	101,110
Iowa	1864	Chicago and Rock Island	116,276
Iowa	1864	Cedar Rapids and Missouri River	842,408
Iowa	1864	McGregor and Missouri River	1,536,000
Iowa	1864	Sioux City and St. Paul	256,000
Iowa	1864	Sioux City and Pacific	580,000
Michigan	1866	Jackson, Lansing & Michigan (regrant)	1,052,469
Michigan	1865	Flint and Pere Marquette	586,828
Michigan	1864	Grand Rapids and Indiana	851,200
Michigan	1865	Bay de Noque and Marquette	128,000
Michigan	1865	Marquette and Ontonagon	243,200
Michigan	1864	Chicago and Northwestern	376,680
Michigan	1865	Chicago and Northwestern	188,800
Wisconsin	1864	West Wisconsin	675,000
Wisconsin	1864	St. Croix and Lake Superior	250,000
Wisconsin	1864	Bayfield branch	215,000
Wisconsin	1862	Chicago and Northwestern (regrant)	800,000
Wisconsin	1864	Portage and Superior	750,000
Minnesota	1865	St. Paul and Pacific	500,000
Minnesota	1865	St. Paul and Pacific branch	725,000
Minnesota	1865	Minnesota Central	290,000
Minnesota	1868	Winona and St. Peter	690,000
Minnesota	1864	St. Paul & Sioux City	150,000
Minnesota	1864-66	Lake Superior and Mississippi	800,000
Minnesota	1866	Minnesota Southern	738,000
Minnesota	1866	Hastings and Dakota	550,000
Kansas	1863	Leavenworth, Lawrence & Galveston	800 000
Kansas	1864	Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe	3,000,000
Kansas	1864	Union Pacific, Southern branch	500,000
Kansas	1866	St. Joseph and Denver	1,700,000
Kansas	1866	Fort Scott and Gulf	17,000
Kansas	1866	Southern br'h Union Pacific	1,200,000
California	1866	Placerville and Sacramento	200,000
California	1867	Central Pacific, Oregon branch	1,540,000
California	1866	Stockton and Copperopolis	220,000
Oregon	1870	Oregon and California	1,000,000
Oregon	1866	Oregon Central	1,200,000
		Total acres not reserved for free homes, in round numbers	176,000,000
		Total number acres in land grants, including prev's years, in round numbers	205,000,000

These are facts of record officially reported, and cannot be disputed. But this is not all, by any means. In two years, between July, 1862, and July, 1864, in the midst of flagrant war, Congress voted $65,000,000, by bonds payable in thirty years and bearing 6 per cent. interest in addition to the lands; and, according to the last report of the treasury, the balance of accumulated interest against the roads exceeded $25,000,000. So that the actual advance to six corporations from the treasury was more than $90,000,000 in cash.

ALL SORTS.

SUSAN E. DICKINSON, a sister of Anna, has started on a lecture tour.

THE Boston letter-carriers are to join in a walking tournament.

A SAN FRANCISCO clergyman says that only one-tenth of the men in that city ever go to church.

DOM PEDRO, Emperor of Brazil, is back home in Rio de Janeiro, after an absence of a year and a half.

BEES have been successfully introduced into the [illegible] of thirty-two States and six Territories.

IRON wire conducts electricity 400,000,000 times better than water, and 4,000,000 better than sea water.

MARS and his baby moons will not be again seen, after their present star engagement, until September, 1892.

SECRETARY SCHURZ has become the owner of the great Steinway piano which was on exhibition at the Centennial.

TOKIO, the capital of Japan, with 1,200,000 or so inhabitants, has 737 private schools, with 38,904 pupils in them.

BRIGHT yellow, red and orange,
The leaves come down in hosts;
The trees are Indian princes—
But soon they'll turn to ghosts.

THERE are 559 Presbyterian congregations in Ireland, having 107,262 communicants. The average salary of their pastors is $870.

THE largest steer in the State of Indiana is in the possession of Mr. G Lowe, of Monon township, White county It weighs 3,600 pounds.

MOHAMMED ALI, in 1829, made a canal in Egypt in two months of forty-eight miles long and ninety feet wide, on which he employed at one time 250,000 workmen.

A CONVICT was put into the stocks in Willis, Texas. His cries for mercy, "Take me down," "I am dying," were not heeded, and he died under the torture.

THE Japanese Government has constructed a war balloon, which has been successfully tried at Tokio. It is of thick silk, and was inflated with pure hydrogen.

A Moscow newspaper says that out of the wealthy merchant families of that city not a single member has gone to fight the Turks. They get medical certificates of unfitness for military service, and often have to pay well for them.

WEALTHY Chinamen of San Francisco are suspected of crippling the feet of their little girls, after the fashion in their own country. Ah Moon is under arrest for having removed the bones from his daughter's feet, so that they could be compressed.

A FRENCH miller living near Richmond, Va., states that he used the new process of milling flour in his mill in New York State in 1848. This will nullify the claims of a patent process now used throughout the country on which royalty is claimed.

DR. ALBERT LOWER, of Hot Springs, Ark., and Ed. B. McLellan, of New Orleans, met as strangers on the New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago railroad, but within half an hour they had had a trifling dispute and were fighting a duel. McLellan was severely, but not fatally, shot.

THE National Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. has selected Austin, Tex., for its next annual meeting. Initiation this year diminished 10,000, compared with the previous year. Revenue about $25,000. The number dropped for non-payment of dues increased about 5,000.

THE Hottentots always rejoice in the arrival of a swarm of locusts, eat them in great numbers, and make soup of their eggs. They are brought in wagon loads to Zea in Africa, and are preserved by salting or smoking. The Moors prefer them to pigeons, and a person may eat 200 or 300 without feeling any ill effects. They are usually boiled in water half an hour, after throwing away the head, legs and wings, and then fried with a little vinegar.

A WRITER in Nature describes a singular dream phenomenon which lately occurred to him. He had [illegible] for forty-one hours, and, while writing in his diary, was overcome by slumber. The dream occurring during this sleep was entirely remote from his previous waking thoughts. When roused from the spell of unconsciousness, which had lasted scarcely a minute, he discovered that the act of writing had been uninterrupted, and as much of the dream had been recorded as time had allowed.

THE celebrated nickel mines at Gap, Lancaster county, Pa., worked for several years past exclusively by the United States Government, will soon be abandoned, and operations will not be resumed for some time. The cause of this is reported to be the discovery, in New Caledonia, of very rich deposits of nickel ore, where it is said to crop out above the surface of the ground, so that it can be mined with very little trouble or expense. At the Gap, it is well known, it is brought up from great depths in the earth, and at considerable cost.

AT 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon a man who looked as if he would dare to do right if he had half a chance entered an oyster store on Michigan avenue and courteously inquired: "Do you have oysters here on the one-half shell?" "Yes, sir, we do," was the answer. "Which half of the shell is the oyster on?" was the next inquiry. The oyster man regarded the stranger keenly, and after a minute replied that they were on the left half of the shell. "Ah—um—too bad," muttered the man. "I wanted them on the right half. Good-day, sir. I can't go left-handed oysters no-how."—Detroit Free Press.

A STILL DAY IN AUTUMN.

I love to wander through the woodlands hoary,
In the soft light of an autumnal day,
When summer gathers up her robes of glory,
And like a dream of beauty glides away.
How through each loved, familiar path she lingers,
Serenely smiling through the golden mist,
Tinting the wild grape with her dewy fingers,
Till the cool emerald turns to amethyst.
Warm lights are on the sleepy uplands waning,
Beneath soft clouds along the horizon rolled,
Till the slant sunbeams through their fringes raining,
Bathe all the hills in melancholy gold.
—Sarah Helen Whitman.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea.	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English Breakfast Tea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents.
Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.
Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and Canned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.

Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the lowest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $6.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small fine sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS. OILS. OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TIN M R and is prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on [illegible] notice and in good style.

MEEKS & WYER,

Our energetic

PLASTERS

Will do you a good job at reasonable rates. They always give satisfaction and are prompt in their work. Those having plastering to do should give them a call. nov1 6v

---

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page Illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

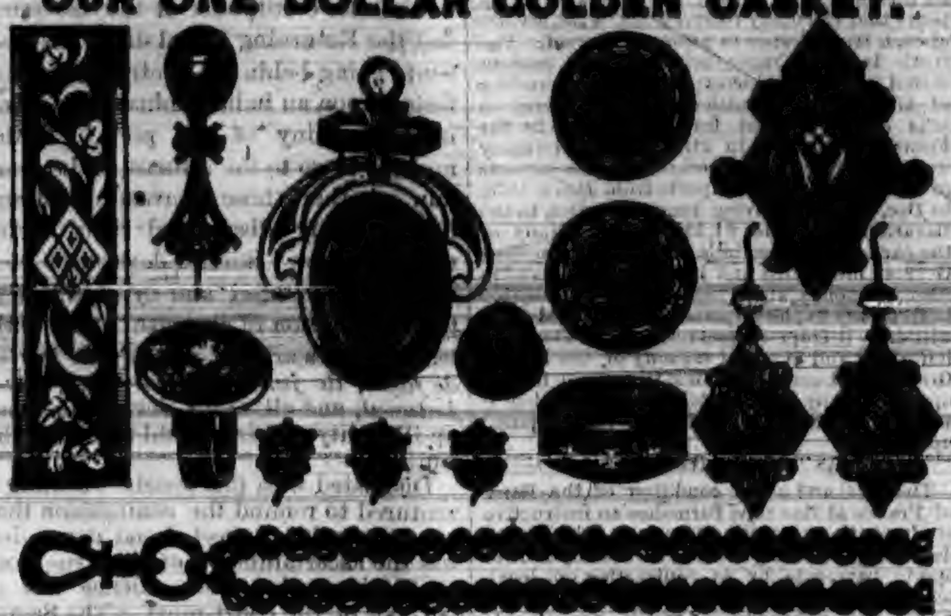
OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.



OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when ot visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

RY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO.

HOW

Is it that the New York Store sells goods so much cheaper than their neighbors is a question often asked. It is because they sell for cash and

DO

Not have to sustain losses from bad debts, besides it inables them to pay cash for goods and get the discounts which make quite an item to

YOU

As consumers. It also enables them to keep all the new and desirable styles and novelties, by being always ready to take hold of them without delay, and it is a well establishdd, fact which all

KNOW

That there is no one concern more careful in selecting good and desirable goods than the New York Store.

IT

Being the object of the New York Store to give entire satisfaction to all their customers.

G. H. FORKNER & CO., Prop's.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 15 a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 20 "
Bryan	1 01 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 35 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 51 "	2 41 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 10 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 17 "	2 54 "	7 47 "
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 03 "	8 03 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 30 "	8 30 "
Goshen	3 23 "	4 15 "	9 25 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 35 p m	9 40 p m	7 10 "
Goshen	8 05 "	10 10 "	7 45 "
Ligonier	8 35 "	10 42 "	8 12 "
Kendallville	8 50 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 46 "	9 16 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. S. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 30	7 12	12 55pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Nig t ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 a.m.	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 48 am	11 25	9 01
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 24—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.		Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "		1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "		3 05	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "		4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 50 pm		5 30	6 35
Reading	1 40 "		7	7 32
Bankers	2 06 "		7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "		7	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "		9	9 20
Detroit	6 20 "		12	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "		4	6 55
Lansing	6 40 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 am			3 35p
Lansing	10 00 "			7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "		11 50p	7 00
Detroit	7 40 "			9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am		5 10p	6 00m
Jonesville	12 50 pm		7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "		7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "		8	7 43
Ar Angola	2 12 "		9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "		10 40	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "		11 31	9 38
Auburn Junction			1 05a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "			10 55
Indianapolis	7 45 "			5 55
St. Louis	8 30 am			7 25
Louisville	9 20 am			10 20

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	6 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	6 30am	10 20	00
Barnesville	9 45	11 48	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 00am	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	9 00
Columbus	3 00	3
Shawnee	4 30	10
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 10	3 20am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	4 25
Mansfield	4 28	5	10 00
Shelby	4 54	7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 38	10 10
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 00	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	12 56	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 38	3 33	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 20pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	3 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 45	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15am	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 00
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 30am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.
Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.
Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express	5 Accom
FORT WAYNE	6 10 am	6 25 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	6 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 36 p m
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 p m
Connersville	10 10 am		8 50 p m
Cincinnati	1 30 pm		11 40 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 55 am
Louisville	10 30 pm	6 30 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2	[illegible] Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis		9 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 20 pm
Cincinnati	7 00 am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		5 30 pm
Connersville	[illegible] am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	[illegible] am		11 44 am
New Castle	[illegible] am		12 35 pm
Muncie	[illegible] pm	10 45 pm	2 50 pm
Hartford	[illegible] pm	11 23 pm
Montpelier	[illegible] pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	[illegible] 40 pm	12 30 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 9, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 4,	LOCAL FT No. 6,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 30	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 00	10 05
Lakeston	9 20	9 24	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 53	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 32
Columbia City	10 25	11 15	1 20
Col en's	10 41	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 53
La Otto	11 20	12 32pm	3 35
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 40	1 07	4 55
Aupurn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 20

Going West.

	No. 1,	No.	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 50 pm	1 05pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00 m.	4 50
Denver	6 07	11 45am	4 00
Chili	6 00		3 20
Roann	5 47		2 40
Lakeston	5 32		2 00
North Manchester	5 25		1 38
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 08
Collamer	5 05		12 30pm
South Whitley	5 02		12 20
Columbia City	4 40		10 25
Collin's	4 21		9 43
Cherubusco	4 10		9 26
La Otto	3 55		8 41
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	7 24	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 5	6 20

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad

---

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S [illegible] all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuse or Infection of either sex. Seminal Weakness [illegible] Emissions, Loss of Memory, [illegible] Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, [illegible] diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the [illegible] School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of [illegible] and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $3 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE [illegible] pages, Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure. 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above disease and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

The Mayer House, at Fort Wayne, is now under the management of Scarbrough & Kepler, two gentlemen who understand their business, and attend to it.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, OCTOBER 25th, 1877. Number 43.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year.........$2. | Six Months.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	16 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	20 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office ove First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

M. D. MOODY. P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

R. A. FRANKS. O. Z. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyances. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS. Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST, CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, [Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Having good teams and reasonab

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

F. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beybl. and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time one-fourth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

ELSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

Have opened for the Spring Trade of 1877, an elegant line of

BRUSSELS & INGRAIN

CARPETS

In all the new and elegant designs; and will give very low figures to

CASH BUYERS.

A full line of

OIL CLOTHS,

MATTINGS.

LACE CURTAIS.

WINDOW SHADES,

STAIR RODS,

RUGS and MATS.

And a splendid stock of

WALL PAPER

AND DECRATIONS.

We solicit inspection from Auburn and vicininy,

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.

26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne.

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. seehislargestock suffer as much with Neuralgia or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with persons who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent clergymen and editors recommend it from a knowledge of its effects.

Rheumatism,	Diphtheria,
Dyspepsia,	Sciatica,
Neuralgia,	Toothache,
Pleurisy,	Sore Throat,
Swollen Joints,	Chilblains,
Headache,	Sprains,
Lame Back,	Burns,
Erysipelas,	Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

Is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, yourself and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the De Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Funk deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WM. H. MADDEN, Adm'r.

October 1, 1877 no41.

The Human Face.

The countenance of every nation defines the characteristics of its people. Every human face indicates a moral training as well as the temperament and ruling traits of owner, just as much as every human form indicates the quality and amount of its physical exercise. This is proven by the variety of human faces every where visible. Those whose lives have been given to physical labor unbrightened by an education of ideas, have always a stolid stupid expression, even while their limbs and muscles are splendidly developed. The more savage the people, the uglier the are in facial development. The very features of their faces are disfigured by violent and ungoverned passions. People whose employments are intellectual, have invaribly a large, clear gaze, a bright outraying expression, as if from an inward light shining through a vace. Where a fine organization and a deep sensibility accompany the practice of intellectual pursuit, often the features take a transparent, luminous look. Persons endowed with powerful sensibility, however plain their features, always have moments of absolute beauty.

How to Encourage a Moustache.

"Don't you think my moustache is getting along very nicely?" asked young Seagrist of his barber, the other day, and just as the barber had finished a make-believe shave of his face.

"Well, I can see that it grows. But I guess it does not attract the attention of the young ladies much. But time will fix it all right," replied the barber.

"I suppose so. But I'd give five dollars to know how how to make it grow faster."

"What! Do you mean that?" asked a wag, who had entered just in time to hear the dialogue.

Yes, I do, and if you can tell me how to make it grow, the five is yours," replied Seagrist.

"Done! I'll tell you how to encourage or force its growth."

"Go ahead."

"Well, you take and rub your upper lip with salt thoroughly, when you go to bed, and when those few sickly hairs come out to drink in the morning, you just tie a knot in them, so they can't get back. I'll take that V, if you please, young fellow," said the wag, holding out his hand.

"Oh, you be crammed!" replied Seagrist, bouncing out of the chair and out of the shop.

Calculating Interest.

There are several rules for calculating interest which are used by many without understanding the principles on which they are founded, these principles being to them a mystery. We consider it very wrong ever to apply any rules for making calculations without being in posession of the key on which these rules are based, and therefore will explain the fundamental principle of several of the rules for calculating interest.

A rate of interest at 5 per cent. is 1-20 of the capital, therefore divide the capital by 20 and you have the interest per year; divide this again by 365, the number of days per year. You may combine these two operations, and divide the capital at once by 365 multiplied by 20, that is, by 7,300, to have the interest per day in in dollars, and you divide the capital by 73, you have the interest at 5 per cent. per day in cents. This you have only to multiply with the number of days to find interest for a given time; but this multiplication may be done first; it will avoid fractions hence the rule: Multiply the capital with the number of days, then divide the product by the constant number 73, and you have the interest at 5 per cent. 2-5, for 8 per cent. 3 5, for 9 per cent. 4-5, for 10 per cent. double it.

This rule is the most correct, but any interest may be calculated thus: Multiply the capital with the number of days, then for 5 per cent. divide by 73, for six per cent by 61, for 7 per cent. by 52, for 8 per cent. by 45, for 9 per cent. by 40-56, for 10 per cent. by 36½.

These latter divisors are obtained by dividing 100 by 6, 7, 8, and 9 respectively, and multiplying the quotents with 365, which serve as units, cutting off two decimals, 61, 52, 45, and 0.67.

If interest is to be calculated per month only and not for any odd number of days, it is very convenient that six per cent. per year is one-half of 1 per cent. per month, or 1 per cent per two months; hence the handy rule that 5 per cent. for 60 days is one per cent. but here the year is counted 12 multiplied by 30 or 360 day only, thus it is not absolutely correct, but near enough to be adapted in most bank.—Manufacturer and Builder.

Boots made to order at the boot upside down.

The Author of "Home Sweet Home."

Tunis is interesting to the American visitor from its association with the memory of John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, sweet Home." Here he spent the last years of his life, and here he died and was buried. He who sang so sweetly of home was a wanderer. An interesting story about him is told by Mr Heap, our representative at Tunis:

"Once when I was in London,' said Payne, "I ran out of money, and was at last driven into the streets from inability to pay for my lodging. It was a dismal, rainy night when I wandered out without a penny in my pocket, and not knowing where to go. A bright light in a window attracted me. The curtains were up, and I could see a parlor filled with a happy company. Several gentlemen were standing near a piano, where a young lady was seated, and singing with an exquisite voice, my song, "Home, Sweet Home." I stood there for some minutes and listened and then went slowly on, feeling sadder than ever before in my whole life.'

"Why didn't you,' said Mr. Heap, "ring the bell and tell them you were the author of that song?"

"Tell them that, indeed! Payne replied, "they would have ordered me away, and possibly called a pliceman to arrest me an an imposter."

The Indian Basket Trick.

Ever since the capture of the strange empire of India by the English, or for more than a hundred years, the civilized people have been hearing of the marvelous feats performed by the native jugglers. Naturally Houdin's announcement of the Indian basket trick made a great sensation. The curtain arose and disclosed a wicker basket of oblong shape standing upon what appeared to be a light table, without any cloth cover upon it. The juggler entered dragging a beautiful youth, dressed as an Indian prince, wearing a robe of white cashmere embroidered with gold, while upon his head waved a peacock's plume held by a diamond star.

"Mercy! mercy!" cried the child.

"No—no mercy. You are an Indian and a prince, and must die," was the savage response.

"I am only a child," cried the innocent boy.

"That will not prevent my killing you."

With piercing shrieks the child broke away and rushed to the side wing, only to be seized there by his exectioner, who, lifting him in his arms, plunged him into the basket, which he closed, strapping down the cover. Then he drew his sword, and having tested its sharpness by striking it in the floor, he thrust it in the basket again and again, while the victim inside gave the most heartrendering cries of pain and agony. Each time the sword was pulled out it was seen to be covered with blood, while the sobs and groans from the inside of the basket grew fainter and fainter, till at length they ceased, and a ghostly silence ensued. During this scene the excitement among the audience was intense. Ladies hid their faces behind their fans; some wept aloud; men shouted hoarsly, "Enough!" The smiling jugler bowed, and proceeded to unstrap the basket, which he turned mouth upward, to the audience, showing it to be entirely empty. In the midst of the applause which followed from the amused and relieved audience the little Indian prince was seen to be seated in a box in the centre of the auditorium, kissing his tinny hand to those about him, as well as to his friend the executioner on the stage.

This trick was performed with the aid of looking-glasses inserted between the table legs—a contrivence now commonly used in pantomimes and other show pieces upon the stage. But it was a new thing then, and the scene was remarkably well played by Houdin and the child. As soon as the the boy got in the basket he opened a trap-door in the bottom of it, which was placed over a corresponding opening in the table. Hidden by the looking glass, he crouched below between the table legs, and shrieked and sobbed until the proper moment came for him to decend through a trap in the stage, and pass around to the in the front of the theater. A spong full of red liquid was placeed in a certain spot inside the basket, and the sword, passing through this, seemed to be dripping with blood. It was imperative that the juggler should not pass in front of the table, else his legs would have been reflected there, and that would havd disclosed the entire secret. Houdin became dissatisfied with this trick, and made many improvements in it, which the jugglers of our day have still further perfected. It is palpable that this is not the way in which Indian jugglers perform the trick in the market-places or other public squares in broad daylight. They have no looking-glass table, no traps through the earth.

Houdin's theory concerning them was that their basket had an opening in it either at its front or at its back, and that, while buckling and strapping down the cover, with the knee lifted up and pressed on the basket as if to tighten the leather strap more securely, the child crept out under the bent knee, and hid beneath the voluminous robes of the juggler. Then, while the sword is piercing the basket, and the child's sobs are most heart-rendering, the crowd gathers in a compact mass about it, and into the crowd the child easily escapes without being seen, and runs away. At the proper moment he comes running back as if from a distance, and of course the astonishment of the crowd is unparalleled, for the basket has in the mean time been opened and shown to be empty.—Olive Logan, in Harper's Magazine for November.

Yachting in December.

The most notable exploit ever performed by yachtsmen of any country was the great ocean regatta, sailed in the year 1866, from New York to Cowes, and participated in by the three yachts Henrietta, Fleetwing, and Vesta, resulting in the victory of the first-named yacht.

The season purposely selected was the most boisterous of the whole year, when the longest and most voilent gales prevailed; but no thought of danger seemingly entered into the calculations of those plucky yachtsmen as on a magnificient afternoon in December they cast off from their moorings, and, like three great white-winged birds, took flight for the other shore.

It was a hazardous undertaking, that of driving at their highest rate of speed three such seemingly delicately constructed craft across three thousand miles of stormy ocean in midwinter, on a voyage on which so many great staunch ships had before set forth never to return; but these men were surfeited with the easy victories of smooth water, and, as if to prove their manhood, they chose the most perilous phase of sport that men could well devise.

The affair is of too recent occurrence to warrent any detailed account. suffice it to say' however, that the weather encountered was such as to call forth the very highest qualities of seamanship and the exercise of the greatest amount of pluck, for there were moments during the voyage when those daring men held their lives upon a most uncertain tenure.

It is related that on one cold, tempest night, when a terrific sea was running, and they were driving the Henrietta into it with all the sail she could possibly lug, and even the crew stood aghast with blanched faces at the temerity of their commander, the carpenter burst unceremoniously into the cabin, and shouted, "We must heave her to, Mr. B——, for her forward seams are opening, and the water is rushing in!" Such an announcement from one who, by virtue of his position on board, would naturally be looked upon as an expert, must have sounded very like a death-knell. Nor does it require very vivid imaginings to conjure up the pale though determined faces of those who, for the moment at least, must have felt that their hour had come. It fortunately turned out, however, upon a critical examination being made, that the carpenter's fears had exaggerated the danger, and that the little Henrietta was as staunch as ever. Then the apprehended tragedy merged into a farce, and we can easily conceive the look of mingled relief and disgust depicted upon the countenance of the unhappy carpenter when he found that the "opened seams" were in the skin instead of the hull of the vessel. Poor "Chips!" he must have passed a mauvais quart d'heur under the running fire of chaff from those rollicking yachtsmen.—T. Robinson Warren, in Harper's Magazine for November.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once,

H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

October 11.—6m no41.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of James I. Patterson, Jr., deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

GILBERT I. PATTERSON, Adm'r.

Sept. 29, 1877—no41

NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives due notice that he will not be responsible for debts contracted by any one in his name, no matter who they may be.

HENRY MAXWELL.

Oct. 4th, 1877. 3w.

WIDDER GREENE'S LAST WORDS.

"I'm goin' to die," says the Widow Greene,
"I'm goin' to quit this airthly scene;
It ain't no place for me to stay,
In such a world as this is to-day.
Sich works and ways is too much for me;
Nobody can't let nobody be;
The girls are flounced from top to toe,
And dress is the hull that they care to know,
And their pull-backs draw their gowns so tight
As to make them look like a perfect fright!
And their bunnets—good gracious!—they flaunt
and flare,
Very much like a butter-plate top of their hair,
The men, too, is mad on bonds and stocks,
Swearin' and drinkin' and pickin' locks,
And gettin' up strikes, and doin' their best
To prove they are all by the devil possessed!
Why, I'm afraid I'll strike or be hanged myself,
If I ain't soon laid on my final shelf!
There ain't a cretur but knows to-day
I never was lunatick anyway;
But since all the crazy folk go free,
I'm dreadful afeared they'll hang up me!
There's another thing that is pesky hard;
[illegible]
To say 'How be you?' or ask for a pin,
But all the papers [illegible]
'We're pleased to say that the Widder Greene
Took dinner, a Tuesday, with Mrs. Keene.'
Or, 'Our worthy friend, Mrs. Greene, has gone
Up to Barkhampstead to see her son.'
Or some pesky 'reporter' will 'interview,'
And will pump out all that I ever knew,
And the next day's paper that comes to hand
Will print and send it all over the land!
Great Jerusalem! can't I stir
Without a-raisin' some feller's fur?
Why, there ain't no privacy, so to say,
No more than if this was the judgment day!
And as for our meetin's—I almost swear
Whenever I put my head in there!
Why even 'Old Hundred' is spiled and done
Like everything else now under the sun.
It used to sound so solemn and slow,
'Praise to the Lord from all below;'
But now it goes like a galloping steer,
High diddle diddle! now there, now here!
No more respect to the Lord above
Than if He was one of 'em hand and glove
With all the boobies He ever made,
And joined in the jigs their fiddles played,
And the preaching, too—but here I'm dumb!
But I tell you what, I'd like it some,
If good old parson, Nathan Strong,
Out of his grave would come along,
And give us a sight of the awful wrath
That's gathering over the sinner's path;
The endless flame, the undying worm—
I tell you I guess 'twould make folks squirm!
For it 'taint all love, so sickish and sweet,
That makes this world or the other complete.
But law! I'm old, I'd better be dead,
When the world's all turnin' over my head;
Sperits a-talkin' like silly fools;
Bibles kicked out o' the deestrict schools;
Children that never have learned to obey
Pushing the old folks out of the way;
Defalcations on every side,
Ruin from luxury, wasting and pride;
Women all living to make a dash,
Stocks all goin' to tarnal smash;
Tramps a-roaming the country through,
Half the people with nothin' to do;
Crazy creaturs a-murderin' round;
It's time for me to be under ground!
So farewell all; this airthly scene
No more'll be pestered by Widder Greene!"
—Anonymous.

WHAT DYING PEOPLE SEE.

It is somewhat singular that the natural longing to penetrate the great secret of mortality should not have suggested to some of the inquirers into so-called "spiritual" manifestations that before attempting to obtain communication with the dead, through such poor methods as raps and alphabets, they might more properly, and with better hope of gaining a glimpse through the "gates ajar," watch closely the dying, and study the psychological phenomena which accompany the act of dissolution. Thus, it might be possible to ascertain, by comparison of numerous instances, whether among those phenomena are any which seem to indicate that the mind, soul or self of the expiring person is not undergoing a process of extinction, but exhibiting such tokens as might be anticipated were it entering upon a new phase of existence, and coming into possession of fresh faculties. It is at least conceivable that some such indications might be observed, were we to look for them with care and caution, under the rare conditions wherein they could at any time be afforded; and, if this should prove to be the fact, it is needless to dilate on the intense interest of even such semblance of confirmation of our hopes.

In a majority of deaths the accompanying physical conditions hide from the spectators whatever psychological phenomena may be taking place. The sun of our poor human life mostly sets behind an impenetrable cloud. Of all forms of death, the commonest seems to be the awful "agony" with its unconscious groans and stertorous breath. The dying person seems to sink lower and lower, as if beneath the waters of an unfathomable sea; a word, a motion, a glance, rising up at longer and longer intervals, till the last slow and distant sighs terminate the woful strife, and the victory of Death is complete. When this is the mode of dissolution, it is of course hopeless to look for any indication of the fate of the soul at its exodus; and the same holds good as regards death in extreme old age, or after exhausting disease, when the sufferer very literally "falls asleep." Again, there are deaths which are accompanied by great pain or delirium, or which are caused by sudden accidents, altogether hiding from our observation the mental condition of the patient. Only in a small residue of cases the bodily conditions are such as to cause neither interference with, nor yet concealment of, the process of calm and peaceful dissolution, in the full light of mental sanity, and it is to these only we can look with any hope of fruitful observation. We ask whether, in such cases, instances have ever been known of occurrences having any significance, taken in connection with the solemn event wherewith they are associated? Does our forerunner on the hilltop show by his looks and actions—since he is too far off to speak to us—that he beholds, from his "Peak in Darien," an ocean yet hidden from our view?

I should hesitate altogether to affirm positively that such is the case; but, after many inquiries on the subject, I am still more disinclined to assert the contrary. The truth seems to be that, in almost every family or circle, questions will elicit recollections of death-bed scenes, wherein, with singular recurrence, appears one very significant incident, namely, that the dying person, precisely at the moment of death, and when the power of speech was lost, or nearly lost, seemed to see something—or rather, to speak more exactly, to become conscious of something present (for actual sight is out of the question) of a very striking kind, which remained invisible to and unperceived by the assistants. Again and again this incident is repeated. It is described almost in the same words by persons who have never heard of similar occurrences, and who suppose their own experiences to be unique, and have raised no theory upon it, but merely considered it to be "strange," "curious," "affecting," and nothing more. It is invariably explained that the dying person is lying quietly, when suddenly, in the very act of expiring, he looks up—sometimes starts up in bed—and gazes on (what appears to be) vacancy, with an expression of astonishment, sometimes developing instantly into joy, and sometimes cut short in the first emotion of solemn wonder and awe. If the dying man were to see some utterly unexpected but instantly-recognized vision, causing him a great surprise, or rapturous joy, his face could not better reveal the fact. The very instant this phenomenon occurs death is actually taking place, and the eyes glaze even while they gaze at the unknown sight. If a breath or two still heave the chest, it is obvious that the soul has already departed.

A few narrations of such observations, chosen from a great number which have been communicated to the writer, will serve to show more exactly the point which it is desired should be established by a larger concurrence of testimony. The following are given in the words of a friend on whose accuracy every reliance may be placed:

"I have heard numberless instances of dying persons showing unmistakably by their gestures, and sometimes by their words, that they saw in the moment of dissolution what could not be seen by those around them. On three occasions facts of this nature came distinctly within my own knowledge, and I will, therefore, limit myself to a detail of that which I can give on my own authority, although the circumstances were not so striking as many others known to me, which I believe to be equally true.

"I was watching one night beside a poor man dying of consumption; his case was hopeless, but there was no appearance of the end being very near; he was in full possession of his senses, able to talk with a strong voice, and not in the least drowsy. He had slept through the day, and was as wakeful that I had I been conversing with him on ordinary subjects to while away the long hours. Suddenly, while we were thus talking quietly together, he became silent, and fixed his eyes on one particular spot in the room, which was entirely vacant, even of furniture. At the same time a look of the greatest delight changed the whole expression of his face, and, after a moment of what seemed to be intense scrutiny, he said to me in a joyous tone, 'There is Jim.' Jim was a little son whom he had lost the year before, and whom I had known well; but the dying man had a son still living, named John, for whom he had sent, and I concluded it was of John he was speaking, and that he thought he heard him arriving, so I answered:

"'No, John has not been able to come.'

"The man turned to me impatiently and said, 'I do not mean John. I know he is not here, it is Jim, my little lame Jim; surely you remember him?'

"'Yes,' I said, 'I remember dear little Jim, who died last year, quite well.'

"'Don't you see him then? There he is,' said the man, pointing to the vacant place on which his eyes were fixed, and, when I did not answer, he repeated almost fretfully, 'Don't you see him standing there?'

"I answered that I could not see him, though I felt perfectly convinced that something was visible to the sick man which I could not perceive. When I gave him this answer he seemed quite amazed, and turned round to look at me with a glance of indignation. As his eyes met mine, I saw that a film seemed to pass over them, the light of intelligence died away, he gave a gentle sigh and expired. He did not live five minutes from the time he first said: 'There is Jim,' although there had been no sign of approaching death previous to that moment.

"The second case was that of a boy about 14 years of age, dying also of decline. He was a refined, highly-educated child, who throughout his long illness had looked forward with much hope and longing to the unknown life to which he believed he was hastening. On a bright summer morning it became evident that he had reached his last hour. He lost the power of speech, chiefly from weakness, but he was perfectly sensible, and made his wishes known to us by his intelligent looks. He was sitting propped up in bed, and had been looking rather sadly at the bright sunshine playing on the trees outside his open window for some time. He had turned away from this scene, however, and was facing the end of the room, where there was nothing whatever but a closed door, when all in a moment the whole expression of his face changed to one of the most wondering rapture, which made his half-closed eyes open to their utmost extent, while his lips parted with a smile of ecstasy; it was impossible to doubt that some glorious sight was visible to him, and from the movement of his eyes it was plain that it was not one, but many objects on which he gazed, for his look passed from end to end of what seemed to be the vacant wall before him, going backward and forward with ever-increasing delight manifested in his whole aspect. His mother then asked him if what he saw was some wonderful sight beyond the confines of the world, to give her a token that it was so by pressing her hand. He at once took her hand and pressed it meaningly, giving thereby an intelligent affirmative to her question, though unable to speak. As he did so a change passed over his face, his eyes closed, and in a few minutes he was gone.

"The third case, which was that of my own brother, was very similar to this last. He was an elderly man, dying of a painful disease, but one which never for a moment obscured his faculties. Although it was known to be incurable, he had been told that he might live some months, when somewhat suddenly the summons came on a dark January morning. It had been seen in the course of the night that he was sinking, but for some time he had been perfectly silent and motionless, apparently in a state of stupor; his eyes closed, and his breathing scarcely perceptible. As the tardy dawn of the winter morning revealed the rigid features of the countenance from which life and intelligence seemed to have quite departed, those who watched him felt uncertain whether he still lived; but suddenly, while they bent over him to ascertain the truth, he opened his eyes wide, and gazed eagerly upward with such an unmistakable expression of wonder and joy that a thrill of awe passed through all who witnessed it. His whole face grew bright with a strange gladness, while the eloquent eyes seemed literally to shine as if reflecting some light on which they gazed; he remained in this attitude of delighted surprise for some minutes, then in a moment the eyelids fell, the head dropped forward, and with one long breath the spirit departed."

A different kind of case to those above narrated by my friend was that of a young girl known to me, who had passed through the miserable experiences of a sinful life at Aldershot, and then had tried to drown herself in the river Avon, near Clifton. She was in some way saved from suicide, and placed for a time in a penitentiary, but her health was found to be hopelessly ruined, and she was sent to die in the quaint old workhouse of St. Peter's at Bristol. For many months she lay in the infirmary literally perishing piecemeal of disease, but exhibiting patience and sweetness of disposition quite wonderful to witness. She was only 19,—a poor young creature! when all her little round of error and pain had been run; and her innocent, pretty face might have been that of a child.

She never used any sort of cant (so common among women who have been in refuges), but had apparently somehow got hold of a very living and real religion, which gave her comfort and courage and inspired her with the beautiful spirit with which she bore her frightful sufferings. On the wall opposite her bed there hung by chance a print of the lost sheep, and Mary S——, looking at it one day, said to me, "That is just what I was, and what happened to me; but I am being brought safe home now." For a long time before her death her weakness was such that she was quite incapable of lifting herself up in bed, or of supporting herself when lifted, and she, of course, continued to lie with her head on the pillow while life gradually and painfully ebbed away, and she seemingly became nearly unconscious. In this state she had been left one Saturday night by the nurse in attendance. Early at dawn next morning—an Easter morning, as it chanced—the poor old women who occupied the other beds in the ward were startled from their sleep by seeing Mary S—— suddenly spring up to a sitting posture in her bed, with her arms outstretched, and her face raised, as if in a perfect rapture of joy and welcome. The next instant the body of the poor girl fell back a corpse. Her death had taken place in that moment of mysterious ecstasy.

A totally different case again was that of a man of high intellectual distinction, well known in the world of letters. When dying peacefully, as became the close of a profoundly religious life, and having already lost the power of speech, he was observed suddenly to look up as if at some spectacle invisible to those around with an expression of solemn surprise and awe, very characteristic, it is said, of his habitual frame of mind. At that instant, and before the look had time to falter or change, the shadow of death passed over his face, and the end had come.

In yet another case I am told that at the last moment so bright a light seemed suddenly to shine from the face of a dying man that the clergyman and another friend who were attending him actually turned simultaneously to the window to seek for the cause.

Another incident of a very striking character occurred in a well-known family, one of whose members narrated it to me. A dying lady, exhibiting the aspect of joyful surprise to which we have so often referred, spoke of seeing, one after another, three of her brothers who had long been dead, and then apparently recognized, last of all, a fourth brother, who was believed by the bystanders to be still living in India. The coupling of his name with that of his dead brothers excited such awe and horror in the mind of the person present that she rushed half senseless from the room. In due course of time letters were received announcing the death of the brother in India, which had occurred some time before his dying sister seemed to recognize him.

Again, in another case a gentleman who had lost his only son some years previously, and who had never recovered from the afflicting event, exclaimed suddenly when dying, with the air of a man making a most rapturous discovery, "I see him! I see him!"

Not to multiply such anecdotes too far, anecdotes which certainly possess a uniformity pointing to similar cause, whether that cause be physiological or psychical, I will now conclude with one authenticated by a near relative of the persons concerned. A late well-known Bishop was commonly called by his sisters "Charlie," and his eldest sister bore the pet name of "Liz." They had both been dead some years when their younger sister, Mrs. W——, also died, but before her death appeared to behold them both. While lying still and apparently unconscious, she suddenly opened her eyes and looked earnestly across the room, as if she saw some one entering. Presently, as if overjoyed, she exclaimed, "O Charlie!" and then, after a moment's pause, with a new start of delight, as if he had been joined by some one else, she went on, "And Liz!" and then added, "How beautiful you are!" After seeming to gaze at the two beloved forms for a few minutes, she fell back on her pillow and died.

Instances like these might, I believe, be almost indefinitely multiplied were attention directed to them, and the experience of survivors more generally communicated and recorded. Reviewing them, the question seems to press upon us, why should we not thus catch a glimpse of the spiritual world through the half-open portals wherein our dying brother is passing? If the soul of man exists at all after the extinction of the life of the body, what is more probable than that it should begin at the very instant when the veil of the flesh is dropping off to exercise those spiritual powers of perception which we must suppose it to possess (else were its whole after-life a blank), and to become conscious of other things than those of which our dim senses can take cognizance? If it be not destined to an eternity of solitude (an absurd hypothesis), its future companions may well be recognized at once, even as it goes forth to meet them. It seems, indeed, almost a thing to be expected, that some of them should be ready waiting to welcome it on the threshold. Is there not, then, a little margin for hope—if not for any confident belief—that our anticipations will be verified; nay, that the actual experience of not a few has verified them? May it not be that when that hour comes for each of us that we have been wont to dread as one of parting and sorrow—

The last long farewell on the shore
Of this wide world,

ere we "put off into the unknown dark," we may find that we only leave, for a little time, the friends of earth to go straight to the embrace of those who have long been waiting for us to make perfect for them the noble life beyond the grave? May it not be that our very first dawning sense of that enfranchised existence will be the rapture of reunion with the beloved ones whom we have mourned as lost, but who have been standing near, waiting longingly for our recognition, as a mother may watch beside the bed of a fever-stricken child till reason reillumine its eyes, and with outstretched arms it cries "Mother!"

There are some, alas! to whom it must be very dreadful to think of thus meeting, on the threshold of eternity, the wronged, the deceived, the forsaken. But for most of us, God be thanked, no dream of celestial glory has half the ecstasy of the thought that in dying we may meet—and meet at once, before we have had a moment to feel the awful loneliness of death—the parent, wife, husband, child, friend of our life, soul of our soul, whom we consigned long ago with breaking hearts to the grave. Their "beautiful" forms (as that dying lady beheld her brother and sister) entering our chamber, standing beside our bed of death, and come to rejoin us forever—what words can tell the happiness of such a vision? It may be awaiting us all. There is even, perhaps, a certain probability that it is actually the destiny of the human soul, and that the affections, which alone of earthly things can survive dissolution, will, like magnets, draw the beloved and loving spirits of the dead around the dying. I see no reason why we should not indulge so ineffably blessed a hope. But, even if it be a dream, the faith remains, built on no such evanescent and shadowy foundation, that there is one friend—and He the best—in whose arms we shall surely fall asleep, and to whose love we may trust for the reunion, sooner or later, of the severed links of sacred human affection.—Frances Power Cobbe, in Contemporary Review.

GENIUS DIRT-CHEAP.

A Valuable Collection of Patent Rights Sold at Auction in New York.

[From the New York Times.]

Another batch of inventions was sold by auction yesterday at the rooms of George W. Keeler, Liberty and Nassau streets. There was a good attendance, but only a few rights changed hands, the value placed on them by the inventors being in most instances greater than that accorded them by the public. Among the curious and useful articles offered were the following: A sort of double pocket divided by a deceptive flap for the purpose of deluding pickpockets; an automatic, self-regulating windmill, warranted to keep out of the way of violent storms; a treadmill arrangement for sifting the dirt from potatoes while harvesting; a stair-carpet fastener that prevents the carpet from wear; an improved clothes-line with a traveler-rope attachment; an improved card-and game-table, with a little dial in each flap whereby each player is enabled to keep score for himself; a device to turn car awnings into "advertising mediums;" an improved egg-holder; an improved dish-washer; a lounge capable of being "converted into several articles of household use;" an improved slop-pail; an "improvement" which consists of attaching rollers to the chimes of barrels in order to facilitate their removal from place to place; a portable wash-stand, with a tank and pump for filling the bowl; an atmospheric churn-dasher, warranted to churn in less than three minutes; a new device for fastening shoes by drawing an invisible string; an improvement in weather strips, in connection with which the owner offers "$100 for every drop of water that can be forced through by a steam fire engine;" a tobacco pipe in two parts, hinged together at the bottom for convenience in cleaning; a kerosene-lamp trimmer; a new method of steering vessels; an improved spoon; a machine to operate switches and signals from the locomotive or cars while in motion; an instrument for licking postage-stamps and the gummed surface of envelopes or labels, and for cleaning and drying pens; a machine for putting out the car stove in case of a railroad accident, and an improved air-tight "individual vault or grave." None of these, however, aroused much enthusiasm, except the potato-harvester and the dish-washer, which brought $200 and $35 respectively. An improved trotting sulky (Canada patent) went off at $100. A new combination lock sold for $650. One of several automatic car-couplings offered brought $150. A cotton and corn planter, warranted to plant from eight to ten acres per day and do the work well, was sacrificed at $50. An apparatus for removing snow from railroads and a detective clock for steam boilers were passed. A new stencil-cutting machine sold for $60, and a fire-escape, consisting of a drum to be mounted on a roof with a chain ladder which unwinds, for $1,000. A portable elevator that "can be placed on a cellar stairway or other support and easily operated by one or two persons" went for $350. An improvement in lard presses to provide for readily moving the pressed cake of meat scraps from which the oil or lard has been extracted, while in a cylinder and under a screw pressure, sold for $700. A machine for sharpening slate-pencils brought $1,000. A combined filter and refrigerator sold for $200. A machine for boring fence-posts reached $1,425. A bolt for locking both sashes by a single operation went at $425. The New York State right to a self-locking and extension ladder netted $1,000. A saw with detachable teeth realized but $100. An improved overcoat pocket for the protection of a lady's hand while walking with a gentleman, brought $350; the inventor reserved the State of Pennsylvania. An improvement in balancing piano keys sold for $700. An "adjuster," for opening blinds when the window is closed without raising the sashes, went for the paltry sum of $90.

A Curious Sort of a Man.

In Fritztown, Pa., lives a man who is insensible to the pain which usually attends the sting of bees, wasps and hornets. He can take the honey from the beehives without either stupefying or destroying the bees. He destroys all the hornets' and yellow-jackets' nests that he can find, and, although frequently covered by the insects which have alighted upon him in swarms, he has never been known to flinch. On getting hold of a hornets' nest, he empties it by shaking the hornets out of the aperture.

Wood Fires.

We grant, as has recently been said, that an open fire is "incompetent to heat our houses;" but we believe it can be made such an important factor in the culture of children that we have no hesitation in urging others to try it. In houses that are wholly warmed by furnace, the family circle is likely to become impaired. The children take their friends to their own rooms, and the mother rarely becomes intimately acquainted with their associates. Around a wood fire, all naturally come together; what interests one comes in a little while to interest all, and the children learn to be open and free. The fire warms the heart as well as the body. A wood fire lit early in the evening, when the children are home from school is all that is necessary. When the boys get used to coming in from the cold and snow to find a cheerful hickory fire blazing on the parlor hearth, with the room not too nicely furnished for them to use, they will not want to leave it for any outside attractions. The moment the familiar whistle is heard in the evening, let some kindling wood be thrust under the logs. The pleasant sensation produced by a blazing fire, if repeated every day, winter after winter, amounts to a great deal of happiness in a boy's life-time, and will never be forgotten. It is difficult to over-estimate the value of this central gathering-place for the whole family. Wood fires are not dusty, and when used not for heat, but for cheer, and only in the evening, are not costly. The moderate heat of a furnace or stove is sufficient for the parlor by day, and but little wood in the fire-place is necessary to make it comfortable at night. Indeed, the register often has to be turned off, and the doors have to be closed to keep the heat of the house from rushing into the parlor. The wood fire ventilates, and thus, not only are the feet kept warm, but the head remains cool. Half a cord of hickory wood lasts us about a month, and we use it on Sundays after church, and on other days if we have friends to dinner, or the children are to be at home. In spring and fall an open fireplace is particularly useful. Everyone knows how the furnace is disliked in moderate weather, but by using at such times the wood alone the desired heat is obtained and far more than the cost saved in the coal that would be burned to waste. If the fire-place is painted black there will be a good background for the red flame, and the brick-work will not be made to look shabby by the smoke. Let it be a good hearty, blazing fire or none at all. Better to save in fine furniture or in rich desserts than put on logs sparingly. Brass andirons are the best, for they never wear out, and the labor in keeping them bright is much exaggerated. The wood should be sawed in but two pieces, so as to reach clear over both andirons. A lot of corn-cobs will make a hot, quick blaze, just before the children go up to bed, and will make their slumber all the sweeter.—Scribner for October.

The Czar in the Field.

The Emperor, who is, in ordinary times, one of the hardest-working men in his empire, leads a very active life. He rises early, and devotes the morning to current affairs. Toward mid-day the suite, composed of about fifty officers, assemble in a large tent in front of the imperial residence. Exactly at 12 o'clock his Majesty enters, salutes all present, and sits down to table. First is served the Zakuska—that is to say, caviare, Swiss cheese, sardines, raw herrings, and three kinds of vodka. Soup and roast are then served, and cafe noir or tea completes the repast. After breakfast the Emperor again occupies himself with current affairs or drives out. At 6 o'clock dinner is served. It consists of three or four courses, and lasts about an hour. About 9 o'clock there is tea, and about 10 or half past 10 his Majesty retires for the night.

On fete days the ordinary programme is somewhat modified. There is more music than usual; every one is in full uniform, and the Emperor, with his numerous suite, in which the bright uniforms of the Austrian officers are conspicuous, rides out and exchanges congratulations with part of the troops. For civilians the life at headquarters is very monotonous.—London Times.

A Graphic Description.

In one of the Justice's courts the other day a witness in an assault-and-battery case gave his version of the affair as follows:

"Well, sir, the two stood facing each other, one kinder growled and the other kinder chuckled. Then they made up faces at each other. Then one dast and the other dasn't. Then they kinder walked around. Then they poked up their hats and spit on their hands."

"And then?" asked the lawyer, as the witness paused for breath.

"And then they glared at each other. Then they made up faces again. Then somebody hollered for 'em to go in and kick each other all to death. Then they kinder got ready, pulled their hats down, and they rushed together like two big ferry-boats, reared up on end, came down with an awful crash, and the next thing I saw was this 'ere man's coat all ripped up the back, and that 'ere man's nose all chawed zig-zag, and that's all I know about the murder."—Detroit Free Press.

Judge Hill Dying on the Bench.

At about 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, while the Superior Court was in session in Knoxville, Crawford county, Judge Barnard Hill, the presiding Judge, died on the bench. A criminal that had just been concluded, and the jury had returned a verdict of guilty. They neglected to give the value of the goods stolen, and Judge Hill told them that they had best retire and supply this part of the verdict. They went and out, soon afterward an attorney looked up and saw Judge Hill's head thrown back on his chair, a deathly pallor overspreading his countenance. Friends rushed to him, but, with an easy gasp, his spirit passed away, and he sat dead on the bench.—Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

Men who have made their mark—Those who can't write.

A FAREWELL OF THE PERIOD.

BY EMMA M. CASS.

Farewell, my dearest—nevermore,
Hand clasped in hand, shall we together
Roam o'er the breezy, broad sea-downs,
All in the merry, soft May weather!
But then this thought occurs to me:
'Twill save a trifle in shoe-leather.

Farewell; for fate will have it so,
Oh, fondest heart!—Oh, tenderest, nearest!
The hues of spring have lost their glow—
The leaf—the leaf is at its serest,
I may not wed thee, sweet—just now
Dry goods and things are at their dearest.

Farewell, beloved—thou art free—
A fearful dearth of funds hath done it.
I'll keep thee ever in my heart—
I'll put thee in my choicest sonnet;
These will I, love—thy little cost—
Not so a Paris gown and bonnet!

And now we go divided ways;
[illegible]
I take no more stock in bouquets,
Bon bons, and all that goes with flirtin',
So now I drop love's pretty theme,
And—so to speak—pull down the curtain.
—Baldwin's Monthly.

PITH AND POINT.

An unpaid-for yacht is now politely termed a floating debt.

A mosquito is a customer who tries to get inside the bar and take a nip without paying for it.

A preacher who arrived at the kirk wet through asked an old Scotchwoman what he should do, to which she replied: "Gang into the pulpit as soon as ye can. Ye'll be dry enough there."

The papers relate an anecdote of a beautiful young lady, who had become blind, having recovered her sight after marriage. It is no uncommon thing for people's eyes to be opened by matrimony.

Nobody likes to be nobody; but everybody is pleased to think himself somebody. And everybody is somebody; but when anybody thinks himself everybody he generally thinks everybody else is nobody.

"Sally, what have you done with the cream? These children cannot eat skim milk for breakfast." "Sure, ma'am, it isn't mesilf that would be afther giving the scum to yez. I tuk that and gave it to the cats."

"That Husband of Mine" has been set to music. But that's nothing. Mrs. Bossem says that husband of hers has often been set to pushing the baby coach and paring potatoes and such jobs.—Norristown Herald.

"My son, you look very much like a boy who has been brought up by affectionate parents," said a kindly stranger to a golden-haired child, and the latter, in an excited tone, exclaimed: "Do I? Just look at my back!"

"And isn't there an old gardener somewhere about here too, Mrs. Maloney—Pat Reilly I think his name is?" "Know him is it, me leddy—and isn't he a relation of mine? Shure he wonst wanted to marry me sister Kate!"

"I have often wondered," said a would-be wit to an eminent divine, "why, at a dinner, the goose is always placed before the clergyman." "That was just my case when I saw you placed before me," the divine quietly remarked.

She went the path that death has swept
So oft with scythe historic,
Her ghost took out, as she took in
A quart of paregoric;
But, bless her soul, she proved herself
Possessed of all her senses,
By leaving coin enough to pay
Her funeral expenses.

"But I pass," said a minister one Sunday, in dismissing one theme of his subject to take up another. "Then I make it spades," yelled out a man in the gallery, who was dreaming the happy hours away in an imaginary game of euchre.

Gen. Howard says he is right on the heels of the Indians. There's nothing very cheering about this, however. We have seen a man right on the heels of a mule, but he didn't seem to be getting much the better of the mule.—St. Louis Journal.

A Frenchman soliciting relief said, very gravely, to the fair hearer: "Mademoiselle, I never beg, but dat I haf vone wife wid several small family, dat is growing very large, and nossing to make deir bread out of but de perspiration on my brow."

A little girl came into one of our shoe stores the other day to take shoes home for her mother to select from. "What number does your mother wear, sissy?" asked the merchant. "She told me to bring some half-past fours," replied the little girl.

THE BALLAD OF THE SAVINGS BANK.

What shall it profit the young man
Who saveth up his cash,
If, after saving it for ten years,
The bank doth go to smash?
Whereto shall he advantaged be
If, having taken care
Of the pennies, the dollars shall make them wings
And vanish in thin air?
Suppose he should a dollar a week
In a savings bank invest,
With a semi-annual 4 p. c.
In the way of interest,
And it should amount in forty years
To seventeen thousand doll-
Ars, how much would he be ahead
If the President stole it all?
—George T. Lanigan, in New York World.

Women Physicians.

About thirty years ago a lady physician, commanding respect by her socia position, liberal education and professional ksill, was something almost unknown; to-day there are numbers of jus such ladies in every large city in th Union, and in Philadelphia particularl there are some who are regarded a among the most accomplished professor of medical science, and who enjoy practice worth from $15,000 to $20,00 a year. This is due mainly to tw causes: First, the increasing demand fo the professional services of lady physicians, and the desire among educate women to acquire a profession at onc honorable and intellectual; and second the rapid spread of an enlightened public opinion, which welcomed women i a sphere of action which would seem t be so admirably adapted for the exercis of all the womanly attributes.—Philadelphia Press.

A Wicked Practice.

All babies born in the Oneida community are at once taken from thei mothers and given to some other woma to nurse, and the babies are change around so that no mother ever rears, o even knows, her own child. The objec is to destroy all family feeling, and t keep a woman from loving her own chil better than anybody's else children. I is horrible—wickeder even than the re love business.

THE BLACK HILLS.

A Gloomy View of Affairs—Sensations, Suicide—Indian Cruelties.

From an interesting letter in the Cincinnati Enquirer from Deadwood City, Dakota, we make the following extracts:

I have met in Deadwood in one day at least three hundred men from the East who had not even a penny in their pockets, nothing to pawn or sell, and whose only food was that thrown to them by the hand of charity, and charity doesn't throw away much out here. None of them could get away, there was no work, it was starvation to remain, and their situation would have bothered old Diogenes worse than the sneers of the boys did. I heard one of them say:

"Twelve of us will agree to draw a loaded wagon to Bismarck if anyone will feed us on the way; and we don't ask for more than two meals per day, either!"

When a man offers to turn mule for less "fodder" than mules get he wants to change locations pretty bad; and I was glad to hear that the offer shouted out by this man was accepted by a teamster who wanted to save his mules as much as possible.

On this same day, as I was resting in a camp on the outskirts of Deadwood, a jolly-faced man came along and asked for a job. He was told that every man was working for himself, and making mighty poor wages at that, when he replied:

"Gentlemen, I haven't had one good meal in three weeks; I haven't been able to get a day's work; I'm dead broke; and the curtain is going to ring down on this tragedy right here and right now!"

He stepped around the fire, pulled a revolver from a miner's belt, and then, retreating back a pace or two, he said:

"Gentlemen, I'm going to hell! I've starved around the Black Hills for three months, and if there is any bigger hell than this I'm envious to see it! Excuse me for wasting ammunition, but here I go—crack!"

He put the muzzle of the revolver to his forehead and never kicked after the report. No man rose up to restrain him. After a few minutes the owner of the revolver walked over and secured it, and, as he wiped a spot of blood off the barrel, he growled out:

"Blast his eyes! Why didn't he jump over some cliff, or go out and let the Indians tickle him to death!"

If it is understood in the East that the Black Hills are clear of Indians that doesn't prevent miners from losing their scalps almost daily. We have one of the strongest camps for miles around, but yet one man stands sentinel every night, our rifles are always at hand, and there is no hour in the twenty-four when we feel safe. Indians fired into our camp only last week, and the sentinel fired upon skulkers but a night or two since. The Hills are full of small bands and Indian scouts, and they never miss a chance to raise a scalp.

Eight or ten weeks ago, while six of us were out after roots and bark for medicinal purposes, we came across a fresh evidence of the hellish cruelty of these "poor down-trodden and heart-broken" Indians. Three miles from our camp and half a mile from the Deadwood trail, we found what had once been a human being. Some miner, trying to reach our camp, or some one going into town from some camp unknown to us, had here been overhauled by perhaps a dozen savages. There had been no struggle, and there were no empty shells to show that a shot had been fired. He was perhaps overhauled there after a long chase, or had suddenly encountered the Indians and been overpowered. As near as we could make out they had first sliced off his ears. These we found pinned to a tree. They had then held his feet on a rock, taking each in turn, and deliberately mashed them to a pulp with the heads of their hatchets. The man's suffering must have been awful, but the fiends had only commenced. His fingers were then broken one by one, his nose cut off, his front teeth smashed out, and it is merciful to hope life had fled by that time. As we viewed the body, the scalp was torn from the head, the throat cut, each arm unjointed at the shoulder, the legs unjointed at the knees, the bowels ripped open and the eyes dug out. Even savage cruelty could go no further. Some men would have forwarded the mutilated remains to Washington, care of the Cabinet, as proof of the great moral work thus far wrought by the Peace Commission; but we didn't—we buried them.

A Tramp's Terrible Ride.

A tramp who arrived here a few days ago from the West gives his experience in dead-heading it over the Union Pacific from Cheyenne to Green river, on the Jarrett & Palmer train, by climbing upon the roof of a coach. He says that from Cheyenne to Sherman he rather enjoyed the ride, but that between Sherman and Green river his experience was one never to be forgotten. The rapid movement of the train and the rocking of the coach forced him to wind his arms and legs around a stovepipe and hang on for dear life. His hat flew off early in the ordeal, and after the train left this city he was discovered by the engineer, who began throwing a heavy shower of cinders, but so rapid was the movement of the train that the heaviest ones merely cut through his clothes like bullets, while the lighter sparks passed above him. His coat-tails flapped so hard that he realized that he must part with them, but he dared not loosen a hand to tuck them under him, and they were soon torn off to blow away. Although he managed to keep his face behind the pipe nearly all the time, he was frequently struck in the face by flying cinders, so that when he reached Green river his face and neck were very badly cut and scratched. So great was the poor tramp's fear of being thrown off and killed that this, added to the terrible strain of hanging to the pipe by main strength for so long a distance, and the intense suffering from the wounds inflicted by the cinders, caused his hair to turn gray, and when he climbed down at Green river he looked like a man who had seen fifty instead of twenty-two summers.—Cheyenne Leader.

Fatal Enthusiasm.

Dan, an intelligent black-and-tan dog at the Arlington House, committed an indiscreet act yesterday that cost him his life. He was up in the third story of the building when two dogs on the street below engaged in a fight. Dan sprung to the window and looked down on the combatants, his indignation rising to fury as he watched the struggle. At last his excitement went beyond control, and with a leap he cleared the window and bounded into space. He fell on the stone pavement with a slight whimper, unable to rise, both fore legs being broken by the fall. There was a wistful look in his eyes, but there was no hope, and the report of a pistol signalized the end of poor Dan's career.—Dayton (O.) Journal.

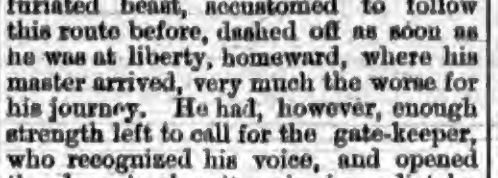
The True Story of Mazeppa.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the romantic version of the life of Mazeppa. The starch is entirely taken out of it by a correspondent of the New York Times, who recently visited the Roumanian city of Galatz, where the Ukraine hero was buried:

"In the Church of St. Mary is to be seen the tomb of Mazeppa, the famous hetman of the Cossacks, immortalized by Byron. His adventures, sung by the bard, were in reality much more commonplace than as we have learned to know them. Mazeppa was a young Cossack of the Ukraine, who, having been ennobled by the Russians, declined to pay his taxes. For this the local Governor, Count Talboski, ordered him to be stripped naked by his servants and tied to the back of his own horse, with his head to the animal's tail. The horse was then flogged, pistols were discharged close to his ears, and after being thus excited he was turned loose. The road leading to Mazeppa's house was a bridle path leading through the woods, which were particularly fertile in thorn bushes and wild pear trees, and the infuriated beast, accustomed to follow this route before, dashed off as soon as he was at liberty, homeward, where his master arrived, very much the worse for his journey. He had, however, enough strength left to call for the gate-keeper, who recognized his voice, and opened the door, to close it again immediately, to keep out what he supposed to be Mazeppa's ghost. At last other servants, recovering from their fear, came to his assistance and put him to bed, where he remained some months between life and death from the injuries he had received. When he recovered he exiled himself voluntarily to Poland, and, joining himself to the fortunes of Charles XII., was mortally wounded at Pultowa, and, dying at Barnitza, his body was brought to and buried at Galatz."

How it All Happened.

"I will show you how it was, yer Honor," said a prisoner at the Police Court yesterday, as he was being tried for an assault and battery on one Mary Mulligan, and he drew the following diagram on paper and handed it to the Judge:



"Now, yer see that the two square plans is the gardens, and A is me after I had been chasing that darned hen of hers till I was 'most dead. Yer can see the sweat standing on my noble picture there. B is Mrs. Mulligan, who was a standing there swearing at me like forty. Yer can see her open mouth now. D is the hen that was eating the only cabbage I had at O. Wall, the way of it was: I was a chasin' that hen an' I went 214½ times round that garden, and then she slipped through a hole in the fence like greased lightning, and I let drive C, a half of a brickbat, over the fence at that hen, and it missed the aim and took Mrs. Mulligan right in the jaw, and she quit swearin' at me and sat right down in the garden and grabbed her chin and yelled bloody murder, and the cop came and arrested me. Judge, that's the truth."

"Ten dollars and costs; committed till paid, and that diagram to be placed on file by the court officer," was the order of the Judge.

While the prisoner remarked: "Busted her darned head for her, enyhow."—Cleveland Herald.

A Murderous Tramp.

A tramp called at a house in Roxbury and ordered a cooked breakfast. When he had finished eating he asked the lady what he should pay. She answered that 25 cents would be enough. He then opened his sachel as if to get some money, took out a pistol, and pointed it toward her, and asked her if she would take her pay that way. She immediately called her husband, who was shingling the house, and the tramp concluded to leave, but threatened to shoot him if he said anything about what had occurred. The tramp on his departure was followed by the man, who got a warrant for his arrest at Washington. Officer A. H. Wyant took the warrant and started after the tramp, who, seeing that he was pursued, ran. Officer Wyant's dog stopped the tramp's progress, who shot at the dog but missed him. By this time the officer had got within six feet of the villain, who shot at him, the ball entering his right lung, and fatally wounding him.—Hartford (Ct.) Post.

A Shock.

There was a silence in the school. The teacher had struck the bell calling attention, and every eye was bent upon her. This was a favorable opportunity for the spread of information, and one of the little boys, perceiving it, raised his hand.

"What is it, Johnny?" asked the teacher.

"Tommy Miggs' father's cow has got a calf," shouted the excited youngster, his face aglow with the intelligence.

The teacher wilted.—Danbury News.

Perils of Editing a Paper in Texas.

A man who edited a paper in Texas for two years is one of the curiosities now traveling with Barnum's show. He carries thirty-seven bullets in his body, one hundred and sixteen bowie-knife scars, has one eye gouged out, one ear bit off, and his nose twisted around on his left cheek, all his teeth knocked out, and his skull trepanned. At the time of his leaving Texas he was the veteran editor of the State press.—Shreveport Times.

THE adulteration of olive oil in the Mediterranean countries has turned California planters to raising peanuts, from which an oil as good as olive is made.

Saving-Bank Failures in New York.

Eighteen savings banks failed in New York city between November, 1871, and September, 1877, and the affairs of none of them are yet wound up. The worst failure was that of the Third Avenue Bank, which will not pay more than 25 per cent. on its deposits of $1,500,000; the other end of the line is represented by the Guardian, which has already paid 95 cents on the dollar. The aggregate deposits of the eighteen banks were $9,000,000, and the number of depositors was 39,691.

Salutary Stimulation.

When vital action is sluggish, a stimulant, provided it be pure and properly medicated, is the most reliable agent for imparting the necessary impetus to the semi-dormant organs, accelerating the languid circulation and averting the maladies to which functional inactivity gives rise. Physicians who have employed Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in their practice pronounce it the most salutary tonic stimulant they have ever used, and especially commend it as a remedy for torpidity of the bowels, liver, stomach and kidneys, and as a resuscitant of vital energy. The medicinal value of the Bitters is due to the fact that with their basis of pure old rye are combined, in perfect chemical harmony, the best restorative and life-sustaining elements known to medical botany. The Bitters never deteriorate in the most unfavorable climates.

Wonder Upon Wonder.

Given away—A strange, mysterious and most extraordinary Book, entitled "THE BOOK OF WONDERS." Containing, with numerous curious pictorial illustrations, the mysteries of the Heavens and Earth, Natural and Supernatural, Oddities, Whimsical, Strange Curiosities, Witches and Witchcraft, Dreams, Superstitions, Absurdities, Fabulous, Enchantment, &c. In order that all may see this curious book, the publishers have resolved to give it away to all that desire to see it. Address by postal card, F. GLEASON & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

The Latest Fashion for Ladies.

Our attention has recently been called to the Raritan Matelasse Cloakings, something entirely new in the way of heavy, thick, warm, woolen goods, specially adapted for ladies' wear during the cold weather now approaching. These goods are the handsomest and most stylish ever seen, and, so far as price is concerned, are a miracle of cheapness. They are intended for cloaks, sacques, dolmans, circulars and jackets, for both ladies and children, and are to be found at all the leading dry-goods stores in the country. Be particular to ask for the Raritan Cloakings, and take no others.

WILHOFT'S TONIC!—UNFAILING AND INFALLIBLE!—This great Chill Tonic cures Chills without the intervention of doctors and their bills. No consulting visits—no prescriptions to be filled—no huge bills, entailing pecuniary embarrassments, added to loss of health. It is the friend of the poor man, because it enables him to earn a living, and of the rich, because it prepares him to enjoy his wealth. This great boon to mankind is cheap, safe and prompt. G. R. FINLAY & Co., Proprietors, New Orleans.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Honest vs. Fraudulent Weight.

The purchaser is entitled to full weight always in buying any commodity. DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER is strictly full weight, beside which it is absolutely pure.

D. W. HATCH & Co.: I have sold your Universal Cough Syrup nearly three years. It gives good satisfaction, and I have no hesitation in recommending it as equal if not superior to other remedies of its class. Yours truly,
A. W. BULLOCK, M. D.

P. S.—I have sold more Universal Cough Syrup than any other cough remedy. A. W. B.
Sold by J. Blocki & Co., Chicago, Ill.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

(By Telegraph.)
To Haines Bros., No. 145 Fifth avenue, New York:
Iowa State Fair first gold medal on Haines' upright piano fortes. Must have two uprights immediately. A. REED & SONS.
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 28, 1877.

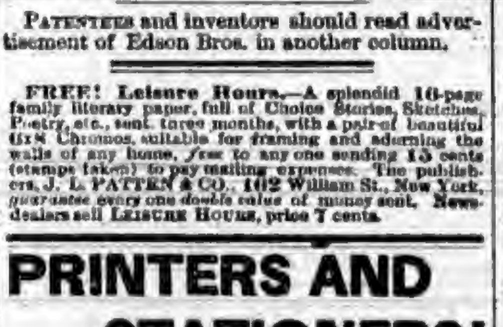
TIME will tell, and time has told that any man's a fool who pays old prices, when Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y., offers Five-Ton Wagon Scales, on trial, freight prepaid, at $50 each; free price list.

PATENTEES and inventors should read advertisement of Edson Bros. in another column.

FREE! Leisure Hours.—A splendid 16-page family literary paper, full of Choice Stories, Sketches, Poetry, etc., sent three months, with a pair of beautiful 6x8 Chromos, suitable for framing and adorning the walls of any home, free to any one sending 15 cents (stamps taken) to pay mailing expenses. The publishers, J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William St., New York, guarantee every one double value of money sent. Newsdealers sell LEISURE HOURS, price 7 cents.

PRINTERS AND STATIONERS!

Send 50 cents and get a large sample package of our NOVELTIES in Ball Programmes, Visiting Cards, Wedding Stationery, Billet de Correspondence Envelopes and Note with monogram date (something new), fine Cardboard, etc. Address THE NEWSPAPER UNION, 181 Fifth Ave., Chicago.



GRAFF'S
TRADE MARK PATENTED
SOAP MADE IN ONE HOUR
IMPROVED
POTASH OR LYE
WILL MAKE NINE POUNDS OF PURE SOAP IN ONLY ONE HOUR

PROF. BEDFORD'S LETTER SHOWING SUPERIORITY OF THIS ARTICLE OVER ALL OTHERS FOR SOAP MAKING SENT FREE BY MAIL ON APPLICATION TO H. M. ANTHONY 104 READE ST. NEW YORK.

THE CHEAPEST & BEST ADVERTISING TO REACH READERS OUTSIDE OF THE LARGE CITIES.

We represent over 1,000 Newspapers, having a weekly circulation of over 600,000 Copies, divided into six different lists, covering different sections of the country.

Advertisements received for one or more lists. For catalogues, containing names of papers and other information, and for estimates, address
BEALS & FOSTER,
41 Park Row (Times Building), New York.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER TAKEN INTERNALLY

There is nothing to equal it, relieving you of pain in a short time, and curing all bowel complaints, such as colic, cramps, spasms, heartburn, diarrhea, dysentery, flux, wind in the bowels, sour stomach, dyspepsia, sick headache. In sections of the country where Fever and Ague prevails there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or bowel troubles from change of water. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

DO NOT FAIL to send for our New Catalogue. It contains valuable information for every person contemplating the purchase of any article for personal, family or agricultural use. Free to any Address.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.,
Original Grange Supply House,
227 & 229 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, Ill.

HELP FOR THE HORSE!

Every man who owns a horse should have a pair of

Furlong's Patent FOOT COOLERS & EXPANDERS

Which remove all fever from the foot, and keep them in a clean, moist and healthy condition, absolutely preventing corns, contracted feet, quarter-cracks and scratches. The moist sponge is held securely on the bottom of the foot, keeping the frog in a healthy, natural condition. They can be used for a Stuffing-Boot, and do not cost one-fourth as much as the old leather one. The cut represents the Holder and Sponge on the foot. The best horsemen of the country heartily indorse it as one of the most humane and valuable inventions of the day. Horses' feet have been restored from an unsound condition to a healthy one in three weeks' time. Its results surprise every one. For sale by Harness-Makers and dealers in Turf goods. Single pairs sent to any address upon receipt of price, $1.50 per pair. In ordering, send diameter of hoof measured across the bottom of the foot. Send for descriptive circular, with list of testimonials, from the leading [illegible] veterinary surgeons of the country. I have also a valuable Sponge Liniment for bad feet, which I will forward with Cooler at $1.00 per quart bottle. Liberal terms and exclusive territory given to Agents. Address E. B. DRAPER, 193 Washington St., Chicago.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO,
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

AGENTS WANTED!
FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS
WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.
829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.

PATENTS AND INVENTORS. EDSON BROS., U. S. and Foreign Patent Agents, 711 G St., Washington, D. C. Established in 1866. Fee after allowance. Circ'l's of instructions, etc., sent free.

AWNINGS, TENTS,
Waterproof Covers, Stack Covers, Signs, Window Shades, &c., &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 South Desplaines st., Chicago.
Send for Illustrated Price-List.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

What is Life Without Health? It is worthless, says the pale dyspeptic. True; but health is within your reach. A few doses of TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT restores your digestion, your appetite, your cheerfulness, and taken as an occasional alterative it will keep the system in perfect order.

SETH THOMAS
CLOCKS
RUN WELL
WEAR WELL
AND
KEEP GOOD TIME

THE GOOD OLD STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.

ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

THE NEWARK
DAILY and WEEKLY COURIER,
NEWARK, NEW JERSEY.
F. F. PATTERSON, Editor and Proprietor.
THE LEADING REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER OF NEW JERSEY.
Terms—Daily, $8.00 per annum; Weekly, $2.00. Advertisements inserted on liberal terms. Send for Price-List.

POND'S EXTRACT. POND'S EXTRACT.
The People's Remedy.
The Universal Pain Extractor.
Note: Ask for Pond's Extract.
Take no Other.

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."
POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled.
CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises, Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application. Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc. Arrests inflammation, reduces swellings, stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly.
LADIES find it their best friend. It assuages the pains to which they are peculiarly subject—notably fullness and pressure in the head, nausea, vertigo, etc. It promptly ameliorates and permanently heals all kinds of inflammations and ulcerations.
HEMORRHOIDS or PILES find in this the only immediate relief and ultimate cure. No case, however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use.
VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure.
BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere.
TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved and often permanently cured.
PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract recommend it in their practice. We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians; many of whom order it for use in their own practice. In addition to the foregoing they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhœa, Catarrh (for which it is a specific), Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc., Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin diseases.
TOILET USE. Removes Soreness, Roughness and Smarting; heals Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples. It revives, invigorates and refreshes, while wonderfully improving the Complexion.
TO FARMERS—Pond's Extract. No Stock Breeder, no Livery Man can afford to be without it. It is used by all the leading Livery Stables, Street Railroads and first Horsemen in New York City. It has no equal for Sprains, Harness or Saddle Chafings, Stiffness, Scratches, Swellings, Cuts, Lacerations, Bleedings, Pneumonia, Colic, Diarrhea, Chills, Colds, etc. Its range of action is wide, and the relief it affords is so prompt that it is invaluable in every Farm-yard as well as in every Farm-house. Let it be tried once and you will never be without it.
CAUTION! Pond's Extract has been imitated. The genuine article has the words Pond's Extract blown in each bottle. It is prepared by the only persons living who ever knew how to prepare it properly. Refuse all other preparations of Witch Hazel. This is the only article used by Physicians, and in the hospitals of this country and Europe.
HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT COMPANY, 98 Maiden Lane, New York.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY
THE GREAT RIOTS
It contains a full account of the reign of terror in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The conflicts between the troops and the mob. Terrible scenes of conflagration and destruction of property. Thrilling scenes and incidents, etc., etc. Send for a full description of the work and our extra terms to Agents. Address, NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

THE NEW YORK
Commercial Advertiser.
Terms—Postage Prepaid—Daily, one year, $9; six months, $4.50; three months, $2.25; one month, 75 cents.
Weekly, one year, $1; six months, 50 cents. Specimen numbers sent on application. An extra copy to Club Agents for club of ten; the Daily for club of thirty.
The Commercial Advertiser is the best Republican paper published in this country. Its Weekly edition is unsurpassed. Special terms to Agents.
All letters should be sent to
HUGH J. HASTINGS, 126 Fulton St., N. Y. City.

$100.00 R[illegible]

VEGETINE.

HER OWN WORDS.
BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 13, 1877.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—Since several years I have got a sore and very painful foot. I had some physicians, but they couldn't cure me. Now, I have heard of your VEGETINE from a lady who was sick for a long time, and became all well from your VEGETINE, and I went and bought me one bottle of VEGETINE, and after I had used one bottle, the pains left me, and it began to heal, and then I bought one other bottle, and so I take it yet. I thank God for this remedy and yourself, and wishing every sufferer may pay attention to it. It is a blessing for health.
MRS. C. KRABE, 638 West Baltimore Street.

VEGETINE.
SAFE AND SURE.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:
In 1872 your VEGETINE was recommended to me, and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time, I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and, under its persistent use, I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give VEGETINE my most unqualified indorsement, as being a safe, sure and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. VEGETINE is the only medicine I use; and, as long as I live, I never expect to find a better.
Yours truly, W. H. CLARK,
120 Monterey Street, Allegheny, Pa.

VEGETINE.
THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.
CHARLESTOWN.
H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that, for Scrofula, or Cankerous Humors, or Rheumatic affections, it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell Street.

VEGETINE.
WHAT IS NEEDED.
BOSTON, Feb. 13, 1871.
H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
Dear Sir—About one year since I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility. VEGETINE was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefited by its use. I procured the article, and, after using several bottles, was restored to health, and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health.
Respectfully yours, U. L. PETTENGILL,
Firm of S. M. Pettengill & Co.,
No. 10 State Street, Boston.

VEGETINE.
ALL HAVE OBTAINED RELIEF.
SOUTH BERWICK, Me., Jan. 17, 1872.
H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
Dear Sir—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicines without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief.
Yours truly, THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

VEGETINE
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

A Special Offer
TO THE READERS
OF THIS PAPER.
A Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper, a perfect Gem for everybody desiring a reliable Time-Piece, and also a superior Compass, usual watch size, steel works, glass crystal, all in a superb Oroide Hunting-Case, warranted to denote correct time, and keep in order for two years—Perfection guaranteed—will be Given away to every patron of this paper as a Free Gift.
CUT OUT THIS COUPON AND MAIL IT.
COUPON.
On receipt of this Coupon and 50 cents to pay for packing, boxing and mailing charges, we promise to send each patron of this paper a Genuine Swiss Magnetic Time-Keeper.
Address, Magnetic Watch Co., ASHLAND, MASS.
This is your ONLY OPPORTUNITY to obtain this beautiful premium, so order AT ONCE. This offer will hold good for 30 days.
If currency cannot be sent conveniently, postage stamps will be taken instead.

GRACE'S SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION.
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts. Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, the very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, sent free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$5[illegible] with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Pub'g House, Chicago.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

BLANK Cards, 1,000 var. Transparent, $1.25 a 1,000. Price-list, 3c. N. E. CARD CO., Woonsocket, R. I.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $20 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED. 36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$25 FINE GILT WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$[illegible] MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Metal works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. $350 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & CO., Chicago.

BEATTY Piano, Organ best. Look! startling news. Organs, 13 stops $55. Pianos only $130, cost $650. Cir. Free. Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

$300 [illegible] poor-house. Send stamp for immense illustrated catalogue. O. G. BRYANT, Chicago, Ill.

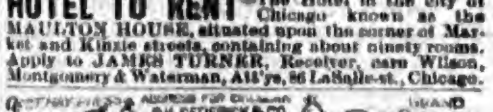
WANTED Detectives. A few men in each State for the Detective Service. Pay liberal. Position permanent. Send stamp for particulars. U. S. SECRET SERVICE Co., 230 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as time-keepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $35 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Manager, Englewood, Ill.

SAFETY LAMPS! Agents Wanted everywhere! 17 Styles. Also, Pat. Gasoline Burners. Circular Free. Write at once to Cincinnati Safety Lamp Company, 161, 163, 165 Pearl Street, corner Elm, Cincinnati, Ohio.

HOTEL TO RENT—The Hotel in the city of Chicago known as the MAULTON HOUSE, situated upon the corner of Market and Kinzie streets, containing about ninety rooms. Apply to JAMES TURNER, Receiver, care Wilson, Montgomery & Waterman, Att'ys, 86 LaSalle-st., Chicago.



$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

WORK FOR ALL
In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged), Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT
The best family newspaper published; eight pages; fifty-six columns reading.
Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of eleven, $15 per annum, in advance.
SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.

GREENBACKS. THE BEST, most comprehensive work yet written on the money question is the history of money and legislation on Bonds, Greenbacks and National Banks, called American Finance, by M. M. POMEROY, Editor of Pomeroy's Democrat. A fresh, live, understandable book of 164 pages. Sample copies 30 cents. Four for $1. Address M. M. POMEROY, 140 Grand Boulevard, Chicago. It is the clearest book on this subject ever written.

LADIES! BEWARE of Imitations.

HUNT'S REMEDY
THE GREAT
KIDNEY MEDICINE
A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R. I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

MILITARY
and Band Uniforms—Officers' Equipments, etc., manufactured by M. C. LILLEY & CO., Columbus, Ohio. Send for Price Lists.

TO BOOK AGENTS!
We have in press a book—not yet announced—that has been in preparation over three years, costing $20,000.
124 Superb, Full-Page Engravings make it one of the most completely illustrated volumes in the world. It is a magnificent work, and will command the attention and approval of everybody. We will make most liberal arrangements with agents to introduce it, and it is worthy their notice. Advance sheets, with full information, sent on application to AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

DUNHAM PIANOS.
Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers,
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
(Established 1834.) NEW YORK.
[illegible] Terms Easy.

DR. WARNER'S
HEALTH CORSET

With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.
Unequaled for Beauty, Style & Comfort.
APPROVED BY ALL PHYSICIANS.
For Sale by Leading Merchants.
Samples, any size, by mail. In Satteen, $1.50; Coutil, $1.75; Nursing Corset, $2.00; Misses' Corset, $1.00.
AGENTS WANTED.
WARNER BR'S., 351 Broadway, N. Y.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World.
Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.
For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.
Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

SANDAL-WOOD.
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

C. N. U. No. 42

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

MEN'S RUBBER BOOTS, BEST FOR $3.00. THE BEST PAIR GUM BOOTS

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, OCT. 25. 1877.

Sitting Bull smiles at the mention of a surrender. The Peace Commission met him on the 17th inst. but utterly failed to obtain any satisfaction from him. He is discribed as a swarthy, black-haired, beardless, pure-blooded savage, and bears an air of judicial gravity and intelligence. The Commissioners have turned their faces homeward.

A bill was introduced Monday by Senator Hereford, proposing to repeal two claims of the resumption act which provides for the redemption of United States notes in excess of $300,000,000, and for the redemption of outstanding legal tenders on and after Jan. 1st, 1870 in coin. The remainder of the resumption act is not referred to.

Baltimore Gazette: "When Jere Black has had his say at that New Orleans trial, old Mad. Wells won't know whether he is a vassal or a peer, or whether he has just been run under a buzz saw." One thing, he will have no difficulty in recognizing himslf as one of the biggist scoundrels the country ever produced. He may be bewildered upon other subjects, but upon that his mind must be extraordinary clear.

The Indianapolis Hearald announces the impending birth of an afternoon Democratic paper. It will have a capital stock of $50,000, with George Riley as manager, Geo. W. Julian as chief editorial writer, and J. W. Bingham as city man. Pat Shannon, W. R. Hogshire, Aquilla Jones, John E. Neff and John R. Coffroth are accused of being stockholders.

Plymouth Democrat. We are informed that the principal of the public school in Bourbon has inaugurated a mode of punishment that would make a "Bashi-Bazouk," or a Sioux Indian blush with shame. His mode of punishing pupils is by tying their hands behind their backs and then setting a stick up endwise in their mouths, keeping them in that position sometimes for two hours, and when relieved, it would be some time before they could shut their mouths. Who ever heard of such cruel and inhuman treatment being practiced upon small children before. The citizens are very indignant at the action of the school board in allowing such treatment in the school, and they think that if they do not stop it, that our county superintendent should compel them to do it, or revoke the license granted to the teachers that practice such barbarism upon small children, and just becase they some times whisper in school.

LaOtto Items.

Concert at LaOtto Saturday evening, Oct. 27th.

LaOtto boasts of a livery stable, but "narry" a saloon.

A good writing teacher can "strike" a job in LaOtto, no inferior teacher need apply.

Democratic victory in the Buckeye State knocked wheat down to $1.18 and butter up to 20c.

Potatoes are rotting to a considerable extent in this vicinity, but for all that there is plenty and to spare.

Mrs. Taylor went to Chicago a few days ago and bought a splendid variety of millinery goods for the special benefit of the ladies of Swan and Butler townships, "so they say."

H. C. Kinsey, agent for the two R. R.'s crossing at this place, has removed to his beautiful residence in Drak's addition. Dr. Bender the patent medicine man now occupies K.'s.

Prof. C. R. Reed of Waterloo, is holding a musical convention in the Luthern church, at the close of which he will give a Grand Concert, for the benefit of the two Sunday schools of this place. Concert next Saturday evening.

The young man George, even "lengthy" is highly disgusted with the rain and mud "becase" his'n resides full two miles from LaOtto. The cry that wells up from his agonized soul is "so near and yet so far."

Squire Drak's mammoth store room is slowly making its way on to completion. The last two weeks of foul weather has delayed the progress of the work to a considerable extent. The room is intended for Taylor's Dry Goods Store.

Nick McKinnon is about to leave LaOtto. For two years he has been a shining light in our midst. As a Tailor Mac has no superior, and should he "brace up," and leave the "creature" alone, he could soon gain a competence lead a retired life, and be happy.

Dr. Ogle formerly of Defiance, O., but for a short period a resident of this place, intends to return to Ohio. The Dr is a good physician, but like many of us, has his peculiarities. The Dr.'s peculiarities were not many but quite prominent.

And now comes Hawk to the front and takes oath, that "damned be he who is first caught trifling with him or his," that "let him take the wings of the morning and fly to the utmost parts of the earth, that he (Hawk) will "bounce" on to him, or, let him (the destroyer) seek to hide himself in the depths of the sulphuric habitation of the emissary of man's soul, and he (Hawk) will "skoop" him in there. Yea he is bound to "fix" him.

Miss A. Myers of Rome City is visiting at this place.

OUVRIER.

Garrett Items.

Mr. William Hopkins has returned from his visit east much improved in health.

The pay car passed through here Monday, and many hearts were made glad with the chink of hard money.

Our dramatic company gave two entertainments this week, which were well attended. This will probably close the season.

Bro Powel is publishing a serial story and the Herald is much sought after in consequence. We hope he will meet with the success his efforts to publish a good paper deserve.

Quite an influx of Auburn M. D.'s has occurred to our villiage, the object being to assist Dr. Spooner in amputating a leg for a young man named White.

Our town has been honored the past week by large number of the leading officials of the B. & O. R. R. Among them we noticed John K. Cowan and W. D. Quincy. Some business of importance is on the tapis, but what we are unable to say.

The heavy rains of last week has put us under tribute to no small extent. The water stands in large puddles all over the village. It is to be hoped that the system of drainage adopted a short time ago will do much to abate this nuisance.

Hudson Republican: "Three sisters Lydia, Caroline and Lina Fonda, lived in Gloversville, and own a house on School street, part of which they rent. A few days ago the tenant caused their arrest for stealing various articles from his room during his absence from home. The sisters were discharged by the police magistrate upon giving bonds for their appearance in court upon a certain day. Early Sunday evening a friend calling at the house found, to her horror, the three women apparently dead—one lying on the bed another on the floor and the third one on a lounge. The alarm was immediately given and a doctor sommoned, who, without hesitation, pronounced the case one of poisoning. Remedies were applied and antidotes given, which partially restored the sufferers, but in the opinion of the doctor, one must certainly die, while there is a bare possibility of the recovery of the other two. The supposition is that the sisters preferred to die by their own hands than to suffer the disgrace of a trial in a court of justice for dishonesty.

We are in the age of profanity, and it seems, sometimes, that the tide is still coming up. We connot go on the streets, or attend any kind of public gathering composed of men and boys, without having our ears shocked by the most profane and obscene language. Boys, and sometimes men, have an idea that it is smart to swear and profane sacred names, and occasionally you find a man who claims the right to dictate to the community in which he lives upon all questions of public interest, and not unfrequently comments upon the church and its duties, that not unfrequently disgusts his neighbors with his cursing and swearing. Men who are well along in years should cease at once so bad a habit and set a good example to the rising generation, for true it is that the habit indulged in grows and increases with the years; and the boy who learns to swear from his father, and is allowed to continue until manhood, rarely ever quits, but becomes more and more addicted to the unmanly practice.—Huntington Democrat.

An Indiana gentleman of prominence who has arrived in Washington says that Senator Morton can never again come to Washington. He gives the following description of his present condition: With the exception of slight activity in his arms, Senator Morton's body is practically dead below the chin, and it is with difficultly that nourishment of any kind can be administered to him. One of the consequences of lying in bed so long is that he is terribly afflicted with fever-sores, which still more weaken his already enfeebled system. His nervous postration is great. He gives way to tears at the least mental excitement. Notwithstanding the symptoms, his family still cling to the hope that he will recover, and his son within a day or two has said that he was still confident that his father would be in Washington in December.

A Saratogian has made a whistle out of a pig's tail, and claims credit for demonstrating the fallacy of the aged adage that the musical instrument referred to could not be constructed with the above member of a young hog. This triumph of art over nature is nothing very new. It will be rememberd that an instrument of this character was on exhibition in the Waman's Department at the Centennial Exibition, in Philadelphia last summer, and as all the articles in that department purported to have been manufactured by women, it is to presume that the musical instrument on exhibition, was constructed of the juvenile porcine caudal appendage by a lady. It is also a matter of record that a private soldier in the Union army by the name of Cotton, also performed the same feat, and performed on the same tail. Those are not the only cases on record. A brakeman on the B. & O. railroad made a whistle of a pig's tail on which a tune could be played quite distinctly.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Thomas W. Sharp is plaintiff and Emeline Eshey and Henry Eshey et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Twelve dollars and Seventy cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number two hundred and forty-three (243 and two hundred and forty-four (244), in Hornberger's addition to the town of Waterloo, in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 23, 1877

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Geo. Ensley is plaintiff, and Thomas M. Stevens et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Eleven dollars and Ten cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER, 17th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fourty-two [42] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Aubur Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $4.50,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Crane, Duncan & Co are plaintiffs, and Perry Fitch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Eight Hundred and Fifty-Eight dollars with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section thirty-five [35], township thirty three [33], north of range twelve [12], east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24, 1877.

P. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein William H. Mader is plaintiff and Christian Seivert et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Sixty Four dollars and Sixty-Nine cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of lot number five [5] in Kuhlman's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24th, 1877,

Pr. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the Singer Manufacturing Company is plaintiff, and Charles M. Brown and Charles Klotz are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-seven Dollars and Thirty Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south one-third of lot number sixty-six [66] in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, October 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph E. Shilling Trustee is plaintiff and Ebenezer E. Williams et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Nine Hundred and Thirteen dollars and Seventy Five cents with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A part of lot number one hundred and thirty-eight [138], in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing thirty-one and three tenths feet west of the north-east corner of said lot on the north line thereof, and running thence south sixty-six (66) feet to the south line of said lot, thence west forty-two [42] feet, thence north sixty-six [66] feet to the north line of said lot, thence east forty-two [42] feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $10.00.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

STATE OF INDIANA, DeKalb county.

NOTICE is hereby given that Jesse M. Brumbach, Administrator of the estate of Lyman Green, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent the personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Attest, G. A. K. MOSS, Clerk.
H. D. HARRIS, Deputy.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs, and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five [25] township thirty-four [34], north of range thirteen [13] east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. ST CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indianan, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff, and John A. Schafield, et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and nineteen dollars and thirteen cents ($419. 13 with interest on said decree and costs, will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3rd, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

South half of the West half of the Northeast quarter of sec Ten [10]. Township number thirty-five [35], North of Range, Fourteen, East, containing 40 acres, more or less, in DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs. I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff

McBride, Morlan and Leas Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Oct. 16th 1877.

Pr fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles R Wanamaker is plaintiff, and Frank Phillis and Hamar M. Phillis are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Fifty-Five Dollars and Fifty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lot number one-hundred and fifty-nine (159) in Egnew's third addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose in public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.

Plurkin & Boyle, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 22nd A. D. 1877.

Ptr's. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein G. V. Harner is plaintiff and Robert Shaffer et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Sixty dollars and Seven cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, OCTOBER, 27th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Part of lot twelve (12) in the old plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana, described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the south east corner of said lot No. (12) running thence north thirty (30) feet, thence west forty two (42) feet, thence south thirty (30) feet, thence east forty two (42) feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

Guy Plum Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, October 3, A. D. 1877.

Pr. fee. $9.[illegible]

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Essig deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

October 18, 1877 no13.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Moser, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH MOSER, Adm'x.

October 1st, 1877—no11.

Administrator's Sale

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned administratrix of the estate of William Essig deceased, will offer for sale at public outcry, at the late residence of the deceased, in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the 17th day of November, 1877, the personal property of said estate, consisting of horses, cattle, sheep and farming implements and various other articles. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock, a. m.

TERMS:—All sums of three dollars and under cash, all over three dollars a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving note with approved security, waiving valuation and appraisement laws, with interest.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

Excursion to the Rocky Mountains.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has arranged with the various railroad lines in the country for special round trip rates to the Rocky Mountains, and has secured the following rates to Denver, Colorado Springs, Canon City, Puelo and return; from Kansas City and Atchison, $45; St. Louis, $50; Chicago, $65; Quincy, $50s Cincinnatti, $65; Buffalo, $75, and correspondingly low rates from all point; east, north and south. These tickets are good for 90 days and to stop at all stations west of the Missouri river. Tickets are on sale at all principal stations throughout the country. This is the new route to Denver through the garden of Kansas and Colorado. Send for maps, circulars, time tables, etc., to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Agent, Topeka, Kan.

ROOT & COMPANY

GRAND FALL OPENING!

Will commence Thursday, October 11th, and continue during the week. Upon that occasion we shall desplay by far the finest line of

SEAL SACQUES!

and Circulars, fur lined Silk Garments, Matalasse and plain Cloaks, made and trimmed in the most elegant modes ever before shown by us. Also a magnificent line of made

SILK AND STUFF DRESSES AND SUITS

Also Silks and Dress goods, in all the new and elegant colors and effects, with trimmings to match. Also many elegant designs in well worth seeing. Besides articles of taste and elegance, not to be found elsewhere. We are now selling a'l goods kept by us much cheaper than they have ever been sold since 1860, and cotten goods generally are much lower than before the war. People living within a distance of 50 miles of Fort Wayne, can will afford to come and do their trading with us. if they wish to buy but ten dollars worth of goods. Our stock is so large and well assorted that no one can fail to fine what is wanted, and the immense business we are doing is ample evidence that our prices are satisfactory.

CARPETS, RUGS, MATS, OTBOMANS, &C.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

STILL AHEA.

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

NE ASS ORTMENTOF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

DAY'S AGUE TONIC

CURES EVERY FORM OF CHILLS, OR MONEY RETURNED.

DAY'S TONIC Cures Chills and Fever.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Dumb Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Supersedes Quinine.
DAY'S TONIC Cures Old Chronic Chills.
DAY'S TONIC Is pleasant for Children.
DAY'S TONIC Cleanses the Stomach.
DAY'S TONIC Acts on Liver and Bowels.
DAY'S TONIC Don't Buzz the Head.
DAY'S TONIC Don't contain Quinine.

DAY'S TONIC

Is a new innovation, and possesses advantages heretofore unknown and unclaimed by others.

It does not contain Quinine or any poison; it does not produce buzzing or roaring in the head which follows the use of Quinine; it is retained by delicate stomachs; it acts upon the liver and bowels without the use of any other medicine; it never fails to cure, and our agents are authorized to return the money in each and every case of failure; one bottle will cure two cases. Try it and see. Sold by all Druggists at $1.00.

J. P. DROMGOOLE & CO., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astounslingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

BOOK STORE

WILLIS & CO.

Successors to C. P. Houser, having purchased the above named stock, we wish to say to the people of Auburn and vicinity that by the patronage that we hope to merit, we expect to build up a first-class

BOOK AND NEWS STORE,

that will be a credit to the place. We are adding a large variety of goods, and shall endeavor to keep on hand the novelties of the season. We solicit orders for

Books, Magazines, Papers, etc.,

which will be furnished promptly at the publishers prices by

WILLIS & CO.

October 11, '77—no11.

MADE FOR $4.00, AT THE BOOT UPSIDE DOWN, AUBURN, INDIANA.

Auburn Courier.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. J. R. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. R. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH.

[illegible] Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock A. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH.

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS

AND

MILLINERY STORE

North of Court House, Auburn, Ind.

You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in

LADIES HATS,

AND MILLINERY GOODS

Fancy Dry Goods,

Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and ties in all designs. Also

LADIES CLOAKS,

Of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every discription. The lines in the new goods are complete.

J. R. LANNING.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 15c.
—Butter 15c.
—Potatoes 25c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $4 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.18 @ 1.20
—The Courier $2.00 a year.

Local and Miscellaneous.

We want some wood on subscription

A good farmer is known by his fences and horses.

Now is a good time to bring us wood on subscription.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

A failure at Quincy, Ill., to the tune of $100.000 is the latest.

If you want good boots made to order go to the boot upside down.

We notice a good many culling their cabbage and burying it for winter use.

Communion services will be held at the Presbyterian church, next Sabbath

15 yards of yard wide sheeting for one dollar, call at Schaab Beugnot & Co.

W. E. Peterson, of Kendallville, passed through our city yesterday going east.

Cuppy & Ralston at the Eel River Elevator, buy all kinds of grain and seed.

We wish that some of our farmer friends would bring us a few loads of wood.

Bargains in clothing, and especially in over-coats this fall, at Schaab Beugnot & Co.

Tuesday the hum of a buzz saw was heard on 18th street, operating on a wood pile.

From the hazy and smoky atmosphere we would judge that Indian summer is with us.

Mr. Isaac Roth has sold his brick residence, on north Main street, to Mr. Eno Weave.

Miss Aletha Born has been suffering for several days past with a severe attack of billious fever.

Cuppy & Ralston have choice New York and Michigan salt, for sale at the Eel River Elevator.

The wife of Gilman, the New York forger, has gone crazy, and has been sent to a lunatic asylum.

Bro. Williams, can't you let up a squirrel or two on that snake story? It sounds pretty loud.

For the last nine months 248 failures are reported in Indiana, with liabilities amounting to $4,142,171.

The Indiana State Baptist Convention meets at Peru, October 30th, and will remain in session three days.

The Angola fair was continued until Saturday. Owing probably to the heavy rains of the fore part of last week.

The Waterloo Press of last week devotes over two columns to the premium list of the fair held there lately.

Mr. Nat Walsh of Wauseon sent his little boy, who is about six years old to Wisconsin on Wednesday by express.

Men give away nothing so liberally as their advice, especially as to the way a newspaper should be conducted.

A grand Northeran Indiana mass meeting, to be held some time next month, is contemplated by the Murphyites.

Tuesday a manufacturer and vender of hot candy made his appearance on our streets, and for a while drew a brisk trade.

The greatest stroke of ingenuity, is said to be a manage your own business perfectly, and your neighbors at the same time.

W. D. [illegible] sold his Palace Dining rooms Monday last to W. W. Humes. We bespeak for the new establishment a good patronage.

Cuppy & Ralston commence buying ear corn next Monday. They want 10,000 bushels, for which they will pay the highest price.

T. D. Gross has sold his brick property, just south of the bank, to Mr. A. M. King, of Steuben. Mr. K. moved his family Tuesday last.

At the temperance meeting Thursday night in Cleveland, under the management of Francis Murphy, three hundred people signed the pledge.

I. N. Shafer, living near Bourbon raised over a thousand pounds of squashes on one vine. The largest weighed 214 pounds—the least 150.

Married on Thursday Oct. 18th, 1877, by Rev. P. Ruhl, at his residence, Mr. Adam H. Richey, to Miss Susan Bowman, all of DeKalb Co.

Somebody says that raw potatoes will cure drunkenness. This may be so, but we hope it won't be put in practice before we secure our winter supply.

Mr. John Ault is rapidly recovering from his injuries of last week. He is able to be up and around the house. His was a very narrow escape indeed.

From Glasgow, Scotland, comes the news of another mine explosion, with a loss of 400 lives, no authentic report of the full damage has yet been received.

Cuppy & Ralston's price list.

Wheat	$1.20 @ $1.24.
Oats	20 @ 23c.
Clover seed	$4.40 @ $4.00

The Democrats in Van Wert county elected their entire ticket. Such a thing has not occurred before for twenty-three years, so says the Defiance Democrat.

When we have practised good actions a while, they become easy, and when they become easy we begin to take a pleasure in them, and when they please us we do them frequently.

A certain section of the Republican rank and file, think strongly of running Gen. Grant, in the next Presidental race. He would not carry a dozen States.

G. Rhodenbaugh & Co., are preparing to do a big business in their line. They have shown their appreciation of printers ink by leaving an order with us for a lot of job work.

The heavy rains of last week caused quite a fright in this neighborhood. The water in the creek being higher now than in has been known for a long time.

The Pen and Plow for October is on our table, as usual it is replete with all that goes to make a good Journal. Send for a specimin copy to the Pen and Plow Pub. Co. P. O box, 3,242 New York.

The business man who is not afraid to let the people know where he is, what he is doing, and what he proposes to do will have plenty to do while his neighbors sit around their stores and shops idle.

The Goshen Democrat says: M. H. Levy, of Elkhart, has recently come into possession of real estate in Georgia valued at $25,000 or $30,000, which has been willed to him for an act of kindness during the war.

The heaviest steer in the State is owned by a White county farmer The animal weighs 3,800 pounds, and its owner is to receive $4,000 for the monster if he can fatten him to weigh 4,000 pounds.

Isaac Neusbaum, of Wabash, is probably the oldest man in the State He will celebrate his 101st birthday this month. He is perfectly healthy, well preserved and would not be thought older than eighty year.

Stanley, the great American explorer of Africa, has, by his discoveries, opened to commerce nearly 2,000 miles of uninterrupted water communications in the land of the blacks. He says missionaries are needed in that part of the world.

James Anderson is now fully prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing at his shop on Seventh street. Mr. Anderson makes a speciality of shoeing lame, and interfering horses. Give him a call and you will be satisfied that he does as he says.

If you want your baby to look bright do not put it to sleep with laudanum when restless, but use Dr Bull's Baby Syrup. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

A youth of Auburn hearing his mother say that her doctor had told her that she must eat more bread, as it would harden her bones, made the remark, that in his opinion it was fish she should eat, as it made brains. He was sent to bed.

Mr. Hodge has withdrawn from the Indianian and Reub. Williams is now sole proprietor. Reuben takes occasion to say something about its business affairs and from what we can understand the office has not been making a fortune lately.

Now that Chief Joseph is secure, Sitting Bull safe in Canada, and the Indians no longer an object for the blue-coats, how would it do to send them to the Rio Grande, and let them devote their attention to the thieving Mexicans?

Silas Horton, who lately went to Logansport, from Tulton, committed suicide Thursday last by hanging himself in a barn in the rear of Joseph Dagoe's residence. Severel sealed letters were found addressed to his wife and other parties, the contents of which are yet unknown.

A western editor, in an unguarded moment, recently wrote: "The good husband keeps his wife in holdsome ignorance of all unnecessary secrets." The next day his wife laid the rolling-pin down on the table under his nose three or four times and in italicised syllables inquired what he had been up to now.

The farmers in this vicinity have come to the conclusion that nothing will be made out of holding their wheat for higher prices. Monday and Tuesday a large number of teams were unloading at the Eel River Elevator. $1.20 being the price.

Mrs. Theodore Vandegrift, of Lafontaine, Wabash county, by mistake, Friday morning of last week, administered to her daughter, a young woman aged nineteen years a dose of strychnine instead of quinine, with fatal results within a few moments.

It has been generally suposed that the adventurous bank highwayman was purely a creature of western civilization, but the robbery of a Boston banker in broad day light in the streets of that city at the muzzle of a revolver shows that this sort of enterprise is not confined to the border.

The Wabash Courier says: A rattlesnake, supposed to be fifty years old, was killed in Madison county, last week by some men who were engaged in digging a ditch. One tooth taken from the venomous reptile measured an inch and a quarter in length. Next.

The Washington Club of Indianapolis gave Gov. Hendricks a handsome reception when he returned to his native city last week. Geo. W. Julian delivered the address of welcome in his characteristic vein, giving the Rads some pretty hard hits.

The Richland Township S. S. Worker's Institute, will meet in the Franklin school house at 9:30 o'clock a. m. Saturday Nov. 3d 1877. Friends of the Sunday School do not fail to be present with your counsel and experience.

L. W. Treesh, Pres.

A New bracelet, designed by an ingenious jeweler, has a tiny music box playing a love song, concealed in a heavy, broad clasp. He knew as the article was for a lady in would not have been profitable to put in a "talking machine." There would have been an everlasting "jaw."

St Nicholes for November has been received. It is proposed to make this popular child magazine for 1878 far better than ever before. The engravings will be improved if such a thing is possible. One copy one year $3.00. Address, Scribner & Co., N. Y.

A fourteen-year-old lad, living in Union township, Fulton county, became suddenly insane on Saturday of week before last and took to the woods at a pace that would have distanced a grey hound. Persuits were immediately made, but up to last accounts he had not been captured.

Scribner for November, comes to us bright and fresh, full of interesting reading matter. We cannot see how so many can get along without this truly good magizine, its pages month after month being filled to overflowing with all that goes to interest the mind and enlarge the ideas generally. Send for copy to Scribner & Co., New York.

Wabash Courier: "When Rev. N. Jordon sued the Courier for libel he struck at his best friend. For sometime we have been secretly nursing the plan of having him oppose the saloon editor of the P. D. in the coming Republican Convention as a candidate for Representative. But he has kicked the fat in the fire by his impulsive action.

A few doses of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup cured my child of a most dreadful cough. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best cough medicine I have ever tried.

Mrs. C. Knox, Cleveland, O.

Sold by F. E. Davenport.

We have tried Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in our family, and can assert that it is the best remedy for cough or cold ever introduced Price, 25 cents. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

MORE
TO FOLLOW!
The Boot Upside Down has 100 Cases of
BOOTS and SHOES Made to Order
And Bought for CASH, to be
SOLD AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
MEN'S ALL KIP BOOT FOR $2.50
WOMEN'S SHOES 90c to $2.
And Boots and Shoes of All kinds until you can't rest.
At the Boot Upside Down.

Virginia always was a progressive State. Just now they are agitating the restablishment of the whipping post. A correspondent of a Richmond paper says, that scores of old farmers would ride twenty miles, to beg the pleasure to give a nigger a "good nine and thirty," while to revel in the rare luxury of whaling a lank, lean, New England Yankee, redolent of codfish, they would fight.

They do things in good shape in Michigan. At the Adrian fair last week an enthused speaker offered a sixty-five dollar cook-stove to any country couple who would come forward and be hitched. Mr. Abner Crompton and Miss Jane Hayes put up and were united in the bonds by J. P. on the speaker's stand, chucked the sixty-five dollar stove into their wagon and went home happy to housekeeping, but they notifying the authorities that they intended contesting for a premium cradle at next year's fair.

Joe Beugnot, of the St. Nicholas Saloon, wishes to inform his friends that he has just received a full stoc of the choicest wines, liquors, etc. His aim will be to make his saloon one of the best in Auburn, and from his experience in the business feels confident that he can cater to the wants of all who may call on him in a satisfactory manner. Joe will also keep a stock of cigars of the choicest brands. A call is solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. A Pool table is kept in connection with his saloon.

Joe. Beugnot.

Logansport Argus: "The Citizens' Bank of this city, owned by Jacob and Simon Wile, closed its doors last Monday morning. The immediate cause of this suspension of business was a scarcity of currency and an impossibility, under the present depressed condition of affairs, to convert its securities into ready funds sufficient to meet the unusual demands of depositors. It is believed that the business of the bank can be entirely closed up without the loss of a dollar to any of the creditors, but it will require a little time to convert the assets into ready money."

Old Uncle Dan.

Is the title of an excellent new song, by Horace Dumars. Thousands of songs have been published in America, within the last few years, but few ever contain merit enough to become very popular. The above song is a gem, in fact, one of the sweetest negro melodies, ever put before the music loving public. Sung nightly with immense success, by Milt. G. Barlow, of minstrel fame. Price, 40 cents per copy. The title page is illustrated, and contains a fine view of a Southern plantation scene —can be obtained from any large music dealer, or from the publisher, F. W. Helmick, No. 50 West Fourth Street, Cincinnatti, O.

About thirty surviving members of Co. D. 88th Indiana, assembled in Ensley's Hall Friday last. Scott Swan, president in the chair, and Allen H. Dougal, secretary. A very pleasant and profitable re-union was had and many reminiscences of former times were talked over, letters received from many absent comrades were read, which brought to remembrance their absent faces. A roll call of 70 members of 115 members were either present or accounted for. The same officers were elected for another year. The next reunion will be held at Fort Wayne, Dec. 29th, 1877, the anniversary of the battle of Stone River, when an invitation is extended to all other companies of the 88 to assemble to effect an organization of the entire regiment. The old battle flags were present and were objects of considerable attention.

Physicians highly reccommed the use of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup for coughs or colds of long standing and pulmonary complaints generally. It always cures in an incredibly short time. Call on your druggist and get a bottle. Only 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

Four Free Lectures.

There will be a series of free lectures given at Haverstock's Corners on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, October 31, November 1, 2, and 3, by the following persons: Helen H. Baxter, of Hamilton—subject, Home, its Influences and Surroundings. Edith S. Jackman, of Smithfield-tp.—subject, Woman's Sphere. C. C. Boyer of Franklin-tp.—subject, The Power of Right. J. M. Somers, of Waterloo,—subject, Dollars and Sense. The exercises will be opened each evening with music and prayer, and close with music and benediction. J. M. Noragon, chorister; Lettia Coates, organist

Yellow fever is spreading in Florida and South Carolina, and the most piteous appeals for aid are coming up from those states. The mayor of Port Royal asks for food, nourishment and nurses, for there are not enough well persons to care for the dead and dying. The same story comes from Fernandina, where the mayor says: "We need money, provisions, medicines; everything that human nature afflicted with poverty, sickness and death imparatively requires. We have to feed the well, nurse the sick, nourish the convalescent and bury the dead. We cry for help and for it now. In the name of our smitten community, in the name of brotherhood humanity, in the name of the God who has touched us with this woeful judgment, we implore you to give us help."

On last Thursday a young man by the name of Henry White met with a serious if not fatal accident. He was assisting to take down the steam shovel at St. Joe gravel pit and in lifting a heavy side beam of the frame he slipped and fell, the piece of timber striking him just above the knee of the left leg breaking and bruising the limb and joint and crushing the flesh severely. He was at once put on the local train to be carried to Garrett, and Dr. Spooner, the railroad doctor for this district, was telegraphed to be in attendance at the Junction on the arrival of the train. On his arrival at Garrett and an examination had been made, it was found that the leg would have to be amputated and on Friday evening the leg was taken off between the thigh and knee. Some hopes are entertained of his recovery, but as he had lost a great deal of blood it will be a close call for him At last accounts he was improving slowly.

There are no diseases of the nerve system but can be cured by Lawson's Curative. Aggravated cases of neuralgia, tic douloureux, toothache, nervous headache, sciatics, can always be relieved by energetic application of the Curative according to directions which accompany each bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

OBITUARY.

With regret we chronicle the death of Mrs. Margaret Douglass Blair, which event took place at the residence of her son-in-law, D. W. Draggoo, October 4th 1877. Mrs. B. was born in Huntington county, Penn. Oct. 6th, 1792, and was married to John Blair, June, 8th, 1820. In 1835 they removed to this county, where the deceased has lived ever since, a period of 42 years. Mrs. Blair united with the Presbyterian church at the age of 18 and has been an active member of that society. She was in the 85 year of her age.

Mother, thou hast gone and left us.
Here thy loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God that hath bereft us.
He can all our sorrows heal.

No Failure Known.

There is no case on record where Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound has failed to give satisfaction. On the other hand, wherever it has been used by our people, in severe colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis, croup whooping-cough and consumption, they are enthusiastic in its praise. Containing no opium or other dangerous drug, it does not constipate, and is safe to administer in all conditions of health. This is an important announcement, and the suffering are advised to heed it. Trial size 10 cts; large sizes 50 cts. and one dollar. Sold by F. E. Davenport. Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requirs no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

HURRAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE.
SIMPLEST & BEST.

A MAN CRAZY
Selling
SEWING MACHINES!
AT 35 DOLLARS
Go and see them.
G. H. YESBRA, AG'T.
Auburn, Indiana.

"THEY ALL DO IT!"
SAVE MONEY.
BUY YOUR
CLOTHONG AND UNDERWEAR
OF
SAM, PETE & MAX.
FORT WAYNE

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

A QUESTION of executive privilege has come up in connection with the investigation by the Pittsburgh Grand Jury of the facts and circumstances of the July riot. Subpenas have been served upon various State officials, including Gov. Hartranft, commanding them to appear and testify. They have seen fit to disobey the summons, advised thereto by the Attorney General, and the Grand Jury thereupon has [illegible] and compelled to appear and give testimony.... William C. Gilman, the extensive forger of insurance scrip, pleaded guilty in a New York court, and was sentenced to five years in the State prison.

THE amount necessary to procure the transportation from Egypt of the obelisk presented by the Khedive to the city of New York has been subscribed. The monument is the companion and counterpart of Cleopatra's Needle, and will cost $100,000 to bring over.

CHARLES H. WORTHEN, late an employe of the firm of Field, Leiter & Co., of Chicago, has recovered a verdict in the Massachusetts Supreme Court of $18,300, against the Grand Trunk railway, for the loss of a leg.

THE 100th anniversary of the surrender of the British Gen. Burgoyne was celebrated at Schuylerville, N. Y., on the 17th inst. About 40,000 people were present.

JOHN S. MORTON, the late President of the West Philadelphia Passenger Railway Company, has been held in $5,000 for further hearing on a charge of perjury in connection with the financial condition of the road.... Investigation of the affairs of the collapsed Union Bank Company, of Baltimore, shows the available assets about $4,000, of which there is $12 in cash. Liabilities, $58,000.... Flint & Co., bankers, 31 Broadway, New York, have failed. Liabilities, $115,000.

THE WEST.

A CONVENTION for furthering the improvement of the navigation of the Upper Mississippi river was in session at St. Paul last week. Resolutions were adopted urging upon Congress the necessity of an appropriation sufficient to secure good navigation from the falls of St. Anthony to the Gulf of Mexico, and indorsing the building of levees by the General Government.... The Chicago papers chronicle the death of Daniel O'Hara, a prominent citizen and leading Democratic politician.

A SINGULARLY horrible tragedy was enacted in a Chicago hotel a few days ago. A man named J. M. Gladden, hailing from Iowa, murdered a married woman, the wife of one Bell, with whom he had been criminally intimate, by cutting her throat, and then ended his own life by the same means.... The Kansas City Times states that grave doubts exist as to the guilt of Joel Collins, who was recently killed as one of the Union Pacific train robbers, and his father, a wealthy citizen of Dallas, Texas, has employed counsel to investigate the matter. It is claimed that Collins could not have been present at the train robbery, that he was returning from the Black Hills, where he had sold a drove of cattle for $20,000, and his conduct when captured is accounted for on the hypothesis that he supposed he had fallen in the hands of robbers, and was determined to resist to the end.

ANOTHER of the Union Pacific train robbers has been arrested in Callaway county, Mo. His name is James Berry.... Milwaukee telegram: "J. M. Binckley, Assistant Attorney General of the United States under President Johnson, and who has resided in this city for a year and a half past, has disappeared mysteriously. His mental condition for several days past has excited some apprehension."

JAMES BERRY, the Pacific railroad robber captured in Callaway county, Mo., has died of the wounds inflicted by the Sheriff while arresting him. He made a confession to the effect that Collins, who was killed in Kansas, planned the robbery; that the names of the other men were correct is now known by the Express Company, and that they all traveled 200 miles together, and then separated in squads of two. Berry's partner went to Chicago. The President of a national bank in Wichita, Kan., has been found guilty of embezzlement in appropriating the bank's funds to his own use, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment to the penitentiary.... A most gigantic swindle has been brought to light at Kansas City, Mo., by the arrest of J. R. Ham, Edward L. Stevens and George Miller, on a requisition of Gov. Hubbard, of Texas, on a charge of forging land titles and issuing deeds for large tracts of land in Texas. An immense amount of land has been conveyed by them under many aliases and to many different parties.

GENERAL.

A New York dispatch informs us that "the railway companies have advanced rates on westward freights 33⅓ per cent."....A steamer sailed from New York for London, the other day, with 180 stone-cutters on board. These men go out under a year's contract, at 9d. per hour. Another company of 100 is soon to follow.... The storm of last week was the most destructive experienced for years on Lake Erie. Numerous wrecks are reported, in many instances accompanied by loss of life.... Niles G. Parker, ex-State Treasurer of South Carolina, has been arrested in Jersey City and lodged in the county jail on a requisition from Gov. Hampton, of South Carolina, charging him with plundering the State. He says he is willing to turn State's evidence.

EDWARDS PIERREPONT, United States Minister to the Court of St. James, has tendered his resignation.

TUCSON (Arizona) telegram: "A most serious and threatening state of affairs exists at El Paso, Texas. The entire lower portion of El Paso county is in possession of the mob, and Americans throughout the county have abandoned their homes and fled to El Paso for safety. Judge Howard, who killed Louis Cordis, succeeded in making his escape to Messilla, where he still remains. Cordis is said to have been the leader of the mob, who are all more desperate and threatening in consequence of his death. A large number of outlaws are encamped near the county-seat. They declare they will fight the troops if the latter attempt to make arrests. Judge Blaker is en route from Fort Piavis with troops to restore order."

A WASHINGTON telegram to the Chicago Tribune says: "An Indiana gentleman of prominence who has arrived here says that Senator Morton can never again come to Washington. He gives the following description of his present condition: With the exception of slight activity in his arms, Senator Morton's body is practically dead below the chin, and it is with difficulty that nourishment of any kind can be administered to him." The sick Senator was removed last week from Richmond to Indianapolis.

A TELEGRAM from the Chicago Times' correspondent with the Sitting Bull Commission brings information that the fugitive chieftain has consented to meet and treat with the commission at Fort Walsh. Sitting Bull has with him fifty Nez Perces warriors, who escaped from the Bear's Paw fight, and their case may possibly complicate the duties of the commission somewhat.

A DELEGATE has been sent in from the Black Hills district to Washington, to request a Territorial Government for the new gold region. It is proposed to form a new Territory which shall be taken from Wyoming, Dakota and Montana Territories.... The number of business failures in this country thus far this year shows a large decrease, as compared with those for the corresponding time last year. Last year there were 7,050 failures, with $156,272,800 liabilities; this year there have been 6,565 failures, with $141,952,258 liabilities.

WASHINGTON.

COLUMBUS DELANO, formerly Secretary of the Interior, was caned in the streets of Washington, the other day, by ex-Judge Wright, of Indiana. Wright, it seems, was indicted for fraud some years ago, and attributes his ill-fortune to Delano.... Gen. McMillian, of Louisiana, has been appointed Pension Agent for the consolidated agencies for the Southwest, with headquarters at New Orleans, succeeding Isbel (colored), whose bond was defective.... The administration will do its utmost to secure an appropriation of at least $200,000 for the purposes of the Paris Exposition.

THE deficiency of the Navy Department is about $2,000,000; that of the Department of Justice about $250,000.... Secretary Schurz [illegible] tained at the Interior Department by the recent fire.

THE Democratic caucus for the nomination of officers of the House of Representatives was held on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 13, Hiester Clymer, of Pennsylvania, presiding. For the Speakership, Randall, Sayler and Goode were nominated, the names of Morrison and Cox having been previously withdrawn from the contest. Randall received the nomination on the first ballot, the vote standing: Randall, 107; Goode, 23; Sayler, 12. The caucus made the nomination unanimous. John G. Thompson, of Ohio, was renominated for Sergeant-at-Arms by acclamation. Adams was renominated for Clerk on the first ballot. There were three ballots for Doorkeeper, resulting in the choice of Col. Polk, of Missouri. J. M. Stewart, of Virginia, was nominated on the first ballot for re-election as Postmaster. Rev. Dr. Poisel, of the Southern Methodist Church, was nominated for Chaplain.

SENATOR HAMLIN, of Maine, has been made Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and Mr. Ferry, of Michigan, succeeds Mr. Hamlin as Chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads.

POLITICAL.

AT a meeting of the German and Independent Citizens' Committee of New York city, the other day, it was resolved that both the Democratic and Republican State tickets were unworthy of support, and the following ticket was put up: Secretary of State, John C. Churchill; Comptroller, Frederick P. Alcott; Treasurer, William L. Bostwick; Attorney General, Granville Tremain; State Engineer, Horatio Seymour, Jr.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

A CORRESPONDENT with the Czarowitz's headquarters in Bulgaria telegraphs as follows: "The severe storm of cold wind and rain which began a week ago still continues; The camps are literally lakes of mud. All roads are impracticable, except the highway between Biela and Rustchuk. The suffering of the soldiers is indescribable. No preparation has been made for winter weather. The Czarowitz, it is said, considers it impossible to winter his army in Bulgaria unless Rustchuk or some other fortress surrenders."....The Geshoff brothers, English merchants at Philippopolis, who were sentenced to death by a Turkish court-martial, have had their punishment commuted to simple banishment.

THE strength of the armies in Bulgaria is thought to be about equal. Each is believed to have about 200,000 men....The Czar has decreed that every soldier may be promoted a commissioned officer for distinguished services on passing the usual examination.

TELEGRAMS from Sistova give favorable accounts of the Russian preparation for a winter campaign. Vast stores of corn and forage have been laid in at the depots along the roads, but the mud is frightful. On the road two miles south of the Simnitza it takes eight horses and twenty men pushing behind to get a light wagon through. The railway from Fratesti to Simnitza is progressing rapidly....Deserters from Plevna report that Osman Pasha's army is destitute of clothing and ammunition, and scantily provisioned. The men and officers are tired fighting and suffering, and disposed to surrender....A correspondent at Cettinje reports that the bulk of the Montenegrin army has been dismissed to sow the crops.

A DISPATCH from Moscow, dated Oct. 17, says private telegrams received there state that on Monday the Russians attacked Mukhtar Pasha's new positions. The Caucasian grenadiers stormed Alwias hill, forming the key to the Turkish position. A two hours' engagement ensued, resulting in the flight of Mukhtar Pasha in the direction of Kars or Erzeroum. The Russians pursued. The Turks lost many prisoners, cannon, and rifles, and a quantity of provisions.

THE reported defeat of the Turks in Asia is fully confirmed. A London dispatch furnishes the following particulars of the battle: "Sunday, the 14th, the Russian division turned Mukhtar's right, and on Monday Gen. Heymann, with 10,000 infantry, carried Olya Tepe, the key of the Turkish position, by assault, cutting the Turkish army in two. The center and left wing, under Mukhtar himself, retreated upon Kars, pursued by Gen. Heymann, and harassed in flank by Gen. Lazareff, but succeeded in gaining the cover of the fortifications after a fearful rout, during which the Turks lost a great number in killed and wounded, several thousand prisoners and four guns. Three divisions constituting the Turkish right had, meantime, been surrounded and attacked, and driven from their fortified camp with great loss. Finally, at 8 o'clock, Monday night, a remnant of this portion of Mukhtar's army surrendered with thirty-two guns and a great quantity of material. Among the persons captured are seven Pashas. Mukhtar Pasha is in Kars. The Russian losses are stated to be relatively slight.

AS ADDITIONAL particulars are received of the recent battle in Asia, the magnitude of the Russian victory and the disastrous extent of the Turkish defeat become apparent. It is now estimated that the Russians captured thirty-two battalions of infantry, four brigades of artillery, 100 officers and 2,000 horses, besides an enormous quantity of military stores and provisions. The Turkish loss from all sources is stated at 16,000 men.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

A PARIS telegram says that "Gambetta has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $800 for placarding his recent address to the electors of his arondissement. The printer of the address was sentenced to fifteen days' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $400."

ONE Bedel, claiming to be an American citizen, rendered himself conspicuous in the French electoral contest, was expelled from the country by order of the Government, and has sought reparation through the American legation at Paris.

THE election in France for members of the Chamber of Deputies has resulted in a signal victory for the Republicans, who have succeeded in securing a fair working majority. It remains to be seen, however, whether the Marshal-President, backed as he is by all the monarchical and anti-Republican elements of the nation, will submit gracefully to the people's verdict.... A large private bank in Vienna, Austria, has failed, with liabilities of £1,500,000....War is threatened between Great Britain and Afghanistan....A Berlin dispatch says the total losses by the failure of the Ritterschaftliche Bank, of Stettin, will probably amount to over 15,000,000 marks....A terrible gale swept over England, Ireland and Scotland on the night of the 14th inst., doing immense damage to property on land and sea.

A REPORT comes from San Domingo, to the effect that a revolution is in full progress aginst the Baez Government.

SERIOUS riots in Poland are reported by St. Petersburgh dispatches. One of them appears to have resulted in something like a battle, for the killed and wounded among the insurgents numbered a hundred and forty.

THE famous monolith known as Cleopatra's needle was abandoned off the coast of Spain by the steamer having it in tow, during a tremendous gale. The crew on the craft which contained the obelisk were transferred to the Olga, but not until the Olga had lost her second mate and five hands in her endeavor to rescue them. The lost needle was subsequently discovered by another steamer and again started on its voyage to England.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

MONDAY, Oct. 15.—SENATE.—Senators were early in their places, and the usual bustle attending the opening of the session prevailed.... The oath of office was administered to Stanley Matthews (Ohio), elected in the place of John Sherman, resigned; J. Don Cameron, in place of Simon Cameron, resigned; and D. H. Armstrong, who was appointed from Missouri, vice L. V. Bogy, deceased; after which the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The House was called to order by Clerk Adams promptly at 12 o'clock. The roll of members by States was called, beginning with Maine. When Louisiana was reached, the Clerk said that three sets of returns had been received from that State—the first signed by John McEnery. As Mr. McEnery was never recognized as a de facto Governor, the certificates signed by him would not be considered. The second set was signed by W. P. Kellogg, and reached the Clerk at different times and by different channels. In regard to the latter, Clerk Adams said that the certificates signed were not in compliance with the laws of Louisiana, and therefore not proper credentials. He could not recognize them or put the names of members holding such certificates on the rolls. The third set was signed by F. O. Nicholls, as Governor, was in due form and in accordance with the laws of Louisiana, and the names of the members holding the certificates signed by Nicholls had been placed on the rolls. When Colorado was reached Adams said he had excluded the names of Messrs. Belford and Patterson, both claiming seats from that State. There were 287 members present. Samuel J. Randall was elected Speaker, receiving 149 votes to 132 for James A. Garfield. The oath of office was administered to the Speaker, who then administered the oath to the members. Most of the Southern members took the qualified oath. Objection was made to swearing in Cain and Rainey, of South Carolina; Darrall, Elam and Robertson, of Louisiana, and Pacheco, of California, and those members stood aside. The delegates for the Territories were all sworn in without objection. Mr. Clymer offered a resolution electing, as Clerk, George M. Adams, of Kentucky; Sergeant-at-Arms, John G. Thompson, of Ohio; Doorkeeper, John W. Polk, of Missouri; Postmaster, James M. Stewart, of Virginia; and as Chaplain, the Rev. Dr. John Poisel, of Maryland. Mr. Hale offered an amendment substituting for those names those of Jeremiah M. Rusk, of Wisconsin; N. G. Ordway, of New Hampshire; Horace H. Harrison, of Tennessee; Henry Sherwood, of Michigan; and the Rev. J. G. Butler, of Washington. The amendment was rejected, and the resolution adopted without a division. The oath of office was then administered to these officers. Messrs. Polk and Stewart taking the modified oath....After the drawing of seats by the members the House adjourned.

TUESDAY, Oct. 16.—SENATE.—A large number of bills and petitions were presented and referred. Among the petitions were many favoring an increase of the compensation of letter-carriers. Among the bills was one offered by Mr. Beck for the removal of all disabilities imposed by the Fourteenth amendment. Referred....Mr. Thurman introduced a bill to amend the Pacific Railroad acts, so as to create a sinking fund for the liquidation of the indebtedness due to the Government by the Pacific Railroad Companies....Memorials from the Missouri Legislature, in favor of the removal of the national capital to the Mississippi valley, and in relation to a national system of levees for the Mississippi river, were referred....Mr. Ingalls introduced a bill granting arrears of pensions. Referred....A bill to establish the Territory of Huron, and provide a temporary government therefor, was referred; also, a bill to establish a branch mint at Omaha....Mr. Rogers, Private Secretary to the President, delivered the message. It was read immediately by Secretary Gorham, ordered printed, and referred.

HOUSE.—Mr. Hale, of Maine, called up the Colorado election case. Mr. Cox raised a point of order that the disputed elections must be considered in order. Objected to, and the motion to call up Colorado was lost....A long discussion took place on the question of swearing in the two South Carolina members, Rainey and Cain, whose names were put on the roll by the clerk. Mr. Cox wanted the question referred to the Committee on Elections, but it was contended, among others by two Democrats, Messrs. Miles and Potter, that, as the gentlemen had the usual legal certificate of election, they should be sworn in, and then their right to seats might be referred. This view prevailed, and Rainey and Cain were sworn in....Objection was withdrawn in the case of Darrall, of Louisiana, and he also was sworn in....The case of Elam, of Louisiana, was discussed, but no result reached....The President's message was read, and referred to the committee of the whole....The rules of the last House were adopted.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 17.—SENATE.—Mr. Beck introduced a bill authorizing the payment of 50 per cent. of customs duties in legal-tender notes. Referred....Mr. Thurman presented the credentials of Henry M. Spofford, Senator from Louisiana, from March 4, 1877, and asked that they be read and Mr. Spofford sworn in. The credentials having been read, Mr. Mitchell moved that they be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Finally Mr. Edmunds appealed to Mr. Thurman to let the subject lie over for a day. Mr. Thurman consented, having no desire to force the Senator to vote if he was not ready to do so....Bills were introduced and referred authorizing the citizens of Colorado, Nevada and the Territories to fell and remove timber on the public domain for mining and domestic purposes; to prevent abuses in the sale of postage stamps and stamped envelopes....Mr. McCreary introduced a bill to repeal the bankrupt law and all the acts amendatory thereto....Mr. Edmunds submitted the following: Resolved, That a select committee of seven Senators be appointed, whose duty it shall be to take into consideration the state of the law respecting the ascertaining and declaration of the result of the election of President and Vice President of the United States, and that said committee have power to report by bill or otherwise....The President sent in a large number of nominations, mostly of persons who were appointed during the recess of the Senate. The only new one of importance was that of Hon. John M. Harlan, to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

HOUSE.—After the reading of the journal the disputed election case from the Fourth District of Louisiana was taken up, the question being upon the resolution of Mr. Leonard, referring the claims of Elam and Smith, the contestants, to the Committee on Elections, to decide who has a right to the seat, and a long discussion on points of order followed. Mr. Gibson offered a substitute providing for the immediate swearing in of J. B. Elam. After debate the substitute was adopted—yeas, 144; nays, 119. Mr. Elam took the modified oath. Mr. Frye offered a resolution reciting that Charles N. Nash had presented a certificate of election signed by Gov. Kellogg, then the duly recognized and acting Governor of Louisiana, but that the Clerk of the House had declined to place Nash's name on the roll, but had substituted E. W. Robertson on the authority of a paper signed by Gov. Nicholls, and directing that the name of Robertson be struck off the roll and Nash be sworn in. After debate a substitute offered by Mr. Ellis that Robertson be sworn in was agreed to, and the modified oath of office was administered....The case of Pacheco, of California, was then called up, when Mr. Garfield moved that the oath of office be administered, which was agreed to after discussion, and Mr. Pacheco took his seat.

THURSDAY, Oct. 18.—SENATE.—Consideration was resumed of Mr. Thurman's resolution to have the oath administered to Mr. Spofford, of Louisiana, the pending question being the substitute referring the credentials to a committee. After debate, by a vote of 36 yeas and 33 nays, the substitute was agreed to, and the credentials of Spofford were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Mr. Davis (Ill.) voted with the Democrats against reference. A motion of Mr. White instructing the committee to report on or before the 1st of November, 1877, was rejected—yeas, 31; nays, 35. The committee was also instructed to consider and report upon the credentials of William Pitt Kellogg. Mr. Thurman moved that J. B. Eustis be sworn in as Senator from Louisiana. Laid over.

HOUSE.—Not in session.

Turks and Temperance.

The unspeakable Turk is doing his share of the missionary work of the world by delivering one of the greatest temperance lectures ever listened to. The endurance of the Turkish soldiers, and the facility with which they recover from the most desperate wounds, are justly attributed to their temperate habits of eating and their entire abstinence from alcoholic drinks.—Toledo Blade.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Delivered in the Extra Session of the Forty-fifth Congress.

Fellow-citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives:

The adjournment of the last Congress without making appropriations for the support of the army for the present fiscal year has rendered necessary a suspension of payments to the officers and men of the sums due them for services rendered after the 30th day of June last. The army exists by virtue of the statutes which prescribe its numbers, regulate its organization and employment, and which fix the pay of its officers and men, and declare the right to receive the same at stated periods. The statutes, however, do not authorize the payment of the troops in the absence of a specific appropriation therefor. The constitution has wisely provided that no money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law, and it has also been declared by statute that no department of the Government shall expend, in any one fiscal year, any sum in excess of the appropriation made by Congress for that fiscal year. We have, therefore, an army in service, authorized by law, and entitled to be paid, but no funds available for that purpose. It may also be said as an additional incentive to prompt action by Congress, that since the commencement of the fiscal year the army, though without pay, has been constantly and actively employed in arduous and dangerous service, in the performance of which both officers and men have discharged their duty with fidelity and courage, and without complaint. These circumstances, in my judgment, constitute an extraordinary occasion, requiring Congress to be convened in advance of the time prescribed by law for your meeting in regular session. The importance of speedy action upon this subject on the part of Congress is so manifest that I venture to suggest the propriety of making the necessary appropriations for the support of the army for the current year at its present maximum—a numerical strength of 25,000 men—leaving for future consideration all questions relating to an increase or decrease of the number of enlisted men. In the event of the reduction of the army by subsequent legislation during the fiscal year the excess of the appropriation could not be expended, and, in the event of its enlargement, the additional sum required for the payment of the extra force could be provided in due time. It would be unjust to the troops now in service, and whose pay is already largely in arrears, if payment to them should be further postponed until after Congress shall have considered all the questions likely to arise in the effort to fix the proper limit to the strength of the army. The estimates of appropriations for the support of the military establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1878, were transmitted to Congress by the former Secretary of the Treasury, at the opening of its session in December last. These estimates, modified by the present Secretary, so as to conform to the present requirements, are now renewed, amounting to $32,436,764.98, and, having been transmitted to both houses of Congress, are submitted for your consideration.

There is also required by the Navy Department $2,386,127. This sum is made up of $1,446,888 due to the officers and enlisted men for the last quarter of the last fiscal year; $311,933.50 is due for advances made by the Fiscal Agent of the Government in London for the support of the foreign service, and $50,000 is due to the Naval Hospital fund; $150,000 is due for arrearages of pay to officers, and $45,219.58 for the support of the Marine Corps. There will also be needed an appropriation of $262,535.22 to defray the unsettled expenses of the United States courts for the fiscal year ending June 30 last, now due to attorneys, Clerks, Commissioners and Marshals, and for rent of court-rooms, the support of prisoners and other deficiencies.

A part of the building of the Interior Department was destroyed by fire on the 24th of last month. Some immediate repairs and temporary structures have in consequence become necessary, estimates for which will be transmitted to Congress immediately, and an appropriation of the requisite funds is respectfully recommended.

The Secretary of the Treasury will communicate to Congress, in connection with the estimates for the appropriations for the support of the army for the current fiscal year, estimates for such other deficiencies in the different branches of the public service as require immediate action, and cannot, without inconvenience, be postponed until the regular session.

I take this opportunity to invite your attention to the propriety of adopting, at your present session, the necessary legislation to enable the people of the United States to participate in the advantages of the International Exhibition of agricultural industry and the fine arts, which is to be held in Paris in 1878, and in which this Government has been invited by the Government of France to take part. This invitation was communicated to this Government in May, 1876, by the Minister of France at this capital, and a copy thereof was submitted to the proper committees of Congress at its last session, but no action was taken on the subject. The Department of State has received many letters from various parts of the country expressing a desire to participate in the exhibition, and numerous applications of a similar nature have also been made at the United States Legation at Paris. The Department of State has also received official advice of the strong desire on the part of the French Government that the United States should participate in this enterprise, and space has hitherto been, and is still, reserved in the Exposition Buildings for the use of exhibitors from the United States, to the exclusion of other parties who have been applicants therefor.

In order that our industries may be properly represented at the exhibition, an appropriation will be needed for the pay of salaries and expenses of Commissioners; for the transportation of goods, and for other purposes in connection with the object in view, and, as May next is the time fixed for the opening of the exhibition, if our citizens are to share the advantages of this international competition for the trade of other nations, the necessity of immediate action is apparent. To enable the United States to co-operate in the International Exhibition which was held at Vienna in 1873, Congress then passed a joint resolution, making an appropriation of $200,000, and authorizing the President to appoint a certain number of practical artisans and scientific men, who should attend the exhibition and report their proceedings and observations to him. Provision was made for the appointment of a number of honorary Commissioners. I have felt that prompt action by Congress, in accepting the invitation of the Government of France, is of so much interest to the people of this country, and so suitable to the cordial relations between the Governments of the two countries, that the subject might properly be presented for attention at your present session.

The Government of Sweden and Norway has addressed an official invitation to this Government to take part in the International Prison Congress, to be held at Stockholm next year. The problem which the congress proposes to study—how to diminish crime—is one in which all civilized nations have an interest in common, and the congress of Stockholm seems likely to prove the most important convention ever held for the study of this grave question. Under authority of a joint resolution of Congress, approved Feb. 10, 1875, a commission was appointed by my predecessor to represent the United States upon that occasion, and the Prison Congress having been, at the earnest desire of the Swedish Government, postponed to 1878, his commission was renewed by me. An appropriation of $8,000 was made in the Sundry Civil-Service act of 1875 so as to meet the expenses of the Commissioner. I recommend the reappropriation of that sum for the same purpose, the former appropriation having been covered into the treasury and being no longer available for the purpose without further action by Congress. The subject is brought to your attention at this time in view of circumstances which render it highly desirable that the Commissioner should proceed to the discharge of his important duties immediately.

As the several acts of Congress providing for detailed reports from the different departments of the Government require their submission at the beginning of the regular annual session, I defer, until that time, any further reference to subjects of public interest.

(Signed) R. B. HAYES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15, 1877.

END OF THE INDIAN WAR.

The Campaign Against the Nez Perces—Gen. Miles' Brilliant but Dearly-Purchased Victory.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

After 257 years of incessant warfare with the Indians in every part of the United States, commenced by that gallant and godly old Indian fighter, Miles Standish, and concluded by another Miles, equally gallant, and, for aught we know, equally godly, the end of Indian wars seems to be at hand. Unless signs fail, the limits of Indian wars on this continent by the people of the United States will be 1620 on the one hand and 1877 on the other. During the past two years, the most formidable conflicts have been with the Sioux under Sitting Bull and the Nez Perces under Chief Joseph. After the massacre of Custer's command, in June, 1876, and Reno's defense of himself, the Sioux were followed up and punished so severely that Sitting Bull, with a portion of his command, finally fled over the border into Canada for protection, where he has already succeeded so well in provoking the Canadians that they are ready to give him up. The rest of his warriors have already been corraled, Lame Deer having surrendered early in September with the last of the flock, thus entirely clearing the Black Hills and Big Horn country of all the hostile Sioux. The next tribe to engage the attention of the military authorities was the Nez Perces, who, early in the summer, under their Chief Joseph, commenced an indiscriminate massacre of white settlers in Oregon. Their raids assumed at last such a desperate, and at the same time such a successful, character that Gen. Howard at once commenced operations so as not only to protect the whites but to prevent other hostile Indians from joining them. The first serious encounter with them was the attack made by Gen. Gibbon at Big Hole, which resulted so disastrously to the latter's command. Twenty-nine officers and privates were killed and forty wounded. The Indians escaped and made their way north. Thoroughly organized pursuit was made to prevent their reaching the British possessions, which was evidently their destination. Four columns under Gen. Howard, Col. Sturges, Gen. Merritt and Gen. Miles, closely followed them. On the 28th of August Gen. Howard came up with them, but they escaped him. Meanwhile they had flanked Sturges, but he followed them so closely that he caught up with them on the Yellowstone, and on the 14th ult. had a desperate fight with them on Canon creek, in which he punished them severely, captured a large portion of their herds and stock, and drove them several miles. They succeeded, however, in escaping Sturges, and kept on their northerly course until the 30th ult., when Gen. Miles surprised them coming out of the Bear's Paw mountains, in the extreme northern part of Montana and near the British frontier. A desperate battle ensued, lasting all day, in which twenty-three of Gen. Miles' command were killed and forty-four wounded, the Indians losing seventeen killed, among them five of their chiefs. The battle was kept up for five days, the Indians fortifying their positions in deep ravines with well-constructed rifle-pits and fighting with the courage of desperation. Gen. Miles' command not being strong enough to risk an open attack upon the Indian position, he invested it with the intention of waiting until either Howard or Sturges should come up. His investment was made so close that it commanded the Indians' supply of water. The Nez Perces were bagged at last, and, as it was only a question of a few days at furthest how soon they would be attacked in their hole, Chief Joseph came out and surrendered to Gen. Miles. As Gen. Howard did not come up until after the surrender, and Gen. Sturges had no part in the five days' fight, the glory of the capture belongs to Gen. Miles. None the less are all the troops engaged in the pursuit deserving of credit. The chase has been a long one, from Oregon to Montana, over trackless wastes, across creeks and streams without number, over mountains and through ravines and canons. Our troops have suffered severely, especially the Seventh Cavalry, Custer's old regiment, which has lost fifteen of its commissioned officers, but we may assume now that there will be no further serious loss of life from Indian hostilities. With the corraling of the Sioux, the surrender of Sitting Bull, and the capture of Chief Joseph and his Nez Perces, the backbone of the Indian war is broken, and there are no more hostiles on the war-path who cannot be easily handled. The future of the Indian question, therefore, now depends upon the civilizing, not the punishing, of the Indian. It is probable that the wild Indians will be first placed in reservations upon the Missouri and kept there until they are sufficiently tamed and subdued to be introduced with safety into the Indian Territory. To place them there now, with their savage dispositions, would be like corraling a pack of wolves in a sheep-fold. Constant trouble, if not another war, would be the result. The future of the Indian is none the less interesting, now that the long conflict between savagery and civilization has come substantially to a close. To civilize him and change him from a beast of prey into a reading, working, law-abiding citizen, will be a problem requiring more anxiety, diligence, and skill than it has taken to subjugate him.

Analysis of Petroleum.

Anything in relation to petroleum is presumed to be interesting at the present time, and for this reason it may not be out of place to notice that the chemical constituents of rock oil are carbon and hydrogen, generally ninety parts carbon and ten parts hydrogen, by weight. The proportions form about an equal bulk, carbon being heavy while hydrogen is light and volatile. Originally, they both existed as gases, and by their union they form protocarburet of hydrogen, which, being condensed, forms naphtha, or light volatile oil, and, after the escape of a portion of hydrogen, the product is heavy petroleum. By a further escape of hydrogen, the product becomes more solid as bitumen, pitch or asphaltum, the highest stages of condensation being cannel, bituminous and anthracite coal. The diamond is the purest state of solidified carbon, and is probably a crystalization of carbonic acid gas, unadulterated by hydrogen. Coal oil is artificially produced by converging coal into gas, adding a proper equivalent of hydrogen and then condensing the gas. Iron, sulphuric acid and water, when placed in contact, give off hydrogen gas. Burning charcoal gives off carbonic acid gas. Mix these gases in proper proportion, subject them to heat under confinement, then allow the heated gas to escape through water, and the condensation will produce carbon oil on the surface of the water, but it will cost about ten dollars a gallon, even if you get through without an explosion.—Osceola Reveille.

TWEED'S CONFESSION.

The Boss Thief Makes a Clean Breast of It, and "Gives Away" His Fellow-Conspirators.

The New York Herald devotes three pages to the confession of Tweed, which is certainly one of the most remarkable documents ever published, and which the Herald alleges is perfectly genuine. The confession begins with the following statement: "For years Mr. Tweed has borne a burden of mental and physical punishment which others, with equal justice, should have shared; and younger men than he might well have succumbed to it. Up to this time no arguments could induce him to break the silence which, from the first, he has kept. He is now an old man, is suffering from a disease which his imprisonment but aggravates, and he sadly needs rest from the mental strain to which he has so long been subjected. From his former companions in crime he feels himself isolated. Those whom he looked upon as his friends in his palmy days, and for whose offenses he has silently suffered, have not only held themselves aloof from him, but some have become the loudest in their denunciations of him. Mr. Tweed asks nothing further from them. He will recognize no further claim that they make upon him for silence. Henceforth, if the people will accept him as their witness, Mr. Tweed promises to do all that lies in his power to rectify the great wrongs that he has done.

"Mr. Tweed says that the first combination was a political one, and commenced when John T. Hoffman was Mayor of New York, and was composed of Charles G. Cornell (Street Commissioner), John T. Hoffman (Mayor), Peter B. Sweeney, Matthew T. Brennan, and William M. Tweed. These gentlemen were in the habit of dining together in the City Hall, in the keeper's room, and there promised fidelity and devotion to each other."

The following prominent persons are involved, among others, in Tweed's confession:

Thomas J. Creamer.
John B. Van Pellen.
Stephen J. Williams, Republican Senator.
Albert G. Mattoon, Republican Senator.
William M. Graham, Democratic Senator.
George Beach, Democratic Senator.
John F. Hubbard, Democratic Senator.
W. J. Humphrey, Republican Senator.
Samuel H. Frost, Democratic Senator.
Henry W. Genet, Democratic Senator.
M. Norton, Democratic Senator.
A. Bleecker Banks, Democratic Senator.
Isaiah Blood, Democratic Senator.
Norris Winslow, Republican Senator.
Aug. R. Elwood, Republican Senator.
William N. Brand, Republican Senator.
Abraham B. Harpenning, Republican Senator.
William B. Woodin, Republican Senator.
Theodore S. Mimer, Republican Senator.
George Bowen, Republican Senator.
James Wood, Republican Senator.

The array of names is a startling one, and shows that all other swindles sink into insignificance beside this mammoth robbery of the tax-payers of New York.

Wages of Railroad Men in England.

Railroad wages in England are reported by the Railway Service Gazette to be, on an average, about 25s ($6.08) per week for "pointsmen," $6.80 for "shunters," $7.30 to $8.25 for passenger "guards" (conductors), $7.78 to $8.28 for "goods guards" (freight conductors), and $10.21 for "engine drivers." The Railway Service Gazette adds: "The amounts are probably in some cases added to by over-time, while in many others they are not reached, owing to loss of time through illness or temporary disablement from accident."

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$7 75	@12 25
HOGS	5 50	@ 5 80
COTTON	11¼	@ 11½
FLOUR—Superfine	4 75	@ 5 40
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 30	@ 1 31
CORN—Western Mixed	59	@ 61
OATS—Mixed	32	@ 37
RYE—Western	68	@ 70
PORK—New Mess	14 30	@14 40
LARD	8¾	@ 9
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@ 5 50
Choice Natives	4 60	@ 5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 50
HOGS—Live	4 25	@ 5 40
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 60	@ 5 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 09	@ 1 09½
No. 3 Spring	1 04	@ 1 04½
CORN—No. 2	42	@ 43
OATS—No 2	23	@ 24
RYE—No. 2	52	@ 53
BARLEY—No. 2	58	@ 59
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	29	@ 33
EGGS—Fresh	17	@ 18
PORK—Mess	14 30	@14 50
LARD	8½	@ 8¾
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 13	@ 1 14½
No 2	1 10	@ 1 11
CORN—No. 2	42	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	22	@ 23
RYE—No. 1	53	@ 54
BARLEY—No. 2	61	@ 63
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 3 Red Fall	1 28	@ 1 29
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	41	@ 42
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
RYE	55	@ 56
PORK—Mess	14 15	@ ....
LARD	8¾	@ 9
HOGS	4 90	@ 5 40
CATTLE	3 00	@ 5 00
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 20	@ 1 30
CORN	45	@ 46
OATS	27	@ 32
RYE	57	@ 59
PORK—Mess	13 75	@14 00
LARD	8¾	@ 9¼
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White Michigan	1 36	@ 1 36
No. 2 Red Winter	1 27	@ 1 29
CORN	46	@ 47
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Choice White	6 25	@ 6 50
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 32	@ 1 33
No. 1 Amber	1 28	@ 1 30
CORN—No. 1	48	@ 49
OATS—Mixed	26	@ 27
BARLEY (per cental)	1 10	@ 1 40
PORK—Mess	15 75	@16 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	5 00	@ 5 50
Fair	4 75	@ 5 00
Common	3 50	@ 4 00
HOGS	5 00	@ 5 90
SHEEP	3 50	@ 5 25

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

In Harvest-Time.

From the reddening forest
Drop the yellow leaves
Sturdy reapers merrily
Are binding up the sheaves.

Yonder goes the laden wain,
Rumbling on its way,
Shaking like a jovial host
[illegible]

Streaks of sunset [illegible]
Their way across the sky;
And on the upland spaces
The colors glow and die.

The mists are on the distance;
But like a polished shield,
Hit by a thousand lances,
Lies one unsickled field.

—Good Words.

Around the Farm.

We have never tried parsley on the table, but we know there is nothing better for pigs in summer.—Atlanta Constitution.

To utilize feathers of ducks, chickens and turkeys, generally thrown aside as refuse, trim the plumes from the stump, inclose them in a tight bag, rub the whole as if washing clothes, and you will secure a perfectly uniform and light down, excellent for quilting into coverlets and not a few other purposes.—Morris Rural.

I had three large bowlders in one of my fields. They weighed about three, four and five tons, respectively. I took some old stumps, old fence rail, several brush heaps, and the small limbs of an old apple tree—in all I had perhaps a little over half a cord of wood. I put it upon the bowlders and set it on fire, and it made them as full of cracks as if it were glass. The heaviest piece did not weigh over 100 pounds, and some of the smallest pieces did not weigh over five pounds. Some kinds of stones will not crack at all, while others will crack into a hundred pieces with less than one-fourth of a cord of wood burned around them.—Ohio Farmer.

Timber for building purposes or for the use of coopers or wheelwrights, should never be cut before December or January, when the circulation of the sap is thoroughly arrested. Immediately the tree is cut down, it should be freed from all shoots and branches, and sawn into planks as soon as possible, so that these may be at once seasoned by exposure to the air. By taking these precautions decay and dry-rot will be avoided, and the wood will keep excellently; but, of course, the advice is intended only for those who get out their own lumber, or can have it done according to their wishes, for the greed of dealers will force the cutting of timber at untimely seasons.—Exchange.

The question how to apply superphosphate depend on what crop it is applied to. If on a crop that is cultivated in hills, like potatoes or corn, the superphosphate should be put in the hill and mixed with the earth before seed is planted, to prevent injury by contact. If for ridged crops, superphosphate should be sown broadcast after harrowing. The ridging plow will roll it inward and mix it with the earth. For drilled crops special implements are made, which sow the manure and the seed together. When these implements are not used, the superphosphate is sown broadcast and the seed is then drilled in; or the superphosphate is composted with the barn-yard manure.—Toronto Globe.

It should be our aim to be as free from the evils of a fluctuating market as is in our power. One important step toward attaining that position is to raise all we can for the maintenance of our poultry. Oats are a surer crop than any other of the grains, and are excellent to grind for fowls, mixed with corn. Any poultry-raiser who is so fortunate as to possess a piece of land that can be used for this purpose should thoroughly prepare the soil for the reception of the seed, which may be the common, old-fashioned sort, or one of the new kinds, such as the Excelsior, Australian, or Surprise, which are full meated (weighing forty pounds to the bushel, and consequently superior to common oats. Any surplus would find a ready market at remunerative prices. — Poultry World.

Weed your Flocks.—Sell, slaughter or give away poor, scrawny animals, and it will stand you in pocket. If keeping poultry, keep only the breeds that lay most eggs or lay on most fat. Keep sheep that yield the heaviest fleeces or the heaviest carcasses; a scrub animal will fleece rather than benefit you. A cow that gives a pound of butter a day eats no more than a beast that yields a pound a week. There's a great saving in selecting for the butcher those breeds of cattle that attain their maximum weight in two years, rather than those who take four to do it. The best breed of hogs manufacture a maximum number of pounds of meat from a minimum number of bushels of corn. A "plug" of a horse does little work before "he has eaten his own head off." Three years ago a young Vermont farmer had a dairy of sixty cows. Up to last year he had weeded out twenty-five of them; and now reports that he makes just as much butter from the thirty-five selected animals as he used to make from the original sixty. Of course, he feeds and attends to the smaller number more carefully than he did to the larger, but there is a great saving in the extra food and attention that would be required by the twenty-five discarded brutes. — Rural New Yorker.

About the House.

Crab-apple Jelly.—Cut in halves and boil in water till soft; two quarts water to half-peck apples; strain and add one pound of sugar to one pint juice; boil twenty-five minutes.

Canned Crab-apples.—To five pounds apples take three pounds sugar; make a sirup, and when boiling put in apples and boil until soft; seal immediately in heated cans; no paring.

King's Pudding.—Beat six eggs; add one quart of sweet milk, one pound of white sugar, one dozen of soda crackers, four large apples, cut in very thin slices, and a little salt. Spice to taste. Bake about two hours.

A few kernels of browned or a spoonful of ground coffee smoldered on coals in a sick-room or musty room will purify it in a few moments and for a long time. Let me illustrate, even though I use strong terms. A pole-cat was killed in a hen-house, and immediately coffee was burned on the spot; the atmosphere was not only endurable on the premises that night, but next day bore less of the stench than did places three-fourths of a mile distant.—Chicago Tribune.

A Remedy for Catarrh.—Dry and powder mullein leaves as fine as you would powder sage; then smoke as you would tobacco, letting the smoke escape through the nostrils instead of the mouth. This is one of the best of remedies for catarrh in the head. It has entirely cured a case of over twenty years' standing, when every other remedy heard of had failed to do so. It may require a little practice to let the smoke escape through the nostrils. Mullein will be stronger gathered before the frost injures it, but will answer even if dug from under the snow. It will also be found an excellent remedy for cold in the head.—Cor. New York Times.

A Lion and Leopard Fight.

The following story comes from Hungary on the Danube. An encounter between animals so ill-matched in size and strength as the leopard and the lion, must rather be a slaughter than a fight; and so it proved in this case.

The Zoological Gardens at Presth have just been the scene of combat worthy of Nero or Elagabulus. The cage tenanted by a lion and lioness happened to be next to that in which dwelt a female leopard, for whom the captive queen of the forest entertained a special hatred. Probably she was jealous of the bright eyes and beautiful skin of her neighbor, and may possibly have suspected her lord and master of casting a tender regard or two across the barrier which separated the dens.

The suspicion, brooded over in silence, became a devouring passion, and it ripened into certainty at the precise moment when vengeance happened to become possible. The keeper of the gardens had inadvertently one day left hanging within the lion's cage the chain which served to draw up the partition, and the lion was not long in seizing it and beginning to pull. Whether he was animated with a spirit of fickleness or by curiosity alone must remain forever a secret.

But the result was that the partition flew up, and the road remained open from one cage to the other. Through it instantly rushed the lioness, breathing hatred and malice; but the lion had no sooner dropped the chain and prepared to follow in chase, than the portcullis fell and the passage was barred again. In the meantime, however, a struggle commenced between the two lady warriors such as has not been seen in Europe since the palmy days of the amphitheater.

The leopard, worsted at the first onset, attempted to take refuge from the foe by jumping and hanging to the top rails of the cage. It was all in vain, however. She was brought to bay again, and compelled to fight face to face with the terrible invader. For twenty long minutes the battle raged in royal style. The neck and shoulders of the lioness were deeply furrowed with red gashes. But her victim was overmatched, and at length thrown on her back, when the coup de grace was given by the savage fangs of the victor. Nothing remained, at the end of the encounter, of the pretty spotted skin but a few torn and mangled shreds.

Industry and Stupidity of the Bulgarians.

Headquarters life, dreary as it is here, is likely to become drearier when we move nearer Plevna. The villages in this immediate vicinity may be described briefly as rich and dirty. The farmers have hundreds of stacks of grain in their yards and scarcely any article of furniture in their houses. The Bulgarians strike me as a people who sit down but little. Such a piece of furniture as a chair is almost unknown among them. The beds in some of the cottages are made of baked earth, arranged in the form of a shelf near a huge window, through which cool breezes blow; but in winter there is nothing to do but to retreat to a kind of cellar. It is to be hoped that one result of the advance of the Russians will be to farther the civilization of the people in this section. They have many virtues but no graces. The women are industrious beyond praise. If they walk from one village to another they twirl their distaffs all the way, and when their household duties are over and they are talking by the fountains or in the little groves they are all busily knitting. They are avaricious here, and that which seems most to annoy them is that they should be asked to yield up some part of their store, although, let it be understood, they are always well paid for everything that is taken. Some of them do not comprehend the value of money, and look stupidly at it when it is put into their hands. They have never made any effort to assemble stores for the Russians or to aid them in any way other way than by showing them the roads and warning them of the approach of the enemy. Sometimes, in despair, one feels like comparing them to the water buffaloes. Those noble animals appear to resent any attempt to make them decent or lively as an insult to their moral character.—Edward King's Letter to he Boston Journal.

The Catholics of New England.

In 1776 there were about forty Catholics in Boston, and after the Revolution the Catholic Church made rapid progress. The first church was built in 1803. In 1825 there were 15,000 Catholics, one-half of whom were in Boston. In 1877 the statistics of the Church in New England are as follows: One Archbishop, 6 Bishops, 549 priests, 507 churches, 16 chapels and stations, 2 colleges, 168 ecclesiastical students, 32 academies and select schools, 86 parish schools, 15 asylums, 6 hospitals, and a population estimated at 900,000. There are in Boston 30 churches and chapels. Since 1840 the Catholic churches in Boston have increased five-fold. The Catholic churches are larger, as a rule, than the Protestant, and have each three or four services every Sunday. They number half the population of Boston.

The average price of a camel in the East is $80.

ANDRE'S CAPTORS.

The Truth of History.

[From the New York World.]

A monument is erecting in Schoharie county to record the virtues and exalted patriotism of David Williams, one of the three men who arrested Maj. Andre in the year 1780 as he was going to New York with papers from Gen. Benedict Arnold to Gen. Clinton, who was then in command of the British forces. From that day to this Williams, Paulding and Van Wart have had the credit of acting solely from lofty motives; they spurned the offers of money which were made to them by Maj. Andre to permit him to escape; they loved their country more than gold, and yet there are stories told about them which place their action in an entirely different light from this. It may be true that our historians may have not dealt justly with them, and that, like many other monuments which tell the glories of dead men, the monument which stands to their memory at Tarrytown and the one which is rising in Schoharie to David Williams do not adhere strictly to the truth. The word "tramp" has but lately come into use in America, but old men who live in Schoharie county and know "Dave Williams" by tradition, say that he at least of the three famous patriots was in effect neither more nor less than a tramp, and the story runs that his two companions in arms were as bad as he. This is very sad to think of, and if it be true we will not be inclined to think better of tramps therefor, any more than our appreciation of the moral and intellectual condition of geese is heightened by the remembrance that once by their cackling they saved the lofty city of Rome.

This new story of an ancient deed is that, as Paulding, Williams and Van Wart were one day sitting under a tree near Tarrytown, enjoying a game at cards, they saw a well-dressed gentleman riding along the road, and were struck with the happy thought that as the place was lonely it would be profitable to rob the solitary horseman. They at once unhorsed him, took him into the woods and proceeded to plunder him. In his stockings they found, not the desired money, but important papers which they saw it would be to their interest to transmit to Government. They did not, as they should have done, take their prisoner at once to a superior officer as one who had failed to give a satisfactory account of himself; it was only when they discovered that his watch and the money about him were of less value than their living prize would be should they turn him over to the authorities that they became patriotic. According to this account, they were therefore mere freebooters. Their inestimable services to the country had their source, so far as their authors are concerned, in sheer rascality. Good came from their evil, it is true, but the moral quality of their action is not such as to entitle them to monuments and praise.

Oysters and Star Fish.

As the oyster culture is so important a business here, a few words about the oyster's most dreaded and deadly foe, the star fish, will be appropriate, and we have gathered from authentic sources the following tolerably reliable information on the subject: The star fish destroys and devours the oyster eagerly. The star fish is well armed, having five of those useful members; and, to make matters worse for the oyster, has an eye on the end of each arm. It is also furnished with hundreds of small legs and feet. Its mouth is in the center of the body, and it moves slowly, but very "sure," when after prey. It can propel itself over rough surfaces and into all nooks and crevices, and is found generally upon rocks, near which they fasten. If one of his arms becomes broken in any way, as by getting it entangled in a crevice of a rock, or having it bitten off by a voracious fish, determined upon making havoc upon this particular star, the deficiency is soon remedied, as another arm grows, which replaces the missing member. Some species of the star fish possess the power of demoralizing or breaking itself in pieces, and thus multiplying its kind, as each piece retains vitality and grows into a perfect specimen of its kind again. The star fish is a sociable animal. It generally travels in "schools," or mass-meetings, when, doubtless, schemes for raids on the unsuspecting oyster are devised, and nefarious information and ideas interchanged. When he is hungry he gets outside of dinner by, as it were, turning himself inside out, a novel process, not to be recommended to the genus homo as a means of appeasing appetite. He turns his stomach out of his mouth and envelops the morsel to be ingulfed. The star fish is set down by scientific men as a mere "walking stomach," being such a tremendous gormandizer of sea-food. They are particularly fond of oysters, and when the presence of a fine bivalve is discovered nothing can exceed it in lively appreciation of the morsel, not even an American at a clam-bake.—New Haven Journal.

New York Crœsuses.

No street in the world (except possibly in London) represents in the short space of two miles and a half anything like the enormous aggregate of wealth represented by Fifth avenue residents between Washington square and Central Park. We give haphazard a few names:

Mr. Rhinelander	$3,000,000
James Lenox	5,000,000
Marshall O. Roberts	5,000,000
Moses Taylor	8,000,000
August Belmont	6,000,000
Robt. L. and A. Stuart	5,000,000
Mrs. Paran Stevens	2,000,000
Amos R. Eno	8,000,000
John Jacob and William Astor	60,000,000
Mrs. A. T. Stewart	50,000,000
Pierre Lorillard	3,000,000
James Kernochan	2,000,000
Wm. H. Vanderbilt	70,000,000
Mrs. Calvert Jones	2,000,000
Mrs. Mary Jones	3,000,000
Mr. James Gordon Bennett	4,000,000
Mr. Fred. Stevens	10,000,000
Mr. Louis Lorillard	1,000,000
Total	$248,000,000

Here we have some eighteen families, living near each other, who derive fixed yearly incomes from a capital of between $240,000,000 and $250,000,000.—New York Sun.

A Train Cut in Two by a Rock.

At Carr's Rock, N. Y., a few nights ago, a rock weighing forty tons fell down the cliff, striking a freight train of forty-five cars, cutting off twenty-two of them. The car struck, which was loaded with grain, was wrecked. Thirteen cars left the track, but were uninjured. No one was hurt. Had the cars moved a few feet further they would have gone down a precipice 100 feet in depth, near the scene of the railway disaster at Carr's Rock in 1868. The track was blocked six hours.

NO GREAT STANDING AR MY.

This Country Will Never be Governed by Military Power.

[Judge Black's Letter to the Editor of the Pittsburgh Post.]

James P. Barr, Esq.: My Dear Sir—It is quite out of the question, with my present engagements, to write fully on the labor question, or even to give, as requested, a few thoughts which arise from a superficial look at the situation. I have lately read the article of Col. Scott, which is characterized by his remarkable ability as a practical man. He means business, no doubt. I should like much to hear from Mr. Gowen. He has all of Scott's fidelity to the interests of the corporation he leads, is his equal in energy and force of character, while he looks through all human dealings with a more learned spirit. Besides, there are others who ought to enlighten the public mind. Have you read the article entitled "Fair Wages," by a "Striker," in the last number of the North American Review? He makes some suggestions that ought to be considered and thought of before they are altogether rejected. Of course I have no conception who the writer is, but, judging by his production, I expect to see him a power.

It cannot be necessary to tell you or any other sensible man that this country will never consent to be governed by a standing army until the people make up their minds to abandon republican institutions utterly, and submit without murmuring to an absolute despotism. The enemies of liberty on both sides of the water have offered many excuses for maintaining large armies in time of peace, but never anything so weak as that they set up now. Hundreds of thousands of laborers find themselves unable to protect themselves and their families from starvation, and they become turbulent, as every other people has done under the same circumstances. To maintain a standing army for the purpose of keeping them in order is the worst remedy that could be devised for the evil. This reduces the workingman to a state of mere slavery, where the bullet and the bayonet of the soldier come in place of the overseer's lash. If they submit they will be fit instruments to make slaves of us all. If they resist, civil war will become the chronic condition of the country. The United States has no right to intermeddle with this business except in certain contingencies, well defined and carefully provided for in the constitution. The old excuse that these limits ought to be disregarded because they confine the powers of certain persons within limits inconveniently narrow, is not one which ought to find acceptance in the judgment of a free people. But if the General Government must settle the controversies between the railroad corporations and their laborers, let its interference take any shape but that of a standing army; for that would be not only cruel and dangerous, but the most expensive that could be adopted. I believe none of these corporations think that less than a hundred thousand men would serve their purpose; and that is a gross miscalculation, for three times the number would hardly be sufficient. It would be much better, easier, and cheaper to take out of the Federal treasury as much money as will pay the railroad employes fair wages and let the corporations have the fruits of their labor as clear gain. Of course, I don't say that we ought to be taxed to free the railroad companies from the burden of paying for the labor they employ, so that they may increase their profits or be saved from losses, but we had better do that than worse.

Yours truly, J. S. Black.

THE OHIO VICTORY.

[From the Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The Democracy of Ohio send glad greeting this morning to the National Democracy, and proudly lay upon the Democratic altar, as their nobly-earned and joyfully-tendered gift, their garland of everlasting, the Empire State of the West. We sound the loud timbrel this morning, and send the glad tidings to more than 4,000,000 of Democrats in the land that yesterday laid securely the foundation of permanent Democratic dominion in the Union. Three hundred thousand Ohio Democrats have fought the battle bravely and have won a glorious victory, whose far-reaching and beneficent results cannot be hemmed in by the border lines of any State, and will not cease with this generation of men. We have elected our State ticket and chosen a Democratic Legislature, and carried the county of Hamilton for nearly or quite the whole of our ticket. Mr. Bishop is probably elected by a plurality of 20,000 votes. The Democratic majority in the Legislature cannot be stated exactly, but it is easily Democratic. The Republican vote, as we predicted it would, has fallen off largely everywhere, while the Democrats have brought out nearly their vote of last year.

It has not been a battle between leaders; it has been the more significant struggle between ideas. The Republican party, plethoric with ill-gotten spoils, kingly by a patronage which nothing but lofty patriotism and intelligent suffrage can resist, appeared before the people of the State pleading for a popular perfecting of the Presidential title, and an indorsement of the Returning Board method of choosing Presidents as a precedent; and Ohio—Hayes' own State—indignantly refuses, in the name of civil liberty, to sully her lips with the atrocious verdict. The Democrats of Ohio, taught last November, or last March, almost to believe that suffrage was an empty bauble, which fraud, in the name of law, could at any time dash to atoms, with heroic hate, sometimes a sublime passion, swore a lasting revenge at the polls for the wrong that was done, and made one page in our history glow with the record how that oath of hate was kept. This was the nature of our battle against odds, and the significance of the triumph must be measured by these facts.

The fruits of the victory are the permanent possession of this people's realm. This is Ohio's gift to the Democracy on this continent. Men saw in 1873 the power of 817 Ohio votes. The people's branch of the Congress followed; a majority of States swept into line; but that triumph was not complete. It was the first soft sunny day that announces the breaking up of winter and the noiseless coming of the spring-time. Some shivering days were inevitably to be dropped down after ward, but the summer was surely to come when all the valleys, like vast basins, should be filled with golden sunshine as with wine. The Ohio idea has conquered at last, and lastingly. The full summer of power is at hand. The long dominion of the national Democratic party is secured. Not only this, our Ohio itself is raised to a place of command in our national affairs. She sits between the lake and the Ohio, empress of our politics, with the assurance of long-continued power. She has earned the laurels of the land in the great councils of the party, and her bugle note from October to October through the rolling years will marshal the States to the prolonged and kindly sway of the true Democracy. She has redeemed herself, and, in so doing, has redeemed the nation and given it back to the Democratic idea in which it was conceived, born, baptized, and in which its robust youth and early manhood were nurtured. Ohio will presently send another Democratic Senator to Washington, worthy to wear the mantle, and Ohio's real voice will be heard in the higher branch of Congress.

A Massachusetts Democrat on "Fraud."

By the votes of the people Samuel J. Tilden was elected President of the United States. And yet to-day another occupies that office. It is needless to discuss the means by which this great defeat of the popular will has been accomplished—it is all written in our country's history. There it will stand forever, teaching its sad lesson, sounding its solemn warning. I will not revive issues upon which, for anxious weeks of discussion and distress, and alternate hopes and fears, the peace of the country and the perpetuity of her institutions seemed to hang. Those issues have been decided; they concern us now only as they bear upon and shape our present duties. By a tribunal abnormal, springing from the terrible exigency of the moment and sanctioned by the people, Mr. Hayes has been declared President. He has been in due form inaugurated. However sharply we may criticise the proceedings of the Electoral Commission, however deeply we may deplore and abhor the palpable and disgusting frauds which made that commission necessary, it seems to me that its action must be regarded as final and conclusive. Mr. Hayes is and must be accepted as President. Failing so to recognize him, the Democracy as a party would lose that patriotic and grand position, rarely surpassed in history, which its past action has secured. Whose heart has not swollen with just pride and deep emotion as he has contemplated our country emerging out of this Presidential controversy without revolution, without civil war, without anarchy, disorder, or confusion—without even derangement of administration—and with hardly more of external excitement than attends any hotly-contested election? And to whom is the country indebted for this result! To the Democratic party.—Hon. Charles T. Russell, President of the Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Blighted Statesmen.

How unfortunate these railroad jobs are to Republican statesmen. How recent is the sad fate of that model of goodness and grace, Schuyler Colfax—how his lies and tricks found him out, and how he is now out in the cold with none to do him reverence except Young Men's Christian Associations and a few of the kind that believe in Henry Ward Beecher. He came near being President, too—would have got the next nomination of the Republican party but for the premature exposure that blighted his blooming prospects. There was Fremont, another Republican favorite son. He came nearer being President. He got the nomination, but the party could not poll votes enough to seat him, and at that early day had not learned the counting trick. He got a sentence of condemnation from a French court for putting forged and fraudulent railroad bonds upon the market, and if he ever sets foot in France he will have to serve out his time within a prison's walls.

And there is the favorite son of Maine. He, too, got into trouble about railroad bonds, and had to steal the papers which convicted him of malfeasance in office from Mulligan, after begging Mulligan on his bended knees to spare him and his innocent family.

Now honest John, the last hold of South Carolina Republicanism, the "last button on Gabe's coat," and the thorn in Hampton's side, and about the last of the Republican majority in the United States Senate, is in danger of losing his liberty.—Wilmington (Del.) Gazette.

EXPERIENCE AGAINST CONTRACTION.

[From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Frequent reference is made to the French financial system in connection with the wonderful recuperative powers of that nation as shown in the events since the close of the war with Germany. Starting after a disastrous war, and with all departments of Government disorganized, France, during an interval of great financial depression in Germany, England and the United States, not only anticipated the extraordinary demands made upon her, but maintained the industries of the people and made a better financial record than the nations that had been prosperous when she was prostrate with industrial and manufacturing interests paralyzed.

The extraordinary spectacle of a nation rallying so promptly from disaster, and devoting itself so earnestly to the work of building up all interests that contributed to substantial prosperity, has invited study while it has called forth admiration. The inquiry as to the causes of prosperity in France, when all the circumstances seemed to point to a period of great distress and depression, has been an interesting feature of financial discussion in this country for two or three years. Among the more recent and most interesting contributions to our knowledge on this question is a carefully-prepared paper by the Hon. Wm. D. Kelley, published in the Philadelphia Times.

Among the essential facts preliminary to the general discussion, Mr. Kelley calls particular attention to two: Under all changes of dynasty and forms of government the labor of France has been protected by the most elaborate and ingenious tariff and system of prohibitions ever devised, [illegible] of art by the Government, the diffusion of a love of art and the knowledge of its laws among the producing classes, secures a market for French fabrics and wares when the home and foreign markets of other nations are shrinking. This blending of art with utility not only secures France universal markets, but enables her to sell abroad imponderable things, such as genius, taste, art, and skill.

Mr. Kelley believes that the distinguishing characteristic of the financial policy of the French Government is found in the fact that it assumes the duty of preventing alternate periods of inflation, and their inevitable consequent intervals of contraction. To accomplish this end, whenever war or other exigency has caused the issue of irredeemable paper, it has invested such issue with the character of legal tender, or, in other words, made it available for all purposes to which money could be applied in France. In such cases the Government has also taken measures to prevent the withdrawal of the paper money until a continuous balance of trade had brought into the country metallic currency enough to supply the channels temporarily filled by the paper money. The Government maintains its power over the money of the country by demanding a slight tax upon circulation, whenever it authorizes a bank to issue notes, and pays the bank but 1 per cent. on the amount of notes loaned it when first issued.

Great Britain and the United States restrict the volume of legal-tender money to the narrowest possible limits available as a basis for bank circulation. "France seeks to give the whole people money; we, following the example of England, seek to compel them to use credit or currency obtained through banks at such rates of discount as may prevail." The fact that France has been prosperous, while England and the United States have experienced periods of financial depression, speaks well for the French system.

The last war experience of France was peculiar. In April, 1870, three months before war was declared, the circulation of the Bank of France was $288,750,000, and it held of specie and bullion $261,550,000. In August the Government required the bank to suspend specie payments, and by the same decree made its notes a legal tender. The first statement published after peace had been restored showed a circulation of $442,000,000, with $110,000,000 of specie. The decree of legal tender fixed the maximum of the issue of the bank at $480,000,000. This was increased by law of Dec. 29, 1871, to $560,000,000, and finally, by the law of July 15, 1872, to $640,000,000. This is the bank record, and the question at once occurs, what effect had the issue of this vast amount of paper money on the premium on gold?

In November, 1871, when a large payment on the war fine was due, the premium on gold rose to its highest point, 2½ per cent. It remained at this but a few days. When the irredeemable circulation had been increased from $460,000,000 to $490,000,000, the premium fell to 1 per cent. and in October, 1873, when the volume of notes had actually reached $614,000,000, the premium was merely nominal, and was only demanded on large sums. Legal tender, gold, silver, and paper money were then circulating in common, and at par with each other.

This in itself answers many of the arguments of the contractionists, but there is another important point, a striking illustration of the harmony of the interests of the Government and the people, a something that very many people lose sight of in this country.

The war fine amounted to $1,100,000,000; the total cost of the war to $2,000,000,000; the direct loss to agriculture was about $800,000,000. Yet the last payment on account of the war was made Sept. 5, or in two years and four months after the conclusion of the treaty of peace.

The Bank of France is now burdened with an excess of gold, and holds in addition, it is said, $100,000,000 of silver, which, like gold, is legal tender; yet the law will not permit the bank to resume specie payments until Jan. 1, 1878. The bank pays now, and has paid for nearly two years, in gold or silver, sums of 1,000 francs or less, and, to escape the tax on circulation, would have resumed more than a year ago had the Government consented. The latest returns as to specie held by the different nations show that France has, by the aid of paper currency, by which the industries of the nation were kept active, accumulated nearly $100,000,000 of gold more than the united stock of the banks of England and Germany.

It has been the fashion lately among the contractionists to quote largely from the past financial history of England. Mr. Kelley seems to have given them a sweeping broadside by quoting from the financial history, past and present, of France. He concludes his article with the following pertinent question:

> In view of these facts, may not the stricken people of the United States wisely order a halt in the work of contraction, and, following the example of France, demand the repeal of the Resumption act, the remonetization of silver, and the maintenance of the existing volume of our legal-tender paper money, which measures will enable them to go to work at honest wages, and to earn the gold and silver with which, in due time, we can, if desirable, resume specie payments?

A refrigerator car, so arranged that thirty carcasses can be hung up, as in shambles, and kept at a few degrees above freezing point, has been sent by some Nevada cattle-dealers to Chicago as an experiment. If it is successful the dealers will ship meat further East this fall and winter.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea.	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
EnglishBreakfastTea,	50; best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents.
Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.
Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and anned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.
Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the owest rates.

No. 1 White Fish, ha f bbls $4.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents. Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1 25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS, OILS, OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon 21 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 50cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINMR and is prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hanging Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

BIG STOCK COMING

AT

SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO'S.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

DRESS GOODS

New Calicos, Shirtings, Woolens,
Jeans, Cloths and Cashmeres,
For Men, Boys and
Everybodys Wear

OUR SUCCESS.

No Goods Allowed to be Misrepresented. All the Newest Novelties in Fall and Winter Suits for Men, Youths and Boys

CLOTHING CUT

In the most approved pattern and warranted to be perfect fitting at Hard Time Prices.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when ot visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO

THE ONLY

FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.

The ESTEY ORGAN

tands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never been excelled. Those wanting Organs should get theEstey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 17a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 35 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 51 "	2 40 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 47 "
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Goshen	3 25 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 18 p m	9 30 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 06 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 21 "	10 41 "	8 12 "
Kendallville	8 47 "	11 11 "	8 47 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	3 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 am	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05 am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 [illegible] pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South:

Time card in effect June 24—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 00 pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "	1 30	2 15p
Auburn	11 40 "	3 05	5 13
Waterloo	11 56 "	4 10	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 52 pm	5 30	6 35
Reading	1 49 "	7	7 32
Bankers	2 14 "	7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "	7	8 05
Jackson	3 35 "	9	9 20
Detroit	6 20 "	12	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 20 "	6	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 18
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 am		3 50p
Lansing	10 10		7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "	11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "		9 20
Jackson Dep	11 00 am	5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 10 pm	7	7 12
Bankers	1 07	7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "	8	7 43
Ar Angola	2 12 "	9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "	10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "	11 21	9 38
Auburn Junction		1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "		10 55
Indianapolis	45 "		5 55
St. Louis	8 20 am		7 35
Louisville	5 30 am		10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS	Express	Express	Cam'l A
lv New York	8 10am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 [illegible]	[illegible]00
Barnesville	9 45	11 4	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 05	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2	[illegible] 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	0 00
Columbus	3 00	5 [illegible]
Shawnee	4 30	10 [illegible]
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	[illegible]am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	5	10 00
Shelby	4 51	3 7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 10
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 53	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	6 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 48	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 33	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 [illegible]0pm	7 40
ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 40
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	10 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 [illegible]am
Baltimore	8 30	9 50
Philadelphia	9 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:15 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3. Express.	5 Acco.m
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 35 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 am
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 35 pm
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 pm
Connersville	10 20 am		8 50 pm
Cincinnati	1 30 pm		11 00 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 08 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	[illegible] am
Terre Haute	[illegible] pm	[illegible] am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	6 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2	6 Express	4 Accom.
St. Louis		[illegible] 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	7 00 am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		8 20 pm
Connersville	1 [illegible] am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	1 [illegible] am		11 44 am
New Castle	1 [illegible] am		12 55 pm
Muncie	1 [illegible] pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	pm	11 30 pm
Montpelier	pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	40 pm	12 20 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL. No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 6,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 30	9 10
Roann	9 03	9 05	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 08	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 15pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 25
Columbia City	10 23	11 15	1 30
Col'en's	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 53
La Otto	11 20	12 24pm	3 35
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 45	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 50
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20 am	2 00	6 40

Going West.

	No. 1,	No. 3,	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 50 pm	[illegible]	5 8 pm
Mexico	6 16	12 00	4 10
Denver	6 07	11 46am	4 00
Chili	6 03		3 20
Roann	5 47		2 40
Laketon	5 32		2 08
North Manchester	5 23		1 35
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 05
Collamer	5 05		[illegible]am
South Whitley	5 02		12 20
Columbia City	4 40		10 25
Collin's	4 21		[illegible]
Churubusco	4 14		9 28
La Otto	3 55		[illegible]
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 24
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	5	[illegible]
Butler lv	2 45	6 [illegible]	[illegible]

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad

---

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free Elegant and expensive outfit free If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 112 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure. 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts.

Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder, Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

The Mayer House, at Fort Wayne, is now under the management of Scarbrough & Kepler, two gentlemen who understand their business, and attend to it.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 1st, 1877. Number 44.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year.........$2. | Six Months.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1 y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column.......	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. P. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House. Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

M. A. FRANKS. O. S. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY. Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA. Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE. JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, (Late of City Hotel,) Clerk. O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB-PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonab

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

P. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining ... Leyton, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. HEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MORSE, Principal.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. aeshisla rgestoc e

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

suffer as much with Neuralgia or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with scores who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent clergymen and editors recommend it from a knowledge of its effects.

Rheumatism,	Diphtheria,
Dyspepsia,	Sciatica,
Neuralgia,	Toothache,
Pleurisy,	Sore Throat,
Swollen Joints,	Chilblains,
Headache,	Sprains,
Lame Back,	Burns,
Erysipelas,	Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

Is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get accli mated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansass, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

CHRONIC Diseases Cured. New paths marked out by that plainest of all books—"Plain Home Talk and Medical Common sense,"—nearly 1,000 pages, 200 illustrations by Dr. E. B. FOOTE, of 120 Lexington Avenue, N. Y. Purchasers of this book are at liberty to consult its author in person or by mail free. Price by mail $3.25 for the standard edition, or $1.50 for the popular edition, which contains all the same matter and illustrations. Contents free. Agents wanted. MURRAY HILL PUBLISHING CO.

120 East 28th St. N. Y.

[illegible] weather and wreck, and while the passengers were hurridly making preparations for their safety, a fat Dutchman seized a life-preserver, and, trying it on, began to fill it, blowing till he was red in the face with his efforts. "Hellow," said a bystander, "you can't fill that thing; there's a big hole in it.' A blank look came over the Dutchman's face. "Mein Gott, is dat so? den I better keeps my wind in me."

Longfellow, according to a letter to a San Francisco paper, lives in a large light-colored mansion with a big brass door knocker, a summons from which is responded to by a tall servant girl with a disdainful face. Mr. Longfellow never keeps a visitor waiting, is a buoyant and animated speaker, much given to anecdote and reminiscence. He speaks freely of his own affairs whenever they are of public interest, and chats most frankly of his likings and favorites. On the other hand, a word of disparagement never passes his lips.

James Woodcock, of Greenville, Ill., loved Annie Hobbs, daughter of a clergyman, but the old folks opposed to the match, whereupon some 30 leading citizens took the matter in hand, prepared for the wedding, sent for a license and a clergyman, and prevented the girl's mother from entering the room till the ceremony was over. When she was admitted she raved like a maniac, and had to be restrained by force from injuring herself or the spectators. Unless there is a speedy change in her condition it will be necessary to send her to a mad house.

Ah Ching, when brought before a police magistrate in San Francisco recently, on a charge of carrying a loaded revolver, made the following lucid defence: "Me got diamond ling, gold watchee; me heap flaid, spose some bad man he come takee my ling, my watche. Me work Miss Duncan, you sabee Missa Duncan heap big man, got heap big bank. Missa Duncan he tella me you takee pistol, spose man he take you ling, takee you watche, you takee pistol shoot him. You sabee that what for me got pistol. Me heep good man." As the Chinaman did not have a permit to carry a pistol he was sentanced to a few days' imprisonment.

Virginia Wants Imigration.

Virgina wants immigratin and is seeking to encourage it. A committee of the Virginia improvement and immigration society headed, headed by U. S. Senator Johnstone, have been addressing meetings throughout Pennsylvania with the object of inducing emigration to the old dominion. As proof of the rapid growth of the state they cite the fact that Danville ten years ago had a population of only 2,000, while now it has 12,000; and Richmond has increased from 87,000 inhabitants in 1860 to 76,000 this year. Land is declared to be cheap and the profits from crops large, owing to the state lying upon the seaboard. The rate of taxation is also lower than in northern states.

A Negro Mathematician.

The Troy Times of Saturday says: A colored man named Gidney, residing on North Third street, below Jacob, claims to have discovered the true and exact ratio between the diameter and circumference of a circle. According to the accepted rule, with the diameter or circumference alone given, the other can be exactly told. The rato is 3.14159 plus, or as commonly use, 3.1416 plus. Mr. Gidney claims that by an algebraic calculation he has discovered the exact ratio, and he has in preperation a book on the subject which he intends shortly to publish. The demonstration of this interesting discovery is now receiving the attention of competent mathematicians, and whether it amounts to anything or not will soon be determined. Mr. Gidney possesse little or no education except in mathematics, and in this branch it is said he is able to solve most difficult problems.

For Kansas and Colorado.

Take the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, extending from Kansas City and Atichison, on the Missouri river, via Topeka, the capital of Kansas; through the fertile Arkansas Valley, to Pueblo, where direct connections is made with the Denver & Rio Grande Railway for Colorado Springs, Manitou, Denver, Cannon City, and all points of note on the Denver & Rio Grande. The track is excelled by that of no road in the West, and the passenger equipment embraces all the modern improvements for comfort and safety. Through express trains leave union depots, Kansas City and Atichison, daily, on the arrival of trains from the East, and run through to the Rocky Mountains, with Pulman Sleeping Cars attached. For maps, circulars and detailed information send to

T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Ag't., Topeka, Kan.

Thiers as a [illegible]

M. Theirs, it is well know, always took great pains with his speeches, which were studied even to the last refinement of phrase and verbal coloring. They were long prepared; and after they were delivered, he used often to spend entire nights in the office of the "Moniteur" correcting and amending them for official publication. Yet in extempore debate he had no superior, perhaps no equal, until Gambetta arose. A sudden discussion always found him ready with his facts and his figures, his ever available power of irony, and his inveterate pugnacity. Nor did extempore debate ever betray him into flying over or decending below, his subject. Sometimes he was impetuously indignant, and exceedingly bitter in his retorts; but he rarely made use of his temper to lend the impressiveness of wrath to his eloquence. He was most dexterous in speech; there were tact and finesse in the wit that once in a while sparkled forth, and he was almost finically precise in the accuracy of his figures and statement of facts; but was not master of the art, in which Gladstone is facile princeps among recent statesmen, of making figures eloquent.—George M. Towle; Scribner for Nov.

In a Carriage With a Lunatic.

The Kalamazoo (Mich.) Telegraph of the 17th inst. says: About half-past ten o'clock Wednesday morning Mrs. D. C. Reed, of Kalamazoo, was waiting in her carriage for Dr. Gile, who was calling upon West street, when a crazy man broke from his attendants, jumped into the carriage with Mrs. Reed, took the rains and whipped and beat the horses severely, and drove out West street, when Mrs. Reed persuaded him to get out. Then she put whip to the horses and returned to the villiage. The crazy man went into the woods, but was soon captured and taken to the asylum. Mrs. Reed's coolness under this trying situation probably saved her from serious results. After the carriage had been driven rapidly down West street, she talked calmly to the lunatic, telling him she knew he was endeavoring to get away from the keepers, and making him believe his best was to escape to the woods. They had now got beyond the Hydenburg hill, and she induced the madman to get out, telling him to rush into the thick underbrush there. He got out, but immediately changed his mind, and made a desperate effort to get back into the carriage, but Mrs. Reed, who lost no time in getting away, whipped up her horses and reached Mr. Burt's house, when she got out, and ran into the house, completely overcome with excitement and fright. In a little while, however, she was able to return home.

A Fat Man's Adventure.

Says the San Francisco Chronicle: A German, named Fred Weisenberg, while proceeding along Market Street, near Nineteenth, was intercepted by two rough-looking customers, who asked him for his valuables. He placidly bade them to go to Jericho, and made a vigorous lunge for the throat of the spokesman, and the same time shouting "Police!"

The highwaymen quaked at the sonorous cry, and, turning on their heels, darted off at a lively pace. Weisenberg started after one of them, and was gaining on him, when the fellow turned and discharged a shot at his pursuer. The stolid German, undismayed by the flash and the warning whistle of the bullet past his ear, sped on and followed the fugative into a dark street, where the latter hopped nimbly over a fence.

To "follow the leader" in this last instance proved to be the most distressing experience of the evening for the corpulent German; but after much exertion and considerable puffing he clambered to the top and fell over with a thud upon the prostrate body of the robber, who was crouched under the shadow of the fence, completely exhausted, with a Derringer clutched in his fist.

The German took the pistol away, and lifting his corpulent form up, allowed himself to drop on the frightened man three or four times, until he begged for mercy. The captor then forced him to rescale the fence, and marched him to prison, where he was charged with assault with intent to murder and attempt to rob. In his pockets were found a number of burglars' tools.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time. We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once.

H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

October 11,—6m no11.

After the Honey.

The senses of the bees are very acute. By the aid of smell they find the sweetest flowers, and they the delicate cleanliness of the hive is preserved. While certain odors are very attractive to them, others are excessively repugnant. This fondness for certain perfumes is used by bee-hunters in discovering the nests of wild bees. When wild bees are seen loitering around, an upright stake, to the upper end of which is attached a small horizontal platform, is planted some-where near; on this platform is placed a bit of full comb, and in front of it is suspended an open phial of annis, and odor they particularly love. To expedite matters, one of the strange bees is frequently captured by inverting over the flower from which it is sucking a small cylinder with glass over the end. The bee flies up to the lighted end; the lower part is covered with the hand, and the cylinder placed over the honey-comb on the platform. As soon as the cylinder is darkened, by putting something over the top the bee goes down to the honey and fills its honey-sac. When fully gorged, it is released; a bee, with its honey-sac filled, alway makes a "bee-line" for the hive. When the load of stolen sweets is deposited, the little pilferer comes back,—usually with a companion,—guided by the scent of annis; both alight on the platform, and are held in mild captivity till they are filled. One is then released, the direction it takes is noted; the stake is then carried to some distance to the right or left of its former position, and the second bee released. The point at which the two "bee-lines" cut each other is the position of the nest.—Mrs. S. B. Herrick; Scribner for Nov.

Weighing The Thanksgiving Turkey.

"Here, sir! Please take this bird around to Albro's, and see how much it weighs."

The idea! What would the folks over the way say, to see the "professor" walking out with a big turkey under his arm? That was the way the thing presented itself to the good-natured college student acting as private tutor in the family. But Mrs. Simpson, the portly and practical housewife, had no such idea of the fitness of things.

It was the day before thanksgiving, and the farmer who had agreed to supply her with a turkey had brought it, but had not weighed it, and of course they could not agree on its weight, all of which ended in the startling proposition with which we began.

"Well, if you ain't the laziest man ——! Just as though it was going to hurt you any to take this bird to the corner and back!" she went on, as she saw me looking, appearantly, for a hole to crawl into, but, in reality, for the broom, which, when I found, I made use of in putting into execution a plan I had formed for weighing the turkey at home.

I hung the broom-handle to the gas-jet by a wire loop, and slid it along in the loop until it balanced. By this time all were curious to see what I was about.

I then fixed a wire to the turkey's feet and hooked it so that it would slide on the broom-handle. Next I got a flat-iron and fixed it in the same way. When the broom was nicely balanced, I hung the turkey on the broom end of the stick two inches from the balancing loop. Then I hung the flat-iron on the other side, and shoved it along until it balanced the turkey. Next I measured the distance of the turkey and flat-iron from the balancing loop. That was all. I had found the weight of the turkey, and told them: Twenty-four pounds.

"Do you s'pose I'm going to believe all that tomfoolery? It doesn't weigh more'n twenty, I know. Here, Maggie! Take this out and ask Albro to weigh it for you."

"I'm blamed if he has n't hit it about right,' said the farmer who had brought the turkey. "Aow did you find it out?"

"Well, you see,' said I, "the flat-iron has a figure 6 on it; that shows that it weighs six pounds. Now, if the turkey had not weighed more than the flat-iron they would have balanced each other at the same distance from the balancing loop; but the turkey was the heavier, so I had to move the flat-iron out farther. At the same distance from the loop as the turkey (two inches), the flat-iron pulled six pounds' weight, and at every addition of that distance it pulled just six pounds more. Thus: at four inches it pulled twelve pounds; at six inches, eighteen pounds. At that distance it just balanced the turkey, thus proving that it weighed——'

"Well, Maggie, what does Albro say?"

"Twenty four poun', mum,' replied Maggie, coming in.

"Well, I give up,' said Mrs. Simpson; and she did, and so do I—till next time.—G. M. Shaw, St. Nicholas for Nov.

THE GAME KNUT PLAYED.

BY THOMAS DUNN ENGLISH.

A page who seemed of low degree,
And bore the name of Knut, was he;
The high-born Princess Hilga she.

And that the youth had served her long,
Being quick at errands, skilled in song,
To jest with him she thought no wrong.

And so it chanced one summer day,
At chess, to while the time away,
The page and Princess sat at play.

At length she said, "To play for naught
Is only sport to labor brought,
So let a wager guerdon thought."

He answered, "Lady, naught have I
Whose worth might tempt a Princess high
Her uttermost of skill to try."

"And set this ruby ring," she said,
"I'll stake against [illegible]
With snow-white plume that crowns thy head.

"And should I win, do not forget,
Or should I lose, whichever yet,
I'll take my due, or pay my debt."

And so they played, as sank the sun;
But when the game they played was done
The page's cap the princess won.

"My diamond necklace," then she cried,
I'll match against thy greatest pride,
The brand held pendent at thy side."

"Not so," he said; "that tempered glaive,
Borne oft by noble hands and brave,
To me my dying father gave.

"Fit only for a true man's touch,
I hold it dear and prize it much—
No diamond necklace mates with such.

"But, though my father's ghost be wroth,
I'll risk the weapon, nothing loth,
Against thy love and virgin troth."

Reddened her cheeks at this in ire,
This daughter of a royal sire,
And flashed those eyes of hers like fire.

"Thy words, bold youth, shall work thee ill;
Thou canst not win against my skill,
But I can punish at my will.

"Begin the game; that hilt so fine
Shall nevermore kiss hand of thine,
Nor thou again be page of mine!"

Answered the page: "Do not forget,
Or win or lose, whichever yet,
I'll take my due, or pay my debt.

"And let this truth the end record:
I risk to-day my father's sword
To be no more thy page, but lord."

Down sat the pair to play once more,
Hope in his bosom brimming o'er,
And hers with pride and anger sore.

From square to square the bishops crept,
The agile knights eccentric leapt,
The castles onward stately swept.

Pawns fell in combat one by one;
Knights, rooks, and bishops could not shun
Their fate before that game was done.

Well fought the battle was, I ween,
Until two castles and a queen
Guarding the kings alone were seen.

"Check!" cried the Princess, all elate;
"Check!" cried the page, and sealed the fate
Of her beleaguered king, with—"mate!"

The Princess smiled, and said: "I lose,
Nor can I well to pay refuse—
From my possessions pick and choose.

"Or diamonds bright, or chests of gold,
Or strings of pearls of worth untold,
These may be thine to have and hold;

"Or costly robes to feed thy pride,
Or coursers such as monarchs ride,
Or castles tall, or manors wide—

"Any or all of such be thine;
But, save he spring from royal line,
No husband ever can be mine."

"Nor jewels rich, nor lands in fee,
Steeds, robes, nor castles, pleasure me;
Thy love and troth be mine," said he.

"Nor shalt thou lack of state and pride
When seated crowned thy lord beside,
As Knut the King of Denmark's bride!

"Ring marriage bells from sun to sun,
And tell the gossips, as they run,
How Sweden's Princess has been won."
—Appletons' Journal for November.

SLIPPERY BILL'S ADVENTURE.

Three sisters, Jane, Maria and Annie Maskall, lived in a small but comfortable cottage situated just within the suburbs of Milford. Their mother had died some three years previous, leaving them means far too meager for their support. They had, therefore, to seek a livelihood as best they could. Jane, the eldest, had turned her musical talents to good account, and had become a popular and sought-after teacher; while Maria had found employment in a retail clothing establishment. Annie, the youngest of the three, kept house, and, by making fine embroidery and fancy work of various kinds, had earned many small sums of money.

By their diligence and economy they had not only left untouched the sum bequeathed by their mother—their father had died many years before—but had added to it each year until it amounted to more than £600. With this sum sum they intended to purchase a house of their own, and thus save the rent they were paying.

For weeks they tramped from place to place, looking at the various dwellings offered for sale, and had at last made up their minds to buy a nice, cozy little place, situated but a short distance from their present home.

The arrangements for the purchase of the house were completed, and the sisters had begun to pack up their household goods preparatory to removal. The money belonging to them was in the custody of friends, who had lent it out at interest for their benefit. It was agreed that Annie should call for this money, she being at liberty, and pay for the house therewith, or as much as was required. For this purpose a carriage had been engaged, and the three sisters were now awaiting its arrival.

"Now be careful, Annie," warned Jane, turning from the window; "be careful you don't let the money out of your hands until you give it to Mr. Burchard, and get the deed."

"O, don't be afraid," assured Annie, who was looking in the mirror, and arranging the set of her wee bit of a bonnet; "don't be afraid. I can take good care of that."

"I should hope so," said Maria, helping Annie with her cloak; "O, wouldn't it be awful if you should lose it!"

"Ha, ha!" laughed Annie, gayly; "the idea! How can I lose it? I shall take the best of care, I assure you."

"Well, you'll make haste back, won't you, Annie?" said Jane; "because we ought to go to Mann & Co.'s to see about getting that new carpet."

"Yes," answered Annie; "I'll make haste home. But don't you think I had better stop and look at that new set at A——'s? We ought to buy a brand-new set of things for our sitting-room, hadn't we, Maria?"

"Yes, indeed," replied Maria; "and we want some nice pictures for the walls, too, and I shall look for some the first opportunity I get."

"Well, here comes the carriage," said Jane, who was on the watch at the window. "Hadn't I better let my engagement go, Annie, dear, and accompany you?"

"No, indeed," exclaimed Annie, tossing her head; "I'm not a baby."

Annie, with a last hurried glance in the glass, hastened below, and, as the carriage drove to the door, she was cautioned again and again to be extremely careful. Taking her seat, she was driven away at a rattling pace.

Arrived at her destination, the office of the gentleman holding the money in trust, Annie was ushered in by a clerk.

"Good morning, Mr. Alger!" she said.

"Ah, good morning, Miss Maskall!" responded Mr. Alger, looking up from his papers. "Come after your money, eh?"

"Yes, sir," replied Annie; "I'm just [illegible] for our new house."

"Well, I haven't the money here, but, as you are known at the bank, I'll draw you a check;" and Mr. Alger, taking down his check-book, wrote the required order and handed it to Annie. A check for the sum of £700. As the house was to cost but £600, Annie was to pay that sum for a deed of the place, and retain the remainder for household expenses.

"Shall I send a clerk with you, Miss Maskall?" inquired Mr. Alger; "that's quite a sum for a young lady to handle."

"Oh, no!" cried Annie, blushing; "there's not the slightest need. I shall be very careful. Good-day, sir!" and Annie, going to her carriage, was driven to the B—— bank.

Presenting the check to the cashier of the bank, he glanced at her, recognized her with a pleasant word, and, counting out the required sum, handed it across the counter.

Annie, clutching the notes tightly in her hand, hastened down the high steps, and, taking her seat in the carriage, was giving directions to be taken to Mr. Burchard's, when a clerk, bareheaded and with a pen behind his ear, hurried down the steps, and, before the coachman had time to start his horse, was at the carriage door and accosted Annie.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am, but we neglected to take the numbers of those notes; if you will allow me a moment," and, stretching out his hand, he took the roll of notes, and hurried back into the bank, leaving Annie waiting for his return.

Annie waited a few minutes, and then grew impatient. With an indefinable fear in her heart she hurried away to the cashier of the bank.

"Are the notes ready for me?" she asked.

"Notes, notes—what notes?" inquired the cashier, in surprise.

"Why, I—I—gave the notes you let me have to a clerk, who said he wished to take the numbers of them."

"Gave them to a clerk?" cried the cashier, astonished.

"Y-yes sir," almost crying.

"Then you are robbed!" exclaimed the cashier.

And taking in the situation of affairs from the disjointed remarks of Annie, he consulted with the manager of the bank as to the best means to be employed to catch the thief.

Annie sank in a chair in despair; she felt as if her heart would break. Here, after all the cautions not for one moment to let the money out of her hand, she had lost it—lost it, perhaps, beyond hope of recovery.

The people of the bank questioned her closely regarding the manner in which her money was taken, how the thief looked, dressed, etc. Annie, with tear-wet eyes, answered as best she could, and was promised that every effort would be made to catch the thief and recover the money, but it was probable, seeing he had such a start, having without doubt at once slipped out at a side door, that it would be a long time before anything would turn up regarding him.

"I am exceedingly sorry for your mishap," condoled the manager, "and I shall spare no expense in trying to ferret out the rascal."

"An ingenious fellow, whoever he was," observed the cashier; "the idea of representing himself as a bank clerk wasn't bad;" and the official chuckled at the cunning of the rogue.

Annie tried to dry her tears, and with a sad face and aching heart returned to the carriage and gave orders to be driven home. She had never before met with such a misfortune, and it completely upset her. To think, too, that she had given the money to the man with her free will, as it were. She could not restrain her tears, but cried softly to herself all the way home. She dreaded to meet her sisters, and thought how greatly they would blame her. On arrival, she found both Jane and Maria at home, and waiting for her.

"Have you the deed all right, Annie?" cried Jane, as soon as Annie had entered. And then, seeing her sorrowful face, she cried, "Why, Annie, what is it? you have it, haven't you?"

"Oh, Jane!" cried Annie, throwing herself on her sister's breast and sobbing grievously; "Oh, don't blame me; don't, please, I can't bear to hear you. I—I have lost the money!"

"Lost the money!" cried Maria, her face growing pale; "why, Annie!"

"Oh, dear!" moaned Jane, looking sorrowfully on Annie, "how could you, Annie, oh, how could you, when we told you to be so careful! Oh, dear!"

"Oh, don't scold me, Jane; please don't," sobbed Annie, piteously. "I—I—didn't mean to, you know. Y—you see I got it from the bank, but, just when I was driving off a young man, bareheaded and with a pen behind his ear, looking the very image of a bank clerk, stepped up and said that they had forgotten to take the number of the notes, and so—so I—I—gave them to him. Oh, Jane, I thought, of course, it was all right, he spoke so simply. Oh, what shall we do?"

The sisters mourned grievously for their loss, but generously forbode chiding Annie. Indeed they saw that she was really quite ill in consequence of the occurrence. And before evening Annie had to be put to bed, and a doctor summoned to her, who found her in a raging fever.

For days and weeks Annie was confined closely to her bed, and, as there was no one to take care of her, Maria gave up her situation and remained at home, nursing and doing the housework.

Their money gone, and only Jane earning anything wherewith to pay their increasing expenses, they were at last obliged to let a part of their house. This they did to a respectable German family of the name of Zimmerman, and, as this family desired if possible to board with them, Maria procured a girl to assist her, and posted in the front window a notice, "Furnished Apartments."

"O, Annie!" cried Maria, one afternoon, bursting into the room where Annie lay, "we've just got another lodger. A young man this time, and such a handsome one!"

"Don't be 'soft' on him, Maria," said Annie, smiling; "though I suppose, of course, he is perfect."

"He looks so," said Maria. "He says he is from home, and has only just arrived. He told me that he wishes to keep very quiet on account of a near relative of his, who is trying to find him, and destroy him, in hopes of succeeding to a large property."

"Pshaw!" said Annie, contemptuously. "[illegible] romantic by half."

"Well, of course I don't know how much truth there is in it," said Maria, rather dubiously. "Anyhow, he wants to remain unknown. He's lodging across the way at Mr. Beach's."

"Well, see that he pays you in advance. I should judge from your account that he is as likely as not to be a swindler, a regular lodging-house thief—they all tell some such stories."

A few days later Annie was sufficiently well to rise from her bed and walk about the room. She was still quite weak, but some of her old spirits shone in her eyes, and the loss of the money was gradually fading from her daily thought.

The young gentleman seemed to have made himself quite agreeable, for Maria became rather shy and silent when he was the subject of conversation. And Annie often wondered where Maria went after the morning's work was done. When, however, she was spoken to about it Maria laughed and said she was out marketing; but Annie strangely suspected that Maria was out promenading with the new lodger.

One morning Annie thought she was strong enough to go down to the breakfast-table. So, dressing herself neatly and giving an added puff to her hair in view of the fact that she was then to see the lodger for the first time, Annie was led down stairs by Jane.

She could hear the heavy, guttural tones of old Mr. Zimmerman, who was in a violent confab with his wife, and the laughing voice of one whom she took to be the new gentleman lodger. Entering the dining-room, Annie was taking her seat when her eyes fell on the young gentleman directly opposite. He was looking at her stupidly.

"Oh, Oh!" cried Annie, on meeting his glance; and she stopped short, unable to articulate another word.

"Ah, Oh, a—a—excuse me, ladies," muttered the young man, backing out toward the door; and, getting the handle, he opened the door and bounded down the stairs into the street.

Annie recovered herself in a moment. Dashing to the window, she threw it up and shouted as loudly as she could:

"Stop thief! stop thief! Oh, stop him, stop him!"

Fortunately, a policeman was lounging nearly opposite, who, on seeing Annie wildly screaming "Stop thief," and the young man fleeing as for dear life, started in pursuit. The lodger ran fast, but the policeman ran faster, and the former was soon in his grasp.

"Oh, Annie," cried Marie, "how you frightened me. Who is he?"

"Why, he is the thief who stole our money," said Annie; "I knew him the very moment I set eyes on him."

"A tief!" cried old Mr. Zimmerman, turning to Annie; "vy, he told me he vas a nopleman, he did! Mine gracious! He hash got 60 pounds from me. Oh! mine vrau, vat shall I do!"

"Here he is, ma'am," said the policeman, hauling the thief into the room. "I know him, ma'am. He's Slippery Bill, one of the smartest rogues, ma'am. I've had my eye on him. What's he been up to now?"

Jane told him of the loss of the money.

"Just like him, ma'am," exclaimed the officer on hearing the account; "just like him. He is one of the shrewdest rascals I ever saw. Well, he is nabbed now, thank Heaven."

The lodger, otherwise Slippery Bill, of unenviable notoriety, stood carelessly with his back to the open grate fire and smiling dubiously on the throng. The policeman took the precaution to slip a pair of handcuffs over his wrists.

"For you never know, you see," he said, "when these kind of fellows will give you the slip."

"Giff me back mine sixty pounds," cried the German, shaking his fist in the prisoner's face. "Giff it me back, you bad one, you; giff it me, I say!"

But the pseudo gentleman only smiled at his simplicity in so easily parting with his hard-earned money to a complete stranger, and whistled softly to himself.

The prisoner was taken to the police-station. On searching his room, the money stolen so adroitly from Anne was discovered concealed therein.

Great was the joy of the sisters on receiving it. They are now living in the cozy little house purchased with the recovered money, and are as happy as the day is long; while the author of their misfortune is lodging in the fine house known as the Portland prison, as quiet and retired as he could possibly wish to be. Annie is careful to whom she intrusts valuables, even for a moment, and Maria has an aversion to lodgers, and particularly to new and strange gentlemen lodgers—so the notice "Furnished Apartments" has never been displayed at their windows.

Telegraphy in Switzerland.

Telegraphing is cheaper in Switzerland than in any other country. Being a part of the postal system, the telegraph is as common as the postoffice. There is not a village, however small, or wherever situated, even in the highest regions of the Alps, that has not a Government telegraph working night and day. The charge for a message to any part of Switzerland is only 10 cents. The double postal card is also another great advantage. This enables you to send a business order, etc., on one part, and on the other your own address, so insuring an immediate answer without expense or trouble to the receiver.

THE Jewish Messenger thinks there is something inexpressibly humorous—if there were nothing more serious and saddening in the fact—that both Russia and Turkey fight for the most part with borrowed weapons and borrowed bonds.

GILMAN IN PRISON.

How the New York Broker Began Life at Sing Sing.

[From the New York Sun.]

"Take him to the receiving-room," Warden Clark said to the keeper. Gilman nervously touched the warden's arm, as if to say something, and then, turning to the keeper, pointed to his valise, and said timidly: "That is mine."

"I will take care of that by-and-by," the keeper replied, and then Gilman followed him down stairs to the receiving-room.

In the bleak receiving-room, when Gilman entered, there were the six other convicts who had been brought up handcuffed. Gilman quietly awaited orders. He looked quickly at the other convicts, but without any appearance of repulsion.

"Fold your arms; stand in line, with your faces to the wall," said the clerk.

The men ranged themselves in line. Next to Gilman stood a negro who was under sentence for larceny. Gilman stood at the end of the line nearest the clerk, and the first inquiries were put to him.

"What is your name?"

"William C. Gilman."

"How old are you?"

"Forty-three years."

"What is you business?"

"A broker."

"Where were your born?"

"Norwich, Ct."

"Have you ever been arrested before?"

"I have never been arrested at all."

"What!" exclaimed the clerk, in a loud voice, as he looked up at Gilman in astonishment.

"I have never been arrested at all," Gilman quietly replied.

"Never been arrested!" said the now-bewildered clerk. "Then how comes it that you are here?"

To this question Gilman made no reply, and, as it was a question that the clerk was not authorized to ask, Deputy Sheriff Burns, who was in the room at the time, said that Gilman did what was proper in not answering.

As soon as the clerk recovered from his surprise he asked, "Can you write?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then sign your name to this roll."

Gilman took the pen and signed "William C. Gilman" to the roll in a firm, plain hand.

"What have you got about you?" said the clerk to Gilman.

Gilman took from his pockets his knife, pocket-book and a few trifles, and then took off his watch and chain and gave them to the clerk. Then, suddenly thrusting his hand into another pocket, he took from it a key.

"That is the key to my valise, up stairs."

Again the clerk was astonished. "The key to what?" he exclaimed.

"To my valise, which is up stairs."

"Your valise! Well, we'll see about that by-and-by. Have you got anything else about you?"

"No, nothing but this ring," pointing to a plain gold ring on his finger.

"Take it off."

"I can't get it off."

"Then we will file it off."

Gilman, after some tugging, succeeded in taking off the ring, and then he gave it to the clerk.

The convicts were then taken into the ante-room to be shaved and have their hair cut. But, as Gilman's face was smooth and his hair closely trimmed, he was passed by, but was kept in the room until the other convicts were attended to by the barber. Then he was taken to the bath with the others, and, after he had removed his clothing, it was taken away. By the side of the bath-tub lay the coarse striped prison clothing, which was put on after the bath had been finished. During all this Gilman showed no feeling, and, excepting that there was a set look upon his face, seemed unchanged.

In the yard the seven convicts, in their striped clothing, were placed in Indian file, Gilman at the head. Next to Gilman a negro was placed.

"Put your hands on the shoulders of the man in front of you," said the keeper. The negro put his hands on Gilman's shoulders.

"Now march, keeping step."

The convicts marched a few paces, halted, turned, and marched back again. This drill was kept up for about half an hour, and, although Gilman had not eaten anything since an early hour, his step did not flag. His conduct made a good impression on the prison officers. When the drill was ended Gilman and the others were taken to their cells, where they will remain, excepting at meal time, until Monday. Thus the Pine street broker began his prison life.

Heavy Damages for Libel.

A $10,000 verdict has been rendered against the New York Herald. Mrs. Phœbe Robertson, keeper of a boarding-house in New York, sued to recover $10,000 damages which she had been subjected to by the publication of a "personal" advertisement in the Herald cautioning persons to beware of blackmailers alleged to be at her house. She showed that, after the advertisement appeared, she went to Mr. Townsend, Mr. Bennett's lawyer, with a retraction, which she desired printed in the Herald. Mr. Townsend referred her to Mr. Bennett, and the latter refused to print the retraction. In defense, Mr. Bennett denied all knowledge of the notice, and denied that Mrs. Robertson had been injured, as she claimed to have been. The jury brought in a verdict for $10,000, to which the Judge added $500 as extra allowance to her counsel.

Ants as a Barometer.

Mr. L. C. Wurzbach is no longer a disbeliever in the intuitive perception of insects. A few days ago a lot of small, red ants made their appearance in one of the rooms of his residence in great numbers, many of them burdened with eggs which they had originally deposited in their subterranean home in the yard. They were carefully watched, and their object in moving was studied. They were observed to go underneath a large trunk which sat in the room, and it was presently raised to see what the insects were doing under it. It was found that they were leaving their eggs there. They were not disturbed, and Mr. Wurzbach continued to study their movements. He anticipated that the intuition of the insects had led them to remove their eggs to a place of safety, fearing rain, and this proved true. It was not long before a heavy shower fell and the ant-bed in the yard was flooded, but the instinct of the little bugs had saved them from any loss—they had moved in doors to keep dry. After the rain was over, and when the skies were clear, they returned to their outside home. Mr. Wurzbach has thrown away his barometer, and will hereafter be guided by these little ants in making his rain bets.—San Antonio (Tex.) Express.

Roberts' Revenge.

Last April a man named Roberts, who came out here from Delaware, was captured by the Indians near Deadwood. When they had robbed him of everything except shirt and pants, six of the seven redskins were in favor of turning him loose and letting him get back to the city. The seventh savage protested against the action, and when he had to submit to the majority he struck Roberts in the mouth with the head of his tomahawk, smashing out several teeth and inflicting other injuries. Roberts took a good look at the warrior, and as he was turned loose he vowed to get even if he had to stay out there until Darwin turned back into a baboon.

The mills of the gods grind for the savage as well as for white men. Roberts and a score of others have a camp about two miles above us. Indian beggars and loafers come into all the camps almost daily, and the other day the old top-knot who played smash with the Delaware man's teeth entered the camp and wanted to trade a lot of fresh venison for bar-lead. Roberts identified him in an instant, and the venison and the savage were "jerked" at one and the same motion.

All the men in the camp knew how Roberts had been served, and, when he had the right man in his grasp, there was no one to plead the other side of the case. The Indian was staked down on the grass as a first move. He recognized Roberts, and, realizing that the hour of reckoning had come, he whined like a dog. He offered rifle, knife and all else to settle the dentistry business; but the miner couldn't have been bought off for $10,000. When he got ready he went to work with the red man's tomahawk and deliberately knocked out every tooth he could get at, and he didn't miss a great many. The Indian had no more grit than a boy, but yelled like a regiment of cavalry going into a fight. A tooth for a tooth was not enough for Roberts, and he coolly sliced off his victim's ears, working slowly and doing a first-rate job. Then he sheared the warrior's top-knot off and turned him loose to find his friends and receive their praises on his early assumption of fall styles. The wretch didn't wait a second after being told to go—didn't even ask for his ears as pocket-pieces. Roberts has them pinned up as relics, with a bagful of teeth hanging above them, and to strangers he explains:

"The durned Injun who picks my molars with his Thomas-hawk wants to leave the country on the very first train, or he'll wish he'd been born a buzzard!" —Black Hills Letter to Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Average Height of Men.

The Druggists' Circular, in noticing the questionable statement "that we are becoming a degenerate race," discusses the tables prepared by Dr. Baxter from the records of the Provost Marshal General's Bureau, made during the civil war. These examinations were made during the latter part of the war, after the finest fighting material had been enlisted, consequently these statistics do not overestimate the average development of the American people. From the tables of Dr. Baxter and those of Mr. Gould, gathered by the Sanitary Commission, the Indians are shown to be a tall race. In the comparison of States the Indians would rank as high as the ninth, though it is curious to see that they head the list of nationalities.

Here follows the table showing the superiority in stature of 501,068 men of the various nationalities—185,448 foreigners, three-fifths of whom were from Germany and Ireland—the former having a few more thousand than the latter:

NATION.	Mean height in inches.	NATION.	Mean height in inches.
1. U. S. Indians	67.934	14. Wales	66.418
2. U. S. whites	67.672	15. Russia	66.393
3. Norway	67.467	16. Switzerland	66.361
4. Scotland	67.086	17. West Indies	66.307
5. British America	67.014	18. France	66.277
6. Sweden	66.906	19. Poland	66.211
7. Ireland	66.741	20. Mexico	66.110
8. Denmark	66.648	21. Italy	66.000
9. Holland	66.637	22. South America	65.899
10. Hungary	66.584	23. Spain	65.636
11. England	66.577	24. Portugal	65.482
12. Germany	66.536
13. U. S. colored	66.531	Mean of total	67.200

Graded according to the mean stature of the inhabitants (American born whites), the different Northern States stand as follows:

STATE.	Mean height in inches.	STATE.	Mean height in inches.
1. Kentucky	68.677	14. Maryland	67.814
2. Kansas	68.451	15. Ohio	67.683
3. Minnesota	68.371	16. Vermont	67.563
4. Missouri	68.287	17. Delaware	67.490
5. California	68.307	18. Pennsylvania	67.470
6. Nevada	68.280	19. Dist. Columbia	67.353
7. Indiana	68.060	20. Rhode Island	67.290
8. West Virginia	68.005	21. New York	67.274
9. Wisconsin	67.910	22. New Jersey	67.022
10. Maine	67.898	23. New Hampshire	66.930
11. Iowa	67.893	24. Massachusetts	66.891
12. Illinois	67.835	25. Connecticut	66.587
13. Michigan	67.820
		Mean of total	67.672

Splendid Eighteen.

A light-hearted, impulsive young lady, writing to a friend over the arrival of her eighteenth birthday, tells it in this joyous style: "Darling J——, I must write to you to-day to tell that at last I am splendid eighteen! Think of it—splendid eighteen—not timid fifteen, winning sixteen, blushing seventeen, or even bold nineteen, but—splendid eighteen! I shall commence to live from this day forth. I shall love everybody and everybody will love me."—Utica Herald.

Singular Malformation.

Among the novelties of the Paris Exhibition will be a youth of 14 with feet shaped precisely like his hands. He can use them for the same purposes, and plays upon the piano with both hands and feet, having a peculiar chair which enables him to curl his body into the necessary position. He is a very good performer, and speaks both English and German. His French is yet imperfect.

WILLIAM GOODMAN died at Newburg, N. Y., Sept. 22, aged 101 years. He was a farm-laborer, and continued at work until the day before he died.

NEVER GROW OLD.

BY EMILIE CLARK.

The seasons may alter; new dresses of green,
Drape every change in a glorious sheen;
From sunny to sombre, the singing leaves sigh,
Still cheering or soothing, with rare melody.
Aye, Nature is zealous each change to unfold,
But the heart in its worship can never grow old.

Never grow old! though the wrinkles of care
Displace every dimple and silver the hair,
Those shadows where sunshine was wont to repose,
And pallid cheeks wither where flourished the rose,
Yet still throbbeth on, where no eye can behold,
The heart in its worship that never grows old.

Though the idol long since, with the changes of time,
May have lost all its beauty of manhood and prime,
With age and misfortune bowed low to the dust,
And won in life's struggle of strife and distrust
The dross for his wages, still missing the gold,
The heart that has worshiped can never grow old.

And thus in the race [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
That lit up [illegible]
The young heart to rapture its love to unfold,
How, radiant and beaming, that never grows old.
—Chicago Ledger.

PITH AND POINT.

WHY it rains in very hot weather—The heat opens the pours of the clouds.

"As to cattle," remarks the Graphic, "the Indians want short horns. As to whisky, long ones."

CHROMOS have gone out of fashion, but a great many papers give away a man with every subscriber.

WHEN a Colorado man is asked whether he likes to be lynched, he says: "No, I'll be hanged if I do."

THIS is the latest form of wedding invitations: "Come around and see me capture my mother-in-law at 8 o'clock sharp."

AN eminent philologist, when asked what "modus operandi" meant, replied: "It is Latin for 'how the old thing works.'"

AN experienced boy says he regards hunger and the schoolmaster's rattan as about the same thing, as they both make him holler.

THE editor of the Franklin (Ky.) Patriot says that when he started for the dentist's, the other day, he took a toothhurty gait.

A MAN with very large feet had a pair of boots that were much too big for him. "Why don't you sell them?" a friend asked. "I had them half sold (soled) once," was the reply.

A MAN hid in a public doorway and jumped out and kissed his wife. She didn't whoop and yell as expected, but remarked, "Don't be so bold, mister—folks around here know me."

"GENTLEMEN of the jury," said a counsel in the Criminal Court, "do you believe that my client was guilty of selling beer to a boy in a small bottle?" The jury thought it a mixed proposition and disagreed.

A VERY tall, thin Highlander said that he "had a cold in his head, originating in wet feet." She looked at him slowly from head to foot and back again, as if measuring the distance the cold had to travel, and then ejaculated: "Gracious me! you must have got your feet wet some time last year."

A TRAMP who called at a Danbury house for something to eat, and was ordered off the premises, indignantly inquired of the proprietor: "Is your name Hilton?" "No." "All right, then," rejoined the tramp, in a softened voice, "I was going to say I wasn't a Jew."—Danbury News.

LITTLE boy No. 1 to little boy No. 2—"Do you see that freckled, pug-nosed, red-haired little boy over there?" "Yes." "Well, he's the son of my father and mother; but he's no brother of mine. What relation is he?" Does the reader give it up? So did little boy No. 2. Yet it's an easy puzzle. The first little boy lied.

MALE friend of lady visitors—"Is your sight so very bad, my poor woman? Do you think, now, you could see a shilling, if I were to show you one?" Elderly party (promptly)—"Thank ye kindly, sir. I dunno' about a shillin'; but I'm sure I could see half a crown!" (Male person hands it over directly.)

A TRAVELER says Russian babies are never washed during their first year. In America the boy babies are washed regularly by their parents until they are about 7 years old. From that time until they are 13 they may get their feet wet once in a while by some untoward accident, but their faces are rigidly treated on the Russian system.

"WHY, my sweet Arabella, you have papered this room since I was here in the spring—beautiful design! Does it represent sea-weed or some pretty little brown blossom?" "No, Mrs. Spriggins, haven't papered it. These figgers wich you see is where I mashed moskeetars on the wall!"—New York Graphic.

A DOCTOR asked a bachelor dry-good clerk if his health continued good during the heated term, and the clerk replied: "Scalp of Mohammed! you don't expect a fellow to get up any gilt-edged cholera or anything on boarding-house toast and fried liver, do you?" The benevolent doctor sent the destitute clerk a peck of cucumbers.

Great Beer Guzzlers.

The statistics of the military prison at Oberhaus, in Bavaria, contain some curious information as to the capacity of the Bavarian soldier for beer. One, an artilleryman, who was discharged for lung disease, said that twenty quarts did not exactly hurt him. A second, a mason by profession, said, "I never count up to more than ten or twelve quarts, but after that it goes quickly;" and a third was of opinion that, if he could get it, he would drink twenty-eight quarts a day and not feel it.

ANOTHER couple of poor people are going to be led to the altar of matrimony. Baron Edmund Rothschild, of Paris, is to be married to Mlle. Adele Rothschild, of the Frankfort branch of the family. They will have to start in housekeeping with the paltry capital of $100,000,000.

THERE are no less than 2,860 varieties of American apples.

CHESTNUTS are selling in the East at $2.50 per bushel.

VICTOR EMMANUEL's income is $3,500,000.

"JINED THE GRANGERS."

How a Practical Southern Farmer Managed to Get Along.

(From the Southern Husbandman.)

"You are right, mister, and it ain't hard to do nor long a doin'. Just get one or two good sows, keep 'em inside the fences so that they can't mix with bad company, push the pigs from the word go, and always put 'em in the scalden' barrel 'fore they're twenty months old. I bought me a number one sow—hadn't another hog on the place—and I raised meat to spare the first year. The man that tries to raise the woods full of hogs, raises 'em for the buzzards."

"Do you raise sheep?"

"I raise sheep, mister; and sheep raisin' is what I call killin' a whole drove of birds with one small stone. I raise sheep for the wool; I raise sheep for the mutton; I raise sheep for the increase; I raise sheep to spade up the tough turf with their sharp huffs; I raise sheep to eat bushes and yearbs that no other brute beast would touch, and manufacture 'em into fertilizers that hold their richness spite of the rain and sunshine."

"How about the dogs?"

"A dog on Pumpkinvine, mister, totes a pass, or goes with his owner, else he don't travel fur."

"You don't need a 'dog law,' then?"

"We're a dog law unto ourselves, mister."

"I reckon you follow the advice of the newspapers and plant corn."

"We're pretty much in the habit of follerin' our own advice on Pumpkinvine, mister. Not that we slight what we see in the papers if it's sensible and we can see the reason of it. But I plant corn, mister; I plant potatoes; and I plant oats and wheat; and I plant sorghum; and I plant goobers; and I plant turnips and pumpkins; and I plant artichokes for the pigs to root in the fence corners and short branch bends; and I plant peas everywhere. Some of these crops is shore to hit, and so I never make a clean miss. When they all hit it will be like a land flowin' with milk and honey."

"I see you still raise cotton."

"Till something else is started to bring Mississippi farmers money, regular and shore, I expect to raise cotton, mister. We're bound to have money, mister—it's money makes the mar go. Only I ain't going to raise cotton to buy corn and flour and meat and hosses and fertilizers."

"And mules?"

"Don't talk of mules, mister. The mule was twin brother to the nigger slave; when Congress abolished one it ought to've abolished t'other too—both or none. But speakin' of cotton, I've changed my plan of raisin' cotton."

"How?"

"I used to plant ten acres and gather two bales; now I plant four acres and gather three. This year I am hopin' to get four."

"How do you manage that?"

"It would be a long story, mister, and as my road will soon turn off I'll just tell it in two or three words: I manure, and plow, and hoe, and don't slight my work."

"But what if it is a bad crop year?"

"There ain't so many bad crap years, mister, as there is bad crap-raisers. Did you ever know a man's brag acre of cotton—the one he planted for a brag acre all to itself on some good spot—to make a clean failure?"

"I don't know that I ever did."

"Jess so. Well, the way is to plant few, and make them all brag acres."

"But what if the worms take it?"

"Worms ain't apt to take the bottom crap, mister, if it's well up to time; the bottom crap don't shed much, generally speakin', 'thout you work it on a wrong plan; and the yearly frosts don't tech the bottom crap. I work for the bottom crap, mister, from the word go. Cotton is like pigs; it wants pushin' when it's young."

"Do you patronize the Pittsburgh smiths and the St. Louis mills yet?"

"Not to speak of, we don't, mister. Started a mill over on Pumpkinvine again, Jack Smith has, and we clubbed together and sot Billy Bobkins up with a blacksmith shop right there, so as we could go to the shop and mill at the same time. Billy always had such a hankerin' for workin' iron; and Jack, he never could stand the sunshine well, poor fellow!—and didn't like to work on cloudy days. He makes a splendid miller, though. To keep Billy agoin' we all hands agreed not to buy a Yankee tool that could be made at home, no matter how cheap it was, nor how good."

"Does the mill make nice flour?"

"It makes good flour, mister, and that's better. It's got good rocks and good power, and Jake knows how to manage it, and so it grinds the wheat well; and Jake ha'n't got no bolt to sift the life out'n it. We have it ground a few bushels at a time, and take it home and sift it, and when we've a mind to we sift it again through a finer sifter. It ain't as white as snow, mister, but made with fat and buttermilk, it makes biscuits—none of your starch cakes, but biscuits you can taste, and biscuits you can feel all through your muscles and bones when you've fed on 'em a week or two. My road turns off right here. Come over on Pumpkinvine after harvest, and spend a week with us, and eat some of them biscuits and the thousand and one other good things the old woman will fix up for you. If I don't talk you to death it will put some flesh on them slim shanks—Gee, Buck—and some color and fat in them cheeks—Good-by, mister!—Get up hosses!—Get along!—I'd like to 'ave forgot to tell you, mister, but I reckon you've cotch it from my gab—me and the old woman has jined the Grangers."

French Justice on the Spot.

A very absent-minded member of the French Institute was reading the newspapers in the casino at Dieppe t'other day. Engrossed by what he was reading, his left hand unconsciously pushed the files of newspapers on the table, and over went an inkstand, falling on the white trousers of a Paris banker. The offender offered his best apologies without appeasing the banker's wrath, who shouted that his brand new pantaloons were ruined. "But, sir, I will cheerfully pay for them; be good enough to give me your card and I will send the money to your hotel." "To my hotel! Sir, I don't know you. I must instantly have the 30 francs those pantaloons cost." The offender drew forth the 30 francs and paid them; then he said: "Now that you have been paid, I hope you have too much of the delicacy of a gentleman to remain in my pantaloons. You know those pantaloons are my property, and I insist upon their immediate delivery to me. You had no confidence in me; I have none in you. My pantaloons!" In vain the banker protested against such haste. The crowd that had gathered around the disputants said the member of the Institute was right, and the banker, after sending a servant for another pair of pantaloons, surrendered the ink-stained pair.—Paris Cor. New Orleans Picayune.

Cooking Apparatus for the Army.

A new cooking apparatus, designed for the use of troops on active service in the field, was examined last week at St. Petersburg by the Assistant Director-in Chief of the Russian Intendance, and so successful was the trial made of it in his presence that orders were at once given for a number to be forwarded to the army in the valley of the Danube. The advantages of the new kitchen, which is the invention of Col. Lichin, are its great simplicity and portability. The apparatus, which is fitted on a two-wheeled vehicle drawn by two horses, consists of a cylindrical pot, provided with a furnace and chimney, and arranged so that it always remains vertical, even when the cart is moving rapidly along and jolting over the inequalities of a rough road. Cooking can, therefore, be carried on during a march as well as when the kitchen is stationary. The interior of the apparatus consists of two copper cylinders placed one inside the other; the inside of the larger and both the inside and the outside of the smaller being tinned. The outer cylinder is fitted with pipe and a stop-cock, by which water can be introduced, while the inner vessel is closed with a lid, fitting hermetically, through which, however, a curved pipe enters the smaller from the top of the larger. The food to be cooked is placed in the inner vessel, and consequently is not subjected immediately to the action of the fire, but to that of the boiling water in the outer vessel and of the steam which enters by the pipe from the latter. Safety-valves are provided, and also cocks for emptying and cleaning the outer cylinder. Such a kitchen of the size recommended by Col. Lichin for use in the field will cook in three hours enough stchi and oatmeal soup for a company of 250 men; and as the apparatus only occupies the hinder part of the conveyance the other half of the carriage is available for the transport of uncooked food, cups, dishes and so forth.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Chloral Drinking.

The drug called chloral hydrate, discovered by the eminent German chemist, Liebreich, some years ago, and which soon attained a reputation as a substitute for opium in many cases, especially in delirium tremens, is rapidly becoming as dangerous among victims of excitants and stimulants as alcohol or opium itself. One person who became a "chloral drinker," as it is called, writes his experience to a medical journal as follows:

"I am a man 64 years of age, and now sobered down—and respectable; but I have tried at one time and another all the narcotics and stimulants known, except hasheesh, which I have never been able to obtain. In June, 1875, I thought chloral hydrate might be something nice. I took thirty grains of it in a tumblerful of water, which had a pleasing effect. I then took thirty grains more, which seemed to take away my memory. I followed it up for two days, every little while taking thirty grains largely diluted with water. During these two days I swallowed three-fourths of an ounce of chloral hydrate. At last I could not hold anything in my hands, which were partially paralyzed. I had to be assisted home, and went to bed and slept most of the time for one day and two nights. I then went about my business, but of all the sufferings I ever endured I think this was the worst. I was not free from pain a moment for thirty days. The pain was greatest in my knees and legs. I would go to bed at night, get in an easy position, and lie perfectly still, and not stir in the least, and finally would go to sleep. The first thing on awaking were those dreadful pains. The sufferings resembled those of the opium-eater when deprived of the drug. With one or two exceptions I cannot recall anything that happened during those two days. I think I had a narrow escape from death. I shall not take any more chloral hydrate."—Louisville Medical News.

How Bread-Crusts are Used in Paris.

"What becomes of the old moons? What becomes of the old crusts of bread in Paris?" asks the Figaro, and then tells of their transformations. The boulanger en vieux, freely translated, "baker of the old," utilizes the pieces of dry, damaged and abandoned bread. He gathers the crusts in boarding-houses, convents and hotels. These morsels, covered with sand, stained with ink, and often picked from heaps of refuse, are sold by servants to the "Baker of Old," who turns them into new preparations. The merchandise is first carefully sorted out. The fragments which are judged to be still in a presentable condition are dried in an oven and form croutes au pot, which are used up in soup at low-class restaurants. Almost all the lozenge-shaped crusts served in dishes of vegetables have this origin. The crumbs and defective crusts are pounded in a mortar until they become a white paste, which butchers use to adorn cutlets. All the material that appears absolutely incapable of further service is then roasted, reduced to charcoal, ground into powder, and, by the addition of a few drops of essence of mint, is converted into a tooth paste. Such is one of the metamorphoses of Parisian industry Baltimore American.

A Great Cat-Race.

The greatest of the cat-races ever held in Belgium came off recently at Belcele, near Bonsecoures. There were seventy entries for the chief prize. The animals were carried some four miles from the village in baskets, and there let loose. Of course they all ran toward home swiftly. Minette, a pretty white cat with a pensive eye, reached the town first and won the first prize—a silver coffee-pot. Lolo, a big tortoise-shell, which had been made the favorite in the betting, jumped the course, and has not since been heard of.

A Case of Sickly Sentimentality.

Chronicling the tearful scene in a New York court when the forger Gilman was sentenced, and the briny flood which flowed in Plymouth Church when Beecher referred to the mournful affair, the Chicago Tribune says:

"Now that the rain is over and gone, it may not be impertinent to inquire why all this sniveling and boohooing. Were they weeping because this respectable rascal stole over $200,000 of the people's money by the refined processes of raising the values of scrip and of forgery? Because a large part of this amount was stolen from his own brothers and sisters, whom he would not spare in his genteel operations? Because he had used his position in church and his religious reputation as a screen for his dishonesty? Because he not only was a hypocrite in his daily life, but even carried it into a confession that was filled with sickly sentiment? Because he concealed his real character from a trusting wife and loving children, and gave them to expect a life of ease and affluence, when he knew his thieving must sooner or later become known, and that his family must suffer from the name with which he would be branded? Because, with every incentive to be honest, he deliberately entered upon a criminal life, commencing with a breach of trust, and ending with forgeries upon his own relations? Because he gave liberally to religion, to charity, to art and to personal hospitality, from other people's money which he had stolen? Was it for these reasons that Beecher and Hackett, counsel and spectators, and all Plymouth Church, cried? Was it because he got only five years' sentence when he should have had twenty-five, or that he went to the penitentiary no longer time for stealing $200,000 than some poor devils have gone for stealing a coat with which to keep themselves warm, that made the detectives weep? Whatever may have been the causes, it is just such sickly sentimentality as was displayed in the court-room that tends to make the crime of forgery respectable and to veneer this class of stealing. It is just such maudlin exhibitions as these that make men doubt the efficacy of justice and the dignity of law, and compel the question, Is there much incentive to be honest when a court and a church unite their tears over a felon on his way to the penitentiary?"

Singular Occurrence.

A strange scene occurred the other day at Sierck, on the Moselle, France. Herr Schmidt had a dog which he wished to get rid of. Rowing out into the middle of the river he fastened a stone around the dog's head and threw him into the water. The animal sank at once, but during his struggles the rope slipped off the stone, and he again rose to the surface and tried to get back into the boat. His master, however, continued to push him back, but as the dog persevered he lost his patience, and, striking at him with his oar, lost his footing and fell into the water himself. He was unable to swim, but the dog, seizing him by his coat, succeeded in bringing him to land after having been repeatedly washed away by the current. The dog's life was spared, we are happy to say.

The Original Locomotive Engineer.

The first man who ever ran a locomotive is Frank Finch, a gentleman of 65 years, who has been an engineer for thirty-five years, during which time he never tallied a single accident—never hurt a man, a cow, or even a dog in his life. He ran the lightning express on the New York Central for fourteen years, carrying the last Governor's message before the electric telegraph was established between Schenectady and Utica, a distance of seventy-five miles, in ninety-five minutes. This was in the days of the old-style strap rails, when such a feat was considered miraculous. Mr. Finch was married when he was 20 years old, and now resides with his wife at Berlin, Wis.

ALTHOUGH the Brazilian law recognizes the death penalty, the present Emperor has never yet consented o sign a death warrant.

Emaciation a Remediable Defect.

Leanness not only detracts from personal comeliness, but is an index that the blood is deficient in nutritive properties. To remedy emaciation, enrich and purify the blood, which will then develop healthy flesh. This object is most readily attained through the agency of the great blood fertilizer and depurent, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which enables the stomach to extract from the food taken into it ample nourishment for the system, removes all obstacles to complete digestion and assimilation, and, by stimulating the kidneys to vigorous action, incites those organs to strain from the vital fluid in its passage through them impurities which would otherwise impair its flesh-creating qualities. Not only do the Bitters promote the development of solid fiber, but they also increase muscular power and elasticity, overcome nervousness, banish mental depression, and protect the system against disease.

Wonder Upon Wonder.

Given away—A strange, mysterious and most extraordinary Book, entitled "THE BOOK OF WONDERS." Containing, with numerous curious pictorial illustrations, the mysteries of the Heavens and Earth, Natural and Supernatural, Oddities, Whimsical, Strange Curiosities, Witches and Witchcraft, Dreams, Superstitions, Absurdities, Fabulous, Enchantment, &c. In order that all may see this curious book, the publishers have resolved to give it away to all that desire to see it. Address by postal card, F. GLEASON & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

MAKE NO MISTAKE.—In DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER you get the best article of the kind in the world. The cans are always full weight, the article itself the purest and strongest possible, so that a smaller quantity than usual suffices. Do you want your baking always perfect? Don't fail then to use DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood-Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

HE that judgeth without knowledge is a fool and wisdom is not in him. You can get knowledge of the $50 Five-Ton Wagon Scale, sold on trial, freight prepaid, by sending to Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y., for free price list.

$50 to $12 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Pub'g House, Chicago.

PRINTERS AND STATIONERS!

Send 50 cents and get a large sample package of our NOVELTIES in Ball Programmes, Visiting Cards, Wedding Stationery, Billet de Correspondence Envelopes and Note with monogram date (something new), fine Cardboard, etc. Address THE NEWSPAPER UNION, 181 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

THE GREAT REGULATOR.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

PURELY VEGETABLE.

An Effectual Specific for
Malarious Fevers,
Bowel Complaints, Dyspepsia,
Mental Depression,
Restlessness,
Jaundice,
Nausea, Colic,
Sick Headache,
Constipation and Billiousness.

ASK the recovered dyspeptics, Bilious sufferers, victims of Fever and Ague, the mercurial diseased patient, how they recovered health, cheerful spirits and good appetite—they will tell you by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This [illegible] malarial diseases.

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies."

CONSTIPATION.

TESTIMONY OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF GEORGIA.—"I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it."—HIRAM WARNER, Chief Justice of Georgia.

ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

WORK FOR ALL

In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged), Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

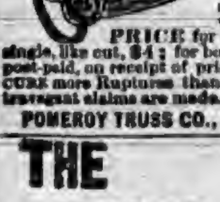
THE NEW YORK
Commercial Advertiser.

Terms—Postage Prepaid—Daily, one year, $9; six months, $4.50; three months, $2.25; one month, 75 cents.

Weekly, one year, $1; six months, 50 cents. Specimen numbers sent on application. An extra copy to Club Agents for club of ten; the Daily for club of thirty.

The Commercial Advertiser is the best Republican paper published in this country. Its Weekly edition is unsurpassed. Special terms to Agents.

All letters should be sent to
HUGH J. HASTINGS, 126 Fulton St., N. Y. City.



ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT.

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.

POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

THE GOOD OLD STAND-BY.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

FOR MAN AND BEAST.

ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

WILHOFT'S
Anti-Periodic,
— OR —
FEVER AND AGUE TONIC.

For All Diseases Caused by Malarial Poisoning of the Blood.

A Warranted Cure!

G. R. FINLAY & CO.,
New Orleans, Prop's.

☞ FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

The Crucial Test of the value of a medicine is time. Does experience confirm the claims put forth in its favor at the outset? is the grand question. Apply this criterion, so simple, yet so searching, to TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT. How has it worn? What has been its history? How does it stand to-day?

Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient

is a household name throughout the United States. It is administered as a specific, and with success, in dyspepsia, sick headache, nervous debility, liver complaint, bilious remittents, bowel complaints (especially constipation), rheumatism, gout, gravel, nausea, the complaints peculiar to the maternal sex, and all types of inflammation. So mild is it in its operation that it can be given with perfect safety to the feeblest child; and so agreeable is it to the taste, so refreshing to the palate, that children never refuse to take it. For sale by all druggists.

HELP FOR THE HORSE!

Every man who owns a horse should have a pair of

Furlong's Patent
FOOT COOLERS & EXPANDERS

Which remove all fever from the feet, and keep them in a clean, moist and healthy condition, absolutely preventing corns, contracted feet, quarter-cracks and scratches. The moist sponge is held securely on the bottom of the foot, keeping the frog in a healthy, natural condition. They can be used for a Stuffing-Boot, and do not cost one-fourth as much as the old leather one. The cut represents the Holder and Sponge on the foot. The best horsemen of the country heartily indorse it as one of the most humane and valuable inventions of the day. Horses' feet have been restored from an unsound condition to a healthy one in three weeks' time. Its result surprises every one. For sale by Harness-Makers and dealers in Turf goods. Single pairs sent to any address upon receipt of price, $1.50 per pair. In ordering, send diameter of hoof measured across the bottom of the foot. Send for descriptive circular, with list of testimonials from the leading horsemen and veterinary surgeons of the country. I have also a valuable Sponge Liniment for bad feet, which I will forward with Cooler at $1.00 per quart bottle. Liberal terms and exclusive territory given to Agents. Address E. B. DRAPER, 193 Washington St., Chicago.

GRACE'S SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION.

Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

155 GOLD COIN

AND OTHER PREMIUMS GIVEN FREE
BY THE SAN FRANCISCO
WEEKLY CHRONICLE!

There is no limit to the number of PRIZES any one person may receive.

$5,000 A YEAR

Can be made in this manner.

The success of the DAILY and WEEKLY CHRONICLE is unparalleled in the history of journalism.
It is the most brilliant, fearless, enterprising and complete Newspaper on the Pacific Coast.
Its Telegraphic Reports and Local News are the very best, and its Editorials the ablest.
Its Agricultural, Mining and Market Reports are perfect.
Particulars, Specimen Copy and Illustrated Descriptive Circulars sent FREE.
Terms—WEEKLY CHRONICLE, $2.50 per year; DAILY CHRONICLE, $6.70 per year, postage paid.

CHAS. DE YOUNG & CO., Publishers,
San Francisco, Cal.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

Absolutely Pure.

☞ Will go one-third further than adulterated or short-weight kinds. Consumers may obtain this unequaled powder of grocers; or send 60 cts. for 1 lb Can to ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., N. Y., Box 3776, and receive it, postage paid, by return mail, with recipes for making the celebrated Vienna Rolls, Biscuit, Cakes, Corn Bread, Muffins, etc. Sold only in Tin Cans. In writing, state where you saw this notice.

THE CHEAPEST & BEST
ADVERTISING
TO REACH READERS OUTSIDE OF THE LARGE CITIES.

We represent over 1,000 Newspapers, having a weekly circulation of over 600,000 Copies, divided into six different lists, covering different sections of the country.

Advertisements received for one or more lists. For catalogues, containing names of papers and other information, and for estimates, address

BEALS & FOSTER,
41 Park Row (Times Building), New York.

THOMSON'S PATENT
GLOVE-FITTING CORSETS.

The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of Imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark, a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.

SURPASSES ALL OTHERS FOR COMFORT. GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION. FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY.

NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Recommend It Heartily.

SOUTH BOSTON.

MR. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—I have taken several bottles of your VEGETINE, and am convinced it is a valuable remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaint, and general debility of the system.
I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from the above complaints. Yours respectfully,
MRS. MUNROE PARKER.

Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

"The Best Polish in the World."

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

A KEY TO BOOKKEEPING!

The Best Text Book and Self-Instructor in the World. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of Fifty Cents, by the author, GEO. R. WELSH, Savannah, Georgia.

CHICAGO VOLTAIC AND TRUSS CO.

The Inventor of NOVELTY TRUSS has had extensive experience in fitting Trusses. For years this was his principal business. He became dissatisfied with them. They were inconvenient and injured the spine. NOVELTY TRUSS is worn with ease, and is a thorough abdominal and hernia support. Used in Principal Western Medical Institutes. Price $4.00. Voltaic Belt, $5.00; Pile Supporter, $2.50; Uterine Supporter, $6.00; Digital Syringe, $5.00. Discount to Trade and Physicians. Goods sent C. O. D. For circulars address, with stamp, CHICAGO VOLTAIC AND TRUSS CO., 80 Washington St., CHICAGO.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
Creative Science;
Or, MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD, AND THEIR MUTUAL INTER-RELATIONS; LOVE, ITS LAWS, POWER, ETC.

Agents are selling from 15 to 25 copies a day. Send for specimen pages and our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

☞ BOOK AGENTS, TAKE NOTICE!

JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE

Has "wrote another book," and it is really
SAMANTHA AT THE CENTENNIAL!

As a P. A. and P. I. outdoes herself, and WIDOW DOODLE leaves BETSY BOBBET far behind. Don't wait and lose your chance; send for circulars, territory, &c., at once. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O., and HARTFORD, CONN.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

AGENTS WANTED!

FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS
WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.
829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.

MILITARY

and Band Uniforms—Officers' Equipments, etc., manufactured by M. C. LILLEY & CO., Columbus, Ohio. Send for Price Lists.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

$55 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

A GOOD WELL can be made in one day with our 4-foot WELL AUGER. Send for our auger book. U. S. AUGER CO., St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY selling our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$4½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Metal works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ills.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & Co., Chicago.

BEATTY Piano, Organ best. ☞ Look! startling news. Organs, 12 stops $55. Pianos only $130, cost $650. Cir. Free. Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

$300 a month to Agents. Don't go to the poor-house. Send stamp for immense illustrated catalogue. O. G. BRYANT, Chicago, Ill.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 35 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

WANTED Detectives. A few men in each State for the Detective Service. Pay liberal. Position permanent. Send stamp for particulars. U. S. SECRET SERVICE Co., 230 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded, ruptured, accidentally injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. N. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Att'y, Washington, D. C.

SELF-INKING TRIUMPH PRINTING PRESS, $3.50; Outfit & Press, $8.50. Young America hand & self-inkers the best for business. Send 3 stamps for catalogue to D. W. WATSON, 73 Cornhill, Boston, Mass.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

WE WANT AN AGENT in every county in the country to sell our Homeopathic Remedies, put up in small, neat cases for families, and sold at $1 each. Send $1 for sample case and terms to Agents. Address McCLELLAND & CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT

The best family newspaper published; eight pages; fifty-six columns reading.
Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of eleven, $15 per annum, in advance.
SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Estab'd 1830.]

BOYS AND GIRLS Wanted Everywhere to send for a sample copy of "The Home Companion," beyond dispute the cheapest and best young folks' paper published. An immense circulation built up in 4 years. Great premiums for getting up clubs, including Organs, Gold Watches, &c. Only 50c a year. Eight pages full of puzzles, stories & choicest reading. Samples and terms free. S. L. THORPE, Publisher, 14 Bolivar St., Cleveland, O.

THE NEWARK
DAILY and WEEKLY COURIER,
NEWARK, NEW JERSEY.
F. F. PATTERSON, Editor and Proprietor.
THE LEADING REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER OF NEW JERSEY.

Terms—Daily, $8.00 per annum. Weekly, $2.00. Advertisements inserted on liberal terms. Send for Price-List.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER
TAKEN INTERNALLY

There is nothing to equal it, relieving you of pain in a short time, and curing all bowel complaints, such as colic, cramps, spasms, heartburn, diarrhea, dysentery, flux, wind in the bowels, sour stomach, dyspepsia, sick headache. In sections of the country where Fever and Ague prevails there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or bowel troubles from change of water. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,

Desiring the Best Book extant, should try FAVORITE SONGS An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for those use by Profs. H. R. and T. B. S. Christie, and supervised by Prof. H. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $6.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

POSITIVELY CURED

When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and DR. H. JAMES was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of INDIAN HEMP, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free, on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night-sweat, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address, CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best.
Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts
Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief.
The very best, six for $7.00.
Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure,
The very best, six for $9.00.
An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts.
Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay.
Samples, with full directions for self-measurement,
Sent Free to any address. No stamp required.
Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivaled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture. For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
☞ For Sale by all Druggists.

SANDAL-WOOD.

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

C. N. U. No. 42

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

MEN'S RUBBER BOOTS, BEST FOR $3.00. THE BEST PAIR GUM BOOTS

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 1, 1877.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 28, 1877.

DEAR COURIER.—If there is any one feature in this city to which the word "Excelsior" may be applied, it is that of her hotels and restaurants. If I were to include boarding houses, it would be an untruthful assertion, for no where on the face of the [illegible] is an abomination in the sight of christian people as a Washington boarding-house. They are as numerous as the population will admit, even at its maxium figure.—Down its most beautiful avenues, up its broad thoroughfares, along its parks, and on the back streets, is that glaring placard—"Furnished Rooms, With Board." Its most stately mansions and handsome private residences are not free from this incubus, and the most fastidious can be pleased as to style and location. Three-fourths of the houses in the resident part of the city offer furnished rooms to the public usually most elegantly and elaborately provided with every convenience. But in her hotels and restaurants is where Washington is famous. Who has not heard of Willard's, the Arlington, the Imperial, the Ebbitt, St. James, National, &c, all excellant caravancaries to the public taste. While at the Ebbitt, the other day, a friend invited me to explore those departments not open to the public.

Hotel keeping is one of the arts in which but few men are eminently and wholly successful. To run a hotel as it should be requires a man of almost superhuman tact and ingenuity, one who can make two or more persons feel at home and comfortable at the same time and with the same contingencies, although their tastes may run in exactly opposite directions. His annoyances and vexations are untold, and yet withal he must keep a smiling countenance and act his part of "ye host" with great suavity and ease. The profession is extensively followed, and anywhere in the civilized world may be found well managed first-class hotels.

Washington is not found wanting in this regard, and can boast, not perhaps of as large or elegant individual public houses, but of as well regulated and popular hotels as are to be found in any of our American cities. Popularity with a hotel is made or lost by the management of its "cuisine." Let the inner man be satisfied and the outer will be pleased. There are few guests, as they study the elaborate bill of fare of a large hotel, who consider for a moment the immense amount of details, processes, and labor that has to be gone through with by the denizens of the culinary department to prepare the great variety of edibles from which they choose. From the office door up the hotel business and routine is moderately well understood, if not comprehended by the average guest, and so a few details gathered on a tour through the kitchens of this large hotel will be of interest, especially to the housekeepers who can best understand these things.

Down we went through many tortuous halls and winding stairs to where the larders were located and provisions kept. Here the gentlemanly steward, Mr. W. M. Gilson, explained the many processes through which the stores passed from the time they were purchased till they reached the table as food. The principal feature of the kitchen was its marvelous cleanliness It was a sight that would make the goodly housekeeper's heart beat with enthusiasm. On the left of the kitchen was the immense range, upon which were cooking no less than thirty-two different articles, with room left for twice that number. All around the walls hung the brightly-polished copper pans, dishes and unnumbered cooking utensils and contrivances to facilitate the labor of cooking Through the centre of the kitchen was a row of tables, upon any one of which a meal could be eaten and enjoyed by the most fastidious, so spotless were they and so devoid of the least offending odor.

"Here," said the steward, leading the way down a short flight of stairs, "is what we term our larder. It has a capacity of hundreds of pounds of produce and three tons of ice. In this all our meat is kept for a week, until it is ripe. The thermometer keeps down to 40°, and so everything is well preserved On your right is our store, as we term it. Here all the groceries and extras are kept, and are to be had only upon a regular requisition from the cook.

"One man is employed as store-keeper and knows just how much of one thing is used per week. Cooks? We employ twelve in all, that jovial, fleshy man over at the range is the head one, and has five assistants at the large range, while the others make the confectionery and pastry. Our waiters number seventy-five, and we have four men who preside at the knife and do the carving. To supply our table it takes sixteen bls. of flour a week, 2,900 pounds of meat, which includes beef, mutton, &c; 1,050 pounds of poultry, 515 pounds of fish and 500 dozen eggs. That side range to the right is our "Massasoit House" waffle baker. It is the only one in the city, and we can cook fifty waffles on it at once, This long table in front of the range is where the food is served to the dinning room waiters. At one the soup is dished up, next to that the fish, then vegetables, meats, and lastly, at the outer end, the deserts and confectionery.—In this way we avoid all confusion and save much time In order to meet the wishes of all our guests, we serve seven meals a day, in fact we are serving continually, all the time, from 5 a. m. until 12 at night. We have guests who day after day will commence their system of meals at 5 a. m. with a cup of coffee they will breakfast at nine, lunch at 11, take a light dinner at half-past two, dine regularly at five, take tea at seven and eat a hearty supper anywhere between nine and twelve p. m. And yet with all they are not happy."

Things are very quiet here just now, and legislative matters are at a stand still. The two Houses met and adjourned with great regularity, and, to break the monotony jump two or three days at one adjournment. Two weeks have passed and only five daily sessions have held. These sessions, contrary to general expectations are very uninteresting It was expected that as Ben Butler had got back into the House there would be lots of music, but Ben, so far, has disappointed his most ardent admirers.—There is some talk now of making a short session, merely passing the appropriations needed, and adjourning until December. There is some good material on both sides, and an exciting debate may be sprung at any moment. In fact a silent but earnest watchfulness is being maintained by both parties. The Republicans are not a unit on administrative affairs, while the Democrats are sanguine of an early disruption of their political opponents.—Things cannot go on much longer in this silent manner, and the slightest protest may ignite the dynamite that shall burst out into a debate eclipsing that of Hill and Blaine, of two years ago. The announcement of the Committees is promised to-day. There is some log-rolling for the various chairmanships, but it is evident there will be quite a change in those of the last session.

I was favored with an invitation to go to the races at Pimlico, last Thursday, and [illegible] I never knew before that running races could be made so interesting and exciting. To one used only to the ordinary exhibitions of speed, this was indeed a novelty. What perfect system and precision overshadows everything. No delays, no anxious waiting, no confusion. Think of it, five first-class races given from two o'clock until five. Here was animation, enthusiasm and excitement uninterrupted. Pimlico is about six miles from Baltimore, where most delightful grounds are fitted up on a most extensive scale. The very best horses in the country were entered among them the famous Ten Broeck, and Tom Ochiltree, the former having the best time on record. The first race was for a mile and it was the jolliest kind of fun to see thirteen splendid horses led upon the track for the struggle. They made the mile in 1.45½ and not a horse distanced! The second race was for 1¼ miles, ran in 2:11.

Then came the grand race between TenBroecks and Tom Ochiltree and Parole. In the pools they stood in the order above. Half a million dollars was staked on the race. Senators, Congressmen, Judges, Governors and others high in office were there, many of them with money in the pools. Some may want to know what pools are, as a great many intelligent persons are not acquainted with the modus operandi of betting. We will take the three horses named above. A bets $100 on Ten Broeck and the pool seller gives him a card on which is the amount and name of the horse as first choice. A pays over his $100 and B bets $50 on Ochiltree, and the pool seller gives him a card, naming the amount and horse as second choice. The money is paid to the pool seller as before, and C bets $25 on Parole, and he gets a card naming amount and horse as third choice. All this money put together is called a pool, which amounts to $175. Now, if the first wins Ten Broeck gets all the pool, if the second, Ochiltree gets it, and if the third, then Parole scoops it in. This pool is numbered 1, and if they sell any more they are numbered consecutively as far as they go. After the race, if your horse wins, you go to the pool seller who is generally a responsible party and get your money on the card he gave you, but if you have lost it will be unnecessary to call.

When these horses were brought out the wildest excitement prevailed about the pools, and on the grand stand the ladies became as much excited as the men. The horses started nicely, and seemed to pass us like a streak. The jockeys with their bright colors was all that could be seen on the other side of the track, as these three magnificent bays got down to their work. Two miles and a half before them and every muscle in play. Here they are again, scoring 1.55 for the first mile. Away they go around the bend, their clattering hoofs resounding along the line and their riders urging them to their best. But no need of much urging. They are thoroughbreds, and but a length intervenes between the front and rear. But all at once a breathless suspense takes place and the bright red color of the rider of TenBroeck is not to be seen at the front. Only a half mile more, with Tom and Parole struggling for the advance, with poor old John Harper's pet in the rear. How they come down the home stretch. A cheer begins at the upper end and as they near the grand stand, it follows them until one wild, terrific yell greets them as Parole passes under the string a length ahead. You can't imagine how one feels on such an occasion you must be there to realize it. I cannot describe it. When the horses came back to the score Parole was received with renewed cheers, and his rider was lifted from his back and carried on the heads of the crowd with cheers and yells until it became a perfect ovation. I was sorry for one thing, I did not have a cent in the pools and did not win or lose one. Imagine the result if I had invested $1,000,000 on Parole. It grieves me to think of it.

TOM.

* * *

Samuel J. Tilden has returned home. He arrived Thursday.

* * *

Turkey will accept peace if the several parties wish to mediate.

* * *

Kansas puts her dishonest bankers in the penitentiary for five years.

* * *

Another Savings Bank has gone up.—This time in Alleghney City, Pa.

* * *

The State Guards have disbanded and returned their arms to the State.

* * *

The English coal miners are out on a strike. 7,000 went out Saturday last.

* * *

No more silver trade dollars are to be coined at present, so Secretary Sherman says.

* * *

The Democrats and Workingmen, of Chicago, have joined hands and propose to fight it out together.

* * *

Senator Morton has endorsed Hayes' policy. The Cincinnati Enquirer says, it comes like a voice from the tomb.

* * *

The temperance question seems to have received impetus from Father Murphy's lecture and has taken a fresh hold.

* * *

The president has appointed John M Harland, of Kentucky, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Davis of Illinois.

* * *

Tweed's full confession is at last published. He goes into detail giving names and dates and amounts of the ring transactions.

* * *

And still the good work goes on.—Baltimore city has just succeeded in electing a full Democratic ticket in her city government only one ward, in the whole city being lost.

* * *

George L. Fox so well known as the original Humpty Dumpty died on Wednesday of last week at his brother-in-laws in Boston.

* * *

Alexander Reed, postmaster of Toledo and the principal stockholder of the Toledo Blade Paper Co., made an assignment last week.

* * *

While the Louisiana question was under consideration Senator Davis took sides with the Democrats, both parties showing a solid front.

* * *

More Civil Service Reform. But now it is in the church. The Arch Bishop of the diocese of Quebec forbids the clergymen to meddle in politics.

* * *

A careful canvass has been made of the Senate, and those who conducted it say that there is a clear majority in favor of the restoration of the old silver dollar to its former monetary power.—Many Senators on both sides are in favor of making subsidiary silver coin legal tender, but the outlook now is that the first step will be to restore "the dollar of the daddies," and follow it with more general legislation on the subject. It can be set down as a fixed fact that restoration of the silver dollar to its former value is inevitable, unless vetoed by Hayes.

* * *

Indiana may well feel proud of her delegation in Congress. A Washington paper in speaking of it says that a finer looking and more intelligent body of gentlemen as a whole never represented any State in Congress. Of the thirteen members and Senators, only three will fall short of, while at least one-third of them will tower several inches above 6 feet in height. Major Calkins leads them all in this respect, he being six ft. four inches, a giant in form as well as intellect, and is, the ladies say, as handsome as a picture. A majority of them will be "heard from" this winter in more ways than one.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al, are plaintiffs and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five [25] township thirty-four [34], north of range thirteen [13] east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

McBride, Morlan & Lees, Att'y's for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause where Geo. Emerson et al is plaintiffs and Benajah B. Lang, Edgar B Lang and et al is defendants requiring me to make the sum of eleven hundred and thirty dollars ($1130), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Commencing fifteen (15) rods east of the north west corner of section four (4) thence running south to the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Rail Road thence east thirty-five (35) rods thence north to said section line thence west to the place of begining all in township thirty four (34) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

Best & McClellan, Attorneys for plaintiffs

Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877.

Pf. $9.25,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Miles Waterman is plaintiff, and William L. Gilmore and Ellen M. Gilmore is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and eighty-nine (289) dollars and eighty-eight (88) cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number forty-seven (47) forty-eight (48) fifty-five (55) and fifty-six (56) in Danforth's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan & Lees, Attorneys for plff.

Auburn, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pf. $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Jas. L. Best and Chas A. O. McClellan is plaintiff, and Irven McFadden et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one thousand one hundred and eighty-five ($1185) dollars and ninety-one (91) cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A portion of the north western quarter of section number three (3) in township number thirty-four (34) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb county, Indiana, described as follows to-wit: all that portion of said quarter section lying south of the Cemetery as now recorded in said quarter section and west of the west line of the Fort Wayne Jackson and Saginaw Rail Road containing two (2) acres more or less.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and cost.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

O. B. Lees one of defendants Attorneys.

Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877.

Pf. $9.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff, and John A. Schinfield et al, is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and nineteen dollars and thirteen cents ($419.13) with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

South half of the West half of the North-east quarter of sec. Ten [10], Township number [illegible] North of Range [illegible] East, containing [illegible] acres more or less, in DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan and Lees Attorneys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Oct. 16th 1877.

Pr fee $4.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles H Wannamaker is plaintiff, and Frank [illegible] and Hamar J. Chi[illegible] are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Fifty-Five Dollars and Fifty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lot number one hundred and fifty-nine (159) in Egnew's third addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.

Pinchin & Boyle, Attorneys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 2nd A. D. 1877.

Ptr's. fee $4.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Thomas W. Sharp is plaintiff and Emeline Espey and Henry Espey et al, are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four hundred and Twelve dollars and Seventy cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number two hundred and forty-three (243) and two hundred and forty-four (244), in Hornberger's addition to the town of Waterloo, in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan & Lees, Att'ys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 23, 1877

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Crane, Duncan & Co are plaintiffs, and Perry Fitch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Eight Hundred and Fifty-Eight dollars with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section thirty-five [35], township thirty three (33), north of range twelve (12), east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24, 1877.

P. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph E Shilling Trustee is plaintiff and Ebenezer K. Williams et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Nine Hundred and Thirteen dollars and Seventy Five cents with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A part of lot number one hundred and thirty-eight (138), in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing thirty-one and three tenths feet west of the north-east corner of said lot on the north line thereof and running thence south sixty-six (66) feet to the south line of said lot, thence west forty-two (42) feet, thence north sixty-six (66) feet to the north line of said lot, thence east forty-two (42) feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana Oct 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $10.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein the Singer Manufacturing Company is plaintiff and Barbara M. Brown and Charles Klotz are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-seven Dollars and Thirty Cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south one-third of lot number sixty-six (66) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, October 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $4.25.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Essig deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

October 18, 1877 no3.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will make a large and special offering of

Black Silks,

Bought at the great Silk Sale of Townsend, Montant & Co, New York City. on last Wednesday, at which time 6,000 pieces were sold to the highest bidder, viz.

Black Silks	65c worth		85	Black Silks	1.15 worth		1.40
"	75	"	95	"	1.25	"	1.50
"	85	"	1.00	"	1.40	"	1.75
"	1.00	"	1.25	"	1.50	"	1.90

Finer Grades Equally as Cheap.

We also offer

Black and Colored Trimming Velvets

At $1,50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.50 per yard.

Cloaking Velvets,

28 inches at $4.00, worth $6.00.

28 inches at $6.00 worth $7.50.

Ponsons sublime quality 28-inch Black Cloak Velvet at $14.00 per yard worth $18.00.

CHENEY'S AMERICAN GROS GRAIN SILKS.

22 inches wide warranted to wear and give perfect satisfaction, in choice shades of Brown, Navy Blue, Green, Plum, Bronze, Drab, Price $1,50 per yard.

New arrivals of Cloaks, Shawls, Suits, Furs, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Mats and Rugs.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Geo. Ensley is plaintiff, and Thomas M. Stevens et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Eleven dollars and Ten cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fourty-two (42) in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein William H. Baker is plaintiff and Christian Seivert et al are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Sixty Four dollars and Sixty-Nine cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of lot number five (5) in Kuhlman's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

STATE OF INDIANA, DeKalb county.

NOTICE is hereby given that Jesse M. Brumbach, Administrator of the estate of Lyman Green, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Attest, G. A. K. MOSS, Clerk.

B. D. HARRIS, Deputy.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Draggoo is plaintiff, and William Whetstone, Rebecca Whetstone, David Grosh, and Samuel Grosh are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five thousand one hundred and eighty-seven (5187) dollars and [illegible] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing at a corner stone in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, from thence south seventeen and one half (17½) degrees west [illegible] to a stake, thence south seventy-two and one half (72½) degrees east four (4) chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half (17½) west three and seventy-five hundredth chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one half (72½) degrees four (4) chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence [illegible] to the place of beginning, a piece of ground in the south west quarter of section thirty-five (35) in township thirty-four (34) north of range thirteen (13), east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn Nov. 1st, 1877.

Pf. $12.50.

NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives the notice that he will not be responsible for debts contracted by any one in his name, no matter who they may be.

HENRY MAXWELL.

Oct. 11th, 1877. 3w.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Draggoo is plaintiff, and Samuel Grosh et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and forty-five (545) dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, the undivided one-third of the following described real estate, commencing at a corner stone between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road then a south seventeen and one-half (17½) degrees west along a center of said road [illegible]

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877.

Pf. $12.50.

BOOK STORE

WILLIS & CO.

Successors to C. P. Houser, having purchased the above named stock, we wish to say to the people of Auburn and vicinity that by the patronage that we hope to merit, we expect to build up a first-class

BOOK AND NEWS STORE,

that will be a credit to the place. We are adding a large variety of goods, and shall endeavor to keep on hand the novelties of the season. We solicit orders for

Books, Magazines, Papers, etc.,

which will be furnished promptly at the publishers prices by

WILLIS & CO.

October 11, '77—no11.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Moser, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH MOSER, Adm'x.

October 1st, 1877—no11.

Administrator's Sale.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned administratrix of the estate of William Essig deceased, will offer for sale at public outcry, at the late residence of the deceased, in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the 17th day of November, 1877, the personal property of said estate, consisting of horses, cattle, sheep and farming implements and various other articles. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock, a. m.

TERMS.—All sums of three dollars and under cash, all over three dollars a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving note with approved security, waiving valuation and appraisement laws, with interest.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

* * *

Wall and Window paper cheap, at Davenport's.

MADE FOR $4.00, AT THE BOOT UPSIDE DOWN, AUBURN,IN DIANA.

Auburn Courier.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. J. R. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. R. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. Chas. Treuschel, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock P. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH.

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS
AND
MILLINERY STORE
North of Court House, Auburn, Ind.
You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in
LADIES HATS,
AND MILLINERY GOODS'
Fancy Dry Goods,
Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and ties in all designs. Also
LADIES CLOAKS,
Of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every discription. The lines in the new goods are complete.
J. R. LANNING.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 25c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 15c.
—Butter 15c.
—Potatoes 25c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $4 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.18 @ 1.20
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

A Parrot for Sale

It was very careless leaving the parrot in the parlor Sunday evening, but she never thought anything about it until Monday morning, when he aroused the whole house by making a smacking noise and crying. "Darling Susie! Darling Susie! The best silver plated ware you can get when you marry is at Ward's and 100 pieces of tea and dinner ware for $10. Sweet, darling Susie, if you do not get a silver plated set for $35 to start house-keeping with you never will, for darling Susie will charge to—" "Do not, dear wife, ask for any more; you, you shall, my dear wife, when you was so sweet get all you needed from Ward's Cheap Crockery Store, No. 9 Columbia Street.

Local and Miscellaneous.

The roads are passable.

Mr Sherlock has re-painted his building.

The high water in Cedar Creek has swam south.

Mrs. Jas. Anderson has been ill for several days.

Sheriff sales are coming in pretty lively now-a-days.

Several familes have moved into the city this week.

Great inducements now offered at the New York store.

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

Sour krout is beginning to be a luxury of the household.

The next State Musical Convention will be held at Ft. Wayne.

They are unearthing a mastodon in one of the LaGrange swamps.

A woman passed over the B & O. yesterday that weighed 279 pounds.

Don't fail to go to the New York store when you come to Auburn.

Remember the New York Store will not be undersold.

The Eagle Flouring Mills are burning coal owing to the scarcity of wood.

If you want a square deal go to the New York Store.

The time of year for Mush and Milk Festivals approacheth.

Ohio is troubled with a cattle fever, great numbers are daily dying.

The gunsmith, with Johnny Knoder, contemplates bring on a stock of guns soon.

Kendallville is infested by chickens thieves. They bury the offal in their cellars.

Kosciosko county papers are jubilant over the idea of a new Court House.

A Warsaw man thinks of purchasing oysters in the shell, and canning them himself.

German is now taught in Turkey Creek graded school, so says the Gazette.

Mrs. P. Reeling, formerly a resident here, is visiting under the paternal roof this week.

W. D. Rickel has gone to Ohio where he has relatives. We wish him a pleasant visit.

W. W. Humes is renovating the old Eaton room and will keep a first-class restaurant.

The Auburn House, under the management of Dr. Brown, is rapidly gaining patronage.

Mr. Bolen, of Toledo, father of our Recorder, was here on a visit several days last week.

We learn that Mr. Grubb will move his cigar manufactory over the First National Bank.

Its about time for, Bill Britton to get out another by-word for the boys. "See advertisement."

It is claimed that insanity has increased 10 per cent among women during the past 10 years.

Sammy Pommert's brother is now with him standing in with his big brother in the "shaving business."

Quite a number of improvements are going on in the south end of town in the way of house building.

Preparatory services were held at the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath and Sunday was communion day.

Johnny Picker, the theatre man, has engaged himself for the winter season to Mr. Grub—to strip tobacco.

Herman Lobmiller has returned from Fort Wayne, and has again joined dot leetle German band in this city.

Counterfeit fifty-cent pieces of the coinage of '77 are in in circulation, a close scrutiny will detect them.

Monday next is the last day of grace for tax payers. After that day, 10 per cent will be added for collecting.

Three men made their escape from the Warsaw jail last week by the aid of false keys and outside assistance.

Senator Morton, it is said, cannot live much longer. Well, if nothing happens we expect to die sometime youself.

Diptheiar has made sad havoc with children in this State this fall, some families losing as high as four children.

Mrs. Smith, wife of our popular harness maker, is in a very serious condition from the effects of congestive chills.

John C. Fremont is in adverse circumstances, a sheriff of New York has just sold his books and other personal property.

The convention of Western Superintendent of Schools will be held at Lafayette the 15th and 16th of the present month.

We notice that Mrs. Dills is making some decided improvements on her property, on the corner of Main and 11th, streets.

Old Jim Bleeks, from near Newville, the rolicing, jovial Jim, gave a call this week and planked down two dollars for the COURIER.

The Fort Wayne "Sentinel" says that D. W. Voorhees will deliver his lecture on Jefferson in that city about the 14th of this month.

If you want to do business in Auburn you must advertise Sitting on the counter and waiting for customers don't pay worth a cent.

Mr. H. J. Long, foreman of the Kendallville Sandard, is on a visit to his friends in Auburn. His father, we understand is quite sick.

A young fellow, in the north end, by the name of Knapp gave five dollars to learn how to make candy out of sugar. A fortune awaits him.

There is a change this week in the advertisements of Root & Company and Eilensworth, Andrew & Company, Fort Wayne. Gaze on them.

A social will be held at the English Lutheran Church at Auburn on Saturday Nov. 3d at 2 o'clock p. m. to which all are cordially invited.

One of Garrett's watch-makers has left for parts unknown taking with him some twenty-five watches that had been left with him for repair.

The head man on the "Saturday Nigot" will visit his delinquent subscribers, so says the paper. That's right, Bro. Weamer, wake 'em up.

Our young friend M. F. Long, Jr., he of musical fame, sold two organs last week in Noble County during a contest with a Kendallville firm. What d'ye sigh.

James Anderson is now fully prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing at his shop on Seventh street. Mr. Anderson makes a speciality of shoeing lame, and interfering horses. Give him a call and you will be satisfied that he does as he says.

The Ft. W. J. & S. R. R. is relaying their road with steel rails. The heavy business being done necessitated it, the old iron not being able to stand the wear and tear.

Suggest to your neighbor who has been in the habit of borrowing your COURIER the propriety of subscribing for a copy for himself. It costs only $2.00 a year.

Mr. W. H. Riley, of Ashland, Ohio, is here on a visit to friends. Mr. R., it will be remembered, was at one time connected with Mr. Swineford in the grocery business.

Deservedly popular. We mean Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for it never fails.—Physicians recommend it.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

Next week will appear the professional card of Dr. T. J. Dills, Fort Wayne, Ind As the Doctor was a DeKalb citizen for a number of years he is deserving of the patronage of our citizens.

Brooks, of the Hicksville Independent is for a new departure. He thinks and says the old parties have outlived their usefulness." Wonder if he hasn't some designs on the Workingman's party.

Medical men often puzzle themselves over the large sale that Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup enjoys. Its great popularity is due only to the excellent qualities possessed by this household medicine, 25c.

Bro. Murry, of the South Bend Herald, with his usual energy now intends to enlarge and give his paper a new dress and says, "we intend to have the handsomest and best county weekly in the State."

William Lahnam had the misfortune to lose his horse. This is the third one that has "turned up their toes" for Wm. within the last two years. The two last that died cost the round sum of $15.25. No insurance.

By a late decision of the Attorney General, of this State, an unmarried woman paying taxes can vote at a school meeting and hold the office of school director. Now, ladies, get a house and lot and become a voter.

The Deputy Treasurer has levied on household goods and live stock for delinquent taxes. If some fellows could get trusted for their taxes every year the Treasurer would'nt get in money enough to make the required remittance for a contribution box each Sabbath.

The Central Indiana Normal School and Business Institute Ladoge, Montgomery County, will begin its winter term November 20th. Already a gain of six per cent. over last year's attendance is reported, a fact worthy of note.

The store of S. Broughton, of Swan, was broken into Sunday night. The thieves secured two over-coats, three or four pairs of boots and all the cigars, kid gloves and pocket knives that he had. No clue has been discovered of the robbers.

A man named Henry Walters has been found guilty of horse stealing at Plymouth and sentenced to twelve years in the penitentiary. During the same week two others were sentenced for the same crime, two years each. A rather strange idea of justice we should say.

MARRIED At the residence of the brides parents, on Thursday last, by Rev. H. Elson. Mr. Samuel Brown to Miss Mary Moor, both of Jackson township. The newly married couple has the best wishes of the COURIER for long and happy future. Many thanks for the cake.

Going hunting on Sunday seems to be pretty freely indulged in about these diggins. Young man, supposing that gun should burst right beside your ear, the squirrel would go in its hole and nobody would ever find you to put you in your hole, eh. Here's a chance for a solemn thought.

From the Plymouth Democrat we learn that a man named John L. Bixley shot and instantly killed his father-in-law, Theo. Wadgburg. Its generally mother-in-laws who have to shoulder the curses of son-in-laws, however we occasionally find a case where both are prominent actors.

Teachers Institute.

The DeKalb county Teachers Institute will be held in Butler, during the week commencing Nov. 12, 1877. We hope that all teachers, who can conveniently do so, will attend.

JAMES BARNS, Co. Supt.
Oct. 29th, 1877.

School closes next week and from general reports we learn that the present corps of teachers have performed their arduous duties to the entire satisfaction of both parents and pupils. All parents who can conveniently should attend the last day and hear the little shavers "speak their piece."

The Ministerial Association of the Christian Church for Northern Indiana, will commence in Kendallville, Tuesday next, at 3 o'clock p. m. and continue until Thursday night. Preaching each day at 11 o'clock a. m. and 3 and 7 o'clock p. m. Eminent speakers each evening. All are invited.

Wm. Hills of Ligonier, met with a serious mishap Wednesday last at Cromwell, while engaged in work on a school house, he was struck by a pole in some manner, and thus knocked off the building, falling a distance of thirty feet and fracturing an ankle. He also sustained internal injuries.

Dr. Marshal's Lung Syrup is, without doubt, the most reliable remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, &c. It never fails to cure in a short time.—Call on your druggist and try a bottle of it, price 25c.

Those skeptical of the virtues of "Lawson's Curative" for the positive cure of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, as well as those other diseases which have their origin in the nerves, have but to make a trial of one bottle, and they will never be without it. It not only cures the above diseases, but, as a household remedy for Cuts Wounds, Burns, &c.

MORE!
TO FOLLOW!
The Boot Upside Down has 100 Cases of
BOOTS and SHOES Made to Order
And Bought for CASH, to be
SOLD AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
MEN'S ALL KIP BOOT FOR $2.50
WOMEN'S SHOES 90c to $2.
And Boots and Shoes of All kinds until you can't rest.
At the Boot Upside Down.

The new bridge spanning Cedar Creek, on Ninth street is approaching completion rapidly. We learn that a petition is going the rounds to prohibit the building of a road from the old Woolen Mills to the foot of said bridge This petition should have been presented before the structure was began. It strikes us that it will not meet with much encouragement.

The prize pool game at Beugnot's saloon last Monday night was won by W. Baldock. Francis Kline, Esq. came in second best and if it had'nt have been for his usual amount of modesty he might have got the medal. The boys report a jolly time and all went home well satisfied. The second game will be played in two weeks.

Our foreman is in the woods this week slashing up cord wood and mauling rails. He has an idea that he'll be a Abe Lincoln, you know, but he is sure to get left. Abe is gone where all good fellows go and a man that has served as a "devil" for three years would stand a poor show to travel the same road.—"There's no more to follow."

It is a fact not generally known that all the townships officers have to be re-elected on the first Monday in April next, according to the provisions of the new law passed by the legislature. The consolidation of the election of officers with the general election in the fall, while in theory it seemed to promise economy is not working very well in practice.—New Haven Palladium.

A singular case of perjury will come before the Grand Jury at Lafayette, Ind., the present session A man voluntairly made a sworn affidavit before a justice to never touch another drop of whisky. He was warned of the penalty if he violated his oath, but last week he was arrested for being intoxicated and is now in jail awaiting the action of the grand jury on the charge of perjury.

If the person who picked up at the Depot of the Ft. Wayne Jackson & S. S. R. R. in this city on the evening of Oct. 23d a package containing $162.33 addressed to Shaw and Baldwin, Toledo, Ohio, will return the same to me he will be suitably rewarded:

J. L. DAVIS,
Agent American Express Co.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 30th, 1877.

The Professor of our High School got an idea that some original questions would be of more benefit to the young mind than any other. So he called the class and said to Jake Stamets' little boy: "What occupation do the majority of our tradesmen follow?" "Dunno," said the lad, "but I will tell you in the morning" He went "down foot" too quick, but when the class was called in the morning he was prepared. "Well, sir, have you came to any conclusion in regard to that question I asked you yesterday?" "Yes, sir. The prominent occupation now for man is stealing," said the boy. He went up head again.

Ceedar Creek Items.

—The Auburn COURIER continues to be the banner paper for patronage that comes to this office.

—Father Hallman of our place, has departed this life. He was an examplary christian and is much missed by all.

—Our friend John Harvey, has bought eighty acres of land of Perry Wiant, for his new home.

—James Hogue is going to a western College in Illinois, to prepare himself for the ministry. May good providence be with him for success.

—We have not yet hired a teacher for our winter school. Let us have an applicant.

—John Houser will have singing regularly on Sundays in the afternoon at three o'clock, in the hall.

—Friend Weller has put up his sign for shoemaker, and Friend Wart will be his opponent. J. B. R.

Davenport, the druggist, has a fine stock of cigars.

A farmer near Niles, Mich., by the name of Kendall, went to market with his wheat, received two or three hundred dollars, and desiring to spend some time in hunting on his way home sought a friend with whom to deposit his money. The friend was out, and so the farmer carried the money with him. He finished the day in hunting, and was in the act of putting away his horses in the stable when a man sprung from behind the door with the farmer's gun leveled at his face. Mr. Kendall knocked the muzzle of the gun down and received the full charge in his knee, blowing it all to pieces. Thus disabled, the robber knocked him down, took his money and made his escape. The wounded man had his leg amputated and is in a very critical condition.—Exchange.

Gold pens very cheap at Davenport's.

He was more than likely a member of some grange lodge and as he was passing the little cigar store 'round the corner his eye caught sight of a man who was selling three whips for a quarter—two large and one small one: "Three for twenty-five cents," cried the whip man. The granger haulted; looked and sighed and finally said: "I'll give a quarter for four." "Come right this way, my friend." He did, handed over the coin and the peddler handed to him four of the small whips. The granger refused to accept them, and placing his hands in his coat pockets and throwing his shoulders back he looked him sternly in the face and addressed him thus: "Sir, from my personal appearance you can see I had a hard road to travel I am getting grey and worn down. I have tilled the soil many a year and if it was'nt for us fellows where would you get your bread—where would you get your whips." His quarter was returned and he left the crowd amid great applause.

We want to be a granger
And by the granger stand,
With a quarter in our pocket
And the whips from out our hand.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson Township, DeKalb County in the State of Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said State will at the December session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, in the year 1877, apply for license to retail, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors at the following place in said township to-wit: On that portion of the North west quarter of section-six (6) in said township, bounded on the east by the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, on the south by the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad, and on the west by the Fort Wayne, Jackson and Saginaw Railroad and on the north by the line of said township.

Nov. 1 '77. CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of James G. Wiseman, Jr. deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

GILBERT I. PATTERSON,
Sept. 28th 1877. Adm'r.

Sheriff Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein Alfred Kelly is plaintiff and John Tresh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of ninety-six 96 Dollars, and Fifty 50 cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number Twenty-seven 27 in the Western Addition to the Town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Ind.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. GROSS, Deputy.
W. L. Penfield, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Nov. 1, 1877.
Pr. fee $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Hyman and Jacob Keller is plaintiffs, and John W. Garvey is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of six hundred, 600, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

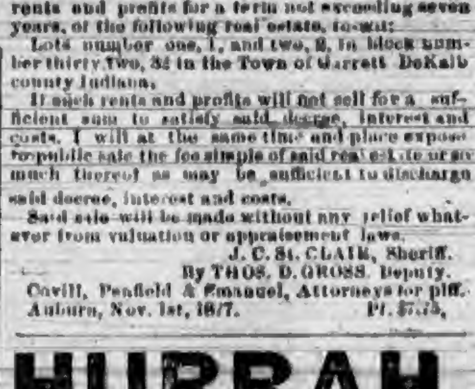
Lots number one, 1, and two, 2, in block number thirty-two, 32 in the Town of Garrett DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Covill, Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for pl'ff.
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877.
Pr. $7.75.

HURRAH.



A MAN CRAZY
Selling
SEWING MACHINES!
Go and see them.
G. H. YESBRA, AG'T.
Auburn, Indiana.

"THEY ALL DO IT!"
SAVE MONEY.
BUY YOUR
CLOTHONG AND UNDERWEAR
OF
SAM, PETE & MAX.
FORT WAYNE.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOV. 1, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

INDIAN INSOLENCE.

SITTING BULL'S ANSWER TO THE PEACE COMMISSION: "GO BACK HOME, AND TAKE IT EASY GETTING BACK"—THE WILY CHIEF ELECTS TO REMAIN ON BRITISH SOIL.

A commission of civilians and military men, organized upon a scale commensurate with the court of an Emperor, has been traveling several thousand miles to interview an untrousered Indian who has been robbing, plundering and murdering at his own sweet will for two or three years past. A great deal of time and money has been wasted, and all to no purpose. The commission met Mr. Sitting Bull, officially got down on its knees to the doughty chieftain while he squatted upon his hams and smoked his pipe, and then read an address to him, much in the manner a burgomaster would read an address to a King. They sentimentalized on the blessings of peace, expressed a firm conviction that the Great Father didn't want to fight him any more, offered not to punish him for any of his past atrocities if he would give himself up and go on a reservation, and suggested they might kill a fatted calf, put a ring on his finger, and array him in purple and fine linen when that interesting event took place. After the address was read to him, the stenographers sharpened their pencils in readiness to report a beautiful flow of Indian oratory, and the Commission prepared itself to receive the Prodigal Son with open arms. There was no flow of oratory, however. Sitting Bull's reply was as terse, sententious, and almost as brief as Cambronne's reply to the English at Waterloo. Between the whiffs of his pipe, he quietly remarked that the Commission that had come to interview him might go to hell. He did not waste any words about his Great Father, the Great Spirit, the whispering winds, the red deer, the pale flowers, or indulge in any other Indian tropes and metaphors. He just expressed himself briefly and emphatically, and, having done so, went on smoking his pipe as unconcerned as if the whole commission had gone to the undesirable place he indicated. It evidently struck the commission like a bombshell, exploding with such effect that it even cut the dispatches short off in the middle. The following is Sitting Bull's speech in reply to Gen. Terry's invocation to go back to United States soil, surrender his arms, accept a reservation and a herd of stock, and live in peace and amity with the palefaces:

"For sixty-four years you have kept me and my people, and treated us bad. What have we done that you should want us? We have done nothing. It is all the people of your side that have started us to do all these depredations. We could not go anywhere else, so we took refuge in this country of the British. It was on this side of the country that we learned to shoot, and that is the reason I came back to it again. Why do you come here? In the first place I did not give you the country; but you followed me from one place to another; so I had to leave and come over to this country. I did not give you any country, but you took it away from us. I was born and raised in this country, with the Red river half-breeds, and I intend to stop with them. I was raised hand in hand with the Red river half-breeds, and we are going over to that part of the country, and that is the reason why I have come over here." Shaking hands with the British officers, he proceeded: "This is the way I was raised in the hands of these people, and that is the way I intend to be with them. You have got ears to hear, and you have got eyes to see, and you see how I live with these people. You see me. Here I am. If you think I am a fool, you are a bigger fool than I am. This house is a medicine house. You come here to tell us lies, but we don't want to hear them. I don't wish any such language used to me, that is to tell me such lies in my great mother's house. Don't you say two words more. Go back home where you came from. This country is mine, and I intend to stay here and to raise this country full of grown people. See, these people here were raised with them," again shaking hands with the British officers. "That is enough. See me shake hands with these people. The part of the country you gave me you ran me out of. I have now come here to stay with these people, and I intend to stay here. I wish you to go back and to take it easy going back."

THE EAST.

WILLIAM S. TAYLOR, a produce commission merchant of Albany, N. Y., has been detected in a series of forgeries amounting to $40,000 or $50,000....Samuel Humphries and Edmund Smith, who pleaded guilty to burning the Lebanon valley bridge during the strike riots, have each been sentenced at Reading, Pa., to imprisonment for five years and a fine of $1,000. The cases of thirty-seven rioters were put over, owing to the discharge of the jury in consequence of a manifested bias of two of them.

MAINE has now but one "State" bank, the Eastern of Bangor. All the rest have been changed into national banks....A Boston dispatch announces the failure of the Bay State Iron Company, with liabilities of $500,000 and assets approximating $1,250,000....The first of the Pittsburgh riot cases was tried in the Criminal Court of that city last week. A. Murray, aged 16, convicted of having stolen property, firearms and ammunition in his possession, was sentenced to the penitentiary for three years. Tom Gallagher, another of the rioters, was convicted of receiving stolen goods, and pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny. Sentenced to a fine of $1,000 and six years in the penitentiary.

THE manner in which Senator Blaine's daughter met with a serious accident (brief mention of which was made in a telegraphic dispatch) is thus related in a letter from Augusta, Me.: "Talking with a gentleman in the parlor of her father's house, she toyed and played with a tiny pistol that belonged to her brother. The visitor begged her to put it away, although it was unloaded, and spoke gravely of using even empty pistols as playthings. When he arose to go away, she laughingly ran up stairs to her brother's room, got a cartridge and put it in the cylinder, and came bounding down, calling to her friend, who was passing out of the front yard, to see her shoot; but, before she had leveled the weapon, in her gleeful hurry she pressed the trigger, and the ball struck between her eyes, passing upward. Miss Blaine clasped her head with her hand, and crying 'Oh! I am shot!' fell to the floor. Surgeons have probed for the ball, but cannot find it. The child suffers terribly. Inflammation of the brain is feared, but the surgeons give the family hope."

A WILD steer created an extraordinary sensation in the streets of New York the other day. The animal ran a remarkable race through the busy thoroughfares before he could be killed. Quite a number of persons were run down, gored and trampled upon by the infuriated beast.

THE WEST.

THE favorite comedian, John T. Raymond, is playing to a fine business at McVicker's Theater, Chicago, in his unequaled roles of "Col. Mulberry Sellers" and "Pennington Pembroke." Persons visiting Chicago should not fail to go and see Raymond and enjoy a hearty laugh.

GEN. O. O. HOWARD, in his official report of the campaign against the Nez Perces Indians, says 179 soldiers have been killed and 68 citizens murdered since the beginning of hostilities.

CHICAGO elevators, as per official returns, contain 596,586 bushels of wheat; 649,089 bushels of corn; 192,810 bushels of oats; 90,842 bushels of rye, and 548,334 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 2,076,510 bushels, against 6,102,258 bushels at this period last year....A fire in Chicago, last week, burned Wood's Museum, and damaged Chapin & Gore's liquor establishment to the extent of several thousand dollars. Total loss about $50,000.

ST. LOUIS is waging a relentless war against the gamblers....The wife of J. M. Berry, the Union Pacific railway robber, who was killed by Sheriff Glascock, of Fayette county, Mo., has brought suit against the Sheriff for $20,000 damages.

A DISPATCH from Fort Walsh, British territory, says: "To-morrow night Sitting Bull's forces sets out for their old camp on Wood mountain, but it is probable that a settlement will be found them on Souris river in the Dirt Hills region. The Canadian Indians, who hung around the fort during the conference, are delighted with the way Sitting Bull talked back at the Commissioners, and express great confidence in him. He told me an hour ago that he would live quietly on Canadian soil, and would, on no consideration, violate Canadian neutrality, and before he died he hoped to 'make the Americans cry.' The Nez Perces are scattered all over, and [illegible] to rest. [illegible] says there will be no more trouble until the Indians feel themselves strong enough to begin another campaign, probably in the spring. The police regret the failure of the Commission, but are satisfied that they can make amicable arrangements with Sitting Bull."....Dispatches from the Red Cloud Agency describe the breaking of the Indian camp there. There were 6,000 or 7,000 of the Sioux at that point, all of whom have started quietly on the long tramp of some 200 miles to their new homes at the confluence of the White and Missouri rivers.

GENERAL.

FAILED: The Ætna Savings Bank, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Nathaniel Cheney, manufacturer of agricultural machinery, New York, liabilities $200,000; Pike Bros. & Co., bankers, New Orleans.

THE railway managers have advanced rates on west-bound freight from New York to the following figures:

	1st class.	2d.	3d.	4th.
Cleveland	62	59	40	30
Cincinnati	92	83	70	41
Indianapolis	95	85	71	43
Louisville	1.13	1.02	66	55
St. Louis	1.28	1.16	97	61
Toledo	77	69	58	35
Chicago	1.00	90	75	45
Milwaukee	1.00	90	75	48
Detroit	70	63	53	32

PORTLAND, a suburb of St. John, N. B., has been devastated by fire. Two hundred and thirty buildings were burned, involving a loss of $300,000....The departure of the Woodruff scientific expedition around the world has been postponed until May 15, 1878.

THE United States Commission sent out by the Government to find and treat for peace and good will with the Sioux Chief Sitting Bull, has succeeded in coming face to face with the redoubtable Indian chieftain, and have failed to bring him to any terms. In short, the Commission has met Sitting Bull, and Sitting Bull has dismissed it abruptly and disdainfully. The expedition has failed in its purpose, and the Sioux question is as far from a satisfactory solution as when Gen. Terry and his brother Commissioners first set out on their long and tedious journey to the Northwest.

THE Agricultural Bureau at Washington announces that this year's wheat crop is the largest ever produced in this country. It is also worthy of note that the exports of American produce this year bid fair largely to exceed those of any previous year in our commercial history....The board to examine the Washington Monument at Washington will report that the monument may safely be completed if a certain addition is made to secure the foundation.

BUSINESS failures: The Bank of Bunker Hill, Ill., liabilities $6,000; The Carroll Carriage Manufacturing Company, of San Francisco, Cal., liabilities $50,000, assets nominally $80,000; Bradford, McCoy & Co., lumber dealers, Quincy, Ill., liabilities $100,000 to $150,000; the Manchester Savings Bank, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

THERE was a great running race at Baltimore last week between Ten Broeck, Tom Ochiltree and Parole. Thousands of people witnessed the contest, and tens of thousands of dollars changed hands on the result. Ten Broeck, the Kentucky horse, was the favorite in the pools at large odds, but contrary to general calculation Parole, the New York flyer, came in several lengths ahead of his competitors. Distance, 2½ miles; time, 4:37¾.

EX-GOV. S. J. TILDEN has returned home from his European tour.

WASHINGTON.

THE President has decided to appoint John Baxter, of Knoxville, Tenn., Judge of the United States Circuit Court of the Sixth Circuit, in place of the late Judge Emmons, deceased, of Detroit. This circuit includes Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee....Pinchback has renewed his claims to the Senatorship from Louisiana.

ORDERS have been issued to stop the coinage of trade dollars at the United States mints for private depositors. Director Linderman is of the opinion that the profit of this coinage, if it be continued, should go into the treasury, and not into the pockets of private persons.

THE estimated amount for carrying the inland mails during the coming fiscal year is $20,889,270, an increase over the estimates of the current year of $2,080,297....Our Government has received official confirmation of the press dispatch announcing that the Mexican local authorities at Matamoras had released the four remaining raiders from the Rio Grande jail. Official reports state that this action was taken upon the plea that the prisoners are Mexican subjects, and, therefore, liable to extradition.

THE President has appointed Hugh Campbell, of New Orleans, United States District Attorney for the Territory of Dakota....Senor Mata, the Mexican Minister sent to Washington by Diaz, has abandoned all hope of the recognition of the Diaz Government by the United States, and has left for home in disgust. Mareschal, the old Lerdo Minister, who has been at all times recognized as the representative of Mexico, remains at his post of duty.

THERE is an animated contest over the vacant United States Judgeship for the Western District of Wisconsin, recently held by Judge Hopkins....A petition of 400 ex-strikers of Pittsburgh has been presented to Congress by Representative Errett, of Pennsylvania, asking for an appropriation to transport them to the Government's free lands of the West, where they may settle down to farming.

FROM the official report of the Patent Office of the fire which destroyed two wings of the model-room it appears that the total loss was $1,500,000, including the amounts necessary to restore models, drawings, etc., and to put the building in a fire-proof condition.

THE SOUTH.

THE Chicago and Alton and Iron Mountain roads have effected a combination to establish a short through line to Texas via St. Louis, to be known as the Chicago and St. Louis Short Line. The route is 136 miles shorter than via Hannibal and Cairo and the other two routes.

POLITICAL.

OFFICIAL vote of Ohio for Governor: Bishop, Democrat, 261,236; West, Republican, 239,347; Bond, Workingman, 12,480; Johnson, Greenback, 16,890; Thompson, Prohibition, 4,868.

THE Cincinnati Enquirer classifies the Ohio Legislature as follows: Senate—Democrats, 25; Republicans, 10. House—Democrats, 71; Republicans, 36; Independents, 2. Democratic majority on joint ballot, 58.

KANE, Democrat, has been elected Mayor of Baltimore over Thompson, Workingmen's candidate, by 15,000 majority....The Democrats of Detroit have nominated George C. Langdon for Mayor.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

IN consequence of Mukhtar Pasha's disaster, all the troops in Constantinople are being sent hastily to Trebizond. Achmet Eyoub Pasha will go immediately to take command at Erzeroum....A London dispatch says "the Russians have before Kars 70,000 men. Mukhtar Pasha's army at the time of the battle did not comprise more than 40,000 men. The Grand Duke Michael can safely leave 40,000 men in front of Kars, and with the remainder press forward toward Erzeroum."....There was some fighting at Plevna on the 19th and 20th of October. The Roumanians assaulted and captured the second Gravitza redoubt, but the Turks recaptured it after a sanguinary contest.

A CORRESPONDENT in Plevna telegraphs that the Turks are actively constructing a new interior line of formidable defenses. Cases of sickness are comparatively rare. Provisions have never failed, but it is impossible to provide fodder for thousands of oxen and horses. Osman Pasha has ordered all Circassian irregulars, Bulgarians and non-combatant Mohammedans to quit Plevna....Russia will at once begin the construction of an extensive railway system in Bulgaria, to aid in the forwarding of troops and supplies....Eighteen thousand men and forty cannon were captured by the Russians in their recent victory over Mukhtar Pasha, in Asia.

RUSSIA has ordered the mobilization of all the Cossacks not yet in active service. These will amount to ninety-one regiments.

DISPATCHES from Erzeroum state that "military operations in Armenia are being rapidly pushed forward. Gen. Tergukasoff is in pursuit of Ismail Pasha, who is endeavoring to effect a junction with the Turkish forces at Zewin. A Russian attack on a fort before Kars, on the 19th, was repulsed."

GEN. GOURKO, the dashing cavalry officer who penetrated the Balkan line and created a panic in Constantinople, has been afforded an opportunity to distinguish himself in connection with the operations about Plevna. He turned up unexpectedly to the enemy on the Sofia road, and after a fight of ten hours captured a strong position, and with it secured a foothold which will seriously interfere with the provisioning of Plevna. Among his prisoners were Achmet Ewi Pasha and his chief-of-staff, a large number of officers, 3,000 infantry, an entire regiment of cavalry, four cannon, and a quantity of rifles and ammunition.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

THERE were 7,793,000 votes polled in France at the late election. This is the largest number known since 1848, when 7,893,000 voted. The Left polled 43,000 votes less than in 1876, while the Right gained 680,000 from the ranks of those who in 1876 remained neutral....A Paris dispatch says: "The political situation is unchanged. The Cabinet has resolved to remain in office, and preside over the elections for Councils-General."....A Russian journal reports 49,434 Russian troops killed and wounded to Oct. 11.

THE Berlin bankers, Henckel & Lange, with a capital of 7,000,000 marks, have been forced into liquidation in consequence of the failure of the Ritters Chaftliche Bank.

CABLE dispatches make brief mention of a terrible mine explosion near Glasgow, Scotland, by which 300 or 400 men lost their lives. ....Advices from Cape Town, South Africa, state that war has begun in Transkei between the Galekas and the British and their native allies. There has been some severe fighting. ....The principal buildings for the Paris Exhibition of 1878 have been completed.

ALL the provinces of the republic of San Domingo are in insurrection, though two of them have been reoccupied by the Government troops....A Havana dispatch states that "a Spanish column near Holquin, commanded by Col. Mozoviejo, has captured the President of the Cuban republic, Thomas Estrada, Secretary of the Cuban Chambers, and several other members of that body."

EX-PRESIDENT GRANT bade adieu to England, and arrived in Paris on the 24th of October.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

FRIDAY, Oct. 19.—SENATE.—Mr. Merrimon introduced a bill to amend section 146 of the Revised Statutes relating to vacancies in the office of President and Vice President....Mr. Morrill submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Pensions to inquire and report, by bill or otherwise, a plan for reducing and properly adjusting the salaries and fees of Pension Agents. An amendment offered by Mr. Ingalls, directing the committee to inquire into the expediency of abolishing all the pension agencies and having the pensions paid from Washington, was agreed to, and the resolution passed....Mr. Merrimon introduced a bill to alter the times for holding elections for President and Vice President and casting the vote in the Electoral College... The claims of J. B. Eustis to a seat in the Senate from Louisiana were discussed, but no action was taken on the case.

HOUSE.—Not in session.

MONDAY, Oct. 22.—SENATE.—A number of bills were introduced and referred, among others the following: By Mr. Jones (Nev.) to authorize the coinage of a dollar of 412½ grains, standard silver, and for other purposes; by Mr. Beck, to repeal section 3 of the act to provide for the resumption of specie payments, approved July 14, 1875; by Mr. Hereford, to repeal the act to provide for the resumption of specie payments; by Mr. Howe, to amend the Revised Statutes relating to the transportation of live stock; by Mr. Ingalls, to establish a pension agency at Topeka, Kan.; by Mr. Paddock, to divide the State of Nebraska into two judicial districts.

HOUSE.—The Colorado case was debated, but no action taken....Mr. Schleicher offered a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of eleven members to consider the subject of the civil service of the United States and measures to promote its efficiency. Adopted....Mr. Southard offered a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of eleven members to take into consideration the state of the law respecting the ascertainment and declaration of the result of the election of President and Vice President, and to confer with a like committee on the part of the Senate. Adopted....Mr. Cox offered a resolution directing the Secretary of the Navy to report to the House what action had been taken, if any, in the navy-yards of the United States in regulating the hours of labor, and whether such action has been in derogation of or in compliance with Sec. 3,738, Revised Statutes, which requires that "eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics who may be employed by or on behalf of the Government of the United States."....Mr. Cox presented a petition for increased compensation to letter-carriers....Adjourned to Wednesday, Oct. 24.

TUESDAY, Oct. 23.—SENATE.—Bills were introduced and referred: By Mr. Coke (Texas), amending the Revised Statutes of the United States in regard to the militia; it makes an annual appropriation of $1,000,000 for the purpose of providing arms and equipments for the whole body of militia, either by purchase or manufacture. By Mr. Ingalls, to enable Indians to become citizens of the United States. By Mr. Wallace, to provide a lawful note and coin currency for the United States, and a bill to authorize a long bond for the investment of savings; this bill directs the Secretary of the Treasury to issue in lieu of an equal amount of 4 per cent. bonds authorized by the act of July 14, 1870, a sum not exceeding $100,000,000 of United States coupon bonds in denominations of $25, $50, and $100, in equal sums, each denomination redeemable in coin of the present standard value after sixty years from the date of their issue, and bearing interest payable semi-annually in such coin at the rate of 3.65 per cent. per annum, these bonds to be exempt from all taxation. By Mr. Ingalls, to equalize the bounties of soldiers who served in the late war for the Union.

HOUSE.—Not in session.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 24.—SENATE.—Not in session.

HOUSE.—Consideration of the Colorado case was resumed, and Mr. Harrison made an address advocating Patterson's right to a seat. Mr. Garfield supported Belford as having the prima facie right.... Mr. Brentano introduced a petition of the central body of trades unions of Chicago, which was also signed by 10,000 persons in different Western States, asking for an amendment to the Homestead law, in order that the poorest people may better enjoy its advantages. One of the requests of the petition is that the United States shall give the actual settlers small sums of money at low rates of interest for ten years, until the land is improved.

THURSDAY, Oct. 25.—SENATE.—Mr. Conkling presented the petition of citizens of New York against the repeal of the Bankrupt law, and praying that it be amended....Mr. Mitchell submitted a resolution authorizing the Committee on Privileges and Elections, in the cases of Messrs. Kellogg and Spofford, claiming a seat from Louisiana, to send for persons and papers and administer oaths, that the committee may decide upon the merits of the title of each contestant....Bills were introduced and referred: By Mr. Garland, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to adjust and settle the debt due the United States by the State of Arkansas. By Mr. Beck, for the relief of distillers of spirits by the refunding and repayment of moneys expended or paid and deposited by them for Tice meters. By Mr. Kernan, re-establishing the Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims, and for a redistribution of the unappropriated moneys....Adjourned until Monday, Oct. 29.

HOUSE.—The Colorado case was disposed of by referring the papers to the Committee on Elections. This was carried by a strict party vote—137 to 120....Mr. Garfield presented a petition of 210 colored men, asking assistance from Congress to enable them to go to Liberia. It sets forth the difficulty under which the colored people labor in sustaining families in the face of competition from white labor, and asks that an allowance of $100 each be made to emigrants to Liberia under the auspices of the Colonization Society....Mr. Cox then [illegible] white mechanics and laborers protesting against the unjust discrimination made in fixing by law the compensation of Government clerks, and leaving that of mechanics and laborers to be established at the whim of individuals. Referred. Mr. Wright presented a petition of 31,000 workingmen of the Twelfth Congressional District of Pennsylvania for a Government loan to aid settlers on the public domain. Referred. Mr. Kelley—I desire to present the petition of a citizen of the United States asking Congress to so change the financial system of the country (interruptions by laughter) as that laboring people shall not appeal to the Government for means of expatriating themselves and their posterity, and that they may continue to live in homes of their choice and pursue the calling to which they have been trained. [Laughter.] The Speaker—Referred to the Committee on Education and Labor. [Laughter.]

THE SILVER QUESTION.

Report of the Congressional Commission.

[Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The report of Senator Jones' Commission upon the silver question, so long expected, was completed this afternoon. Senator Jones has spent the whole summer here upon it. The report comprises a volume of 200 pages, accompanied by a volume of statistics of equal size. The following is an epitome of the conclusion at which a majority of the Silver Commission have arrived:

The first question relates to the cause of the recent change in the relative value of gold and silver, and to the effect of that change. The commission concluded:

> The causes of recent change in the relative value of gold and silver are mainly the demonetization of silver by Germany, the United States, and the Scandinavian States, and the closure of the mints in Europe against its coinage. These principal causes were aided by contemporaneous diminution of the Asiatic demand for silver, and by the enormous aggregation of the actual and prospective yield of the Nevada silver mines. The effect of the demonetization so far accomplished has been signally disastrous, especially to the countries which have recently demonetized silver, or in which the gold standard was already established.

The second question covers the two points of the restoration of the double standard in this country and of the best legal relation between gold and silver. The commission recommends the restoration of the double standard and the unrestricted coinage of both metals, but are unable to agree upon the legal relation which should be established between them.

The third question relates to the policy of continuing legal-tender notes concurrently with the metallic standards, and the effects thereof upon the labor, industries and wealth of the country. The Commissioners do not suppose that it is possible to maintain paper in actual concurrent circulation with coin unless the paper is made equal in value to coin by actual convertibility into it.

The fourth question covers the best means for providing for facilitating the resumption of specie payments. The opinions on this point are various and contradictory. The experience of other countries furnishes little aid in reaching conclusions which can command confidence. The fact in regard to paper money issued directly by Governments, and having a forced currency, seems to be that it has seldom been redeemed in coin. The commission concludes that resumption in this country is not practicable under the circumstances until the existing laws making gold the sole metallic legal tender are repealed.

The total inadequacy of gold alone is apparent. Germany, Great Britain and France are the only countries which have any considerable quantity of it, and the maximum estimates of the amounts they have in coin and bars do not exceed $1,300,000,000. The commission think the quantities in the Western World are much exaggerated. The commission believe that the remonetization of silver will have a powerful influence in preventing, and probably will prevent, the demonetization of silver in France and in other European countries in which the double standard is still legally and theoretically maintained. But if, notwithstanding remonetization here, further European demonetization shall take place, the result for us will be an advantageous exchange of the commodities which we can spare for money which we need.

Finally, the commission believe that the fact that Germany and the Scandinavian states have adopted the single gold standard, and that some other European nations may possibly adopt it, instead of being reasons for perseverance in the attempt to establish it in the United States, are precisely the facts which make such an attempt entirely impracticable and ruinous. To propose to this country a contest for a gold standard with the European nations is to propose to it a disastrous race in reducing the prices of labor and commodities, in aggravating the burdens of debt, and in the diminution and concentration of wealth, in which all the contestants will suffer immeasurably, and the victors even more than the vanquished.

An Eight-Years' Quarrel Ended in Murder.

An affray between two old citizens of our county occurred at the ranch of David Evans, about six miles from Hornitos, on Monday last, which resulted in the death of Mr. Evans, caused by a gunshot wound inflicted by Moses V. Northrup. The animosity existing between the parties was an old feud caused by the burning of Evans' barn some seven or eight years ago, which Evans charged upon Northrup. Ever since the occurrence a deadly hostility has existed between them. On Friday of last week John Northrup, brother of Moses, in company with a man by the name of Pollard, went over to Evans' ranch to purchase fruit. After getting the fruit pay was offered, which Evans refused to take, at the same time stating that he did not want the Northrups to come about his ranch, as Moses had burned his barn seven or eight years ago. This conversation was communicated to Moses Northrup, who on the Monday following armed himself with a double-barreled shot-gun and six-shooter, and in company with Pollard went to Evans' house. Evans at the time was a short distance off, cutting wood. Northrup sent word to Evans that he was armed with a shot-gun and pistol, and to meet him on equal terms. Evans soon appeared with a shot-gun, and asked Northrup if the distance or ground should be measured. Northrup replied that he did not care. Evans then asked, "Are you ready?" Northrup replied, "Ready," whereupon they both fired, almost simultaneously. Northrup's shot proved fatal to Evans, one ball penetrating the right temple into the brain. Evans fell forward upon his face, and was insensible till death came to his relief, about six hours afterward. Northrup escaped unhurt. Northrup and Pollard, who was deemed to be accessory, went to Hornitos and surrendered themselves to the authorities.—Mariposa (Cal.) Gazette.

THE GRANGER LAWS.

The Railroads and the Public Decisions of the Supreme Court.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The Granger laws of Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa and other States have received the judicial support of the Supreme Court of the United States, and we have more particularly the recent decisions of the same court in the Wisconsin cases. It is time that the railroad companies of the United States should take warning. There is no more legal objection to the enactment of laws regulating the rates of freight in one State than in another, and the legislation of the half-dozen States may become general. Now that the principle has been established and the power of State Legislatures to enact such laws clearly recognized by all the courts, railroad managers may well consider how far and how long the people will submit to be robbed by any manner of combinations. The New York Journal of Commerce, one of the most conservative papers in the country, and which for years opposed the Granger laws, has discovered in the judicial decisions affirming these laws a possible remedy for monopolies and a popular means of breaking up railroad extortion. It says:

"The United States Supreme Court has at length recognized as valid the extremest power claimed by a State over a railroad. The question involved the authority of the Wisconsin Legislature to establish a maximum of charges to be made on passengers or freight taken up outside of the State and brought within it, or vice versa. Has the State a control over the inter-State commerce which affect its own people, or does this matter wholly belong to the Federal Government? The Supreme Court decides that a State, where it has not parted with its power by contract, can regulate the fares and freights, under the circumstances mentioned, on a road outside of its limits which is consolidated with one on its own territory. The power of the State reaches beyond its confines as to things which directly concern its own people, however its action may indirectly affect the people of adjoining States. This is good law, says the Supreme Court, until Congress takes to itself, by special enactment, the regulation of inter-State commerce by rail. The grasping railroad monopolies which are planning to raise their freights this fall, and to keep up their odious pool arrangement, should take warning in season from the ominous drift of the Supreme Court decisions in the Granger and other cases. When the people of the different States realize how much power they have—if they would but use it—over the railroad corporations, they will not much longer abstain from exercising it through the Legislatures."

The recent combination of the various trunk lines, by which they have resolved to take from the producers a larger portion than usual of the product, may evoke a popular storm which will not easily be quieted. Five years ago the railroads demanded three bushels of corn for carrying one bushel to market. The outraged and plundered producers resorted to the ballot-box, and in due time what are known as the Granger laws were enacted. The railroad managers have now resumed their policy of combination for extortion. The people of all the States are now advised of their power to deal with these corporations; they know they have legal power to limit the exactions of railroad companies, and with that knowledge they will not long submit to such combinations without exercising their power. Let the railroad companies take warning that, when this power of control shall be exercised, it may not mark the limit of tolls at much less than would be willingly submitted to if no extortion was attempted.

Bees and Flowers.

Bees are fond of pleasant odors and bright colors, and, in the opinion of Sir John Lubbock, have been largely instrumental by fertilizing the beautiful flowers in increasing their numbers. The most lovely flowers, he states, have attracted bees, and consequently the finest blossoms of the year have been cross-fertilized each by the other. Thus, for century after century flowers have been growing more and more beautiful. From these tastes on the part of the bees also it has in the course of long years come about that the plants which bloom by day have bright colors and a sweet smell. Similarly night plants, although as a rule colorless, are yet often powerfully scented, the reason being that they are fertilized by nocturnal moths, which have a sense of odor fully as delicate as that of bees, and, like bees, are fond of honey.

A Great Charity.

Thomas Betton bequeathed to the Ironmongers' Company of England, over 150 years ago, his entire estate, with a provision that one-half of the proceeds should be applied to the redemption of British slaves in Turkey and Algeria, and one-fourth toward the assistance of poor Church of England schools within London and its suburbs. Long ago there ceased to be any English slaves to redeem from the Turks; the courts, therefore, permitted the slave money also to be used in the aid of schools. The magnitude of the sum accumulated during 150 years can best be appreciated by the statement that 1,200 schools are now aided from "Betton's charity."

THE GRAIN YIELD OF 1877.

The Largest Crop that the Country Has Yet Produced—Figures that Promise a Golden Future.

[From the New York Sun.]

The grain crop of the United States this autumn is a vast increase over that of any preceding year in the history of the country. It amounts in the two principal cereals, wheat and corn, to 325,000,000 bushels of the former, and 1,280,000,000 of the latter, according to the careful estimates of Mr. Walker, the statistician of the New York Produce Exchange. The movement of this enormous crop has just begun to be felt, as up to the past eight weeks the exportations were of last year's crop, but the [illegible] already [illegible] good promise of a golden future. During the brief period mentioned our exports of wheat from the ports of New York, Montreal, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans and Portland have aggregated 11,525,188 bushels, against an exportation from the same ports during a corresponding period of last year of 3,938,951 bushels, showing an increase of 7,586,237 bushels. There has also been an increase of 708,234 bushels in the exportation of rye during the same time, and in peas an increase of 81,409 bushels. In corn alone there has been a falling off to the extent of 1,633,054 in that time.

The following table presents the increase of production and exportation in the two leading cereals in the past ten years:

WHEAT.

Years.	Crops.	Exports—By crop years, September to September, flour reduced to bushels and counted in. September, 1870, to
1868	224,036,600
1869	260,146,900
1870	235,884,700
1871	230,722,400
1872	249,997,100	Sept., 1871......30,094,399
1873	281,254,700	Sept., 1872......39,289,040
1874	309,102,700	Sept., 1873......67,215,295
1875	292,136,000	Sept., 1874......[illegible]
1876	286,000,000	Sept., 1875......75,959,150
1877*	325,000,000	Sept., 1876......49,665,199
		Sept., 1877*......64,000,000

*Estimated, not yet figured up closely.

CORN.

Years.	Crops.	Exports from all United States ports:
1868	906,527,000
1869	874,320,000	1871......22,117,948
1870	1,094,255,000	1872......44,906,032
1871	991,898,000	1873......30,514,077
1872	1,092,719,000	1874......34,434,606
1873	932,274,000	1875......28,960,228
1874	850,148,500	1876......67,279,474
1875	1,321,069,000	1877*......65,000,000
1876	1,300,000,000
1877*	1,280,000,000	*Estimated.

To arrive at the amount of corn sent abroad, it is proper to count in that which goes in the compressed form of pork. Our annual hog product exportation is about 4,000,000 hogs. As it takes about fourteen bushels of corn to fatten each hog, that will be equivalent to about 56,000,000 bushels more of corn to be added to the exports annually, as sent in the form of animal food. We also send a great deal barreled up in the shape of whisky. Corn meal is included in the estimate, reduced to bushels.

The increase in England's importation of breadstuffs from this country in the year ending Aug. 31, 1877, amounted to almost as much as the average of her importations during the ten years preceding. Of corn alone she took out 33,000,000 bushels. Her total importation was about 80,000,000 bushels, of which 60,000,000 were from this country, and 20,000,000 from Southeastern Europe. The importation of corn into Germany, France and the United Kingdom promises to increase largely, as of late years a general tendency to resort to it as food for stock, instead of oats and cut feed, has been manifest. It is found to be one-third cheaper in England than the material hitherto employed for that use. Germany's supply will, however, be drawn mainly from Hungary.

The Bottom of the Sea from a Balloon.

The most enthusiastic advocates of ballooning would have hesitated to declare that submarine surveys were within the province of the aeronaut. Such, however, is the case, since M. Durnof and his companion, going up in a balloon on the 25th of last August, at Cherbourg, and being at an altitude of 5,000 feet, were amazed to see beneath them, with startling distinction, every rock, fissure, and depression at the bottom of the sea. And yet the sea opposite Cape Levy, where the aerial voyagers obtained this bird's-eye view, has an average depth of above 200 feet. So limpid did the water appear that the under-currents were perceptible, while nothing would have been easier than to sketch or map the bottom of the sea.—Chambers' Journal.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$8 25	@	11 25
HOGS	5 60	@	6 12
COTTON	11⅛	@	11⅜
FLOUR—Superfine	5 00	@	5 40
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 30	@	1 31
CORN—Western Mixed	63	@	64
OATS—Mixed	35	@	38
RYE—Western	70	@	71
PORK—New Mess	14 10	@	14 25
LARD	8¾	@	9
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@	5 60
Choice Natives	4 60	@	5 10
Cows and Heifers	2 40	@	3 65
Butchers' Steers	2 25	@	3 70
Medium to Fair	4 00	@	4 50
HOGS—Live	4 00	@	5 25
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@	7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 60	@	6 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 08	@	1 09
No. 3 Spring	1 04	@	1 05
CORN—No. 2	44	@	45
OATS—No. 2	23	@	24
RYE—No. 2	53	@	54
BARLEY—No. 2	59	@	60
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	30	@	32
EGGS—Fresh	16	@	17
PORK—Mess	14 00	@	14 20
LARD	8⅛	@	8⅜
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 12	@	1 14
No. 2	1 09	@	1 10
CORN—No. 2	44	@	44½
OATS—No. 2	23	@	24
RYE—No. 1	53	@	54
BARLEY—No. 2	64	@	65
ST. LOUIS
WHEAT—No. 3 Red Fall	1 26	@	1 27
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	42	@	43
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27
RYE	54	@	55
PORK—Mess	13 62½	@	13 75
LARD	8½	@	9
HOGS	4 70	@	5 30
CATTLE	3 00	@	5 00
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 20	@	1 30
CORN	46	@	48
OATS	28	@	31
RYE	58	@	59
PORK—Mess	13 75	@	14 00
LARD	9⅛	@	9½
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White Michigan	1 32	@	1 33
No. 2 Red Winter	1 26	@	1 27
CORN	48	@	49
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Choice White	6 26	@	6 50
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 32	@	1 33
No. 1 Amber	1 28	@	1 29
CORN—No. 1	49	@	50
OATS—Mixed	27	@	28
BARLEY (per cental)	1 10	@	1 40
PORK—Mess	15 00	@	15 50
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	5 50	@	5 85
Fair	5 25	@	5 50
Common	4 25	@	4 80
HOGS	5 10	@	5 60
SHEEP	3 00	@	5 00

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

It is well to observe caution in changing cattle from dry feed to full pasture. The safe way is to feed on the usual dry fodder before turning out, bring up the stock early in the afternoon, and feed again on dry feed with roots. Another precaution is to dose each of the calves and yearlings with two ounces of Epsom salts for two days before it is turned out, and then graduate the feed as mentioned.—Valley Farmer.

When you see a chicken a little droopy, and its comb getting dark, remove it at once and doctor it for cholera; its discharges are green, and, if it were allowed to run loose, would spread the disease. As a preventive we use a handful of salt twice a week in a wash-basin full of bran mixed with a little meal, and three times a week give corn at night on which a little coal-oil has been poured—just enough to coat every grain and no more. Clean out your chicken-houses; whitewash them and scatter carbolic acid around.—Poultry Journal.

They should never be set in an orchard beneath the trees. An open, sunny situation ought always to be selected. The ground, which should be deep and rich, will be highly benefited by a mulching of long, strawy manure, both summer and winter; and cleanliness and order must prevail in all their surroundings. Raspberries should not be planted deep. Many a plantation has been lost from this error, notwithstanding the soil has been in good condition and the plants entirely sound and healthy. Give the crown at the apex of the roots a very slight covering with soil.—Independent.

Heaves in horses arise from rupture of the air-cells of the lungs, either on account of improper food or the right kind of food improperly administered, ill-ventilation, and protracted indigestion. Sometimes, however, there is really no assignable cause, unless a hereditary predisposition. In treating this ailment, great attention should be paid to the quality and quantity of the food given; musty or badly-cured hay or oats must be avoided. Water should be given an hour or so after the animal has been fed. Give daily in a mash, of roach lime finely powdered, half an ounce; linseed-oil, two ounces; and arsenious acid, four grains.—Moore's Rural.

A method of extracting sugar from hay appears to have been just discovered in Germany. The inventor says hay contains 17 per cent. of its weight in sugar, and that the new process is warmly supported by "influential industrial circles." It has justly been shown, however, that a meadow in fair condition gives only fifty tons of hay and aftermath per morgen, which, at the assumed rate of 17 per cent. of its weight, would give merely 850 pounds of sugar, whereas the 150 cwt. of beet-roots grown on the same area would give at least 1,800 pounds of sugar, or the sixty cwt. of potatoes that could be grown on a morgen of land contain 20 per cent. of their weight of starch, convertible into 1,347 pounds of sugar. As a commercial speculation, therefore, the new invention cannot well be profitable.—Rural New Yorker.

Sowing too thickly, the London Farmer informs us, is a fault among farmers quite as common in Europe as in this country. Some seem to think that the thicker they sow the heavier will be their crop, a view of which experience has shown the fallacy. Beside the waste of seed, often very considerable, nothing is more conducive to the "laying" of the crop than over-thick sowing, and, if much wet weather is experienced, the crop will be little else than straw. And, though it may thrive better in dry weather, the ear will be deficient both in quantity and quality, especially on sandy soil or poor land generally. The quantity of seed to be sown in a given area depends on the cultivation and manuring bestowed on the soil, and the more carefully these have been attended to the greater is the chance that every grain will grow vigorously, and the less wisdom in sowing too thickly.

About the House.

Do not eat pie with a knife.

An untidy person cannot make good butter.

Hard water becomes nearly soft by boiling.

Chairs were made to stand upon four legs, not upon two.

Tea or coffee should be drunk from the cup, not from the saucer.

To Cure a Corn.—Bind on it a crushed cranberry for a few nights.

Oyster Omelet.—This differs from egg omelet only by adding one dozen of finely-chopped oysters with a little parsley to every half-dozen of eggs used.

If those persons who use hair-oil would sit upright instead of resting their heads against the wall-paper, much mortification and trouble might be spared their friends.

Waffles.—Mix one quart of sweet milk, one heaping-quart of sifted flour, five table-spoonfuls of yeast, a little salt; set it over night. In the morning add two well-beaten eggs and a table-spoonful of melted butter; bake in waffle-irons.

Corn-Starch Cake.—Two cupfuls powdered sugar, four cupfuls corn-starch, one-quarter cupful butter, three eggs, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar mixed with the corn-starch, one-half teaspoonful soda dissolved in one-third cupful of milk.

Oyster Short-Cake.—This is very nice, and the pastry can be made as for any other short-cake. While the cake is baking, boil one quart of oysters with half a cup of water, half a cup of milk and half a cup of butter, season with pepper, salt and thicken with a spoonful of corn-starch. When the cake is done split open and spread the oysters between the pieces and some on top.

Citron Cake.—Four eggs, three cupfuls sugar, one cupful butter, three cupfuls flour, half a cupful milk, one spoonful royal baking powder put into the flour; then cut the citron in small pieces and stir into the cakes; flavor with nutmeg and a little grated lemon-rind.

Sweeten the Breath and Cleanse the Teeth.—Always clean the teeth at night just before retiring, for particles of food collect between the teeth during the day, and if left there all night will decay, causing the breath to become offensive and also prove very injurious to the teeth. Scrub the teeth with a hard brush, using little, if any, soap; sprinkle in a little powdered borax (one pinch will do) until the gums are hardened and become accustomed to it; rinse the mouth often with borax water; it will prevent it from becoming sore or tender. If artificial teeth are worn, cleanse them thoroughly with borax, and when convenient let them remain in borax water (every night if possible); it will purify them and help to sweeten the breath.

A Wilderness in Central Africa.

In his conversation with me at Ujiji Livingstone ascribed much just praise to all of the region west of the Goma mountains. It is a most remarkable region—more remarkable than anything I have seen in Africa. Its woods or forests or jungles or bush—I do not know by what particular term to designate the crowded, tall, straight trees rising from an impenetrable undergrowth of bush, creepers, thorns, gums, palms, fronds of all forms, canes, and grass—are sublime, even terrible. Indeed, nature here is either remarkably or savagely beautiful. At a distance everything looks charming. Take your stand on any eminence or coigne of vantage for view-seeing you may please, be it the crest of a ridge, the summit of a hill, the crown of a rock, and if you look around you will find yourself delighted, fascinated. A hundred or a thousand different outlines are in view of ridges and ranges, peaks and cones, the boldly waving or softly rolling, of gradual or abrupt slope, of mounds, little patches of levels, of the grand and the picturesque, in bewildering diversity of form. You will exclaim that you see the splendor of the tropics—that you have caught nature rejoicing and happy. Over all she has flung a robe of varying green; the hills and ridges are blooming; the valleys and basins exhale perfume; the rocks wear garlands of creepers; the stems of the trees are clothed with moss; a thousand streamlets of pure, cool water stray, now languid, now quick, toward the north and south and west. The whole makes a pleasing, charming illustration of the bounteousness and wild beauty of tropical nature.

Look closer and analyze all this that you may find how deceptive is distance. The grasses are coarse and high and thick. They form a miniature copy of an African forest. Their spear-like blades wound like knives and their points like needles; the reeds are tall and tough as bamboo; in those pretty-looking bushes are thorns—truly the thorns are hooks of steel; the crown of that yonder low hill with such a gentle slope is all but inaccessible. See that glorious crop of crimson flowers on that low bush in the middle of the lawn green. Pause, my friend, before you venture to pluck them. First, that lawn is a deception; it is a forest of tall trees you see, and that beautiful, gorgeous poison bush is nearly thirty feet high, and those green banks of vegetation in those hollows are almost impenetrable forest belts.—Henry M. Stanley's Letter to New York Herald.

Eating Philopena.

In Germany they manage this little pastime in a very pleasant way. When a couple meet after eating philopena no advantage is taken of the other until one of them pronounces the word "philopena." This is the warning that now the sport is to begin. Let us suppose that a gentleman calls upon a lady. She invites him to walk in and at the same time speaks the talismanic word. If he accepts the offer to walk in he is lost, until she removes the ban by telling him to go away. If she asks him to take off his hat he must resolutely keep it on; if to be seated, he must stand, or, if at the table she should hand him any article which he accepts, she wins the forfeit. During all this time he endeavors to take her by surprise, for the acceptance of any offer from the other wins the game. Both are constantly exercising their wits to prevent being caught, and the sport often goes on all the evening. Perhaps the gentleman brings a little present and says, "Knowing that I shall lose my philopena, I have brought it along—here it is." If she is caught off her guard by the smooth speech she loses, for he immediately claims forfeit. If neither wins at the first meeting, the sport is continued to the second, and it may happen that half a dozen parties meet at the same time, all anxious to win of their philopena partners, so that the scene often becomes ludicrously amusing. It is "diamond cut diamond" in very truth.

Salaries of Newspaper Men.

The leading editorial writers on the London Times get 2,000 guineas per annum, which is a pretty fair salary. The largest salaries paid in America are not quite equal to this. Dr. Connery, the managing editor of the New York Herald, receives $8,000; Whitelaw Reid, of the Tribune, $12,000; Charles A. Dana, the editor of the New York Sun, $12,000, besides his profits as a stock owner; Hurlbut, of the World, $10,000. The Boston newspapers pay well. Hascall, the editor of the Herald, gets $10,000, and has just received a year's leave of absence to go to Europe, his salary being continued. The Western press pays very fair salaries. The leading editorial writer on the Chicago Times gets $5,000, and the managing editor $6,000; Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, $7,500, and an interest in the profits; Sheehan, of the Chicago Tribune, $6,000. The largest sum paid in America to any editorial writer is that received from the New York Herald by Mr. Charles Nordhoff. He gets $10,000 a year, and writes when and what he pleases.—New Orleans Times.

Farmer Backman, of Hamptonburg, Orange county, N. Y., has realized the handsome sum of $100,000 from the sale of horses from his farm within the past year. Gov. Stanford, of California, purchased $42,800 worth during his visit to Mr. Backman's place last summer. A pair of 2-year-old colts were lately sold for $2,000 each.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

The Mystery Surrounding the Famous Egyptian Obelisk.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

This bringing to London of Cleopatra's needle is an event noway novel in character, yet it gives rise to some curious reflections on the way of fate. The old Egyptian King who reared this obelisk would be much amazed to witness its journey to an alien land so strong a witness to his wisdom and his futility. If any peoples might be surprised at the mockery of time, the ancient Egyptians might. They reared their temples and their heaven-pointing obelisks for eternity, and certainly deemed their land as eternal as their monuments.

Cleopatra's needle had never anything to do with the sumptuous queen, but perhaps received its name in some humorous traveler's comment, for in her time the ambition that carved such weighty monuments in one block from the quarry did not exist; only miniature obelisks, five or ten feet high, were made then, and the colossal monoliths of the age of the Pharaohs were being carried away by Roman conquerors. This one was dragged, with another like it, down to Alexandria in that period, and but for some change of rule in Rome would have doubtless graced the Eternal City with twelve that were taken there. They came from further south, way up the Nile; this present obelisk and the one that adorns the Place of Concord in Paris may have stood before a temple of Thebes, or Heliopolis, but that we do not know. We know that Thothmes III., who reigned thirty and some odd centuries ago, first raised it to preserve his name immortal; but a mere name on a stone is not so vivid and interesting as the figure of that unnamed Pharaoh of the Hebrew narrative, who would not let Israel go. Perhaps Thothmes III. was that Pharaoh, and, if it were proved, then indeed he would begin to live. It does not bear alone that name of Thothmes, for Rameses the Great, whom the Greeks called Sesostris, graved his name upon it about a century later; and still another of his successors added his irrelevant name and titles, much as a school-boy of to-day scratches his initials on Bunker Hill monument.

Precisely what the obelisk meant to the ancient Egyptians no one can certainly tell. It was a religious symbol, for everything seems to have borne for that race a religious meaning. Its name in their tongue signified "the rays of the sun," according to Pliny, and that and its derived Greek name of obelisk (which means a skewer or spit—whence naturally, "needle") both point, in the estimation of many scholars, to a connection with the ancient worship of the sun, as the generative principle, by the means of phallic symbols. Other scholars scout the notion as wholly wild. The Jachin and Boaz of Solomon's temple are believed to have been obelisks, for thus the Egyptian obelisks were placed, in pairs, at the entrances of temples, and there are archæologists who consider the paired towers on Christian cathedrals a modification of the primitive obeliskal idea. We cannot tell how much one religion borrows from those that have gone before. Ponome, one of the students of Egyptology, says that there are no obelisks found on the west bank of the Nile, as no pyramids are found on the east bank in Egypt proper, "the obelisk appearing to be a decoration of the cities of the living, symbolized by the rising of the sun; as the pyramid is of those of the dead, symbolized by the setting of that luminary."

Mailing Colorado Beetles.

A circular has been sent out by the Postmaster General reciting that he has received a "communication from the British office, stating that it has been found necessary to take precautions against the admission into the United Kingdom of Colorado beetles, several live specimens of this destructive insect having been discovered in the mails received from the United States, either surreptitiously inclosed in newspapers or forwarded as specimens in packets under the privilege of the pattern post." The Postmaster General instructs Postmasters to "examine, as far as may be possible, the newspapers and other packets before dispatching them in the mails, for the purpose of detecting the presence of these beetles, and to detain all such packets as may be found to contain them."

The subterranean telegraph wires in Germany have proved highly satisfactory. The conductibility of the buried wire, instead of decreasing, has, on the contrary, somewhat increased, and no fault in the insulation has made itself apparent. It is believed that in the long run the buried wires will prove the cheapest. Posts and insulators, constantly demanding renewal, are thus dispensed with.

How Money Grows at Interest.

If $1 be invested and the interest added to the principal annually, at the rates named, we shall have the following result as the accumulation of 100 years:

100 years at 1 per cent	$ 2¾
100 years at 2 per cent	7¼
100 years at 2½ per cent	11¾
100 years at 3 per cent	19¼
100 years at 3½ per cent	31¼
100 years at 4 per cent	50½
100 years at 4½ per cent	81½
100 years at 5 per cent	131½
100 years at 6 per cent	340
100 years at 7 per cent	868
100 years at 8 per cent	2,203
100 years at 9 per cent	5,513
100 years at 10 per cent	13,809
100 years at 12 per cent	84,075
100 years at 15 per cent	1,174,405
100 years at 18 per cent	15,145,000
100 years at 24 per cent	2,551,799,404

Many carelessly infer that the increase of money at 6 per cent. is just twice as rapid as at 3 per cent.; but in reality the increase is vastly more than this. In 100 years, at 6 per cent., the increase on any given sum is about eighteen times as much as at 3 per cent. The increase at 5 per cent. is about eleven times as much as at 2½ per cent., while at 10 per cent. it is more that 105 times greater than at 5 per cent. for the period named.—Richmond Dispatch.

A Deliberate Suicide.

Maj. Huntley went to the stable at the rear of his residence on Main street, having deliberately prepared to put an end to his existence. He had supplied himself with two revolvers, one of which he placed at his temple and the other over his heart, after which he pulled both triggers at once, and sent two balls on their fatal mission. He fell dead instantly, either of the wounds being of such a nature as to have effected his object. Previous to the act he had written a letter full of instructions as to the manner in which his funeral should be conducted.—Cumberland (Md.) Civilian.

HAYES AND CHANDLER.

How the Poverty-Stricken Presidential Candidate Raised Money for the Campaign in Ohio—A Little Inside History.

[Columbus (O.) Cor. New York Sun.]

The Sun did a good thing when it gave to the country the history of the two $5,000 checks paid by Zach Chandler to R. B. Hayes last fall, to help carry Ohio. But behind that is a little private transaction which will further illustrate the magnanimity and consistency of the fraudulent President.

During the campaign of 1875 the Ohio Executive Committee incurred a debt of $1,000. It was the campaign which elected Hayes Governor, a campaign toward which he subscribed nothing, although repeatedly appealed to by members of the committee, who had in several instances become personally responsible for money paid out in his behalf. Of this Executive Committee ex-Secretary of State A. T. Wikoff was Chairman and George K. Nash, the late Republican candidate for Attorney General of Ohio, a prominent member, both shrewd and able men.

When the canvass for Presidential nominees waxed warm, and it became apparent that the strong men of the Republican party were killing off one another in the free fight inaugurated, and that some negative man, an expert in "the chuckling grin of noodles," would be the compromise candidate, these two worthies agreed upon a plan whereby their little debt might be wiped out and themselves cared for at the same time. They would secure the nomination of Hayes, whose qualifications, of the order requisite, none could gainsay.

At a formal meeting of the Executive Committee the plan was proposed, but was coldly received, few present having any confidence in Hayes' willingness to do anything for anybody which might in any way draw upon his pocket. Hayes' penuriousness is something appalling, reaching even to the smallest every-day transactions.

The questions fairly presented were: Will Hayes, if nominated, pay all expenses attendant thereupon? And, if nominated, will he pay off our present indebtedness and subscribe liberally to the campaign besides? Upon these questions there was but one affirmative vote. Even Wikoff would not vouch for Hayes' likelihood to pay this small price, in greenbacks, for gratified ambition.

Finally, George Nash, who had had some conversation with Hayes, and knew how anxious he was to secure the nomination, arose and guaranteed in the name of Hayes all that the committee asked.

At the proper time Capt. Wikoff and his committee went up to Cincinnati and hired imposing headquarters and a big brass band. Nick Longworth's cellars were also levied upon, as well as the various supply depots of Kentucky Bourbon. The outlay was considerable, but the result stupendous.

Returning from Cincinnati the ruddy Wikoff and the bland George Nash waited upon Mr. Hayes at the Governor's apartments. R. B. shook them all around, when, congratulations over, Mr. Nash conveyed to him, in his modest way, the object of their visit.

"The committee has had the matter under advisement," said Mr. Nash, "and think you should be assessed to the amount of $10,000. This will cover debts already contracted in your behalf, and form the nucleus of a fair campaign fund."

Hayes hummed and hawed, talked of civil-service reform and the possibility of carrying elections without money, and finally positively refused to be assessed for any purpose whatever. Arguments and appeal were plied in vain. The only result of the interview was the extortion of a promise from Hayes that he would pay the $1,000 debt incurred by the Governor's election.

Wikoff, as Chairman of the committee, was thus left responsible for the entire expenses of the campaign which nominated Hayes for the Presidency. It will be seen further that Hayes did not wholly ignore this debt, but, in the interests of reform, paid it, not from his own pocket, but by giving Wikoff the office of Commissioner of Pensions, which he now holds at this place, worth about $10,000 per annum.

About the time of the visit referred to, Hayes, in order to give the country an example of civil-service reform, as advocated in his letter of acceptance, asked Capt. Wikoff, then holding the office of Adjutant General of Ohio, to resign that office until after the Presidential election, that he might consistently give his full attention to the interests of the campaign.

"You will be reinstated after the election," remarked Hayes, "and your resignation will afford me a strong card in the coming canvass, as it will go to the country that I cannot consent to your holding a Government office while the acting head of a political organization."

It was thus agreed that Wikoff should resign, and that Karr, First Assistant Adjutant General, should be temporarily appointed in Wikoff's place, which programme was literally carried out.

Wikoff's resignation, at Hayes' request, was heralded abroad as a noble example of Hayes' honorable intentions and exalted probity of life and character. It was a bedizened show, but it had its effect. Wikoff ran both offices as usual, employed the services of the clerks of the Adjutant General's office for political work as usual, and when the campaign was over was reinstated, as per contract, Karr going back to his former position as first assistant.

Hayes' refusal to subscribe to the campaign fund made itself felt everywhere. Many of the old reliables, following his example, withheld their subscriptions, and it was difficult to raise money enough to run the ordinary machinery of the campaign.

Hayes, whenever appealed to, advised a reliance upon the great moral engines of reform and the bloody shirt; but, finally, he became convinced that Cincinnati and Cleveland were not to be carried without a mild application in the way of greenbacks and national-bank notes. The committee then, at Hayes' suggestion, applied to the National Republican Executive Committee for an increase of funds. The answer was laconic: "Let the Ohio candidate take care of Ohio."

Then it was that Hayes, in the name of the oppressed Republicans of the South, in the name of the poor colored men, in the name of party loyalty and devotion, wrote to the Hon. Zachariah Chandler for assistance and aid.

"I am a poor man," added R. B., forgetting the comfortable thousands of Uncle Birchard's will, "and I have mortgaged all for the redemption of the Republicans of the South."

It was enough for the saintly Zachariah. He made out the checks and passed them over to Hayes, by whom they were passed along to the Ohio committee, and used to colonize Kentucky negroes in Cincinnati, to carry that town for Hayes and reform.

CONTRACTION OF THE CURRENCY.

[From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

In a recent work entitled "Gold and Debt," we find a very carefully prepared and detailed statement of all the various kinds of treasury paper which have been employed as money, together with the amount of State and national bank-notes outstanding, in each of twenty-three years. All the treasury issues, as given, represents the volume on July 1, and all the bank issues, except in 1874 (June 27), in 1875 (June 26), and in 1876 and 1877 (July 1), represent Jan. 1 in each of the years. Below we give the totals annually for the period 1865-76, to which we have added the equivalent and corresponding total on July 1, 1877, also population in each year, and the per capita. As, in each case, population represents June 1, it would be better if we could have the money volume at the same date, but we have no means at hand to accomplish this desirable conformity; still, the several discrepancies cannot be large, and our per capita approximations must be very near to the exact facts. With these explanations we offer in evidence our statistical record, as follows:

Years.	Paper money.	Population.	Paper money per capita.
1865	$1,651,282,373	34,819,581	$47.42
1866	1,803,702,726	35,537,148	50.76
1867	1,330,414,677	36,269,502	36.68
1868	817,199,773	37,016,949	22.06
1869	750,025,989	37,779,800	19.85
1870	740,089,179	38,558,371	19.19
1871	734,244,774	39,750,073	18.47
1872	736,349,912	40,978,607	17.97
1873	738,291,749	42,245,110	17.48
1874	779,031,589	43,550,756	17.89
1875	778,176,250	44,896,705	17.33
1876	735,358,832	46,284,344	15.89
1877	696,443,394	47,714,627	14.60

The component elements of the above volume of paper money in each year comprise the following items, according as these were in existence at the time: Demand and one and two-year treasury notes (acts of Dec. 27, 1857; Dec. 17, 1860, and March 2, 1861); temporary ten-day loans and one-year certificates of indebtedness; treasury notes payable in two years and in sixty days; seven-thirty three-year notes; compound-interest notes; three per cent. certificates; non-interest-bearing demand and legal-tender notes (acts of July 17, 1861; Feb. 25, 1862; July 11, 1862, and March 3, 1863); fractional currency; State-bank notes; and national-bank notes.

The bulk of these various issues by the Government were explicitly made legal tender at their face value; but that characteristic was not indispensable to constitute them ingredient parts of the money volume; for, were that necessary, then the State-bank and the national-bank issues could not be reckoned as parts of the currency, they not at any time of their circulation having been a legal tender between citizen and citizen, in the discharge of debt. Nothing is more common among bullionists than the notion that it is preposterous to speak of the 7.30s as circulating medium, yet those notes were made by law legal tender fully as the greenbacks themselves. The act of June 30, 1864, provided as follows:

> The Secretary of the Treasury may issue on the credit of the United States, and in lieu of an equal amount of bonds authorized by the preceding section, and as a part of said loan, not exceeding two hundred millions of dollars, in treasury notes of any denomination not less than ten dollars, payable at any time not exceeding three years from date, or, if thought more expedient, redeemable at any time after three years from date, and bearing interest not exceeding the rate of 7 3-10 per cent., payable in lawful money at maturity. And such of them as shall be made payable, principal and interest, at maturity, shall be a legal tender to the same extent as United States notes, for their face value, excluding interest, and may be paid to any creditor of the United States at their face value, excluding interest, or to any creditor willing to receive them at par, including interest.

On Sept. 1, 1865, these 7.30 three-year notes were outstanding to the amount of $830,000,000, every dollar of which was legal tender for its face value, under the terms of the law, "to the same extent as United States notes." For this one reason, if for no other, the 7.30s were superior to the national-bank notes as currency, and only the sneers and derision wasted upon them for being called circulating medium are to be deemed preposterous. Were it needful, we might add the testimony of bankers, merchants, corporations and Government officials to prove that the 7.30s were received and paid out, in the general transaction of business, quite as freely as greenbacks. They began to be hoarded only after Secretary McCulloch had entered promiscuously and rapidly upon his policy of contraction, when the 7.30s became valuable to capitalists for conversion into 5.20 bonds, bearing six per cent. interest in coin, with the principal payable in coin at maturity. Then they were bought up by the brokers, and soon disappeared from circulation.

On July 1, 1866, the outstanding or available paper money aggregated $1,802,708,726, equal to $50.76 per capita; on July 1, 1877, the amount had been contracted to $696,443,394, and the per capita to $14.60—a decline of $1,107,259,332 in the volume and of $36.16 in the per capita. Even this, however, does not show the whole measure of contraction. The highest total of paper money in existence on any one date was on Sept. 1, 1865, when the volume stood at $1,996,678,770. Between that date and July 1, 1877, the contraction amounted to $1,300,235,376. This, helped by some contributive causes, somewhat disorganized our industry, brought on the collapse in 1873, and, with the demonetization of silver and the rash precipitancy of the "on to specie payments," filled the land with bankruptcies, distress, suffering, wretchedness, and homeless tramps, and led up to the recent strikes and riots. Unless the terrible pressure shall be relieved speedily by Congress, only conjecture can picture the dismal and awful end.

According to the best information that can be obtained, the gold, silver, and paper money of France, within a few months, was comprised of the following items: Bank notes, $501,671,330; coin in the Bank of France, $500,000,000; silver coin in the hands of the people, $300,000,000; gold coin in the hands of the people, $1,000,000,000—total, $2,301,671,330. The census enumeration of 1872 gave a population of 36,102,921. Numbers in France, however, increase very slowly. In 1873 the excess of births over deaths was no more than 101,776, and in 1874 only 171,942. Taking these figures as a basis of computation, the population in France in May, 1877, was 36,787,216. This estimate would give a currency per capita of $62.57, of which a per capita of $48.96 is outside of the bank vaults and in active circulation among the people. On the other hand, the population of the United States, on Sept. 1, 1865 (when the total volume of our paper money was at its culmination, or $1,996,678,770), was about 34,500,000, which yields a per capita of $57.87. It is not known how much coin we had in the country at that date, but if we estimate it at $121,000,000—what it was reckoned to be in October, 1870—and add this to the paper volume, we shall have an aggregate of $2,117,678,770, giving a per capita of $61.38 on Sept. 1, 1865, including all forms of the currency. Thus, even in our palmiest days, when the country was in almost a delirium of prosperity, so unprecedented was it, except in the war-blasted South, our currency per capita did not equal what it is in France to-day, the only European country now prosperous and happy. Further, the very highest authoritative estimate of coin at present in the United States puts the figures at $180,000,000, nearly all of which is held by the Government and the banks. Probably the real amount is much less; but, adding that sum to the paper money outstanding July, 1877, we have an aggregate of $876,443,394 as the utmost limit of the circulating medium, yielding $18.37 per capita, or $44.20 less per head of population than France possesses, with her compactly settled and highly developed area, and with her slowly increasing numbers. If we had, as France has, a money volume equal to $62.57 per capita, it would amount to $2,985,516,850.

Practical Evolution.

It has been reserved for a German lady, Fraulein Marie Von Chauvin, to accomplish one of the most remarkable feats in evolution on record—the changing of an amphibious gilled double-breathing animal into one that is a lung-breathing and land-inhabiting. The subject was the Mexican gilled salamander or axolotl. As far back as 1867 Dumeril noted that, out of many hundreds of these creatures in the Jardin des Plantes in Paris, thirty lost their gills and assumed the form of the distinct amblystoma, a true land salamander, breathing air only by lungs. No cause could be assigned for this change, as all the axolotls were exposed to precisely similar conditions. Nor did the excision of the gills of one that had not changed throw any light on the matter, because a new set of gill tufts soon grew out again.

Fraulein Von Chauvin owes her repeated success to gradually accustoming the animal to life on land and exercising constant care as to its health and diet. Five strong axolotls were selected and were first kept in shallow water. Here they did not thrive, and the bolder measure of putting them directly on land was resorted to. Tepid baths twice a day kept up cutaneous respiration, and during the intervals between the baths wet moss was packed against the bodies. The mode of feeding was ingenuity itself. An earth worm was inserted in the axolotl's mouth as far as possible. Then the worm's tail was pinched until it wriggled so far down that the axolotl was obliged to finish the swallowing whether he liked it or not. Three of the animals [illegible] their food, and, after fifty days' sojourn on land, died, or rather committed suicide, by starvation. The survivors, however, even after a few days showed a marked decrease in size of gill tufts and tail fin; before long, when put in water, they struggled to get back to land. Further changes went on; the skin was cast repeatedly, the gills slowly disappeared, and the gill-slits closed. The eyes became [illegible] and the skin, from being [illegible], turned brownish violet black with yellow spots. Finally, the complete amblystoma form was assumed and with the amblystoma nature, the animals developing an astonishing greediness.

It is stated that the gills and tail fin seemed to shrivel by actual drying, through the action of the air, and that they were not absorbed by the vital processes of the animal itself. This is considered by Prof. Huxley to be a most interesting point, as it shows how the first air-breathing amphibia may have been evolved from double breathers by a succession of dry seasons, that is, by purely mechanical causes.—Scientific American.

Longevity of Literary Ladies.

The literary ladies of Great Britain appear to have been astonishingly long-lived. Here is a list of them with the ages at which they died: Miss Jane Austen, 42; Mrs. Radcliffe, 59; Miss Mitford, 69; Mrs. Trimmer, 69; Miss Jane Porter, 74; Mrs. Elizabeth Montagu, 80; Mrs. Piozzi, 81; Mrs Barbauld, 82; Miss Edgeworth, 82; Lady Morgan, 82; Madame d'Arblay, 88; Miss Hannah More, 88; Mrs. Marcett, 89; Mrs. Joanna Baillie, 89; Miss Berry, 90; Mrs. Somerville, 92; Miss Harriet Lee, 95; Miss Caroline Herschel, 98; Lady Smith, 103.

One Harvard student is paying his way through college by turning his room into a stationery and book-store, and another, a graduate from Wesleyan University, is meeting his expenses at the law school by working in a barber's shop.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Ooolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English Breakfast Tea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents. Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents. Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

No Advance on Meats.

Best Sugar Cured Hams, 11 cents.
Sugar Cured Shoulders, 8 cents.
Best Pickled Pork, 8 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents,

Raisins and anned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.

Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents.
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the owest rates.

No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $4.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS, OILS, OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to turnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINMR and is prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

BIG STOCK COMING

AT

SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO'S.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

DRESS GOODS

New Calicos, Shirtings, Woolens,
Jeans, Cloths and Cashmeres,
For Men, Boys and
Everybodys Wear

OUR SUCCESS.

No Goods Allowed to be Misrepresented. All the Newest Novelties in Fall and Winter Suits for Men, Youths and Boys

CLOTHING CUT

In the most approved pattern and warranted to be perfect fitting at Hard Time Prices.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page Illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our etizens when ol visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

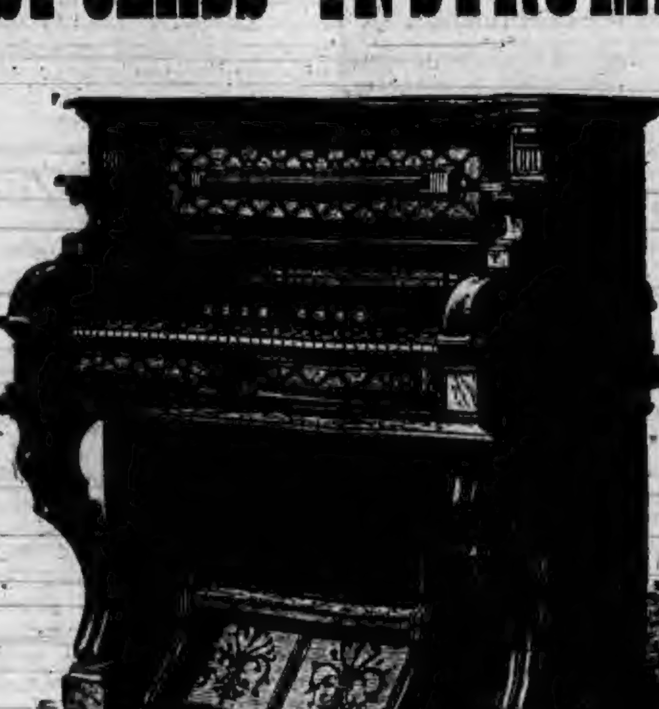
HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO

THE ONLY

FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.



The ESTEY ORGAN

tands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never be excelled. Those wanting Organs should get theEstey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.
Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 15 a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 20 "
Butler	1 35 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 41 "	2 40 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 49 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 57 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 51 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	3 25 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 18 p m	8 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 08 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 23 "	10 42 "	8 02 "
Kendallville	8 40 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 25 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 13 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 45	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 48 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05 am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 00	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 12	1 21 am	11 06	2 00 pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 5 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "	1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "	3 03	5 13
Waterloo	11 56 "	4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm	5 30	6 35
Reading	1 49 "	7	7 32
Bankers	2 04 "	7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "	7	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "	9	9 20
Detroit	6 10 "	12	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "	4	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m		3 35p
Lansing	10 00 "		7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "	11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "		9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am	5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 40 pm	7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "	7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "	8	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "	9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "	10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "	11 31	9 36
Auburn Junction		1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "		10 35
Indianapolis	7 45 "		5 55
St. Louis	6 30 am		7 25
Louisville	8 30 am		10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. O. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 35
Wheeling	8 [illegible]	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 20	[illegible]
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 10
Cambridge	10 46	1 05	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	3	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 a
Shawnee	4 30	10 m
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 0am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	5	10 00
Shelby	4 54	3 7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 10
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 38	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 20am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 09	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 43	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 49	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 50	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 36	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 40
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 50am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7.40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH.
	1. Mail.	3. Express.	5. Accom
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 35 pm	......
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm	......
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm	......
Hartford	7 20 am	8 45 pm	......
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	[illegible]
Newcastle	[illegible] am	......	[illegible]
Cambridge City	[illegible] am	......	[illegible] pm
Connersville	10 20 am	......	8 50 pm
Cincinnati	1 20 pm	......	11 40 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 00 pm
Louisville	10 30 pm	6 30 am
Terre Haute	3 16 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 20 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH
	2	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis	......	[illegible] am	......
Terre Haute	......	2 55 pm	......
Louisville	......	3 20 pm	......
Cincinnati	7 00 am	......	7 00 am
Indianapolis	......	8 20 pm	......
Connersville	1 50 am	......	10 40 am
Cambridge City	[illegible] am	......	11 44 am
New Castle	[illegible] am	......	12 55 pm
Muncie	[illegible] pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	pm	11 33 pm	......
Montpelier	pm	11 57 pm	......
Bluffton	40 pm	12 33 pm	......
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am	......

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

Geo. W. Mullen, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. Worthington, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST,

	MAIL. No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 6,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 23	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 50	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 04	10 06
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 2[illegible]
Columbia City	10 25	11 15	1 30
Col'n's	10 40	11 40	2 20
Churubusco	10 50	12 00	2 54
La Otto	11 20	12 31pc	3 53
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 50
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1,	No.	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 30pm	1 0	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16	12 0	4 20
Denver	6 07	11 45am	4 00
Chili	6 00		3 20
Roann	5 47		2 40
Laketon	5 33		2 00
North Mancester	5 23		1 35
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 00
Collamar	5 00		12 30am
South Whitley	5 02		12 20
Columbia City	4 40		10 25
Collin's	4 21		9 40
Cherubusco	4 14		9 20
La Otto	3 75		8 40
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	4	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 25

FRANK J. BECKER,
Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choices brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobacoes, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at W oo. First door south of the railroad

---

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can ge greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuse or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; disease of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $3 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 272 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL
View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure. 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the De Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of James I. Patterson, Jr., deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

Sept. 28, 1877. GILBERT I. PATTERSON, Adm'r.

Recorders Offic

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 8th, 1877. Number 45.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED ... WEEKLY BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2. | Six Months,.......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.......	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column.......	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column.......	15 00	20 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

E. A. FRANKS. O. E. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlement of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's clothing House, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the state. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m., 7 to 8 p. m.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA. Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE. JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, [Late of City Hotel.] Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartensiaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN.

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Battling good teams and reasonab

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge. P. W. SILVERS.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LANDS.

I offer for sale one section of land, in Kosciusko county, Ind., nine miles south west of Warsaw, adjoining W. Beyhl, and a quarter section nearby, which I will sell as a whole or in lots of 40 acres or more, as the purchaser may desire. The land is well improved, well timbered and I will sell low for cash. Or I will sell on time, one-forth down, and the balance in ten years. Also a section in Fulton county on the same terms. For particulars address,

H. BEIST, Kendallville, Ind.

FIFTH YEAR.

IND. CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

FALL TERM COMMENCING

SEPTEMBER 11th, 1877.

Pupils attending this Conservatory can be accommodated with board at the M. E. College, at $2 per week.

no34tf S. B. MOLSE, Principal.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. seebislargestoc s

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

LAWSON'S CURATIVE

FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA.

This marvelous preparation has cured hundreds of the most distressing cases of Chronic Rheumatism and Neuralgia, even when all other remedies have failed. It is fast becoming the

Acknowledged Antidote for these diseases and can be relied upon by sufferers to relieve them of their pains and effect a permanent cure.

Do Not Give Up

your case as hopeless and settle down to the conviction that no medicine will help you: all we ask is a fair trial of the CURATIVE, and that you bear in mind that the nature of these diseases require persistent and faithful application to insure a perfect cure. In every community where the CURATIVE has been placed will be found many witnesses who will testify to what it has done for them.

Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Sprains, Wounds, Cuts, Chilblains, Inflammation, Headache, Toothache, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach can positively be cured by the free use of the CURATIVE. Send to us for testimonials if you have any doubts.

Sold by all Druggists.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY

Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed by the clerk of the Dekalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff, and John A. Schofield et al, is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and nineteen dollars and thirteen cents ($419.13) with interest on said decree and costs. will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

south half of the West half of the Northeast quarter of Sec. Ten [10]. Township number thirty-five [35], North of Range Fourteen, East, containing 40 acres, more or less, in DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff

McBride, Morlan and Leas Attorneys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Oct. 18th 1877. Pr fee $1.50

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs, and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five [25] township thirty-four [34], north of range thirteen [13] east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph E Shilling Trustee is plaintiff and Ebenezer E. Williams et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Nine Hundred and Thirteen dollars and Seventy Five cents with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A part of lot number one hundred and thirty-eight [138], in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing thirty-one and three tenths feet west of the north-east corner of said lot on the north line thereof, and running thence south sixty-six (66) feet to the south line of said lot, thence west forty-two [42] feet, thence north sixty-six [66] feet to the north line of said lot, thence east forty-two [42] feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Oct 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $10 00.

$777 is not easily earned in these times, but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once,

H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

October 11, 6m.

From facts just come out Charley Ross will probably come to light near Richmond, Ind. A youth answering [illegible] about there.

Colored students have [illegible] admittance to the college of physicians and surgeons in New York. Had this occured in the south instead of the north what howling there would have been.—To make it more interesting the faculty proves to be Republican, at least a majority of them does.

National Banner: Last Friday morning, while at work in his saw-mill, about four miles west of this place, near Richville, Mr. Willis Dennison's arm was caught by the large circular saw and the flesh badly mangled by tearing it open to the bone, from the wrist to the elbow. We are informed by Dr. Gard, who dressed the wound, that Mr. Dennison is getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

The Ottumwa Courier tells of a boy in that city who was originally intended for a negro, but who is half and half. The description is: "From the top of his forehead from each side, in a V shape, he is as white as any human being in the city. From his chin running down on his breast, and half way down his neck, is a large stripe. The balance of his skin, so far as exposed, is black, and his hair, real African, is about half white or light iron grey. He is about 16 or 18 years of age.'

LaGrange Standard: The common school fund in this state (the interest upon which is distributed every county in proportion to the number of children taught in the schools) was last year $2,523,988.83. This year the amount held in trust by the counties, is $2,566,850.80 showing an increase of $42,871.98. The Congressional and the special school funds are additional to this, and arise from the proceeds of the sale of the school lands in different counties, and the special school levies, none of which are uniform in all the counties.

No Failure Known.

There is no case on record where Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound has failed to give satisfaction. On the other hand, wherever it has been used by our people, in severe colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis, croup whooping-cough and consumption, they are enthusiastic in its praise. Containing no opium or other dangerous drug, it does not constipate, and is safe to administer in all conditions of health. This is an important announcement, and the suffering are advised to heed it. Trial size 10 cts; large sizes 50 cts, and one dollar. Sold by F. E. Davenport. Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requirs no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

There has long been felt the need of a journal devoted to our public land interests, giving from month to month reports of the sales, entries by Homestead, etc. We are in receipt of sample pages and tables of contents of the first number of such a monthly, which promises well. It proposes to publish a complete report of our Public Land business, also of all colonizing schemes and facts regarding their chosen location. Every State and Territory will receive carefull attention, and be honestly reported. There are plenty of Homestead Lands yet, and each settler can secure 320 acres. How and where is told in the Public Domain. A single copy, with a beautiful large map of the United States, colored by states, sent for 10 cents. Yearly subscriptions one dollar each, including the map. No free copies. GARDNER & CO., Pubs, 59 LaSalle Street, Chicago.

Alexander Houston, residing about eleven miles north of Fort Wayne states that on Tuesday afternoon as he was cutting corn, about four hundred yards from the house, when he heard the voice of his wife calling for help. He immediately ran to her assistance and just in time to see a couple of tramps running away from the house down the lane towards the road. His wife told him that one of them entered the house, and pulling out a knife demanded that she give up what money there was about the premises under a threat of being killed. Frightened almost to death she turned to comply with the demand, when she was confronted with the other tramp, who caught her around the waist, suggested to his partner at the same time that they commit a nameless crime. She struggled terribly with the fellows, and in her efforts to get loose she managed to get near the door and screamed, which so frightened the tramps that they fled. Had Mr. Houston arrived a little sooner a couple of dead tramps would have been the result

Smoking tobacco at the little cigar store on the corner. tf.

An Anecdote of Salmon P. Chase.

[Cleveland Leader.]

"It is a very curious thing," said an old stager to a Leader reporter yesterday, "how small things often [illegible] some of these people of to-day talk, and you would think that there never was a time until recently when such a thing as partisanship was known. Why, I can remember when it was much worse than now. For instance, when Salmon P. Chase was running for governor the first time, he came, during the canvass to a little rural town in Montgomery county. I was traveling with him at the time, and we were both to speak in the evening. Mr. Chase had not been feeling very well all day, and this fact, together with what followed from it, did much more good than both our speeches. It happened in this wise:

An honest farmer had come some ten miles over the country on purpose to see the governor, as he was even then called. He saw, but was not satisfied; he determined to dine with him, in order, as he said, to see what a governor would eat.

Mr. Chase not feeling well, as I have said, did not care to partake of a regular meal, and so simply ordered some bread and milk. The farmer was delighted. "Chase is the man for governor," he said to his friends. "He only eats bread and milk. He is no stuck up feller. He is like us. He is the farmer's candidate by all means.

And the story went all through the country and even beyond. The enthusiastic farmer would tell it with all the needed variations and intonations, and when the votes were counted it was ascertained that the whig majority was much larger than it had ever been in that country before, and all on account of that bread and milk supper.

Talk about fickleness of the people. You don't know anything about it. Why, I knew of a man who was defeated for congress once simply because he had his beefsteak broiled instead of fried, as the generality of people do It was down in York state, long ago, when it was not thought the thing for a candidate to canvass his district in his own behalf. He must just sit down at home, and if he were elected, well and good; if not, he must consider it the direct interposition of providence, you know.

Well, a man was nominated, and during the canvass he took a short trip on business across the district, stopping one noon at a wayside inn. Here he ordered dinner, and not being exactly well, asked for a piece of steak broiled on the coals. The gapeing rustics took it up as a crime.

"Why,' they would say, "this fine candidate is not like other men; he must have his meat fixed in some new fangled, stylish way. He would probably fix laws after the same shape if he get a chance. But we will not let him.' and he was accordingly obsolutely defeated on the broiled meat issue.

A Goshen man has invented a new spring bed bottom that will serve the double purpose of bed and fire escape. The Democrat says: We understand that our manufacturer of spring bed bottoms have applied for a patent on a spring bed bottom which comprises a complete wire ladder, which in case of fire can be run out of a third story window, and by which a man can descend to the ground with perfect ease and safety.—The wooden slats containing the springs on the bed bottom serve as rounds to the ladder, while the springs themselves resting against the wall of the house keeps the rounds away from the building about half the length of a man's foot, so as to make the foothold easy and secure. Since the burning of the great hotel in St. Louis, and the fearful destruction of life attending it for the want of such a contrivance by which to escape from the upper room, such an invention has been considered a great prize, and engaged the attention of many inventors, and Goshen is about to carry of the prize

For Kansas and Colorado.

Take the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, extending from Kansas City and Atchison, on the Missouri river, via Topeka, the capital of Kansas, through the fertile Arkansas Valley, to Pueblo, where direct connections is made with the Denver & Rio Grande Railway for Colorado Springs, Manitou, Denver, Cannon City, and all points of note on the Denver & Rio Grande. The track is excelled by that of no road in the West, and the passenger equipment embraces all the modern improvements for comfort and safety. Through express trains leave union depots, Kansas City and Atchison, daily, on the arrival of trains from the East, and run through to the Rocky Mountains, with Pulman Sleeping Cars attached. For maps, circulars and detailed information send to T. J. ANDERSON, Gen. Pass. Ag't, Topeka, Kan.

Communication.

We observe how true it is, that we are livining in an age of "profanity, vice, and corruption." Go into any community in any part of the country, [illegible] reverence for [illegible] teachings. Divine law is ignore, and all that is pure and good is scorned, and all that is mean, low, impure, and ungodly, is practiced. It may look as though we were reaching beyond the bounds of reality, but we can admit of but rare exceptions. Pass along your streets on the Sabbath day, and you will find congregated upon the corners, groups of young men and boys, cursing and swearing, and using obscene language at the passers by, without regard to age or sex. Go into your business houses, and you will find there assembled young men, who, (as it is often the case) move in the better classes of society, indulging in profane language, and telling vulgar stories that would almost corrupt the morals of a saint. All this they think is smart, because some one may laugh at their folly, and still they pass on in this way through the best portion of their lives, and do not stop to think that those bright years of their lives should be spent in a higher and a nobler cause. They finally become so corrupt, that they do not realize that their existance is a reality. Their far seeing eye of fancy, has dethroned reason, and they look upon the things of this world in an imaginary sense, and when imagination takes possesion of their minds, all the boundaries of possibility disappear. How often have we in passing along the village streets, heard curses and slanderous remarks hurled from the mouths of young men, at some inoffensive, grey-haired father, and his deformatives laughed at, and sport made of his scanty wardrobe. Young men "beware" when you speak ungrateful of the aged, for you like they are growing old, for this reason you should pay a tribute of respect to the grey haired veteran, who perchance has grown permantly old by laboring to protect you from the perils and exposure of an unfriendly world. Perhaps he has lost a leg or and arm, and suffered the perils of an army life in defence of his "country's flag," that you might walk triumphant over a "freeman's land." All these things you should weigh well, and ponder in your minds in your hours of meditation. We might say a great deal more upon this subject, but we have not time. There is one thing that looks strange to us, and that is, that the newspapers say so little in regard to this terrible curse. We can see but one way of abating this great evil, and that is for the "Press" to denounce it. When you find this corrupting influence brought to bear upon the yout of our land, take up the offenders publish them through the columns of the press, single them out individually, or collectively as they may be, and we think by a presistant course of this kind, the evil can be greatly abated. J.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all are furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Great inducements now offered at the New York store.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOV. 8, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

DEATH OF SENATOR MORTON.

Hon. Oliver P. Morton, United States Senator from Indiana, died at Indianapolis, after a protracted and painful illness, at twenty minutes past 5 o'clock on Thursday, Nov. 1. About noon, says a correspondent describing the death bed scene, Mrs. Morton and her sons, by her request, were left alone with the Senator for about an hour. What passed between them is not for us to inquire. Before 5 o'clock it became evident he had entered upon his last hour on earth. He had rested the greater portion of the day in a half-lying and half-sitting position. [illegible] the supporting pillows were withdrawn so that he lay prone upon the bed. A deep silence now pervaded the room, and remained unbroken except by an occasional question to the dying man. Once, when the Senator exclaimed "I am dying," his sister-in-law, Mrs. Holloway, inquired, "You are not afraid to die, Oliver?" He indicated "no" by shaking his head. Soon after a similar exclamation, a question and answer passed between him and Dr. Thompson. At ten minutes past 5 o'clock he exclaimed "I am dying. I am worn out," and these were his last words. From this on it was difficult to discover that life remained. On the doctor's announcement, "He is going," the gaze of the wife and sons became fixed on the face of the husband and father, with now and then a piteous look of inquiry toward the doctor, until his further announcement, "it is over." The widow clasped her sons to her, exclaiming quietly, but in tones never to be forgotten, "My darling boys." The friends withdrew, leaving them for a time, when they were led tenderly from the room.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Mr. Morton was born in Wayne county, Ind., on the 4th of August, 1823, and was, therefore, a little more than 54 years old. He graduated from Miami University, at Oxford, Ohio, in 1845. Studied law and was admitted to the bar at Centerville, Ind., in 1847. He at once took a prominent position at the bar, and launched into a large and lucrative practice. In 1852 he was elected Circuit Judge on the Democratic ticket. He was an ardent Democrat, but, in 1854, he, with many others, left that party in consequence of the repeal of the Missouri compromise, and was one of the three delegates sent by Indiana to the Pittsburgh Convention of February, 1856, from which the Republican party dates its political existence. In the same year he was nominated for Governor by the Republican State Convention by acclamation, but was defeated by Ashbel P. Willard, the Democratic candidate. In 1860 he was elected Lieutenant Governor by the Republicans. Lane, the Governor-elect, was sent to the United States Senate, and Mr. Morton assumed the gubernatorial chair, which he occupied the ensuing four years, and thus acquired the title of "the Great War Governor." His career during that stirring period is familiar to nearly all newspaper readers, and requires no recapitulation here, even had we the space to elaborate upon it. In 1864 he was re-elected Governor, and a year later was first stricken with the disease (paralysis) which finally carried him off. In 1867 Mr. Morton was elected to the United States Senate. In 1873 he was re-elected to the Senate. During his ten years' service in the Senate he has filled a large space in the current history of the country. During all this time, despite his physical infirmity, he has been an active and frequent speaker, making campaigns in various States, besides participating largely in the debates of the Senate.

THANKSGIVING.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT.

The President has issued the following:

By the President of the United States of America—a Proclamation.

The completed cycle of summer and winter, seed time and harvest, has brought us to the accustomed season at which religious people celebrate with praise and thanksgiving the enduring mercy of Almighty God. This devout and public confession of the constant dependence of man upon the Divine Father for all good gifts of life and health and peace and happiness, so early in our history made the habit of our people, finds in the survey of the past year new grounds for its joyful and grateful manifestation. In all the blessings which depend upon benign seasons this has indeed been a memorable year. Over the wide territory of our country, with all its diversity of soil and climate and products, the earth has yielded a bountiful return to the labor of the husbandman. The health of the people has been blighted by no prevalent or wide-spread diseases. No great disasters of shipwreck upon our coasts or to our commerce on the seas have brought loss and hardship to merchants or mariners, and clouded the happiness of the community with sympathetic sorrow. In all that concerns our strength and peace and greatness as a nation, in all that touches the permanence and security of our Government and the beneficent institutions on which it rests, in all that affects the character and dispositions of our people and tests our capacity to enjoy and uphold the equal and free condition of society now permanent and universal throughout the land, the experience of the last year is conspicuously marked by the protecting providence of God, and is full of promise and hope for coming generations. Under a sense of these infinite obligations to the Great Ruler of times and seasons and events, let us humbly ascribe it to our own faults and frailties if in any degree that perfect concord and happiness, peace and justice, which such great mercies should diffuse through the hearts and lives of our people, do not altogether and always and everywhere prevail. Let us with one spirit and one voice lift up our praise and thanksgiving to God for His manifold goodness to our land, and His manifest care for our nation.

Now, therefore, I, Rutherford B. Hayes, President of the United States, do appoint Thursday, the 29th day of November next, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and I earnestly recommend that, withdrawing themselves from secular cares and labor, the people of the United States do meet together on that day in their respective places of worship, there to give thanks and praise to Almighty God for His mercies, and to devoutly beseech their continuance.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 29th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and second.

[L. S.] R. B. HAYES.

By the President: WILLIAM M. EVARTS, Secretary of State.

O FICIAL REPORT OF THE SITTING BULL COMMISSION.

CAMP ON THE MILK RIVER, M. T., }
Oct. 20, 1877. }

To the Hon. Secretary of War and the Hon. Secretary of the Interior, Washington:

The commission met Sitting Bull and his chiefs at Fort Walsh on the 17th inst. The instructions were carried out literally. Sitting Bull and his chiefs declined the proposals. The address of the commission and the answers of the chiefs have been telegraphed to the New York Herald, and it is deemed unnecessary to repeat them in this telegram. After the conference was over, the Canadian authorities had a conference with the same individuals.

In reply to a request of the commission to know what transpired in the conference, Col. McLeod, Commissioner of the Northwest Territory, addressed to us the following letter:

GENTLEMEN: In answer to your note I beg leave to inform you that, after the interview of the Commissioners with the Indians, I had a talk with the latter. I endeavored to impress upon them the importance of the answer they had just made; that, although some of the speakers to the Commissioners had claimed to be British Indians, we denied the claim, and that the Queen's Government looked upon them as American Indians who had taken refuge in our country from their enemies. I pointed out to them that their only hope was the buffalo; that it would not be many years before that source of supply would cease, and that they could expect nothing whatever from the Queen's Government except protection so long as they behaved themselves. I warned them that their decision not only affected themselves, but their children, and that they should think well over it before it was too late. I told them they must not cross the line with a hostile intent; that if they did they would not only have the Americans for their enemies, but also the police and the British Government, and urged upon them to carry my words to their camps, to tell all their young men what I had said and warn them of the consequences of disobedience, pointing out to them that a few indiscreet young warriors might involve them all in most serious trouble.

They unanimously adhered to the answer they had given the Commissioners, and promised to observe all that I had told them. I do not think there need be the least anxiety about any of these Indians crossing the line; at any rate, not for some time to come. In haste, most respectfully yours,

JAMES F. McLEOD,
Lieutenant Colonel Commanding N. W. M. P.
ALFRED H. TERRY,
A. G. LAWRENCE,
Commissioners.

THE NATIONAL DEBT.

FOLLOWING is the public-debt statement for October:

Six per cent. bonds	$ 738,776,850
Five per cent. bonds	703,266,650
Four and a half per cent. bonds	200,000,000
Four per cent. bonds	65,000,000
Total coin bonds	$1,717,042,800
Lawful money debt	$ 14,000,000
Matured debt	27,062,380
Legal tenders	354,554,594
Certificates of deposit	37,620,000
Fractional currency	18,332,574
Coin certificates	23,543,200
Total without interest	$ 444 076,349
Total debt	$2,202,176,749
Total interest	29,711,[illegible]
Cash in treasury—coin	$ [illegible]
Cash in treasury—currency	13,[illegible]
Currency held for redemption of fractional currency	9,144,589
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	37,620,000
Total in treasury	$ 194,033,043
Less estimated amount due military establishments for which no appropriations have been made	9,500,000
Debt less cash in treasury	$2,061,587,254
Decrease of debt during October	4,236,584
Decrease since June 30, 1877	77,128,076
Bonds issued to Pacific Railroad Companies, interest payable in lawful money; principal outstanding	64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid	1,292,470
Interest paid by the United States	35,367,629
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc.	8,756,413
Balance of interest paid by United States	27,401,216

THE EAST.

GREAT excitement has been caused in Clarion county, Pa., by the striking of a 400-barrel oil well....The Secretary of a Newark (N. J.) savings bank has been indicted for perjury in certifying to false reports of the bank's condition.

A PHILADELPHIA dispatch announces the death of Edwin Adams, the well-known tragedian, in the 44th year of his age. His disease was consumption.

STEVENS' BATTERY, New York papers report, has been sold to a foreign Government. The name of the Government or amount is not stated, but the sum is said to be small in comparison with the original cost, which was nearly $6,000,000.

THERE were sixty-one failures in New York city during October, the largest number of any month this year, but the liabilities, which are in round numbers $3,600,000, are not so great as in some other months.

A PASSENGER and freight train collided near Ridgeway, Pa., on the Philadelphia and Erie railroad last week. The engineers and firemen of both trains and two brakemen—in all six persons—were killed. None of the passengers were seriously hurt....James Brown, of the firm of Brown Brothers, New York bankers, is dead....New York dispatches announce the return of A. Oakey Hall, the ex-Mayor of that city, who departed so mysteriously from his home several months ago, and who executed an equally mysterious second disappearance after he was traced to, and recognized in, London. He denies Tweed's charges about his complicity in the ring swindling.

THE WEST.

MR. T. M. METCALF, Minnesota's Commissioner of Statistics, estimates that the wheat crop of that State this year will reach the enormous amount of 40,000,000 bushels, notwithstanding the ravages of the grasshoppers.

EDWARD S. McVEY and his wife Ann, aged respectively 77 and 72 years, were brutally murdered in their home near Chillicothe, Ohio, one night last week. The object of the murderers, who are supposed to be tramps, was robbery. ....Lewis Meyers, Treasurer, and J. S. Smith, Auditor, of Auglaize county, Ohio, were tried the other day on a charge of embezzling $17,000 in county funds. Meyers pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Smith was committed to jail in default of $10,000 bail.

THE receiver of the Fidelity Savings Bank, of Chicago, reports that the total liabilities of the concern amount to $1,315,054; while the assets are placed at $945,537.

A FEW days ago a number of prisoners in the Carson (Nev.) penitentiary attempted to break out, and seized Mathewson, the deputy warden, and, holding him before them to prevent the guards from firing, made a rush for the gate. Mathewson three times ordered the guards to fire. They finally obeyed, severely wounding Mathewson and two of the convicts, when the others surrendered. There were no escapes.

A CHEYENNE telegram says the Deadwood coach was stopped and robbed near that place by two armed men, supposed to be Blackburn and Wall, the notorious road agents. There were seven passengers on the coach, among whom was United States Marshal Sweesy. The robbers took everything of any value that could be found—money, jewelry, blankets, and overcoats.

THE SOUTH.

IT is reported that a syndicate, composed of prominent New York banking firms, has been formed for the purpose of funding the Southern bonds. Since the beginning of the war no interest has been paid upon the Southern State, county or municipal indebtedness. These bonds aggregate $500,000,000. The proposed syndicate has matured a plan which, by the Legislatures of the several States, will secure the funding of the debt and the payment of interest.

GEN. N. B. FORREST, the well-known ex-Confederate cavalry officer, died last week at the residence of his brother in Memphis, Tenn.... A dispatch from Columbia, S. C., says "the Grand Jury has returned a true bill against L. Cass Carpenter, late Revenue Collector for the District of South Carolina, for forgery in two instances, and raising, altering and printing warrants upon the Treasurer. A true bill was also found against Robert Smalls (colored), Congressman from the Fifth district, for accepting a bribe of $5,000 to vote as State Senator for the passage of a fraudulent printing appropriation."

DEVLIN, Hall, Craver and Nichols, members of the Louisville Base-Ball Club, have been ignominiously expelled by the directors of the club for selling games, disobedience of orders and general misconduct.

THE State of Texas has just purchased 1,400 acres of land, with valuable buildings and improvements, near Hempstead, for the State University for Colored Youths.

GENERAL.

WE have news of the loss of several whaling vessels, with their crews, in the Arctic ocean. ....A Philadelphia grand jury has indicted John S. Morton and others for conspiracy to defraud the Market Street railway out of $2,000,000....Boston telegram: Two steamers, to-day, for Liverpool, take 125,000 bushels of wheat, shipped by Chicago parties on a through bill of lading. Engagements are already made for all the grain tonnage-room of the November steamers.

ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-SEVEN new Mormon converts arrived in New York last week, together with twelve missionaries, who make a total of 1,500 converts landed at that city from Europe during the past year.

WASHINGTON.

THE internal-revenue receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30 were: Total, $21,530,732; for Illinois, Chicago district, $6,500,000; Indiana, $6,037,219; Iowa, $810,402.

THE President has appointed E. W. Stoughton, of New York, Minister to Russia; John Baxter, of Tennessee, United States Judge for the Sixth circuit, vice Judge Emmons, deceased; Theodore Roosevelt, Collector of the Port of New York; E. A. Merritt, Surveyor of the Port of New York; and Bradford Prince, Naval Officer at New York.

JOHN WELSH, of Philadelphia, has been appointed by the President Minister to England. Mr. Welsh was President of the Centennial Board of Finance, and is a man of considerable wealth....The Chicago whisky crooks have renewed their attempts to secure a compromise with the Government....President Hayes, accompanied by his family and several members of the Cabinet, visited Richmond, Va., last week. An immense crowd turned out to welcome them, and the reception was a most enthusiastic one.

CLARKSON N. POTTER declines the Chairmanship of the House Pacific Railroad Committee, on account of his connection with Tom Scott's [illegible]

POLITICAL.

ATTY. GEN. DEVENS, writing from Washington, excusing himself from active participation in the Massachusetts campaign, says: "I learn with surprise and regret that many Republican officials hesitate whether to speak or vote, alleging as a reason the President's recent civil-service order. In distinct terms that order states that the right of officials to vote and express their views on public questions, either orally or through the press, is not denied, provided it does not interfere with the discharge of their official duties. If such gentlemen choose not to vote or not to express and enforce their views in support of the principles of the Republican party, either orally or otherwise, they at least should not give a reason for such a course which is not justified by the order referred to, and which is simply a perversion of it."

THE Supreme Court of Missouri has rendered a decision in the Congressional contested case of Frost vs. Metcalfe from the Third District of the State, affirming the decision of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, and declaring Metcalfe, Republican, entitled to the certificate. Frost declares that he will not abide by the decision of the court, but will continue to prosecute his claim before the House Committee on Elections.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

IT is announced that the Russians, deeming the wintering of the army in Bulgaria impracticable on account of the rains, will make desperate efforts to defeat the forces of Suleiman Pasha and also for the reduction of Plevna previous to withdrawing the bulk of their troops into Roumania.

A BUCHAREST dispatch says "a body of Russians carried the Turkish position of Telische, west of Plevna. One Pasha, several officers, and seven companies of Turkish troops were taken prisoners. Three cannon were captured." It is announced that "Kars is completely invested, and that its fall is only a question of time."

A CORRESPONDENT, who was an eye-witness, telegraphs from Erzeroum: "As the Turks were evacuating Hassan-Kaleh on Tuesday night, the Russians surprised the rear guard, taking two battalions prisoners. The Russian loss was insignificant. The enemy's approach was utterly unexpected. The Turks now occupy a formidable position at Deve Boyum, the last defensive position east of Erzeroum."

A RUSSIAN official dispatch says: "The total number of prisoners captured at Dubnik and Telische was 7,000, including two Pashas, 200 officers, and an English Colonel in the Turkish service."

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

CHINESE authorities have officially taken possession of the railway between Woosung and Shanghai, and stopped all traffic thereon.... The American stone-masons who lately landed in London have joined the strikers....The account of the capture of the President of the revolutionary Cuban republic, Thomas Estrada, and the Secretary of the revolutionary Chamber, by a Spanish column under Col. Mazoviejo, near Holguin, is officially confirmed, with the additional information that several members of the Chamber were included in the capture. The loss will probably not appall the patriots, but rather lend new bitterness to the spirit of the insurrection.

A LONDON dispatch states that "complete access has been obtained to both pits of the High Blantyre colliery, and it has been ascertained that 250 persons perished."

THE hurricane which recently swept over the Island of Curacoa, in the West Indies, caused a loss of property estimated at $2,000,000. The loss of life was large in the city of Curacoa. Many of the most solid structures were crushed by the waves, and many persons were buried in the ruins. The people were made paupers in an hour.

THE price of silver has fallen in London to 54¾ pence per ounce, at which rate the gold value of the trade-dollar is 94½ cents....The Spanish Government has adopted a military bounty land system for Cuba, somewhat like the Homestead law of the United States. Soldiers who have completed their terms of service and settled in the island are to be allotted portions of the Government lands, which they must occupy and cultivate for three years before receiving absolute titles. They will be exempt from taxation for five years. The same privileges are promised to homeless insurgents who surrender.

A PARIS paper fears that, unless the political crisis in France should be at once terminated, that country will be plunged into civil war.... The King of Abyssinia is reported to have gained a great victory over the Egyptians recently, inflicting a loss on the enemy of 23,000 in killed and wounded.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

MONDAY, Oct. 29.—SENATE.—The following bills were introduced and referred: By Mr. Matthews, to amend the Bankrupt act. By Mr. Ingalls, to fix the date of the meeting of the first regular session of the Forty-fifth Congress on Nov. 1. By Mr. Hereford, providing for the coinage of silver dollars and for making the same a legal tender. By Mr. Saunders, to establish the Territory of Lincoln, and to provide a temporary Government therein. By Mr. Booth, to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to declare the forfeiture of railroad grants in certain cases. By Mr. Chaffee, to create a customs collection district in the State of Colorado and Territories of Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico. By Mr. Garland, to amend so much of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill for the present fiscal year as provides for paying mail contractors in the Southern States before the rebellion....The President sent to the Senate a large number of nominations, mostly of the persons nominated during the recess of Congress. Among the nominations were E. W. Stoughton, to be Minister to Russia; Theodore Roosevelt, Collector, E. A. Merritt, Surveyor, and Bradford Prince, Naval Officer, at the port of New York; John D. Defrees, to be Public Printer; William Henry Smith, Collector at Chicago; Jewell Palmer, Collector of Internal Revenue in the Fifteenth Ohio District; John Baxter, of Tennessee, United States Circuit Judge for the Sixth Circuit; Romanzo Bunn, District Judge for the Western District of Wisconsin....The Senate, in executive session, confirmed a number of nominations for small offices, but took no action on those fouimportant places.

HOUSE.—The House was flooded by a perfect avalanche of bills. There were introduced, placed upon the records, and ordered to be printed, the enormous number of 845 bills, an average of almost three to each member. The following are the titles of a few of them: Providing for uniform certificates of the election of members of Congress; reducing the postage on letters; to repeal the law taxing deposits in savings-institutions; for the removal of all political disabilities; declaring the Department of Agriculture one of the Executive Departments; for the establishment of a Department of Commerce; to repeal the act for resumption of specie payments; for the restoration of wages in the Government Printing Office; to make United States notes receivable for import duties; also, to consolidate the bonded debt and to reduce interest; to abolish the tax on liquors distilled from fruits; to abolish the iron-clad oath; for mail steamship service to Brazil; repealing the law forbidding the appointment in the army or navy of persons who have served in the army or navy of the Confederate States; also, to transfer the conduct of Indian affairs to the War Department; to reform the civil service; also to provide for counting the Presidential vote; in relation to notes for President and Members of Congress; for the issue of national savings bonds; for a National Savings Depository as a branch of the Postoffice Department; for the admission of Utah as a State; for the admission of Dakota as a State; establishing a land district in the Black Hills; to organize the territory of Pembina....Speaker Randall announced the House Committees. The Chairmanships are assigned as follows: Elections, Harris, of Virginia; Ways and Means, Wood, of New York; Appropriations, Atkins, of Tennessee; Banking and Currency, Buckner, of Missouri; Pacific Railroads, Potter, of New York; Claims, Bright, of Tennessee; Commerce, Reagan, of Texas; Public Lands, Morrison, of Illinois; Postoffice and Post Roads, Waddell, of North Carolina; District of Columbia, Williams, of Michigan; Judiciary, Knott, of Kentucky; War Claims, Eden, of Illinois; Public Expenditures, Hatcher, of Missouri; Private Land Claims, Gunter, of Arkansas; Manufactures, Wright, of Pennsylvania; Agriculture, Cutler, of New Jersey; Indian Affairs, Scales, of North Carolina; Military Affairs, Banning, of Ohio; Militia, Miles Ross, of New York; Naval Affairs, Whitthorne, of Tennessee; Foreign Affairs, Swann, of Maryland; Territories, Franklin, of Missouri; [illegible], of Ohio; Railways and Canals, Schleicher, of Texas; Mines and Mining, Beebe, of New York; Education and Labor, Goode, of Virginia; Revision of Laws, Walsh, of Maryland; Coinage, Weights and Measures, Stephens, of Georgia; Patents, Vance, of North Carolina; Public Buildings and Grounds, Cook, of Georgia; Accounts, Roberts, of Maryland; Mileage, Cobb, of Indiana; Expenditures of the State Department, Springer, of Illinois; Expenditures of the Treasury Department, Glover, of Missouri; Expenditures of the War Department, Blackburn, of Kentucky; Expenditures in the Navy Department, Willis, of New York; Expenditures in the Postoffice Department, Williams, of Alabama; Expenditures in the Interior Department, Sparks, of Illinois; Expenditures on Public Buildings, Lynde, of Wisconsin; Expenditures in the Department of Justice, Bragg, of Wisconsin; Reforms in the Civil Service, Harrison, of Illinois; Mississippi Levees, Robertson, of Louisiana; Rules, Stephens, of Georgia; Revision of the Law Regulating the Counting of the Electoral Votes, etc., Southard, of Ohio; Printing, Singleton, of Mississippi; Enrolled Bills, Hamilton, of Indiana; Library, Cox, of New York.

TUESDAY, Oct. 30.—SENATE.—The Senate was in session but fifteen minutes. A number of bills were introduced and referred to appropriate committees. Nearly all were of a private nature....A resolution authorizing the presiding officer to appoint a select committee on the subject of ascertaining and declaring the result of the election for President and Vice President of the United States was agreed to.... Mr. Coke introduced a bill making an appropriation to pay over to Texas the residue of the $5,000,000 reserved for the satisfaction of that portion of the public debt of the late republic of Texas for which the duties on imports of said republic were especially pledged, being the balance remaining after the payment of such debt. Referred. He also introduced a bill to reimburse Texas for expenses incurred by repelling invasions of Indians and Mexicans. Referred.... The Senate then went into executive session and confirmed the following nominations: E. F. Noyes to be Minister to France; E. W. Stoughton, Minister to Russia; Thomas Osborne, Minister to the Argentine Republic; James M. Comley, Minister to the Sandwich Islands; James Russell Lowell, Minister to Spain; John A. Kasson, Minister to Austria; Romanzo Bunn, United States Judge for the Western District of Wisconsin. A number of other nominations of minor importance were confirmed.

HOUSE.—Not in session.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 31.—SENATE.—The following bills were introduced and referred: By Mr. Burnside, to remove all restrictions regarding the enlistment of colored citizens in the army....By Mr. Ingalls, to provide a building for the Postoffice, courts and other public offices at Topeka, Kan.... A number of unimportant bills were introduced.... The Vice President announced the select committee to consider the question of making a change in the method of counting the vote for President and Vice President, as follows: Messrs. Edmunds, Conkling, Howe, McMillan, Teller, Davis (of Illinois), Bayard, Thurman and Morgan—five Republicans, three Democrats and one Independent....The Senate was in executive session over an hour, and confirmed several hundred Postmasters, but took no action on important nominations.

HOUSE.—Mr. Ewing, from the Committee on Banking and Currency, reported the following bill: "That the third section of the act entitled 'An act to provide for the resumption of specie payments,' approved Jan. 14, 1875, be, and the same is hereby, repealed." Mr. Fort presented the views of the minority of the committee in the shape of an amendment to the bill as follows: "A bill to repeal all that part of the act approved Jan. 14, 1875, known as the Resumption act, which authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to dispose of United States bonds, and redeem and cancel the greenback currency. Be it enacted, etc., That all that portion of the act which reads as follows (quoting as above from the third section), be, and the same is hereby, repealed." Mr. Ewing moved that the bill be printed and recommitted, which was agreed to without division, and he then moved to reconsider that vote, his object being thus to retain control of the bill and be able to call it up at any time. Mr. Conger moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table, which was rejected—yeas, 116; nays 138.

THURSDAY, Nov. 1.—SENATE.—The desk of Senator Morton was marked by a bouquet of white flowers. The Chaplain alluded to the illness of the Senator, saying: "We unite our prayers to beseech Thee to give to the dying Senator the prospect of a better life, to open to him a new career and another journey beyond the stars."....The proceedings in the Senate were brief and unimportant. Mr. Armstrong presented a memorial the Kansas City Board of Trade favoring the repeal of the Specie-Resumption act and the remonetization of silver; also, a resolution of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange favoring the repeal of the Bankrupt law.

HOUSE.—Mr. Goode, of Virginia, offered a resolution indorsing the Southern policy of President Hayes. Mr. Phillips objected. Mr. Butler suggested its reference to the Committee on Education and Labor. The resolution was not received....There was a spirited fight over the motion to reconsider the vote referring the bill repealing the date for the resumption of specie payments. The result was that the measure was left in the same parliamentary position it occupied the previous day.

Down in a Silver Mine.

Those who have never personally inspected the lower levels of our mines may obtain some idea of the degree of heat to be found therein by visiting the Savage works at the change of shifts. The men—packed together as close as they can stand on the cage—are popped up out of the shaft all steaming hot, for all the world like a bunch of asparagus just lifted from the pot. They make their appearance in a cloud of steam that pours up continuously from the "depths profound," and are dimly seen until they step forth upon the floor of the works. As the men land and separate each carries with him for half a minute his little private cloud of vapor. As this passes off the man is seen to be naked from the waist up, his skin as wet as though he had just been lifted out of a pool of water. The men bring up with them—besides the steam—an amount of heat that may be felt by the spectator as they pass.

All this is at the top of the shaft, where it is considered quite cool—what, then, must it be hundreds of feet below, where the men started from—down where the water stands at 157 degrees Fahrenheit? Down there no steam is seen—it is too hot for it. It is only when the hot, moist air coming up from the lower regions strikes the cool air toward the top of the shaft that it takes the form of steam. Down there where the men come from you must keep your hands off the pump column and the pipes, and if you pick up any iron tool you will at once put it down without being told to do so. Down there they handle things with gloves on, or wrap rags about the drills they are guiding and iron apparatus they are moving, and down there, too, you will learn to keep your mouth shut after you have drawn a few mouthfuls of hot air into your lungs.

Perspire? It is no name for it. You are like a sponge that is being squeezed. You are ready to believe that you have 10,000,000 pores to every square inch of surface, or as many more as any authority may mention, and that all these pores are as big as the cells of a honey-comb. You go for ice-water, and it almost seems to hiss as it passes down your throat—you keep going for it, and thus, in a short time, find out what becomes of the tons and tons of ice that are daily consumed in the mines. Remain below among the miners for an hour or two, and when you are finally popped out at the top of the shaft, all red-hot and steaming, among the other asparagus sprouts, you will appreciate the beauty, the light and the coolness of the upper world.—Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.

THE NEZ PERCES.

Their Terrible Losses in the Big Hole Battle—The Savages Commended for Their Humanity.

[Helena (Mont.) Cor. Chicago Times.]

The career of the Nez Perces, from their first outbreak in Idaho to the surrender of a large portion of the band to Gen. Miles at Bear Paw mountain, was one to which even a frontiersman would hesitate to apply the epithets cowardly and fiendish which are usually called into play to stigmatize the course of even the bravest and most humane Indians. The conduct of the Nez Perces, however, has contrasted so strangely and favorably with that of any other United States tribe that those who hate bitterly the whole red race cannot conscientiously condemn them without qualifying their condemnation in the many instances where their course was praiseworthy. At the very outset of the war, when they began their bloody work in Idaho, they surprised the country by observing one of the unwritten rules of civilized warfare, and gave life and liberty to the women while they murdered the men. In one or two instances, women who came across their trail were subjected to a fate worse than death, their conduct at all other times was such as to give grounds to the belief that these foul deeds were perpetrated by renegades from other tribes whom the Nez Perces could not restrain. When, after traversing the So So trail, and allowing themselves to be detained for some days by a handful of men, they entered the Bitter Root valley, although the valley was defenseless, and they had good reason to be in a bad humor, knowing that every ranch contained men who were burning to avenge the atrocities they had committed in Idaho, they fired not a single shot, stole not one horse, were uniformly courteous to the whites, and a hundred United States soldiers would have pillaged more than did this body of more than 600 hostile Indians who later proved themselves the best fighters on the plains or in the mountains. There is every reason to believe that the Nez Perces were peaceably inclined when they entered Montana, and that they were intent on reaching British America to negotiate for an alliance with the Sioux. They would certainly have succeeded in their purpose and returned to ravage the frontier, or at least insolent in the belief that whatever they did henceforth they were sure of a pardon, had not Gen. Gibbon braved overwhelming odds and struck them such a blow that their flight was badly delayed. Troops were enabled to reach the desired points, and, without detracting from Gen. Miles' merit as an Indian fighter, it may be said that he would never have seen a Nez Perces' wigwam had they eluded Gibbon's gallant Seventh Infantry. I am enabled to give you accurate figures regarding the Indians who perished in the battle of Big Hole, by which the reader may judge what a terrible blow the Nez Perces received on the 9th of August. The burial party, composed of Gibbon and Howard's men, buried eighty-three Indians on the battle-ground, and found six bodies in a ravine some distance therefrom. About a week since a party were sent to the battle-field after the body of Capt. Logan, which they were to take to Fort Shaw for burial. They found that the bodies of both whites and Indians had been exhumed by wild beasts, and that only the bones of the slain remained. They also discovered the bodies of twenty-three Indians who had been buried by caving in the banks of the river on them, making a total of 112 warriors, squaws and papooses who died in that desperate fight.

Mennonite Houses in Nebraska.

Of late I have eaten dinner cooked by grass, as well as examined straw furnaces in the houses of Bishop Peters and scores of his flock. There has been no freezing in his house (48x26) during the two years since it was built. Yet his only winter fuel has been straw, and his furnace, the iron work of which cost $5, is heated only three times a day. What Nebraska had wasted now warms a thousand Muscovites. Russian furnaces, I notice, are already set up in the houses of Yankees, who see that if their fuel shall be henceforth costly or their dwellings cold, the fault will be all their own. —Chicago Times.

An "Extenuating Circumstance" Indeed.

In France a murderer is never hung if the jury appends to its verdict the words "with extenuating circumstances." The consequence is that, no matter how atrocious the crime may be, it is almost impossible to obtain a verdict of guilty without the addition of these words. A few years ago a man killed his mother and father. He was found guilty, with extenuating circumstances. These circumstances were that he was an orphan. —London Truth.

DURING the last ten years nearly 1,000,000 acres in Great Britain, formerly under grain crops, have been converted into pasture, meat having become so paying an article to raise; but in the last Board of Trade report it is remarked that this conversion of arable land into pasture has received a check as a result of the large importation of American meat.

ONE of the Harvard Professors was pitched into by a student the other night, who strode up to the Professor in a horse-car, gave him a stunning blow, jammed his silk hat down to his shoulders, and escaped before the bewildered Professor could raise the hat and see who his assailant was.

THEY are at work now on the Straits of Dover tunnel. The tunnel will belong to its proprietors for thirty years; then the two Governments will be able to take possession of it on certain conditions.

FIFTY YEARS ENGAGED.

A Woman's Love Requited After an Engagement of Half a Century.

[From the Carlisle (Ky.) Mercury.]

Upward of fifty years ago there lived in this county a young swain possessing the patronymic of George W. Gillespie, generally known and called by the plebeian appellation of "Wash." In his whilom tergiversations he became tangled up in the affections of Miss Annie Wilson, of Bath, who in her pristine days was a rural lass of no groveling presence. They were wont to congregate under the umbrageous shrubbery of old man Wilson and exchange those soul-inspiring words and glances which only the juvenile tillers of the soil can enjoy, till George found himself engaged and the day named. But trivial troubles arose which seemed mountains in George's eyes, and in a fit of disappointment he pulled stakes and sought a location in the West. As time lapsed his passion for the fair Annie sufficiently paled to admit of his affections being centered upon another, whom he married and reared a family of eleven children, all of whom are now married, having long since abandoned the parental hearth. Two years since Mrs. Gillespie died, and the lonely widower began to revolve in his craniological lottery wheel a few schemes to get a wife, when the quondam apple of his eye was presented, and he unanimously adopted a resolution to return to his first love in Bath.

He found her enjoying the isolated lot of an old maid, and told her he didn't mean anything by it, and asked if she was still angry. She said she felt a little miffed at first, but had partly gotten over it. It was not long till he had succeeded in reinstating himself in that enviable place in her heart which only he had ever held, and the sparks of affection which had smoldered in her devoted bosom for more than half a century were rekindled.

The two lovers visited the Paris Fair in company, and, while there, called on Clerk Patton to obtain the requisite marriage documents, which were issued by this urbane gentleman (after proper inquiry as to their ages). They then sought the smiling countenance of Judge Turney, and were wedded.

They spent several hours at the fair, and in the evening took the train for Cincinnati to enjoy the sweets of a wedding tour. Returning to Carlisle, they were met at the train by that kind-hearted gentleman, George Bramblette, and conveyed to his neat Gothic residence, where, amid relatives and friends and delectable strains of music, all was peace and joy unalloyed, and the assemblage wished them a happy voyage up life's path. The bride is 69 years old, and the groom is 73.

An Apologue of the East.

Two young bloods, much against their will, find themselves engaged to fight a duel. Both go to the only fencing-master in town, and each receives from him this advice: "The moment you cross swords take a pace backward and be on your guard for your adversary's slightest movement. Even if he disengages himself and retires, beware all the same—it may be a feint." The two duelists receive these instructions with exceeding great joy, treasure them up and act upon them so faithfully that, after twenty minutes of extreme prudence on both sides, the seconds interfere and stop the combat. "No, no," they cry, "you are too strong for each other. It would be sheer butchery to let this continue." And the enraged combatants are compelled to embrace and all breakfast together.

IN 1876 the exports of books from England amounted to about $4,400,000. Of these the United States received books to the value of $955,000, while Canada and other North American provinces received only to the value of $340,000. The United States sent to England in 1876 books to the value of $90,000.

MR. AND MRS. BARDWELL, an aged couple of Whaley, Mass., divided their money into equal parts before starting on a journey, each taking one. Their idea was that at least half of the sum would be saved from thieves; but the world is wickeder than they thought. Both their pockets were picked.

THE debt of New York city is $3,000,000 less than last year.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 00	@11 00
Hogs	5 25	@ 5 50
Cotton	11⅛	@ 11½
Flour—Superfine	5 00	@ 5 40
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 20	@ 1 30
Corn—Western Mixed	60	@ 62
Oats—Mixed	32	@ 38
Rye—Western	70	@ 72
Pork—New Mess	14 75	@15 00
Lard	8½	@ 8¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@ 5 50
Choice Natives	4 60	@ 5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 40	@ 3 75
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 50
Hogs—Live	4 25	@ 5 12½
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 60	@ 5 75
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 11	@ 1 12
No. 3 Spring	1 03½	@ 1 04
Corn—No. 2	44	@ 45
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 26
Rye—No. 2	53	@ 54
Barley—No. 2	60	@ 61
Butter—Choice Creamery	31	@ 33
Eggs—Fresh	17	@ 18
Pork—Mess	13 50	@13 60
Lard	8	@ 8¼
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 10½	@ 1 13
No. 2	1 08	@ 1 09
Corn—No. 2	44	@ 45
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 25
Rye—No. 1	54	@ 55
Barley—No. 2	63	@ 64
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 3 Red Fall	1 27	@ 1 28
Corn—No. 2 Mixed	42	@ 43
Oats—No. 2	25	@ 26
Rye	54	@ 55
Pork—Mess	13 75	@14 00
Lard	8	@ 8¼
Hogs	4 60	@ 5 20
Cattle	3 75	@ 5 30
CINCINNATI
Wheat—Red	1 18	@ 1 28
Corn	40	@ 46
Oats	27	@ 31
Rye	58	@ 70
Pork—Mess	13 75	@14 00
Lard	8	@ 9¼
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White Michigan	1 30	@ 1 31
No. 2 Red Winter	1 27	@ 1 28
Corn	48	@ 50
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice White	6 25	@ 6 50
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 30	@ 1 31
No. 1 Amber	1 27	@ 1 28
Corn—No. 1	48	@ 49½
Oats—Mixed	27	@ 28
Barley (per cental)	1 10	@ 1 95
Pork—Mess	15 25	@15 50
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 80	@ 5 40
Fair	4 25	@ 5 00
Common	3 00	@ 4 25
Hogs	4 70	@ 5 35
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 25

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. HAYS, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

A NEW enemy to grain has lately been discovered in a cargo of barley discharged at Amsterdam. It is a small, microscopic maggot, of an unknown species, and, besides the injury it inflicted on the grain, its presence there produced serious illness and a peculiar eruption on [illegible] with the warp.

TO FACILITATE the parturition of cows, the administration of a few handfuls of linseed with their drink for three or four weeks before their calving is strongly recommended by a writer in the Landwirth, a German agricultural paper. In over thirty years' practice he has always found it to act beneficially, and, moreover, it increases the secretion of milk, decreases inflammation and constipation, and forms a certain remedy in retention of afterbirth.

THE setting of shade trees along both sides of the roads in the farming districts is often advocated by the rural press, as a means of increasing the value of farms, in consequence of the pleasantness of such street when the trees become large. There is no mistake in this opinion, and farmers would do well to club together and set maples, elms, etc., along their farms, and then see that no cattle are allowed to run in the highway. —Farmer's Friend.

TO DRAIN a depression in a field, where a clayey or hard-pan subsoil prevents the sinking of rain-water, and the lay of the land is unfavorable for ordinary methods of drainage, first dig a hole as if for a well through the impervious stratum at the bottom of the hollow, fill it up to the brim with refuse stones, remove the excavated earth so as to allow the surface water free access to the pit, and standing water will never injure the grass or grain crop in that part of the field.

I, LAST winter, trenched a small piece of ground where formerly nothing but rushes was produced. Throughout the early part of the year it was frequently stirred up and broken with a five-tined fork, at the same time mixing in a good quantity of soot, guano and sand. I added the sand to make the soil work better, it being a wet, spongy peat. In April the seed was sown, and I must say that I have never seen a better crop of carrots. I write this to show that carrots can be grown on what I may term waste land, where scarcely anything else will succeed.—London Journal of Horticulture.

A COMPOST heap is a good thing on a farm when it is properly managed, but when, as in one instance we recently observed, it is allowed to become covered with a mass of weeds its value is very rapidly decreased. It is bad enough to let weeds go to seed anywhere, but one of the worst of all places is on the compost heap. If ripened there they will not remain where they fall but will be carried to various parts of the farm and scattered into the soil, under conditions very favorable to their germination and subsequent growth. The farmer will find weeds enough to fight, if he does not take pains to scatter their seeds and hasten their development.—New England Homestead.

RAW AND COOKED ROOTS.—Dr. E. Wolff, a German chemist, reports the following experiments in feeding cattle. Two cows were experimented on, which together weighed 1,750 pounds. They received daily, during the whole time, 8½ pounds of hay, 31 pounds of oats-straw, 4½ pounds of rape-seed, 4½ pounds of lentil straw, and the roots mentioned in the following table, which also gives the weight of butter and milk produced in the several cases:

Week of experiments,	Food, lbs.	Milk per week, lbs.	Butter, lbs.	Milk to 1 lb. Butter, lbs.
First, raw beet......	82½	248½	8¼	30
Second, raw potatoes..	82½	282½	6¾	42
Third, cooked beet....	123½	286½	9½	30
Fourth, c'k'd potatoes..	82½	248½	9¼	27

From the above it will be seen that the cooked potatoes greatly increased the butter without adding so much to the volume of milk as the raw ones, which made the milk of a thin and watery appearance.—Agricultural Gazette.

About the House.

CLEAN kid gloves with milk and white soap.

DON'T use table-cloths and napkins as dish-wipers.

USE lemon juice instead of vinegar upon raw cabbage.

CLEANLINESS in bedding is indispensable to health and comfort.

THE pain from the sting of a wasp or bee is relieved by applying lean, raw meat.

IT is not well-bred to lean the arm or rest the elbow upon the table while eating.

BLOW out a candle with an upward instead of a downward current of air to avoid its smoldering.

TO MAKE home-made camphor-ice melt half a teacupful of mutton tallow with a piece of camphor-gum, the size of a large hickory-nut—pour into a little cup or mold.

TO CURE WAKEFULNESS.—Take a sponge bath just before retiring; have plenty of pulverized borax in the water; rub well with a coarse towel to get up a circulation.

TO COOK EGG-PLANT.—It must be soaked in salt and water before frying it, then dried thoroughly, rolled in beaten egg and bread crumbs, and fried in plenty of lard or beef dripping.

TO WASH WHITE SILK STOCKINGS.—One table-spoonful of lemon juice to a quart of tepid water; wash thoroughly, using no soap; dry quickly in the shade; the flesh tint will be preserved.

TO MAKE YEAST CAKES.—Drain all liquid from yeast; press through cloth, and spread out on cloth to dry in the sun or in a heated room; cut in pieces convenient to turn to facilitate drying.

SALAD DRESSING.—One heaping table-spoonful of boiled mashed potatoes, rub in with a table knife half teaspoonful or less of white sugar, half teaspoonful of pepper and the same of made mustard; then a few drops at a time of salad-oil, until about one teaspoonful is used up; at the least one table-spoonful of vinegar.

FOR COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.—Melt some resin at night on going to bed, and let the smoke from it fill the room. Inhaling the smoke heals the inflammation, and sleep is often produced when one could not sleep before for much coughing. Persevere until a cure is effected. A change for the better should be felt within a week.

EGG-PLANT FRIED.—Cut in half-inch slices, salt, and place one over the other, with an inverted plate and heavy iron on [illegible] It should be prepared at night if wanted for breakfast, or in the morning if for dinner. Dredge with flour and fry thoroughly in beef drippings, lard, or butter.

YEAST CAKES FROM ONE CAKE.—Dissolve the cake in two cupfuls of water; when dissolved stir in flour enough for thick batter, and set in a warm place to rise; when risen well, which will be in from three to nine hours, mix it stiff enough to roll out with white Indian meal; roll thin, cut into square cakes, and dry on your bread-board.

THE KEELY MOTOR.

A Wonderful Discovery, but of No Present Practical Value.

After a careful and tedious investigation of the merits of the Keely motor invention, scientific minds have concluded that, while the inventor has discovered a wonderful and hitherto unknown power, it is of value only in a scientific light, and not in a practical way. The reasoning on the subject, as given by a Philadelphia scientist, is as follows.

1. The machinery necessary to produce the power that Mr. Keely claims to produce, and that he certainly does produce with it, is so costly as to place it beyond the reach of ordinary manufacturers. The machine now in use cost more than $60,000, and while subsequent machines would cost very considerably less, as appliances and methods of construction become simplified, the cost would still be largely in excess of that of the ordinary steam-engine.

2. In manipulating each engine the services would be required, not of an ordinary engineer, but of a man of exceptional scientific attainments, who would thoroughly understand the theory of its working, and would be prepared to act in sudden and dangerous emergencies.

3. The results obtained are altogether uncertain. Before direct results are secured, preliminary results must be secured; that is, the condition of working is dependent upon the contingency of being in a condition to work, and neither state is wholly within the control of the manipulator. Mr. Keely himself can never predict with certainty the result of an attempt to start the engine into motion; every manipulation that he makes partakes of the nature of an experiment. The engine may or may not respond to his attempt to start it. In short, it is beyond the power of his control; and all of his efforts to bring it under his control—efforts constantly made during a number of years—have been futile.

4. Even admitting that he may overcome this difficulty, the results obtained are so violent that the shock and jar upon the machinery tend rapidly to weaken it, and necessitate continual expense for repairs.

5. It is impossible to produce the power in volume sufficiently great to run machinery with it uninterruptedly; actually, the time required for generating a given amount of power is greater than the time that same amount of power will maintain the machinery in motion.

A sixth disability, but of less importance than either of the others, is found in the fact that the power is not applicable to an existing form of steam-engine. To utilise it, a new form of engine must be devised, and one of much nicer construction than even the finest of those used in connection with steam; the extreme subtility of the vapor requiring a closeness of jointing far beyond anything yet accomplished in practical mechanics. Mr. Keely claims to have invented such an engine, but, like the power that moves it, it seemed to be impracticable and valueless for any real work.

A Case of Elephantiasis.

A man with his legs almost petrified died at New Haven Saturday in James Featherstone, aged 71, who for many years suffered from elephantiasis arabum. He had a "crick" in his back ten years ago and took to his bed, and had never since been out of it. About a year later the soles of his feet began to harden and look like stone, and his legs swelled and were covered with scabs, ulcers and horny excrescences sometimes two inches long, presenting a sickening sight, until at his death they measured some thirty-five inches around the calf and weighed about eighty pounds. The case has attracted wide attention from physicians, and is thought to be the first of the kind in New England.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

They Will Skin Western Farmers.

The advance in the rates of freight on grain and flour will not operate to the disadvantage of Eastern consumers. The railroad companies will get better pay for their services, but the grain-producers of the West will have to deduct the advance from the price of their product. Having a large surplus in the United States this year, the price at which that surplus can be marketed governs the price of the whole crop. Our markets will strictly sympathize with the markets of the grain-buying people in Europe. The ups and downs in the rates of freight have much to do with the profits of producers and dealers in breadstuffs, but they can have no permanent effect upon prices.—Philadelphia Record.

HIS MAJESTY the Sultan recently sent for the two children of Osman Pasha to be brought to him at the palace, and presented each of them with the sum of 8,000 piasters as a token of esteem for their father. He also presented the nurse who brought them with 2,000 piasters, and sent to Muslum Osman a further sum of 10,000 piasters.

KANSAS is almost exactly in the center of the United States.

TILDEN TALES.

A Speech in Which the Ex-Governor Makes Some Reference to the Great Presidential Swindle.

Gov. Tilden was lately serenaded at his residence in Gramercy Park, New York, and made a speech, in which he said: "If our British cousins find it difficult to get a supply of food, we have a boundless supply, and a continent in which are vast areas of fertile soil adapted to the use of agricultural machinery and connected with the centers of trade by great rivers, vast internal seas, and 75,000 miles of railways. Why cannot British workmen have cheap food? Our farmers, good trade, and our carriers facilitate this commerce. Commercial exchanges, it must be remembered, involve mutuality. We must reform and moderate our barbarous revenue system, and no longer legislate against the works of humanity or the beneficence of God."

Mr. Tilden indorsed the Democratic State ticket and said: "The election, although for State officers, has relations to national politics to which I know you will expect me to allude. The condemnation by the people of the greatest political crime in our history, by which the result of the Presidential election of 1876 was set aside and reversed, is general and overwhelming."

A voice—We know you got robbed.

Mr. Tilden (excitedly)—I did not get robbed. The people got robbed. [Cheers.] I had before me on one side a course of laborious services, on which health and even life might be perilled, but on the other a period of relaxation and ease. But to the people it was a robbery of the dearest rights of American citizens. [Applause, and cries of "That's so!" "That's so!" from the crowd.]

Her sister States, continued Mr. Tilden, might afford to have the voice of New York frittered away, or its expression deferred. It could not change history; it could not alter the universal judgment of the civilised world; it could not avert the moral retribution that is impending. But New York herself cannot afford to have her voice unheard. The Declaration of Independence, the bill of rights, and the State constitution, all contain assertions of the right of the people to govern themselves, and to change their rulers at will. These declarations had ceased to have any meaning to the American mind. They seemed to be truisms which there was nobody to dispute. The contests known to us were contests between different portions of our people. To comprehend the significance of these declarations, it is necessary to carry ourselves back to the examples of human experience in view of which our ancestors acted. They had seen the governmental machine, and a small governmental class, sometimes with the aid of the army, able to rule arbitrarily over millions of unorganized, isolated atoms of human society. In forming the Government of the United States they endeavored to take every precaution against the recurrence of such evils in this country. They kept down the standing army to a nominal amount. They intended to limit the functions of the Federal Government so as to prevent the growth, to dangerous dimensions, of an officeholding class and of corrupt influences. They preserved the State Governments as a counterpoise to act as centers of opinion and as organized means of resistance to revolutionary usurpation by the Federal Government. Jefferson, the leader of liberal opinion, in his first inaugural recognized this theory. Hamilton, the representative of the extreme conservative sentiment, in the Federalist, expounded it with elaborate arguments. Madison, the father of the constitution, enforced these conclusions.

A voice—"How about the Returning Board?"

Mr. Tilden—There was no Returning Board in those days. The people elected their own President, and there were no Louisiana or Florida Returning Boards to rob them of their rights.

Several voices—"Let's have the election over again!" "We want a fair show!" "Go for 'em again!"

Mr. Tilden—The increase of power in the Federal Government during the last twenty years, the creation of a vast officeholding class, with its numerous dependents, and the growth of the means of corrupt influence, have well nigh destroyed the balance of our complex system. It was my judgment in 1876 that public opinion, demanding a change of administration, needed to embrace two-thirds of the people at the beginning of the canvass, in order to cast a majority of the votes at the election. If this tendency is not arrested its inevitable result will be the practical destruction of our system. Let the Federal Government grasp power over the great corporations of our country and acquire the means of addressing their interests and their fears; let it take jurisdiction of riots which it is the duty of the State to suppress; let it find pretexts for increasing the army, and soon those in possession of the Government will have a power with which no opposition can successfully compete. [Applause.] The experience of France under the Third Napoleon shows that, with elective forms and universal suffrage, despotism can be established and maintained. In the canvass of 1876 the Federal Government embarked in the contest with unscrupulous activity. A member of the Cabinet was the head of a partisan committee. Agents stood at the doors of the pay offices to exact contributions from official subordinates. The whole officeholding class were made to exhaust their power. Even the army, for the first time, to the disgust of the soldiers and many of the officers, was moved about the country as an electioneering instrument. All this was done under the eye of the beneficiary of it, who was making the air vocal with professions of civil-service reform, to be begun after he had himself exhausted all the immoral advantages of civil-service abuses. Public opinion in some States was overborne by corrupt influences and by fraud. But so strong was the desire to reform that the Democratic candidates received 4,300,000 suffrages. This was a majority of the popular vote of about 300,000, and of 1,250,000 of the white citizens. It was a vote 700,000 larger than Gen. Grant received in 1872, and 1,300,000 larger than he received in 1868. For all that, the rightfully-elected candidates of the Democratic party were counted out and a great fraud triumphed, which the American people have not condoned and will never condone. [Prolonged applause and cheers.] Yes, the crime will never be condoned, and it never should be. I do not denounce the fraud as affecting my personal interests, but because it stabbed the very foundations of free government. [Loud cheers.] I swear in the presence of you all, and I call upon you to bear witness to the oath, to watch during the remainder of my life over the rights of the citizens of our country with a jealous care. Such a usurpation must never occur again, and I call upon you to unite with me in the defense of our sacred and precious inheritance. The Government of the people must not be suffered to become only an empty name. [Loud applause.] The step from an extreme degree of corrupt abuses in the elections to a subversion of the elective system itself is natural. No sooner was the election over than the whole power of the officeholding class, led by a Cabinet Minister, was exerted to procure, and did procure, from the State canvassers of two States illegal and fraudulent certificates, which were made a pretext for a false count of the electoral votes. To enable these officers to exercise the immoral courage necessary to the parts assigned to them, and to relieve them from the timidity which God has implanted in the human bosom as a limit to criminal audacity, detachments of the army were sent to afford them shelter. The expedients by which the votes of the electors chosen by the people of these two States were rejected, and the votes of the electors having the illegal and fraudulent certificates were counted, and the menace of usurpation by the President of the Senate of dictatorial power over all the questions in controversy, and the menace of the enforcement of his pretended authority by the army and navy, the terrorism of the business classes and the kindred measures by which the false count was consummated, are known. The result is the establishment of a precedent destructive of our whole elective system. [Applause.] The temptation to those in possession of the Government to perpetuate their own power by similar methods will always exist, and, if the example shall be sanctioned by success, the succession of government in this country will come to be determined by fraud and force, as it has been in almost every other country; and the experience will be reproduced here which has led to the general adoption of the hereditary system in order to avoid confusion and civil war.

The magnitude of a political crime must be measured by its natural and necessary consequences. Our great republic has been the only example in the world of a regular and orderly transfer of governmental succession by the elective system. To destroy the habit of traditionary respect for the will of the people, as declared through the electoral forms, and to exhibit our institutions as a failure, is the greatest possible wrong to our own country. It is also a heavy blow to the hopes of patriots struggling to establish self-government in other countries. It is a greater crime against mankind than the usurpation of Dec. 2, 1851, depicted by the illustrious pen of Victor Hugo. The American people will not condone it under any pre[illegible] men! in the order of nature we who have guarded the sacred traditions of our free government will soon leave that work to you. Within the life of most who hear me our republic will embrace 100,000,000 people. Whether its institutions shall be preserved in substance and in spirit as well as in barren forms, and will continue to be a blessing to the toiling millions here and a good example to mankind, now everywhere seeking a larger share in the management of their own affairs, will depend on you. Will you accomplish that duty and mark these wrong-doers of 1876 with the indignation of a betrayed, wronged, and sacrificed people? [A voice—"You bet we will." Laughter]. I have no personal feeling, but, thinking how surely that example will be followed if condoned, I can do no better than to stand among you, and do battle for the maintenance of free government. I avail myself of the occasion to thank you, and to thank all in our State and country who have accorded to me their support, not personal to myself, but for the cause I have represented, and which has embraced the largest and holiest interests of humanity. [Continued applause.]

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

RAILROAD LIABILITY.

Pratt, etc., vs. The Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, error to the Circuit Court of the Eastern District of Michigan. This was an action to recover of the company damages for violation of its duty in respect of property shipped from Liverpool to St. Louis, and carried over its road from Montreal to Detroit. The goods were stored by the company upon their arrival at Detroit in the freight depot there, and were destroyed by fire the next night. The question was whether this was a good delivery to the Michigan Central railroad, the succeeding carrier, as claimed by the defendant. The court held that where the carrier allows goods to be deposited in such a way without notice, the deposit of the goods amounts to a notice, and is a delivery; hence the succeeding road was in charge of the property, and defendant was entitled to judgment in his favor. Affirmed. Justice Hunt delivered the opinion.

LOUISIANA TAX CASE.

McMillen vs. Anderson, error to the Supreme Court of Louisiana. In this case it is held that the constitutional provision that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property does not require that persons taxed by the law of the State shall be present when the tax is assessed against him, nor does it require that taxes shall be collected by a judicial proceeding; also that a statute which gives the taxpayer a right to enjoin its collection and have the validity of a tax decided by a court of justice affords process by law, notwithstanding it requires the party to give security in advance as in other injunction cases. Affirmed. Justice Miller delivered the opinion.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFER.

The New Orleans Canal and Banking Company vs. Montgomery et al., appeal from the Circuit Court for the Southern District of Mississippi. In this case it is decided that where a deed of trust refers to lands as in certain range, and it appears subsequently that the number was a wrong one, and in the meantime another deed of trust is given on the same property under the right description, a court of equity will not reform the former deed by correcting the description, and make it a first lien on the property notwithstanding the other deed, and this is so because the grantees of the later deed, having no notice of any alleged mistake in the earlier one, cannot be deprived of the lien created in their favor without a violation of the plainest principles of reason, justice, and law. Reversed. Justice Swayne delivered the opinion.

RAILROAD-BOND CASE.

Hatch vs. Coddington, error to the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. The question in this case was whether the President of the Minnesota and Pacific Railway Company was authorized by the company to sell or hypothecate first-mortgage bonds of the company for such sum or sums as he might think for its interests, and to borrow money on the company's behalf at such rates of interest as he might think proper, and whether, therefore, his disposition of certain bonds to Coddington bound the company. The court say it would be difficult to see what words would have been more comprehensive for the grant of power claimed than those used, and affirm the decision made below in his favor. Justice Strong delivered the opinion.

A Dog, a Man and a Mule.

A North Carolina wagoner sold his dog to a Laurens county man the other day for half a barrel of sorghum sirup. The dog, however, refused to be sold and took refuge under the wagon. The Laurens county man crawled after him with a piece of meat in one hand and a rope in the other. Although there were several spectators of the scene that ensued it is difficult to get at the facts. All agree that there was a scuffle under the wagon, accompanied by yelps and yells; but no one is willing to affirm that the man had the dog or the dog had the man. Finally, the dog, as it would seem, brushed up against the hind legs of the off mule and then all was still. It is not certain what killed the dog. One of the spectators said he thought he heard a trace-chain rattle, but when he went around to examine the mule she was asleep. The man had lost his hat, his coat and the greater part of his trousers, and subsequent examination proved that the dog died with one ear and a handful of hair in his mouth.—Atlanta Constitution.

WHEN a voter is registered in France he is given a card bearing his name and number. When he comes to vote, he hands in the card, which is compared with the register, and if he is all right he votes and a corner is cut from the card, which is given back to him. Saves a heap of jaw and expedites business.

PEN-PICTURE OF SITTING BULL.

How He Earned His Name—His Private Life and Personal Ambition.

[Cor. New York Herald.]

And here let me say a few words as to the name which this now-notorious savage has. No doubt various meanings and explanations of this cognomen have been suggested and given, but all his biographers who have undertaken to give his history and character have gone astray in respect to why it is "Sitting" and why "Bull." One who has seen him and who for a quarter of a century has traded with the chief and his relatives explain that the chief of the Tetons derives his title "Sitting Bull" from his habit of sitting Indian fashion, [illegible] crossed, blanket drawn tightly around him, and one hand thrown across his forehead as if he were carrying out the words of the poet:

Silent and mournful sat an Indian chief.

This sitting position with the Teton chief is a prominent characteristic, and hence the term "Sitting." Now the Indian is apt in names. There is always something appropriate about the nicknames which he bestows. The "Bull" is in consequence of his stubborn manner, and, though obdurate in council, it is not the obstinacy of the mule, but the regular stubborn, physical, intelligent obstinacy of the bull—which, of all dumb animals, not omitting the elephant, understands its own strength, especially when aroused or goaded. Joe Gardipee, from the plains, a half-breed trader of twenty seasons, has met this savage scores of times lately at Wood mountain, the self-chosen home and encampment of Taurus the Squatter, for really the exact meaning of the chief's name is the Bull that Squats, for in council or out of council, when not in the saddle or asleep, Sitting Bull squats with a terrible amount of keepoffness and tragic meditation. Joe Gardipee, an old and early plains hunter, and Peter Lewis, who less than six months ago carried the mail from Fort Benton to Fort McLean, and who have met Sitting Bull scores of times, declare that all the stories about his being born in Winnipeg, or educated there, or of his ever having been there, or of his being a white man, false, ridiculous and sensational. Chief Sitting Bull is a full-blooded Teton Indian, the Teton being a branch of the great Sioux nation. In stature he is rather inclined to be stout than tall; perhaps in his moccasins he will measure five feet eight or nine inches; weight about 170 pounds. His age is about 48; his hair a little grey; his eyes dark, and his whole appearance that of a full-blooded Sioux on the war-path. He is brave, ambitious, clever in the Indian fashion only, active, and, in the Indian creed, somewhat fanatical. He has long cherished the conviction that he is ordained as the Indian who must wrest from the whites the country of his fathers. He has a great and almost immeasurable hatred toward Americans, as distinguished from Europeans or Canadians. He is even expert in detecting who are from the United States and who are not, and instances are not wanting in his bloody and savage career where he has shown wonderful patience and humanity, often with his own hand protecting captives toward whom he took a liking or whom he regarded with so much contempt as to let free for the sake of showing the captive how little he esteemed him. Of course, he is a polygamist, having three squaws in his tepee who are his wives according to the Indian code, but he has more constancy than Bear Spirit, his brother-in-law, chief of the Yanktons, and other associate chiefs. His "private life" is described by half-breed hunters who have long been acquainted with him to be excellent, according to the Indian code. His ambition seems to be directed in a military way—to become a great soldier—and he intends, even yet, to carry out the Indian policy, "America for the Sioux." Mr. Garpidee informs me that Chief Sitting Bull knows all about the sensational stories of his being a half-breed, educated at St. John's College, Manitoba, and an English lord who had disgraced himself, etc. These stories, when repeated in his presence, tend more to exasperate him than to amuse him. Anything that tends to lessen the ability of a Sioux Indian—especially a Teton—or throw doubts upon his bravery or his ability to rule will be nearly equal to a challenge; but no one who has seen Sitting Bull, no matter under what circumstances, would or could reasonably place him among the list of doubtfuls. A white man might mistake him, but an Indian or a half-breed would classify him at first glance and be correct.

The Importance of One Mile.

By constructing a canal about three-fourths of a mile in length, from Big Stone lake to Lake Traverse, steamboats from St. Paul could navigate both the Minnesota river and the Red river of the North to Lake Winnipeg, a distance of 700 miles! The country traversed by these rivers is surpassingly fertile, and capable of sustaining a dense population. Lake Winnipeg is larger than Lake Ontario, and receives the Sas-katch-a-wan river from the west. The Sas-katch-a-wan river is navigable to a point (Edmonton House) near the Rocky mountains, 700 miles west of Lake Winnipeg, and only 150 miles east of the celebrated gold diggings on Frazer river, in British Columbia. The digging of that one mile of canal would, therefore, enable a steamboat at New Orleans to pass into Lake Winnipeg, and from thence to Edmonton House, some 5,000 miles! A bill has been introduced into the Senate which makes provision for the building of the canal.

Probably there cannot be found another spot across which the digging of so short a canal would effect a result so prodigious. And, what is equally remarkable, the ground between the two lakes is so low and level that it is said the water flows in times of freshets from one to the other.—Washington Chronicle.

He Wrote It Down.

The proprietor of an office on Griswold street was yesterday approached by an embarrassed and annoyed citizen, who asked:

"It isn't in your line, I know, but can you tell me who discovered America?"

"Why, Christopher Columbus, of course," was the answer.

"That's the chap; that's the identical man," continued the other. "I have been trying for more than four hours to remember the chap, but I couldn't fetch it. I could get Christopher Cooper, and Christopher Cumback, and Christopher Collins, but I couldn't think of Christopher Columbus. I'll write it down on the spot. Over on Larned street this morning I got into a political discussion with an insurance man, and he wrenched me all to pieces, just because I couldn't think of Christopher Columbus' name when I wanted to. Do you spell it Co' or Ko?"—Detroit Free Press.

A NEW CONVERT DISCUSSES RESUMPTION ABSURDITIES.

The Chicago Tribune, until after the speech of Secretary Sherman in the recent Ohio campaign, was one of the zealous hard-money papers of the country. The absurdities of that speech seem to have converted the Tribune to the opposite doctrine. Secretary Sherman says he does not think the aggregate of the currency, $650,000,000, will be presented for redemption Jan. 1, 1879. On the contrary, he thinks, the necessities of business will prevent banks from a move of the kind, and assumes that $100,000,000 of gold accumulated in the treasury will make resumption possible at the date fixed by law, and that there will be no subsequent contraction because the gold dollar and the greenback dollar will then be equivalents. The absurdity of the Secretary's financial theories is thus discussed by the Tribune:

"Now, what does this mean? It means that the Secretary expects to be able to have $100,000,000 in the treasury on the day fixed for specie redemption; but he does not state where he is to obtain it from. On that point he makes no explanation. He thinks the necessities of business will prevent the presentation of greenbacks for gold. If there were no necessities of business demanding gold, then there would be no occasion for selling greenbacks. The necessities of business require annually the purchase of $130,000,000 of gold for customs, and require possibly the purchase of many hundred millions of dollars of gold exchange. All we purchase from Europe has to be paid for in gold exchange or gold itself. Our importers do business in greenbacks, and, when they have to remit, they sell the greenbacks for gold, or gold exchange. Their interests have always been to advance the value of greenbacks. When, however, Mr. Sherman hangs out his sign that he will deliver gold in exchange for currency, on demand and at par, those who have to use gold, or gold exchange, will not sell their greenbacks at a discount, but will go to the treasury and exchange them at par. Unless the Secretary can compel the brokers and bankers of New York and other cities to sell gold and exchange on London at par for paper, then the paper will be sent to the treasury for gold. The gold needed for business purposes will be, possibly, from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year, and it is well known that if it cost one-fifth of 1 per cent. to purchase gold with greenbacks, the latter will be sent to the treasury for redemption at par. The necessities of business, therefore, more than anything else, will force a demand for gold so long as paper will not be exchangeable for gold at par except at the treasury. The Secretary proposes to take the gold business into his own hands, and to furnish every man who has to pay for sugar and molasses in Cuba, for coffee in South America and the West Indies, for tea in China, and for silks and other dry goods in England and France, with gold exchange on London, and to furnish them gold with which to pay duties, and to furnish it at par, and, by thus underbidding all competitors, he will certainly secure the whole business. How long will his $100,000,000 last? He also assumes that the banks will not send their greenbacks to the treasury for redemption, because those greenbacks will be as good as gold for the redemption of their own notes. All that is true; but when the holder of bank notes wants gold, and he cannot buy gold exchange with bank notes, he will present them for redemption at the bank, get treasury notes for them, and send the latter to the treasury for redemption. The banks cannot hoard greenbacks and keep their own notes in circulation. The latter will not be exchangeable for gold, and will of necessity be run in, and the greenbacks forced out, and finally presented for redemption. If the Secretary assumes that the banks will keep any of their own notes in circulation beyond the sum of greenbacks they may have on hand, his delusion must be great. They must redeem their notes on demand in gold or in greenbacks, and therefore must have either the one or the other on hand. When they redeem their notes there will be contraction to that extent, and, if the greenbacks they pay out for that purpose be redeemed in gold by the treasury, then the contraction of paper will be both in bank notes and greenbacks.

"It must be remembered that the Treasury Department will have to borrow the $100,000,000 with which it will begin specie payments. It has little or no gold income beyond its necessary gold expenditures, and when it exhausts this borrowed gold then it must suspend the redemption of greenbacks. There are about $600,000,000 paper money outstanding. The Secretary will give notice that he has $100,000,000 of gold which he will pay out in exchange for paper at par to those who shall first apply therefor. That is, he will have about 16 cents on the dollar in gold, which he will pay out, not pro rata, but to whoever shall first present the paper for redemption. He offers to redeem one-sixth of the currency in gold at par, and the holders of the paper will be too busy to call for the money. When only one man out of every six is to have gold for his currency, and that man is to be the first who applies, he does not even think that even the one man will spare the time to present the notes and take the gold. The Secretary comforts himself in the belief that while he offers gold for paper at Washington, the merchants of the country will sell their paper at a discount for gold, sooner than send it to Washington! And on that expectation the Secretary of the Treasury feels it safe to undertake the redemption of greenbacks in gold!"

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 8, 1877.

The Elections.

Pennsylvania Democratic, New York, solid, New Jersey elects 'Little Mac,' the other states as usual. Enough for one day. The jubilee is surely coming.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees has been appointed Senator in Morton's place. A deserved honor, and a wise selection.

Hon. Wm. Williams, ex-member of Congress, now residing at Warsaw, has re-entered the practice of law, and will give special attention to land and claim cases. He thoroughly understands the departments at Washington in all their varied circumlocution, and certainly has great advantage in the securing of claims. Ex-soldiers should remember this.

There is no disguising the fact that the national Congress is taking things very easily. Though there was little cause for convening an extraordinary session six weeks before the regular session, yet, having come together the two Houses seem as indifferent to the object of their meeting as they well can be. One hour would suffice to pass the appropriations needed and yet the subject has scarcely been thought of, in a session of three weeks.

Gov. Williams was asked last week who would be appointed Senator in place of Morton. He replied that he was not in the habit of administering on estates until the man was dead and buried; but yet our republican cotemporaries have called him an ignoramus, and have heaped redicule upon him at every opportunity. He still lives, however, and with his good common sense and sound judgment is making a record as Governor equal to the best we have ever had.

Hon. John H. Baker, of this district, was honored with a place on the appropriation committee of the House. It is really the most important committee in the House, having almost entire control of the disbursments of the monies of the government. It is more of a compliment to be a member of that committee than chairman of one-half the other committes.

Hamilton is chairman on the committee on Enrolled Bills. He was put where he would do the most good. That committee is more dreaded by the membership than an expected threshing by an erring school boy.

The remains of Senator Morton were interred at Crown Hill Cemetery, at Indianapolis, last Monday. Though the weather was very inclement, a large concourse of people attended. And this the last of one of the most wonderful characters of the age. He was one of those bold characters, agile and audacious, only to be developed and brought out by great excitements, like our late war. Possessed with great brain power, wonderfully fertile in cunning, wary, unscrupulous scheming he rose to distination as a leader without being a great statesman. Without extensive culture, he entered the politics as his only chance of rising above mediocrity. He was a pleasant agreeable gentleman, socially, and had many warm friends on both sides.

Marriage Licenses.

The following is the only complete list of marriage licenses issued by the county clerk during October, yet published, in any paper of this county:

Wilson D. Tomlinson and Mary Johnston, Eli Williamson and Salina A. Strow, James H. Smalley and Eliza J. Lister, Caleb Neal and Mary Sawyer, Franklin Wiltrout and Maria R. Beuchat David A Roberts and Huldah L. Losure Albert Spurgeon and Irena A. Hall, Isaac E. Newton and Elizabeth Thompson, Samuel M. Brown and Mary Morr, John Harrison and Mary Amon, Adam H Richey and Susan Bowman, Daniel Welch and Emma C. Culbertson, Judson Shade Ida Meiser, Thomas C. Ford and Sake M. Lewis, William W. Brooks and Estella Yandes, Mathias Carl and Elizabeth Wagoner, Louis Mutzfeldt and Mary Puls.

The Public Schools.

The fall term of the Auburn Public Schools will close to-morrow. On Monday, Nov. 19th they will open for the winter, the term to continue sixteen weeks. During the holidays there will be a vacation of one week.

The progress of the schools during the past term has been, in general, satisfactory to myself as well as to a large majority of the patrons. Although three new teachers were added to the teaching force at the beginning of the term, there was no perceptible jar in the school machinery, but all have worked together thus far with the most desirable harmony.

The attendance, especially in the lower departments, has not been as regular nor as full as I had desired to see, but the unusual amount of sickness during the fall term is probably a sufficient reason for that.

During next term classes will be sustained in the High School department in the following subjects: Physiology, English Composition, Algebra (both higher and elementary,) Latin (one class beginning Caesar,) Arithmetic, Reading, Geography and, U. S. History.

We shall continue to have written spelling twice a week. In the subjects named, two beginning classes will be organized—one in Latin the other in Algebra. Should the majority of the class desire to do so, German may be substituted for Latin.

The attendance of foreign students is respectfully solicited. For terms of tuition see next week's paper

M. SEILER, Sup't.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of John Moses, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH MOSES, Adm'x.

October 1st, 1877—no40.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

STATE OF INDIANA, DeKalb county.

NOTICE is hereby given that Jesse M. Brumbach, Administrator of the estate of Lyman Green, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Attest, G. A. K. MOSS, Clerk.
B. D. HARRIS, Deputy.

Administrator's Sale

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned administratrix of the estate of William Essig deceased will offer for sale at public outcry, at the late residence of the deceased in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the 17th day of November, 1877, the personal property of said estate, consisting of horses, cattle, sheep and farming implements and various other articles. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock, a. m.

TERMS.—All sums of three dollars and under, cash, all over three dollars a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving note with approved security, waiving valuation and appraisement laws, with interest.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mathew H. Griffith, James Roberts and J. Milton Butler are plaintiffs, and George W. Young and William Richmond are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seventy-five dollar ($375) and twenty-four (24) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A piece of land off the south side of the north east quarter of section thirty one (31) township thirty four four, 34, north of range fifteen, 15 east bounded as follows to-wit: on the east by the road leading from Newville to Wanamakers corners, on the north by land owned by Lawrence Gibson, on the west by land owned by H. H. Smith on the south by open half section line running between said land and John Loveland the same to contain forty-four, 44 acres of land more or less in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 5th, 1877. Pf. $10.75

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Electa Bristol and George P Bristol are plaintiffs, and Jesse E. Woodford, Henrietta E. Woodford et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of nine hundred and 42, 942, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-one, 21, in Parks addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 5th, 1877. Pf. $7.75,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Chas. Kelly is plaintiff, and Orpheus L. Hall et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty, 460, dollars and fifty, 50, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number sixteen, 16 seventeen, 17, eighteen, 18, and nineteen, 19, in McAnally's addition to the town of Waterloo, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
C. Kelly, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877. Pf, $8,00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Edward J. Baker is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seven, 307, dollars and ninety-four, 94, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and sixty-six, 166, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana, excepting forty, 40 feet off the east end thereof conveyed to Caspar Altenberg by said Baldock.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS D. GROSS Dep'ty.
R. Dexter Teft, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 5th, 1877. Pf, 8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein the Auburn Building Loan and Saving Association is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and seventy-four, 474, dollars and sixty-two, 62, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and sixty-five, 165, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877. Pf. $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Orlando T. Letcher and William Letcher are plaintiffs, and Martin Moss and Mary Moss are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of six thousand fifty-two 6052 dollars and seventy-one, 71, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The north east quarter of section twenty-four, 24, in township thirty-four, 34, north of range fourteen, 14, east excepting one acre off the north west corner of said land above described deeded to James Leonard balance containing one hundred and sixty, 160, acres more or less in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877. Pf. $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Jacob Eibert is plaintiff, and Charles Baker and Francis Picker are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and eleven, 111, dollars and sixty-seven, 67, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and four, 104, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Dragoo is plaintiff, and Samuel Groh et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and forty-five (545) dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, the undivided one-third of the following described real estate, commencing at a corner stone between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road thence south seventy-two and one-half (72½) degrees west along the center of said road eight and twelve one hundredths chains to a stake, thence south seventy two and one half, 72½, degrees east four 4 chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half 17½, degrees west three and seventy-five one hundredths chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one half 72½ degrees west four, 4, chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence north seventeen and one-half, degrees, 17½, east three and seventy-five one hundredth 3,75 chains to the place of beginning, containing one and ½ acres of land in the south-west quarter of section thirty-two, 32, in township No. 34 north of range No. thirteen, 13, east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $12.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Geo. Emerson, Pliny Watson, and Zebulon C. Pheatt are plaintiffs, and Elias Gonsor, Henry Ernest et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and ten (510) dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

The north half of the south west quarter and the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section twenty-two [22] and fourteen (14) acres off the east side of the south east quarter of the south east quarter of section twenty-one [21] township thirty-five (35) north of range twelve (12) east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
A. A. Chapin, Attorney for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 1st, 1877. $9.00.

Sheriff Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein Alfred Kelly is plaintiff and John Tresh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of ninety-six 96 Dollars, and Fifty 50 cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number Twenty-seven 27 in the Western Addition to the Town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Ind.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs. I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. Gross, Deputy.
W. L. Penfield, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Nov. 1, 1877.
Pr. fee $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Hyman and Jacob Keller is plaintiffs, and John W. Garver is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of six hundred, 600, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number one, 1, and two, 2, in block number thirty-two, 32 in the Town of Garrett DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs. I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Covill, Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for pl'ff.
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $8.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Dragoo is plaintiff, and William Whetstone, Rebecca Whetstone David Groh, and Samuel Groh are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five thousand one hundred and eighty-seven [5187] dollars and eighty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing at a corner stone in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, from thence south seventeen and one-half degrees west along the centre of said road, a ... and twelve one hundredth chains to a stake, thence south seventy-two and one half (72½) degrees east four [4] chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half degrees west three and seventy five hundredths chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one half [72½] degrees, west four chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence north seventeen and ½ degrees, east 3.75-100 chains to the place of beginning, a piece of ground in the south west quarter of section thirty-two [32] in township thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13], east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $12.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Miles Waterman is plaintiff, and William L. Gilmore and Ellen R. Gilmore is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and eighty-nine (289) dollars and eighty-eight (88) cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number forty-seven (47) forty-eight (48) fifty-five (55) and fifty-six (56) in Danforth's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
McBride, Morlan & Leas, Attorneys for pl'ff.
Auburn, Oct. 30th, 1877. Pf. $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein William H. Mader is plaintiff and Christian Seivert et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Sixty Four dollars and Sixty-Nine cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of lot number five [5] in Kuhlman's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles R. Wanamaker is plaintiff, and Frank Chillis and Hamar H. Chillis are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Fifty-Five Dollars and Fifty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lot number one hundred and fifty-nine [159] in Egnew's third addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
Pinchin & Boyle, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 22nd A. D. 1877.
Pl'fs. fee $8.30.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein the Singer Manufacturing Company is plaintiff, and Charles M. Brown and Charles Klotz are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-seven Dollars and Thirty Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south one-third of lot number sixty-six (66) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.
Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, October 24th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Geo. Ensley is plaintiff, and Thomas M. Stevens et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Eleven dollars and Ten cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER, 17th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fourty-two [42] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,
Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.30.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of James G. Wiseman, Jr. deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

GILBERT I. PATTERSON.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will make a large and special offering of

Black Silks,

Bought at the great Silk Sale of Townsend, Montant & Co, New York City, on last Wednesday, at which time 6,000 pieces were sold to the highest bidder, viz.

Black Silks	65c	worth	85	Black Silks	1.15	worth	1.40
"	75	"	95	"	1.25	"	1.50
"	85	"	1.00	"	1.40	"	1.75
"	1.00	"	1.25	"	1.50	"	1.90

Finer Grades Equally as Cheap.

We also offer

Black and Colored Trimming Velvets

At $1,50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.50 per yard.

Cloaking Velvets,

28 inches at $4.00, worth $6.00.

28 inches at $6,00 worth $7.50.

Ponsons sublime quality 28-inch Black Cloak Velvet at $14.00 per yard worth $18.00.

CHENEY'S AMERICAN GROS GRAIN SILKS.

22 inches wide warranted to wear and give perfect satisfaction, in choice shades of Brown, Navy Blue, Green, Plum, Bronze, Drab, Price 1,50 per yard.

New arrivals of Cloaks, Shawls, Suits. Furs, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Mats and Rugs.

Root & Company,

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne Ind

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Crane, Duncan & Co are plaintiffs, and Perry Fitch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Eight Hundred and Fifty-Eight dollars with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section thirty-five (35), township thirty-three (33), north of range twelve (12), east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24, 1877.
P. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause where Geo. Emerson et al is plaintiffs and Benajah B. Long, Edgar E Long and et al is defendants requiring me to make the sum of eleven hundred and thirty dollars ($1130), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Commencing fifteen (15) rods east of the north west corner of section four (4) thence running south to the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Rail Road thence east thirty-five (35) rods thence north to said section line thence west to the place of beginning all in township thirty four (34) north of range thirteen (13), east in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff
Best & McClellan, Attorneys for plaintiffs
Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877. Pf. $8.25,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Thomas W. Sharp is plaintiff and Emeline Espey and Henry Espey et al., are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four hundred and twelve dollars and Seventy cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number two hundred and forty-three (243) and two hundred and forty-four (244), in Hornberger's addition to the town of Waterloo, in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.
McBride, Morlan & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 23, 1877
Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Jas. L. Best and Chas A. O. McClellan is plaintiffs, and Irven McFadden et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one thousand and four hundred and eighty-five [1485] dollars and ninety-one [91] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A portion of the north western quarter of section number three [3] in township number thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13] east in DeKalb county, Indiana, described as follows to-wit: all that portion of said quarter section lying south of the Cemetery as now recorded in said quarter section and west of the west line of the Fort Wayne Jackson and Saginaw Rail Road containing two [2] acres more or less.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
O. B. Leas one of defendants Attorneys.
Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877. Pf. $8.25

BOOK STORE

WILLIS & CO.

Successors to C. P. Houser, having purchased the above named stock, we wish to say to the people of Auburn and vicinity that by the patronage that we hope to merit, we expect to build up a first-class

BOOK AND NEWS STORE,

that will be a credit to the place. We are adding a large variety of goods, and shall endeavor to keep on hand the novelties of the season. We solicit orders for

Books, Magazines, Papers, etc.,

which will be furnished promptly at the publishers prices by

WILLIS & CO.

October 11, '77—no41.

HURRAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE.
SIMPLEST & BEST.

A MAN CRAZY

Selling

SEWING MACHINES!

Go and see them.

G. H. YESBERA, AGT

Liquor License.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn in DeKalb County, in the State of Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session in December A. D. 1877, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, in the lower story of the building situated on the north one-third of lot sixty-three in the original plat of said town with the privilege of having the same drank where sold.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson Township, DeKalb County in the State of Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said State will at the December session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, in the year 1877, apply for license to retail, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors at the following place in said township to-wit: On that portion of the North west quarter of section six (6) in said township, bounded on the east by the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, on the south by the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad, and on the west by the Fort Wayne, Jackson and Saginaw Railroad and on the north by the line of said township.

Nov. 1 '77. CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Is it Lawful to Hang.

When a man is not fit to live then he is not fit to die. When murderers cease to take life then we will cease to kill the murderers. The low prices of cash buyers continue at Ward's cheap china store, No 9 Columbia st., Ft. Wayne, Indiana. No wonder this house sells cheap. Six packages per express this day. We saw marked for the different towns—two for Huntington, one for Kendallville, one for Sturgis, one for Plymouth, one for Van Wert. We also notice per Shipping Gazette, of New York, that there was on board the good ship Henrietta seventy-three crates, and four casks of celebrated stone china from the factory of Furnival & Son, England.

Our charming friend, Jim bought a pair of patent metalic garters, thinking in the innocence of his heart that they were bracelets, and went twice around. Arrayed in his best garb he waited up on his sweetheart, and in due time presented his gift. That was all right. But when he asked her to try them on, she—well, he didn't call there any more.

Henry White, who was injured at the St. Joe gravel pit a few weeks ago, and whose leg was amputated by Dr. Spooner, of this place, is able to be about again. This was a very successful surgical operation, requiring great skill in its execution, and we can congratulate the doctor on the excellence he has attained in his profession.

The Hook & Ladder company held a meeting Monday evening. They had better pass a resolution to make a run before winter sets in, and then when they are telling their children stories in those long winter evenings they can relate to them the short, but surprising, tale of making one run last summer, in 8 hours.

We are glad to learn that Gen. Reub Williams is now sole proprietor of the Northern Indianian. Experienced men, educated in all details in the line of their business, are the only ones who can reasonably expect to win success. The General posesses these qualifications, and we have no fear of his failing.

Coop Ralston has a horse. He lacks one of being a complete equine of his denomination. He is a beautiful bay, with wite main and tail, a combination of colors often sought after, but seldom found. He has an eye as beautifully blue as the romantic Danube. And his style, oh! there's where he excells. A good horseman will find a permanent situation next spring. Half rates.

We notice that our interprising friend Col. Alexander, of Toledo, has made a business change. Having associated with Mr. Tourtillott, they will now be found at No. 40, Monroe street, where they will conduct the auction and commission business. This is a strong combination and such energy and enterprise cannot fail to meet with success.

Hallow 'een was not largely indulged in by the boys last week. The evening was celebrated in the style of a concert and that affecting, beautiful song, "Didn't Old Pharoah Get Lost," was selected for the closing piece. But Pharoah wouldn't have it that way and lost the boys about mid-night. "It was lemonade that did the bad deed.

The occasion of Cook Ford's infair last week, at the residence of his father will long be remembered by the young people of this city. There were a large number of guests present, numbering over one hundred and fifty. Although our reporter was crowded closely between the wall and a red-hot stove, he says it was "good to be there" and would not have missed it for anything. It was certainly a hard task for the Doctor and his estimable lady to arrange for so large a party.

Coming out of Washington last Thursday morning, we had the pleasure of meeting, on the train, the boy orator, J. Harry Shannon, who has astonished all who have heard him with his eloquence. Wendil Philips says he is the most perfect orator he ever heard. The way he gets off Webster's reply to Hayne, Patrick Henry's speech, and Pitt's masterly effort, is simply wonderful, and yet he cannot read a word. He is only eight years old, and spoke for five weeks in New York to crowded houses.

We think there is no foundation, whatever, in rumor that changes are to be made by the Baltimore & Ohio road will necessitate the removal of the shops at Garrett. The fact that Garrett is mid-way between Chicago and Chicago Junction, and that any extension must be made beyond the latter point precludes any probability of a change in these divisions. The removal of the shops would be a calamity, not only to Garrett, but to the whole county and we are not so selfish as to wish a mishap to overtake our neighbor.

Next spring, when the warm sunshine fills woodland, dale and glen, when flowers laden the air with their choice perfume, when the sweet song of birds is heard amid the leafy branches somebody will ask us if we don't want a load of wood. Then will come upon us the recollection of a long cold winter and how we were wont to hover over the dying embers of our last stick, while the wind shrieked in gleeful ecstacy at our benumbed condition, and we will answer—but no, we will answer, while our voice is gentle and our heart uncalloused, bring it now, if you love us, bring it now.

That Bridge.

We understand that, last week, the town trustees of Auburn, by a vote of three to two, refused to appropriate money for making the grade to the 9th street bridge. If this is the case the best thing the County Board can do is to move the expensive bridge to some point where it is needed. It is not likely the Commissioners will feel like making the county furnish the grade, and without it, the bridge will never be of any use whatever in its present location. —Waterloo Press.

Now, don't let that bridge worry you, Charley. It has not assumed the character of an elephant just yet, and the people of this place will endeavor to see the thing through, if you will let them, Charley, dear.

There are several firms in this city that would not be known out side of the corporation, if it wasn't for their advertisement in the "Commissioners' allowances."

The case of H. Mader vs. Shoemaker before Justice Walborn, was finally settled by a jury. They both received the the benefit of the law in one respect—both had costs to pay

The ladies of the Presbyterian church are circulating a subscription paper to have a sidewalk built on Eleventh st., along the edifice. It should have been done some time ago.

The coat of feathers found on snipe this season is much heavier than in other years, which may indicate that the winter is to be colder than usual. This absolutely the first sign reported.

Parker moved the News office from this place to Kendallville this week, where he intends to publish a paper. The first number will appear in about one month. We wish him success in his new enterprise.—[Garrett Herald.

A woman may have a wart on the fold of her ear, mush colored hair and only one eye, but when it comes to picking a fall bonnet, if she hasn't a taste peculiarly her own there is no health in her.

When a young lady writes to a young man that she will wear a white shawl and be at the Baptist prayer meeting on a certain night she ought to stick to it. Those prayers were long to the ears of Mooney, yet she cometh not.

An item in the COURIER the other week, said that A. M. King had bought and moved into the Gross property. Mr. J. C. Henry is the man who has done so, and how the name of King was so used is a mystery to us.

No trains but the local freights now stop between Waterloo and Corunna. A few more short years and the weary traveler can not gaze on Sedan from the windows. Geo. Crane is about all that's left there and he has one leg half way in the grave.

Some one tried to burglarize Al Robbins' residence yesterday morning. He made an attempt to get through the window, raised the sash but he was careless, for it fell again with a loud crash, waking the inmates. He was seen making off through the alley.

We were pleased to meet at Washington last week, Mr. Van Hyde, and family, late residents of St. Joe, this county. Mr. V. was only partly recovered from a recent illness. We were favored with some charming music by his accomplished daughters.

A lamp fell in Somers' saloon on Tuesday night which came near making a call for the hook and ladder company The oil took fire and the flames arose to the height of seven feet. It was extinguished by old coats and the tramping of feet.

We are glad to learn that the new circuit Prosecutor, Mr. Bixler, has appointed Mr. H, C Peterson, of this place, his deputy. Mr. P. is a close student, an indefatigable worker and a careful, earnest attorney. The selection is a worthy one.

The flies are following the footsteps of their forefathers, and the beer slingers can again arrange their bars tastily. Carter says every time a fly lights on a mirror it thinks there is another one on the other side and it will stay there all night so as to have company.

D. D. Snyder, who has so creditably conducted the Excelsior Hardware Store for the last four years, has sold the hardware department to a gentleman from Millersburg, this state. Mr. Snyder will continue in the agricultural business.

Stupidity may baffle the bright prospects of some men's lives, but one never retains his ignorance while traveling to such a great extent as to not observe that clerks own all the hotels and the brakeman all the railroads of this once happy country. All experienced travelers understand what we mean.

We saw a man sleeping in church a few Sabbaths ago; nay, perhaps not sleeping. He may just have been philosophizing, for it is said that closing the eyes makes the senses of hearing more acute. You will always notice those that sit on the front seat shut their eyes first.

Have you ever read any of Jules Verne's stories? Get his "Twenty 1000 Leagues Under the Sea," at Willis' book store. So charmingly written that you can scarcely lay it down, yet it sandwiches between delightful dial ue and thrilling description may scien lc facts of great benefit to all. Pract al useful information served up in a m t palatable manner.

Mark your gobblers.

This is regular fall weather.

Plenty of fish in the market.

The Auburn House has a clerk.

Ira E[illegible] girl. Weight 10lb.

You can buy oysters for 30 cents.

Buckwheat cakes are now in order.

The growing wheat is said to be good.

The hacks are doing a good business.

Teachers bells cheap at Willis & Co's

The steam wood sawing machine is busy.

The hog cholera is abating somewhat.

A full line of school books at Willis & Co's.

Rhodenbaugh & Co. are to have a new sign.

A little hop was had at the hall Tuesday night

Are boys from 16 to 17 allowed to play pool?

Go to the New York Store for your dry goods.

New corn is begining to come in pretty lively.

The health of the community is remark. bly good.

The second prize pool game comes off Monday evening.

"Laughing Jimmy" is learning the cigar trade with Grubb.

Mitch Houston has given his meat market a coat of paint.

Bank around your houses and fix the windows in the cellar.

The official majority in Ohio, gives Bishop 24,182 over West.

Cloth peddlers and picture agents are operating in this county.

Elias Born, Esq., of Butler, gave us a brief call on Monday last.

Buy your winter's wood as soon as the roads get good again.

Miss Mary Kline is visiting with Miss Dunafins, at Hicksville, Ohio.

More new clothing at bottom prices at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

John Britton has a new horse. His little black died the other week.

Best inks in large or small quantities at the book store of Willis & Co's.

Miss Aletha Born will return to her home in Colon, Michigan, this week.

Woolen mittens for 30c. Woolen hose for 25c., at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

The question of a club dance is being agitated among the young folks.

The New York Store is getting trade from other counties. Good for Auburn.

Hickory nuts are selling here for $2 a bushel and at other places for $3 a barrel.

There is talk of soon beginning a protracted meeting at the Presbyterian church.

The young people's prayer meeting was held at the M. E. church Tuesday evening.

Montgomery Queen's circus has come to grief at St. Louis, being attached by creditors.

Sam. Pommert has added a cigar stand to his barber shop. Smokers, remember.

What shall it profit a man if he gains the whole world and puts it into a savings bank?

Frank Griswold has quit working for Mr. Cool. The traveling men will greatly miss him.

We learn that Miss Sadie Grogg is suffering from that dreadful disease consumption.

Was it a dream or was it not that some friend is fatting us a Thanksgiving turkey.

The corn is about all cut. Husking bees will soon be the style with the sturdy farmers.

The COURIER office returns thanks to the Little Cigar Store on the Corner for a smoke around.

There was a shock of an earthquake felt in several of the eastern states last Sunday morning.

The New York Store will sell you goods cheaper than any other store in DeKalb county.

Mrs. and Mrs. Grubb will occupy the Foltz property His mother will live with him this winter.

Did you pay your taxes? This is a debt we have to "put up" for promptly to avoid the penalty.

Bill Britton and a fellow from Angola had a little dispute. It was settled by Justice Walborn Tuesday.

Mr. Rickel has resigned as school trustee and Mr. Nick Ensley has been appointed to fill the pla c.

We learn that Cook Ford will move his livery from its present location, at Fayette, Ohio, to this city.

The Chimney on Mr. Baldock's residence has taken a tumble.

Mr. Shilling has opened a new harness shop on Seventh street, on the corner where the old tannery stood.

The columns rules in the leading Republican papers were turned upside down, in respect of Senator Morton.

It is rumored that a new barber shop will open up in the city soon. One of those dark completed fellows will be the boss.

A euchre party at a Main street residence Tuesday evening passed a pleasant time No ladies present made two of the boys nervous.

Babies ought to be well taken care of their system does not allow the slightest neglect. If your baby suffers from colic or bowel disorders, procure a bottle of Dr. Bull's baby syrup, a simple but always a reliable remedy. Only 25 cts.

Waterloo Items.

Stock buyers are busily engaged buying and shipping.

We noticed Mr. I. Cool and J. J. Van-Auken, from the "capitol" in town on Saturday.

S. J. Locke is getting his shooting irons ready for trial and the quail about this vicinity had better "hunt their holes."

Mr. T. R. Dickenson is reported in a dangerous condition. His illness has been a long and painful one, but probably the main cause of it is derived from old age.

Peter Montavon, the champion boot and shoe maker, is crowded with work, and we can account for it in no other way only that Auburn's boss workman, W. Latson, is now engaged there.

Mr. and Mrs. Altenburg of Auburn, made a short visit to the family of Mr. Charles Hanes, of this place, during the first of the week.—Butler Record.

We must have several correspondents in this county this winter. We want to make the COURIER a welcome visitor each week.

Why should the Russians tremble? Every governor in the United States has issued a proclamation against turkey.

Rev. Langdon Sanders will lecture in Iowa this week, but will return, however, in time to fill his pulpit next Sabbath.

Now the time, according to law, has come for the shooting of quail, and our sportsmen are surveying the fields and medows for this kind of game.

A gentleman from Waterloo has leased the Cool building, south of the Auburn House, and will conduct a meat Market therein.

There is a bad place in the sidewalk on the corner of Seventh and Railroad streets which should be attended to before some one breaks their neck.

We hear of a beautiful blue eyed belle at Auburn, who is becoming the object of very bitter rivalry between a couple of the "fust" young men of this town.—Butler Record.

Fernando Palmer, Esq., has purchased the property formerly belonging to Mr. D. Walborn, near the stave factory. Now Fernando has the cage, next must come the bird.

Our popular druggist, F. E. Davenport, Esq., has re-painted the front of his business room which adds much to the appearance of the same.

Our city can now boast of a band. The juveniles have rigged up horns, flutes, drums, &c., and the air is filled with music every evening in the vicinity of the slaughter house.

Tom Cuppy is making the Eel River depot as cosy and comfortable as a parlor. We notice a new base burner in the office, which radiates a heat quite appreciable this cold weather.

Dr. Marshal's Lung Syrup speaks for itself. It seems everybody recommends it as the most reliable remedy for coughs colds and pulmonary complaints. Price 25c per bottle. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

THANKSGIVING DINNER.—The members and friends of the M. E. church intend to give a thanksgiving dinner and supper, on thanksgiving day, Nov. 29th. Further notice hereafter.

It is positively asserted that human hair grows on the head of a person after the person is dead. This is sweet encouragement to baldheaded men—consolation beyond the grave.

Having used Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup in my practice for some time, I am prepared to say that it is a superior remedy for all cases of coughs, colds and diseases of the lungs and chest.
Dr. F. WALTMAN, Springfield, Mich.

In court last week Judge Lowery thought that a man must be insane who couldn't change a mower to thrashing machine. It is wonderful what remarkable agricultural lore these lawyers are endowed with.—New Era.

One of the most remedial agents, either of ancient or mondern times, is Lawson's Curative. It removes pain from rheumatism, neuralgia, headache lame back or side. It heals cuts, bruises and reduces inflammation of all kinds. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

In the case of the State of Indiana vs. J. W. Bixler, for the shooting of Pike at Kendallville some months since, the prosecutor entered a nolle prose-qui, and the defendant was released from bail and the case dismissed. —Albion New Era.

PILES.

The very worst cases of Piles will be absolutely cured without using the knife, scissors or ligature in from 4 to 10 days by Dr. A. A. Corkins, of San Francisco, Cal., who will be at Central House Tuesday, Nov. 18th. The treatment causes no pain nor inconvenience The cure is perfect and permanent. No money required until the cure is performed. The doctor will remain three days but desires those who expect to take treatment to call promptly on Tuesday.

We were not able to record the death of Senator Morton last week, owing to the fact that our paper was on the press before we received the sad intelligence. But to those who are yet ignorant of the fact it will still be news to them. We sympathize with our republican friends in losing their best statesman and also with the family. During the forenoon of Wednesday, he rested well and hope began to revive in the minds of his friends, but at 8, p. m. he began to sink; at 2:30 on Thursday morning he was reported dying, and at 5:30, the sad intelligence was flashed over the wires, "Senator Morton is dead."

"Don't We Swim."

We reproduce the following from the pen of an Angolian, which appeared in the Press last week. It would have appeared to better advantage a few weeks earlier, but then it 'taint bad anyhow.

Who came to Angola in the fall,
With nine strong men to play base ball?
The Strikers.

Who pushed their way all through the crowd,
And says to all in accents loud,
Who wants to drop their little pod?
Bill Britton.

Who went to all with such bad grace,
And shook his money in their face,
And says I'll bet you just one case?
Bill Britton.

Who when all were [illegible] upon the field,
Tried on the Umpire influence to wield,
Found twas no use and quickly squealed?
Bill Britton.

Who, when the game of ball was done,
And all the boys were full of fun,
To the telegraph office quickly run?
Bill Britton.

Who thinks the game will never do,
And wants us to meet them at Waterloo;
Says they can beat us and our umpire too?
Mr. Osgood.

Who thinks they can't and have the rocks
Packed away in their little box,
Who can beat them out of their socks,?
Angola.

Where shall we play the deciding game,
Angola, Jackson or Ft. Wayne?
If they have the money, all the same.
Angola.

LaOtto Items.

'Squire Gorrell and wife are visiting friends in Ohio.

C. W. Weller has pitched his tent in our midst for the present.

Singing class meets at the Lutheran church next Saturday evening.

The musical convention closed last Saturday evening with a concert.

School commences here November 12th, with Miss M. Beard as teacher.

"Boss" Wyatt, formerly of Lisben, this county, has made LaOtto his abode

Josh Simon, of North Manchester, is assisting H. C. Kinzie in his railroad business at this place.

A. Zern has been making some improvements on his property by putting up a new fence, which materially helps the looks of things.

John Miller is putting down a new sidewalk. Let all the owners of property follow his example in this matter and we will soon have good accommodations for foot passing.

We were requested to state that if the party who sent that anonymous letter to Miss J. G., will kindly make themselves known they will hear something to their benefit.

Dr. Yarnell, principal of the Mineral Springs Health Institute, of Rome City, Ind., can be consulted at the Central House, Auburn, on Tuesday, Nov. 13th. Special attention given to the treatment of Catarrh, Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Heart, and other chronic and surgical diseases and physical deformities. The doctor will guarantee cures in all curable cases, and make no charge until the cure is complete. Remember the day and date and call promptly.

Teachers' Institute at Butler next week.

SOMETHING NEW.—Henry Leonard, of Basil, Ohio, known in the Reform church as the old Fisherman Financial Agent for Heidelberg college, located at Tiffin, Ohio, will deliver his Allegorical Temperance Lecture in the Methodist church, in this place, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 13th, to begin quarter before eight o'clock. This lecture will be Bunyon style, having a large chart or map containing 34 square feet.

Another King David.

David of old killed Goliath,—killed him with a stone. David was in the sling business, if we read the story correct, and Goliath was hunting for somebody to whip. He ran across David and he (David), being of an accommodating nature, concluded to teach the fellow a lesson. The sling business has got many a good man down, and David tried it with effect on Goliath. Goliath was carrying on entirely too high for the finances of that day and accordingly had to drop. We have a David in our midst, who a few months ago, discovered that prices were entirely too high on boots and shoes, and he too, went into the sling business, and the way he slung high prices out was a caution to the people. He bought the best of goods for cash and offers them to the people at the very lowest figures. If you want to see him call at the Boot Upside Down, and ask for the crazy man. He can beat a dead man selling boots and shoes, and nobody can compete with him on low prices. One glance at his stock will convince you that he has the largest stock in the country.

Corunna Items.

No services at the M. E. church last Sabbath.

A new harness shop has been added to the business of the place.

Mr. Fried is building an addition to his store building, at the rear end.

The brass band is still organized. They are ahead of Auburn in this enterprize if nothing more.

Lafe Miller has "got a rest now," the wheat trade being a little slack. The porkers comes next, Lafe.

A new sign has been erected on R. R. street which reads, "Boot Shop Shoe." That's too much to ask of any shop.

Williamson has painted the front of his saloon. Just go in a few steps and you get "forty rod" from the paint.

A sister-in-law of Mr W. D. Adams has been paying him a visit for several weeks. She returned home this week.

Helmer & Knour have erected a large corn-house, and will probably buy heavily of this grain the coming winter.

One would hardly recognize the old Loveland property as it now is. It has been generally overhauled, re-painted, etc.

If the citizens would have a little style about them and put down sidewalks the village would appear better to strangers.

Mrs. Ed. Orr will leave this week for a visit to Pioneer, Ohio, where she will remain a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. T. B. Hall.

The Lipsett butter and egg wagons only make one trip every other week now owing to the bad roads. They will commence buying poultry soon.

Dr. Mercer does a larger business than any druggist in the county. To lean over the railing of that bridge and watch the invalids pass in and out his establishment, is a surprising sight to a stranger. For brevity we call it Docks asylum.

We have heretofore neglected to mention the Corunna hotel, under the management of Mr. Imus. The house is in good condition and the gentlemanly landlord does all in his power to make it pleasant for his guests. Shoemakers and tea peddlers get the g. b. on first sight.

An old lady who has been making her home with Mr. Gishler, leaves for Ohio this week. She is subject to light spasms and has undergone the suffering of as high as ten in one day. We learn however, that they have reduced to two a day and the most favorable prospects are that she will yet, in her old days, entirely recover from them.

We attended the United Brethren church last Sabbath forenoon and listened to a very creditable sermon from the present pastor Like so many others, his sermon was as long as the moral law and outside of this it was well delivered and listened to very attentively by a large audience. Services again in two weeks from last Sabbath

The religious and temperance people of the village are agitating the question of placing organs in their churches. Some of the "old mossbacks" don't want an organ. They throw themselves back in the "amen corner" and sing, "We're Going to Die No More," and don't care whether the rest of the congregation goes with them or has an organ either. Why, gentlemen, you can see organs in every cross-road church in the country, and Corunna should, by all means, have one in each of her places of worship. A friend of ours informs us they'll 'ave one or bust.

The public school building, which has been erected about four years, is in a dangerous condition. The outside brick walls are cracked in several different places and the plastering on the first story is falling down in pieces of several feet in diameter. We visited the building on Sunday and find upon close examination that it will be necessary to place iron rods from one side to the other of the structure and draw the walls to their original position. It may be also necessary to brace the building in the centre of the lower floor. Many of the citizens will not send their children to school unless it is made more safe than at present.

PRECOCIOUS —Teacher—"Charlie, you may spell equalibrium."

Charlie—"E q u a l, equal, l i v e r y livery, e m em, equaliveryem; and it means when you let a livery horse walk off the road so that the wheels of the buggy are not equal, the buggy sometimes, most always, looses its equaliveryem and spills you out."

Teacher—"Right, Charley. Take a penny and buy some juju paste at the corner grocery," and a tow-head disappeared in a twinkling from the door.

"THEY ALL DO IT!"
SAVE MONEY.
BUY YOUR
CLOTHONG AND UNDERWEAR
OF
SAM, PETE & MAX.
FORT WAYNE.

HEART AND HARP.

Gems of Poetry from the November Magazines.

CONTENTMENT.

All the winter I laugh and sing
For joy that the spring is near.
I make the spring with my singing ring,
Rejoicing that she is here.
—Harper.

ON THE CLIFF.

"See the far mountains, all a waving line, Fading and melting into misty gray."
I answer with a wide, unseeing gaze,
"Yes, miles and miles away."

"And the great river, dwindled to a thread,
With farms dwarfed to a hand's-breadth side by side."
I know the distant ocean through it sends
The full throb of the tide.

"Listen! the low-voiced wind with tender touch Whispers and sways the bright leaves in the air."
Ah! to my denied and famished sense
Silence is everywhere!

O vanished sparkle from the cup of life,
Filled to the brim with beauty so divine!
Without thee, spirit, sweetness, light are lost,
And flavorless the wine.
—Mary L. Ritter, in Scribner.

"SEE HOW I HELP!"

"See how I help!" said a little mouse
To the reapers that reaped the grain,
As he nibbled away, by the door of his house,
With all his might and main.

"See how I help!" he went on with his talk;
But they laid all the wide field low
Before he had finished asingle stalk
Of the golden, glittering row.

As the mouse ran into his hole, he said:
"Indeed, I cannot deny,
Although an idea I had in my head,
Those fellows work better than I."
—"Jack-in-the-Pulpit," St. Nicholas.

INDIAN SUMMER.

Lulled to a drowsy fire, one vaguely sees
The sun in heaven, where this broad, smoky round
Lies ever brooding at the horizon's bound;
And through the gaunt knolls on monotonous leas,
Or through damp desolate woodlands' naked trees,
Rustling the brittle ruin along the ground,
Like sighs from spirits of perished hours, resound
The melancholy melodies of the breeze!

So ghostly and strange a look the blurred world wears,
Viewed from this flowerless garden's dreary squares,
That now, while these weird, vaporous days exist,
It would not seem a marvel if where we walk
We met, dim-glimmering on its thorny stalk,
Some pale, intangible rose, with leaves of mist!
—Edgar Fawcett, in Atlantic.

SLEEP AFTER DEATH.

If I were dead, and if the dead might crave
Some little grace to cheer their outcast state,
This I would ask: deep slumber long and late
And sure possession of my lonely grave!
Not to be haunted by the things that were,
And once were dear, nor even by a dream
To be disturbed, however glad and fair—
For perfect rest is dreamless. Lying there,
Deep hidden, safe from life's wild rush and stir,
Not knowing that I slept—this bliss would seem
More dear to me than heaven's own paradise!
So dear I would not care again to rise;
For eyes that wake must still have tears to weep;
And so "God giveth His beloved sleep!"
—Mary Ainge De Vere, in Galaxy.

"CALL ME NOT DEAD."

Call me not dead when I, indeed, have gone
Into the company of the ever living
High and most glorious poets! Let thanksgiving
Rather be made. Say—"He at last hath won
Rest and release, converse supreme and wise,
Music and song and light of immortal faces;
To-day, perhaps, wandering in starry places,
He hath met Keats, and known him by his eyes.
To-morrow (who can say?) Shakspeare may pass—
And our lost friend just catch one syllable
Of that three-centuried wit that kept so well—
Or Milton—or Dante, looking on the grass,
Thinking of Beatrice, and listening still
To chanted hymns that sound from the heavenly hill."
—Richard Watson Gilder, in Scribner.

THE DREAM OF ST. THERESA.

Have you heard of the dream that she had—
Theresa the saintly?
Come, listen, ye good and ye bad!
And heed it not faintly.

A weird, awful woman she saw,
And wondered what brought her;
In one hand she bore flaming straw,
In the other hand water.

"Where bound?" asked Theresa. "Oh tell!"
This answer was given:
"Theresa, I go to quench hell,
And then to burn heaven."

"But why," asked the saint, "do you make
So wild an endeavor?"
"So that men, for His own holy sake,
May love God for ever."
—Epes Sargent, in Lippincott.

THE ROSE'S SECRET.

A LESSON IN THE DARWIN THEORY.*

Every flower you wear has a secret as sweet
As a maiden may hear under roses of dusk,
Which it hides by the day from the gossiping heat,
To whisper at night in its petals of musk.
If, betrayed to delight by the blush on your cheek,
It utters its secret, but think I am near,
And the musk of the rose in the silence will speak
A secret as sweet as a maiden may hear.

But the blush that you give to the rose in return,
Is a flower as sweet in the dusk of the eyes,
When it fills with the meaning it blushes to learn,
And hides it sweet secret half shut in the leaves;
Nor either are ever as sweet to the sight,
As when they discover how dear is the power
That shows by the bloom in a rose of delight
That love is the secret which hides in the flower!

*Under Mr. Darwin's theory, the flowering of the plant is its method of courting.
—Will Wallace Harney, in Appleton.

THE BEST GIFT.

Around the cradle that thy childhood bare
Came God's own angels with their pitying eyes,
And gazed upon thee in a still surprise
To see beyond heaven's portal aught so fair.
They brought thee precious gifts. One gave to thee
The gift of beauty for thy body's grace,
Deep-smiling eyes to light a dreamy face,
And perfect limbs as young Apollo's be.
One set the crown of genius on thy head,
And one bestowed a heart like woman's own,
Strong as the sea, and trembling at a breath.
Last, a veiled figure bent above the bed,
And said, "I give thee everything in one.
In Heaven I am named Love; men call me Death.

"So shalt thou never tread the weary ways
That lead men up the dusty slopes of life,
Nor feel the fierceness of the noonday strife,
Knowing alone the morning of thy days.
For thee the dew shall linger on the flower;
The light that never was on land or sea
Shall have no momentary gleam for thee,
But brighten into love's immortal hour.
Thy beauty's grace shall never know decay,
Nor sorrow lay her hand upon thy heart;
Neither shall chill mistrust thy spirit slay,
But like a star thy life shall pass away,
Its light still shining, though itself depart,
Until all stars are lost in one eternal day."
—Harper.

THE WITNESS.

There is a deep gulf of verdure which runs inland between two rocky promontories. The sea once flowed there, but long before the memory of man. It had finally barred itself out by throwing up, year after year, a sandy barrier across the entrance to the gulf. No doubt, even after the tide was stopped from flowing in, some strong eastern wind had driven the sea roaring over the bar and heaped higher the bulwarks of sand. One could read this as he stood upon the rocks and looked down upon the green spot, which, for its contrast to the gray rocks and unplanted deep, was named Paradise. From the sea itself its green, cool depths were very inviting.

The coast at this point was thinly inhabited. A few fishermen's houses were clustered near the shore just beyond the rocks that jutted out; but the men were away for weeks at a time, and the women were unceasingly busy over their indoor work. Only the children who played on the beach gave the place a happy, human look. As a group of them were gathered on the sand one morning they saw coming toward them a singular figure, moving along the shore in the direction of Paradise. They stopped their play, wondering whether it were man or beast, so confused was the outline. Little by little, as it moved slowly toward them, they discerned a man's form, bending beneath some burden. They retreated a few steps, and gathered upon the flat stone that stood before the doorway of one of the houses. The man made no motion to come toward the house, and seemed not to see the children. As he came opposite to where they stood they discovered that he bore upon his back a huge wooden cross. He kept on his way, staggering through the deep sand beneath his burden, until he was lost to sight behind the rocks which made one of the walls of Paradise.

"Let us tell Nancy," said one of the children. And they entered the house together.

Whatever happened in or about this little settlement was sure to come, sooner or later, to the ears of Nancy Dacre. Remote from town, the people had no church, minister, or priest; but they were not so very forsaken so long as they had with them this widow, Nancy Dacre. It used to be said that no secret was safe from her; but every secret was safe with her. There are some women who are born confessors, and she was one. It was impossible to withhold confidence from her. Silent herself, she was the repository of other people's talk; and all, whether children or grown people, went to her with news or with perplexities. It would be difficult to say in just what consisted the absolution she gave when faults were confessed as they often were; certainly not in any formal words. Still, a certain gift of peace belonged to her as surely as the gift of hearing confessions.

She was at work in the house when the children entered, and went with them to the door, although the man had already disappeared.

"He carried a great cross," said one.

"He wore ear-rings."

"He was very dark and very bent."

"That was the weight of the cross."

Some of the bolder were for following him, to see what he was about; but Nancy dissuaded them.

"If he did not speak to you, it was because he did not wish to be spoken to. Leave him alone. He may come back this way. You need not be afraid of him," she added, as the younger ones came closer to her.

He did come back at dusk. The children had scattered to their several homes, and Nancy sat alone on the door-stop, when she perceived a man coming toward her. From his appearance she did not doubt that it was the stranger whom the children had seen. She rose as he came to the door.

"Good-evening," she said.

He answered her in her own words; but given with a certain thickness of utterance which showed him to be a foreigner.

"May I give you some supper?" The man looked up at her quickly and nodded. She entered the house, while he took his seat on the flat stone; and presently she brought him a bowl of milk and some large ship-biscuit. He made a low bow to her as he took his supper and placed it before him on his knees. She looked at him narrowly, as he sat in silence eating and drinking. He was a thick-set, somewhat clumsy man, with a face bronzed deeply with exposure, and black, curly hair. His eyes, overhung by thick brows, did not look directly at her; but, while averted, every now and then stole a look at her. Something about the man, she could not say what, seemed familiar to her; and she studied his face closely, trying to recall it. Perhaps the earnestness of her look made him uneasy. He drained the bowl dry, placed it on the stone beside him, and then stood silent, with his hands moving restlessly by his side.

"I have seen you before," she said, finally. Her voice was kind; but he stepped hastily aside, and looked at her furtively.

"I don't remember," he said, slowly, and turned his face away. "Not to-night," he muttered; "not to-night." But then, as he was about to leave, he stopped and said: "Many thanks."

"But where will you sleep to-night? You may stay in my shed."

"I will sleep over there," and he pointed toward the rocks.

"In Paradise? There is no house there." The man gave a groan.

"Is that Paradise where the grass grows green?"

"So we call it."

He turned and walked hastily away. The woman followed him with her eyes until she could no longer descry him, as he was lost in the shadow of the rocks. His face perplexed her; but she could not remember where she had ever seen it. Several days passed, and once or twice the man had been seen clambering about the rocks and apparently gathering berries. Once he had been seen fishing, and a smoke curled up occasionally from the rocks. His presence there served to keep the children away; while yet it tempted them to go nearer and see what he was doing. One, more daring than the others, crept round by another way, and brought back word that the cross which he had been seen to carry was raised above the beach in front of the opening to Paradise, but the man was not to be seen.

All this and the stories which one and another told of other men who had acted strangely began to affect the little community; and, at length, on Sunday afternoon, Nancy Dacre, unwilling that the uneasiness should continue, left her home and walked along the beach toward Paradise. Some of the children began to follow her.

"Come back! come back!" their mothers cried. "Nancy will go. No one will harm her. But you must wait till she has been."

Nancy herself was not unwilling to go alone. The cool breeze blew freshly beneath the warm July sun, and the long, swooping dip of the sea-gulls gave her a sense of freedom and life. The rare times when she left work and people behind her brought a quickened sense of life. She stepped quickly forward, and each step seemed to make her more buoyant. Victory is fabled to be winged, and this woman's life had not been without its overcoming.

She passed round the rocky ledge and came out in view of Paradise, with the gray rocks which formed its northern boundary. Midway she saw the cross standing. It could not fail at once to take her eye, and at its foot the man was kneeling, his head nearly leaning upon it, while his hands seemed busy. He did not at once perceive her, and she stood not far off on the sand watching him. She saw that he had a knife in his hand, and was cutting into the wood. Presently he laid his knife aside; and, going a little way off, fell upon his breast, and, propping his chin between his hands, looked fixedly upon the cross. The woman for a moment was disturbed. She had seemed to enter this man's closet and to break in upon some secret devotions. Yet to go would be to disturb him more. She remained motionless, her eyes fixed upon him. Then she saw his face drop into his hands, and she could no longer hesitate. She went toward him. He heard the sound of her dress, and rose hastily. His face showed signs of great emotion, but the sight of Nancy wrought a change in it. He came to her and looked in her face.

"Are you the woman that gave me my supper at the house yonder, and asked me to stay?"

"Yes, I am."

"And you are not afraid of me?"

"No; I should not have come here if I had been. I came to see you. I did not know but I might help you."

"You are a good woman. I am a bad man."

"You cannot be wholly bad. You have raised this cross here."

"Do you think so? Do you say so?" he cried, eagerly. "Oh! look at me, tell me that again." Nancy looked steadily at him, trying again to recall his features.

"No," she said, deliberately. "You are not wholly bad, and you have suffered much for what you have done."

"I have suffered hell for ten years. You are a good woman. I have told nobody. Yes, I have at last told the world. Let me tell you here." He seized her hand and drew her near the cross. "Do you see this cross? Do you see of how many pieces of wood it is built? I have been ten years building it. Yes, ten years—it was ten years ago. See, that piece is from Malaga. I was born in Malaga, and I went back there first; but I could not stay there. And that is from Brazil. And that is from Alexandria. I bought it of a Greek. He said it was a bit of the true cross; but he lied. I gave him all I had for it, and I put it in the middle—see there; but it never drove it out of my heart. And there's not a country where I've not been and brought away a bit of the wood. It's all the work of my own hands; and I thought when I'd finished the cross it would go away. And I worked patiently, though the men mocked me. And it's not gone away. Then I thought if I planted it right here, that would be the end; but it wasn't. And now I have cut my name and what I did on it, that all the world may see; and, O, God! it's on me yet. Where shall I go? Shall I lay myself down there, side of him and the boy? Ye're tired. Sit ye down and I'll tell it all to you. No? Ye'll not sit down? Ye'll stand by the cross? It's all cut on it. Ye can read it. That's the story. 'Requiescat in pace! I, Daniel Mora, seaman, did, in a passion, kill the skipper of the schooner Nancy and his boy, and scuttle the Nancy about two leagues to the eastward of this cross, which I set up, and may God have mercy on my soul.' Ye'll say now I'm not a bad man? Ye'll not be afraid of me now? O, blessed mother! take it away! Take it away! Yes, it was off there, where you're looking. Oh! but it was terrible. Why don't ye speak? Do ye see anything? Oh! do ye see it? I bound them in the cabin after I—after they were—I didn't take any money. It was not for that. There was nothing but ballast in the lading. My God! the Judgment day!"

Out of the blue water, under the sunset sky, slowly there was rising, as they looked, the masts and then the hull of a spectral schooner, half careened over, water-logged, slimy. No sound was heard; but the silent witness to Daniel Mora's words lay before them, moving sluggishly on the water. To-day the incessant rolling of ten years had released the last weight that held it down.

Mora's eyes started from beneath their shaggy brows, as he grasped the cross and then clutched at his companion's dress. He did not see her. He only saw the witness, on which his eyes fixed with a look of despair.

"Dacre! John Dacre!" he cried, stretching out his hands imploringly to the hulk.

"Aye! aye!" said a voice at his side, and he turned suddenly. The woman stood before him, her hands clasped tightly before her.

"He was my husband. That boy was my child." The man fell at her feet.

"Rise, Daniel Mora. I am not thy judge. I am a sinner, like you." But she herself bowed low upon the ground. Her forehead touched the cross, which carried the tale of her grief and this man's crime. Daniel Mora crept thither also, until at length he felt two cold hands laid on his head.

"God be merciful to us sinners!" she said. And he repeated the prayer after her.

Senator Morton.

Judge Tyner, of Indiana, predicts that Senator Morton will be in Washington for the regular session of Congress. He bases his belief on the fact that Senator Morton's father was paralyzed for twenty years before he died, during eight years of which time he was unable to feed himself. He also says the Senator's sister, who went from here to her home in Keokuk, Iowa, last summer, has been a helpless paralytic for fifteen years. He thinks the Senator's great tenacity of life and will-power, and a naturally strong physique, will tide him over the present attack.—Chicago Journal.

Pear Blight.

According to a letter-writer in the New York Observer, the true reason for the blight of pear trees has at last been discovered. By taking off the branch, beyond the dead part, the cause will appear. By carefully opening the stem, it will be found hollow, a mere shell of bark, in which will be ensconsed a long flesh-colored worm. The remedy is at hand—break off all blighted branches and kill the worm.

THE BANNER OF THE PROPHET.

Will It be Unfurled in the Contest Now Raging in Europe?

Within the Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople lies a flag which, if unfurled, would startle all Christendom, and compel it to band together in a common struggle against Islamism. Imperfect, and sometimes fanciful, accounts have been given of the flag, and many bad translations of the inscriptions on it. From the best source we gather some facts which are, at this time, very interesting. This emblem of the power and sacred office of Mohammed is described to be of "green silk, with large crescent on top of the staff, from which is suspended a long plume of horse-hair (supposed to be the tail of the Prophet's favorite Arab steed), while the folds of the flag exhibit the crescent and quotations from the Koran." The accurate quotations are as follows: "All who draw it [the sword] will be rewarded with temporal advantages; every drop of their blood, every peril and hardship endured by them, will be registered on high as more meritorious than either fasting or praying. If they fall in battle their sins will be at once blotted out, and they will be transported to paradise, there to revel in eternal pleasures in the arms of black-eyed houris. But for the first heaven are reserved those of the faithful who die within sight of the green flag of the prophet." Then follow the terrible and all-significant words, the fearful war-cry against God and man: "Then may no man give or expect mercy!" This is supplemented by the motto: "The gates of paradise are under the shade of the swords." The origin of the color is traditionally stated to be that the prophet one day looking out upon verdant fields said that "Nature is green, and green shall be my emblem, for it is everlasting and universal." He prophesied that when Islam should number a hundred millions the flag should stop the invasion of the Northern races, and his followers now amount to one hundred and twenty millions. The Koran declares that when it is unfurled the "earth will shake, the mountains melt into dust, the seas blaze up in fire and the children's hair grow white with anguish." This is Oriental fustian, yet believed by teeming millions to represent great and triumphant truths. Islam must be in positive danger before the Sultan requires the Sheik-ul-Islam, or Mohammedan Pope, to bring the flag from its resting place and unfurl it before all Mohammedans. During the time that Catherine of Russia sought the ownership of Constantinople, the flag was brought to the light; but she failed, and it was not flaunted in the face of Christendom. If it should fly the Sultan is supposed to be its bearer, and for that reason it would be formally committed to his hands with all the ceremonious zeal of religious fanaticism. Throughout the Ottoman empire proper, embracing Turkey in Europe, Asia Minor, and Syria, and throughout Persia, the the countries on the Euphrates and Tigris, Hindoostan, Egypt, the Barbary States, and as far as Zanzibar, every Mohammedan would be called upon to rally to its support under pain of the anathema of the Prophet, and of expulsion from paradise. The frightful carnage which would result from such a combination of fanatics would be horrible.

Wonderful Slate-Writing.

The sitting was at a private house in Richmond on the 21st of last month. Two ladies and three gentlemen were present, besides myself and the medium, Dr. Monck. A shaded candle was in the room, giving light sufficient to see every object on the table round which we sat. Four small and common slates were on the table. Of these I chose two, and, after carefully cleaning and placing a small fragment of pencil between them, I tied them together with a strong cord, passed around them both lengthwise and crosswise, so as effectually to prevent the slates from moving on each other. I then laid them flat on the table, without losing sight of them for an instant. Dr. Monck placed the fingers of both hands on them, while I and a lady sitting opposite me placed our hands on the corners of the slates. From this position our hands was never moved till I untied them to ascertain the result. After waiting a minute or two, Dr. Monck asked me to name any short word I wished to be written on the slate. I named the word "God." He then asked me to say how I wished it written. I replied "lengthways of the slate;" then if I wished it written with a large or small "g," and I told him with a capital "G." In a very short time writing was heard on the slate. The medium's hands were convulsively withdrawn, and I then myself untied the cord (which was a strong silk watch-guard, lent by one of the visitors), and, on opening the slates, found on the lower one the word I had asked for, written in the manner I had requested, the writing being somewhat faint and labored, but perfectly legible. The slate with the writing on it is now in my possession. The essential features of this experiment are: That I myself cleaned and tied up the slates, that I kept my hand on them all the time, that they never went out of my sight for a moment, and that I named the word to be written and the manner of writing it after they were thus secured and held by me. I ask, how are these facts to be explained, and what interpretation is to be placed upon them?

ALFRED R. WALLACE.

I was present on this occasion, and certify that Mr. Wallace's account of what happened is correct.

EDWARD J. BENNETT.

—London Spectator.

Deadwood Festivities.

The long, weary journey from Sidney had come to an end; our hero who had persuaded a "bull team" in advance of a freight wagon to visit the land of gold had arrived, soiled and weather-beaten, in the metropolitan city of Deadwood. The weary march was forgotten and the joy was unconfined. A fervent admirer of the fair sex, he sought the dance-house, where "take your partner" is the only introduction needed. When the exciting moment of "gents to the right" was announced, his colossal cowhides smote the floor like the stamps of a quartz-mill. When the welcome sound of "balance to the right" rang through the crowded hall our pilgrim uttered one long hoop-ee, and shouldering his fair partner absorbed a tumblerful of burning fluid. "Partners for a quadrille," Our hero sprung upon the floor and extemporised a breakdown. "Dog-on my mall, I am the tiger of the woods. Come here, gal; let's have some more tanantler juice." "All set," shouted the floor-manager. "Scrape them cat's innards and let's codfish around." In the mazes of "all hands round," the heavy-weight unfortunately collided with our pilgrim; and explanations were of no avail. "I am bad," shouted our hero; "let me at him; let me chaw his mane; I'm a coyote. Let go my harness; I'm a yellow-tailed wolf; let me pick his eyes out, I'm a woolly-horse, hard to curry; hoop-ee; I'm an elephant, I'm—" Just then he trod on a favored corn of a bunko herder, who pasted our hero one between the eyes, which seated him violently upon the floor. As he rose, blowing the ruby fluid from his nasal promontory, he reiterated, "I'm an elephant, but my hide's tore!"—Black Hills Pioneer.

Gen. Pope Roughly Handled on a Race Track.

Gen. Pope, the Post Commander at Fort Leavenworth, was assaulted at the Leavenworth races last Saturday. He found the brawny fists of a Kansas City Irishman worse to encounter than the serried ranks of the Army of Northern Virginia. It happened this way: Gen. Pope had consented to be a judge of a race with two other persons at the Leavenworth fair. There was some little dispute between Ed. Corrigan, the owner of Dictator, and the driver of Dakota Maid. The driver of the Maid ran Dictator into the ditch at the start; but, as Corrigan had overheard a conversation before starting, in which it was stated that Dictator should be declared out on account of foul driving, he kept cool and waited his time. He got his horse out of the ditch and started far behind, and allowed Dictator to crowd up slowly until he reached the last quarter, when he let him out and won the race by at least sixty feet. Corrigan then went to the judges' stand and met the driver of Dakota Maid coming down. He said:

"I understand you have been making a complaint against me."

"I have not, Mr. Corrigan."

"Upon your honor?"

"Upon honor I have not."

Corrigan went to the judges' stand and asked Gen. Pope if a complaint had been made. The General said no. Corrigan had hardly got done asking the question when another judge, H. D. Rush, announced the race for Dakota Maid. Corrigan protested, and the judges ordered him off. Corrigan said the race was a put-up job, a regular swindle; that Dictator had won the race. He was then assaulted by the entire posse, including the reporter of the Leavenworth Times, from whose chin Corrigan yanked out a handful of auburn whiskers. He knocked Rush heels over head, and gave Gen. Pope such a trouncing as he will never forget. The indignant Kansas City Irishman would have no doubt cleaned out the entire Leavenworth outfit had it not been thought prudent to change the decision of the judges.—Kansas City Times.

London Newspapers.

The London Telegraph prints about 265,000 copies daily, while the Times prints less than one-quarter as many, or 60,000. In comparing this difference, it must be understood that the former sells for one penny—nearly two cents—and the latter for three pence—or nearly six cents. In this instance the number of copies printed is no test as to the number of readers. Despite the difference of the number of copies printed, the Times is read by more people than the Telegraph.

The masses do not buy the Times outright, on account of its expense. Nearly all newsdealers in the Kingdom rent the Times about their respective neighborhoods to be read at the rate of two cents an hour. A dealer will take, say, ten copies, each of which will be rented to from six to ten people each day. Many of the London newsdealers after renting their Times till evening, then ship them to smaller country newsdealers, who dispose of them at a reduced price. In this way a single copy of the Times will be read and paid for by ten or fifteen people each day; and, estimating readers upon this basis, it will be concluded that the Times really has the larger actual circulation.—London Cor. Chicago Times.

—Outside of the Times and Daily Telegraph, probably the wealthiest newspaper proprietor in London is Mr. Cox, sergeant-at-law. He owns the Law Times, the Queen, and the Field. The Queen is a ladies' paper of a very superior kind, of the size of Harper's Weekly. Its chief articles are on social subjects, well written, and the illustrations and general make-up of the paper leave nothing to be desired. Each number has about twelve closely-printed pages of advertisements. The Field started as a competitor with Bell's Life, which it has sent a long way down hill. It is now, with the exception of the Times, the greatest real-estate advertiser in the United Kingdom, besides having the greatest share of all in sporting advertisements. It is the same size as the Queen, and often has twenty closely-printed pages of advertisements. These papers are all issued weekly, and must produce an immense income. Their prices are sixpence—12½ cents each.—New York Sun.

The Shipping Interests.

The following table shows the present seagoing sail and steamer tonnage of the various nations according to the carefully-prepared statement of the Bureau Veritas, a world organization for the classification of vessels (gross tonnage):

	SAIL.		STEAMERS.
	No.	Tonnage.	No.	Tonnage.
British	20,265	5,807,365	3,209	3,302,992
American	7,288	2,390,821	602	789,728
Norwegian	4,749	1,410,909	122	66,874
Italian	4,601	1,292,076	114	97,582
German	3,486	875,046	226	226,888
French	3,836	725,048	314	334,384
Spanish	2,916	547,320	240	176,250
Greek	2,091	426,905	11	7,183
Dutch	1,437	299,093	126	134,660
Swedish	2,121	399,126	219	66,670
Russian	1,785	391,933	151	106,969
Austrian	959	338,684	79	81,269
Danish	1,048	180,953	87	60,607
Portuguese	456	106,016	26	22,277
So. American	273	96,489	81	69,620
C'l American	183	67,944	6	3,732
Turkish	305	48,260	30	26,364
Belgian	84	38,344	36	40,700
Asiatic	42	16,019	11	19,877
African	5	454	..	......
Total	59,208	15,383,886	5,771	5,886,842

IT used to be thought that the glory of a woman is her hair, but we'll be switched if it is now.

THE LEGEND OF [illegible]

BY BRET HARTE.

They say—though I know not what value to place
On the strength of mere local report—
That this was her home—though the tax-list give space,
I observe, to no fact of the sort.

But here she would sit; on that wheel spin her flax—
I here may remark that her hair
Was compared to that staple—yet as to the facts
There is no witness willing to swear.

Yet here she would sit, by that window reserved
For her vines—like a "bower of bloom,"
You'll remark I am quoting—the fact I'm observe
Is that plants attract flies to the room.

The house and the window, the wheel and the flax
Are still in their status preserved—
And yet, what conclusion to draw from these facts
[illegible]

Her parents—her beauty, her lover was poor;
In brief it appears their sole plea
For turning Fitz-William away from the door
Was that he was still poorer than she.

Yet why worldly wisdom was so cruel then
And perfectly proper to-day
I am quite at a loss to conceive—but my pen
Is digressing. They drove him away.

Yon bracket supported the light she would trim
Each night to attract by its gleam,
Moth-like, her Fitz-William, who fondly would swim
To her side—seven miles and up stream.

I know not how great was the length of his limb
Or how strong was her love-taper's glow;
But it seemed an uncommon long distance to swim
And the light of a candle to show.

When her parents would send her quite early to
She would place on yon bench with great care
A sandwich, instead of the crumbs that she fed
To her other wild pets that came there.

One night—though the date is not given, in view
Of the fact that no inquest was found—
A corpse was discovered—Fitz-William's?—a few
Have alleged—drifting out on the sound.

At the news she fell speechless, and, day after day
She sank without protest or moan;
Till at last, like a foam-flake, she melted away—
So 'tis said, for her grave is unknown.

Twenty years from that day to the village again,
Came a mariner portly and gray,
Who was married at Hempstead—the record is plain
Of the Justice—on that fatal day.

He hired the house, and regretted the fate
Of the parties whose legend I've told.
He made some repairs—for 'tis proper to state
That the house was exceedingly old.

His name was McCorkle—now, while there is naught
To suggest of Fitz-William in that,
You'll remember, if living, our Fitz-William ought
To have grown somewhat grayer and fat.

But this is conjecture. The fact still remains
Of the vines and the flax as before.
And knowing your weakness I've taken some pains
To present them, my love, nothing more.
—Scribner's Monthly for November.

PITH AND POINT.

A POST-MORTEM—Opening a dead letter.

JOINING the Shakers—Getting the ague.

EVERY dog has its day, but every cat its nights.

THE lion is the king of beasts, but the cow is the bos.

JONES finds drinking like a fish makes his head swim.

IN Iowa a good dancer is said to "throw a hefty sock."

AGE makes us tolerant: I never see a fault which I did not commit.

AMERICAN paragraphists will now be calling the Czar Old Stick-in-the-Mud.

YOU can detect a counterfeit coin by putting it in water. If it swims it's bad.

THE less a man knows the higher he tries to climb on other people's ladders.

A FATHER of a 2-weeks-old baby calls it: "Ma's newly-discovered satellite."

WHICH is the oddest fellow, the one who asks a question, or the one who answers? The one who asks, because he is the querist.

WHAT metamorphosis does a laundress undergo during the night? She goes to bed a washerwoman, and in the morning gets up fine linen.

WHY is paper money more valuable than gold? When you put it in your pocket you double it, and when you take it out find it still in creases.

THE life-insurance agent and lightning-rod man have struck hands in a partnership, and are now going about the country inveigling the farmers into having their cows insured against lightning.

"DOWN here, in the summer time, we take life easy," says a Texas paper; and then, as if to confirm the statement, there appears in the next column an account of "Three men killed at a camp-meeting."

A JUDGE, joking a young lawyer, said: "If you and I were turned into a horse and ass, which would you prefer to be?" The young lawyer replied: "The ass, by all means, for I've heard of an ass being a Judge; but a horse, never."

"YES, gentlemen, certainly, of course," said a Seventh-street clothier, "if you want a pair of pants step right into my pantry; if a vest, walk right up to my vestry; and if a coat—here, Jacob, show this gentleman into the coterie. This way, this way, gentlemen."—New York Express.

DOG-SELLER—"That 'ere hanimal's the real stock, mum, and dog-cheap at $30." Young widow—"It's a sweet, pretty darling, black and white; but, in my present state of bereavement, you must procure me one entirely black. This will do very well in about six months for half-mourning."

EVERYBODY thought it was a match, and so did he, and so did she; but one evening at a croquet party he hit her pet corn a whack with a mallet that sounded like a torpedo, and he—he laughed. "We meet as strangers," she wrote on her cuff, and showed it to him. "Think of me no more," he whispered, huskily.

A BOY came along to one of our neighbors' houses holding a very dirty dog, and asked the gentleman of the house: "Don't you want to buy a dog, Mister?" "What kind of a dog is it?" asked the gentleman. The boy looked puzzled. "Well," said he, "it is part terrier." "And what is the rest?" asked the gentleman. "The rest," answered the boy, "why, the rest is—is—just dog."

Excess of Females Over Males.

As near as we can ascertain there are in the States of Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina and Georgia 80,000 more females than males in a total native population of 3,000,000, and in New England a like overplus of 20,000 in a native white population of 2,500,000. These facts indicate that we shall, perhaps, by the time we write 1,900, have 2 per cent. surplus of females as an aggregate of the whole population (in 50,000,000, 1,000,000).—Cincinnati Commercial.

Agent, Insure Thyself.

An insurance agent whose buccinator muscles had been developed during a long and highly successful business career to a most astonishing degree of hardiness, and whose fertility of imagination was equaled only by his fluency of expression, while professionally engaged in the impenetrable forests of South America, fell in one day with a huge boa constrictor.

"Tell me, my saurian friend," asked he, "have you as yet effected an insurance upon your very valuable life?"

The boa constrictor merely wiggled its tail slightly and winked nervously with its left eye. The insurance agent, however, regarded these actions as implying a negation, and briskly continued: "The act of insuring one's life in an entirely reliable company—such as the Great [illegible] which I have the honor to represent—is a duty that every individual owes to his family or friends. You, my dear serpent, lead a life of constant danger, and, although the character of the risk will compel me to charge you somewhat more than the usual rates, think, think, my good sir, what a sense of acquiescent reliance in the decrees of Providence will accrue to you when you know that, come what will, your large and interesting wife and family always will be comfortably provided for. Pray permit me to consider the matter as settled and forthwith to make out an application in your name for a policy."

Having listened patiently to this long discourse, at its conclusion the boa constrictor turned its regards calmly upon the insurance agent, and in a gentle voice observed: "You, I presume, long since have effected an insurance upon your own life, and now feel the calm pleasures that you hold out to me."

"N-no," replied the insurance agent, somewhat disconcerted by the turn given to the conversation; "N-no, I regret to state that I have not. The fact is——"

"The fact is," said the boa constrictor, taking up his unfinished sentence, "that you have committed a capital error. My life, I trust, will be prolonged for yet a considerable period; but yours, I opine, is worth but a few moments' purchase."

Having said this, the boa constrictor crushed the insurance agent to a jelly, licked him all over, and swallowed him whole.

Moral.—A man does well to adjust his own affairs before meddling with the affairs of others.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Fire Insurance and Incendiarism.

The Chronicle, an insurance journal published in New York, states that during the past nine months over $79,000,000 worth of property has been destroyed by fire in the United States and Canada. In the United States the losses were $52,336,900, and in Canada $27,358,400. During the corresponding period last year the losses in the United States amounted to $47,466,200, while the losses in Canada were only $7,587,900. The increase of losses in Canada, it will be observed, was altogether out of proportion to the increase in this country, which is accounted for by the fact that the St. John fire occurred during the latter period. It is not easy to account for the great increase of losses during the present year upon the assumption that all fires have been accidental. It is highly probable that there has been a good deal of incendiarism. The increased pressure of the hard times has supplied additional motives to incendiarism to persons whose property has been liberally insured, and who are not overstocked with conscientiousness. The Chronicle says that latterly many insurance companies, in their business rivalry, have disregarded the moral character of their risks, "and taken risks which hitherto could not at any rate whatsoever have been placed upon their books." May it not be, too, that they have often insured property at its full value, or even for more than it was worth? The Chronicle does not say that such has been the case, but it is likely to have been the case at a time when the companies were making extraordinary efforts to acquire new business.—Chicago Times.

Tunneling the British Channel.

Operations connected with the submarine tunnel have already been commenced on the other side of the channel, several pits having been sunk to the depth of about 110 yards. At the same time the French and English committees have definitely drawn up the conditions of working for the route. The property of the tunnel is to be divided in half by the length—that is to say, each company will possess half of the line, reckoning the distance from coast to coast at low tide. Each company will cover the expense of its portion. The general work of excavation will be done on the one hand by the Great Northern of France, and on the other by the Chatam and Southeastern companies, the two latter having each a direct route from London to Dover. All the materials of the French and English lines will pass through the tunnel in order to prevent any unnecessary expenses and delay of transhipment, as in England and France, railway companies use each other's lines, and goods can pass from one line to another without changing vans. It is understood that an arrangement will be established for a similar exchange of lines between all the English and Continental railway companies when the tunnel is completed. The tunnel will belong to its founders. At the expiration of thirty years the two Governments will be able to take possession of the tunnel upon certain conditions.—London News.

Three Sisters Poison Themselves.

Fear of great disgrace led three sisters—Lydia, Carolina and Lina Fonda—residing at Gloversville, in New York, to seek death. They had been arrested on a charge of stealing articles belonging to a tenant who occupied part of their house, and they had given bail to appear for trial. A friend, upon entering the house, found the three women apparently dead; one lying insensible upon a bed, another upon a lounge and a third upon the floor. A physician was instantly summoned, who, upon coming, declared the women had taken poison. Antidotes were given them, which restored all to consciousness, but, in the opinion of the physician, one of the women cannot recover, and the other two have an even chance of living or dying.

Stoutland's Pigeon-Roost.

The most timid and harmless animals become formidable and even terrible when congregated in great numbers. They take no notice whatever of man, and in their congregated capacity become his foe. A herd of buffaloes on the plains is a terror in its march; a drove of rats in Northern Europe attacks all living things that come in its way, and even a flock of pigeons, if big enough, becomes a great nuisance if not a danger. A pigeon-roost is a big thing, and they have a big pigeon-roost on the Auglaize river, near Dodson's camp-ground, Camden county, Mo. It is an annual roost, and disturbs the quiet of the people of the [illegible] it difficult to edit and print his paper in a pigeon-roost. Millions of pigeons cover the trees, and sometimes break them down. There is a frightful confusion of noises in this pigeon pandemonium—the crashing of limbs, the roaring of multitudinous pigeons, and the cracking of shot-guns sweeping the birds down by hundreds and thousands all night long. Nobody can sleep in such an uproar any more than they could amid the thunders of a raging battle. Besides this, there is a darkening of the air by the birds in their flight, which makes continual cloudy weather. But the people of this pigeon-roost are making the best of the situation. The pigeon has become a leading article of commerce in the country. Last year over 100,000 pounds of pigeons were shipped from Stoutland, and the pigeon yield this year promises to be as good. But everything else stops in the pigeon-roosting season except the newspaper.—St. Louis Republican.

Feeding the World.

The shipments of grain to Europe, on Saturday, by steamers alone, approached half a million bushels, and sailing vessels during the week took much more. Contracts have been so heavy of late that several lines have sent for extra steamers. Thus far this season the shipments have exceeded those of last year nearly 40 per cent. The crop being by 25,000,000 bushels greater than in any previous year in the history of the country, the demands of Europe can be readily supplied. The increased facilities for sending fresh meat to Europe has caused the shipments of beef this year thus far to reach a value of $8,082,036, against only $1,755,101 for the same period last year, and of mutton $113,500, against none in 1876. The live sheep sent in 1877 are valued at $61,110; in 1876 at nothing. Live cattle this year at $2,060,950; in 1876 an insignificantly small quantity. The bulk of these have been sent from New York, although Boston, Portland and Philadelphia have made contributions. The total shipments of butter from Jan. 1 last to Sept. 29 consisted of 12,250,690 pounds, against only 5,919,073 last year, and of cheese 89,650,350 against 53,706,530.—Newark Advertiser.

To Cure Dyspepsia or Nervous Debility.

Change your diet and manner of living; drink neither tea nor coffee; never drink at meal-times; after every meal, or during the meal, dissolve half a teaspoonful or more of cayenne pepper in half a glassful of milk and drink it; eat plain food; never taste pastry of any kind. If you are troubled with sleepless nights, do not try to promote sleep by taking stimulants or opiates; they do more harm than good; take a sponge-bath just before retiring, and, if you are unable to do it yourself, get some one to rub you well with a coarse towel; if you wake in the night and cannot get to sleep again, get up at once, not lie until you "get nervous thinking about it;" take a foot-bath; rub your limbs well to get up circulation; drink a glass of cold water. Do not expect to cure yourself in one week's time; have patience, and try one month. In bathing use your hands to apply the water, it is much better than a sponge; soften the water with borax, it is more invigorating than salt water.—New York Tribune.

A New Historical Incident.

"What ho, there!" said Queen Elizabeth to the yeoman of the guard. "What ho, without." "There is no hoe there, your Majesty," observed Sir Walter Raleigh, bowing with exquisite courtly grace. "Beshrew thine insolence, saucy knave," responded the Virgin Queen, "and yet I do bethink me thou said'st truly. No hoe, indeed, but a sad rake, I fear me." And she graciously extended her royal hand to the knight, in token that she had not taken his jest amiss. This little circumstance is not mentioned in some of the histories.—Boston Traveller.

Practically Out of the World.

Some half-dozen Scotchmen passed through here this week on their way from McKenzie's river, which is 1,300 miles to the northwest from Duluth, and which runs into the Arctic ocean. They went to that barren country some ten years ago from the islands to the north of Scotland, by ship, direct to Hudson's bay, and until they got to Fisher's landing, on the St. Paul and Pacific railroad, on their return, they had never seen a railroad. They knew nothing about the Franco-Prussian war; in fact, they had been practically out of the world.—Duluth Minnesotian.

THE New York Sun claims that 90 per cent. of the meat slaughtered at the abattoirs of the city is unfit to be eaten, because the cattle have no chance to rest and recover flesh after their journey from the West.

I HAVE sold more dozens of Hatch's Universal Cough Syrup for the past year than I have ever sold of a similar medicine during the same length of time. I have on my shelves thirteen different cough remedies, comprising most of those considered staple in this section.

WESLEY RULISON,
Evans Mills, Jeff. Co., N. Y.

Sold by H. A. Hurlbut & Co., Chicago, Ill.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

PATENTEES and Inventors should read advertisement of Edson Bros. in another column.

WORCESTER'S Large Dictionary free. See adv. of The Independent, the great Religious Paper.

Forestalling Disease.

When we see that death is so often the penalty paid for a fatuous disregard of the symptoms of approaching disease, should we not be warned against the folly of neglecting defensive measures when called for in our own case? Assuredly we should, and upon the first manifestation of ill-health or decay of physical vigor seek the aid of medicine. The fortifying influence upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters entitle that medicine of many virtues to the highest consideration as a preventive, and it cannot be too strongly recommended as a means of arresting the progress of malarious fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, kidney and bladder troubles, gout, rheumatism, and other disorders which in their incipiency are far more easily overcome than in their maturity—Albeit the great alterative has repeatedly demonstrated its power to vanquish them in their worst phases.

The Latest Fashion for Ladies.

Our attention has recently been called to the Raritan Matelasse Cloakings, something entirely new in the way of heavy, thick, warm, woolen goods, specially adapted for ladies' wear during the cold weather now approaching. These goods are the handsomest and most stylish ever seen, and, so far as price is concerned, are a miracle of cheapness. They are intended for cloaks, sacques, dolmans, circulars and jackets, for both ladies and children, and are to be found at all the leading dry-goods stores in the country. Be particular to ask for the Raritan Cloakings, and take no others.

Wonder Upon Wonder.

Given away—A strange, mysterious and most extraordinary Book, entitled "THE BOOK OF WONDERS." Containing, with numerous curious pictorial illustrations, the mysteries of the Heavens and Earth, Natural and Supernatural, Oddities, Whimsical, Strange Curiosities, Witches and Witchcraft, Dreams, Superstitions, Absurdities, Fabulous, Enchantment, &c. In order that all may see this curious book, the publishers have resolved to give it away to all that desire to see it. Address by postal card, F. GLEASON & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

There is No Excuse for Poor Bread, biscuits or rolls if DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER is used. A trial will convince you that it is the best, healthiest and cheapest baking powder.

PREMATURE Loss of the Hair, which is so common nowadays, may be entirely prevented by the use of BURNETT'S COCOAINE. It has been used in thousands of cases where the hair was coming out in handfuls, and has never failed to arrest its decay and to promote a healthy and vigorous growth. It is at the same time unrivaled as a dressing for the hair. A single application will render it soft and glossy for several days.

THE editorial staff of the Christian Union (Horatio C. King, Publisher, 27 Park Place, New York), comprises Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and Rev. Lyman Abbott (Editors), C. L. Norton, John Habberton (author of "Helen's Babies," etc.), Rev. L. W. Bacon, Mrs. H. W. Beecher, and W. H. Coleman. Price $3. Four months, $1. A serial story by Mrs. H. B. Stowe will begin in November.

IF I had known it, I might have saved a hundred dollars; for Jim has bought a Five-Ton Wagon Scale of Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y., for $50, delivered. It is just as good as mine, that cost $150.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

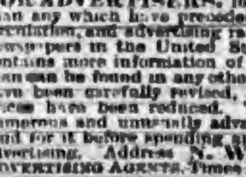
THE NEWARK
DAILY and WEEKLY COURIER,
NEWARK, NEW JERSEY.
F. F. PATTERSON, Editor and Proprietor.
THE LEADING REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER OF NEW JERSEY.
Terms—Daily, $8.00 per annum; Weekly, $2.00. Advertisements inserted on liberal terms. Send for Price-List.

DUNHAM
PIANOS.
Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers.
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
[Established 1834.] NEW YORK.
Prices Reasonable. Terms Easy.

TO ADVERTISERS! We will send free to all applicants who do any newspaper advertising, the THIRD EDITION of AYER & SON'S MANUAL FOR ADVERTISERS. 160 8vo. pp. More complete than any which have preceded it. Gives the names, circulation, and advertising rates of several thousand newspapers in the United States and Canada, and contains more information of value to an advertiser than can be found in any other publication. All lists have been carefully revised, and where practicable prices have been reduced. The special offers are numerous and unusually advantageous. Be sure to send for it before spending any money in newspaper advertising. Address N. W. AYER & SON, ADVERTISING AGENTS, Times Building, Philadelphia.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.



Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture. For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address B. T. BABBITT, New York City. For Sale by all Druggists.

GRAFF'S
TRADE MARK PATENTED
SOAP MADE IN ONE HOUR
IMPROVED
POTASH OR LYE
WILL MAKE NINE POUNDS OF PURE SOAP IN ONLY ONE HOUR

PROF. BEDFORD'S LETTER SHOWING SUPERIORITY OF THIS ARTICLE OVER ALL OTHERS FOR SOAP MAKING SENT FREE BY MAIL ON APPLICATION TO H. M. ANTHONY 104 READE ST. NEW YORK.

THE INDEPENDENT.
LARGEST Religious Newspaper. The famous "Monday Lectures," by Rev. JOSEPH COOK, of Boston, appear verbatim each week. Also "Yale Lectures on Preaching," by Rev. Dr. DALE, of England. "Lectures on 'Biology' and 'Transcendentalism,'" delivered last year by Rev. JOSEPH COOK, and published in handsome book form by J. R. Osgood & Co. (price $1.50 each volume), offered as a premium.
AN ASTONISHING OFFER!
WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY (price $10), bound in library sheep, 1854 pages, over 1,000 wood-cuts, given away free for 3 new Subscribers and $9.

Subscription price of THE INDEPENDENT $3 a year. THE INDEPENDENT (1 year with either volume of Lectures), postage paid, $3. 2 years to 1 subscriber, or 1 year to 2 Subscribers, with $10 Dictionary, for only $8. Specimen copies sent free. Address "The Independent," New York.

THE NEW YORK
Commercial Advertiser.
Terms—Postage Prepaid—Daily, one year, $9; six months, $4.50; three months, $2.25; one month, 75 cents.
Weekly, one year, $1; six months, 50 cents. Specimen numbers sent on application. An extra copy to Club Agents for club of [illegible]. [illegible]
The Commercial Advertiser is the best Republican paper published in this country. Its Weekly edition is unsurpassed. Special terms to Agents.
All letters should be sent to
HUGH J. HASTINGS, 126 Fulton St., N. Y. City.

HULL & SCOTNEY,
GENERAL COMMISSION
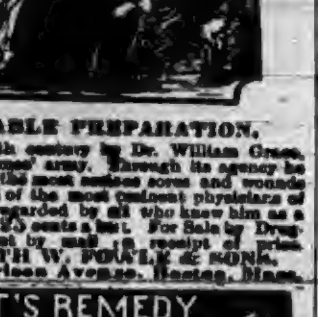
MERCHANTS,
346 NORTH WATER ST.,
PHILADELPHIA.
And wholesale dealers in Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Poultry, Game, Potatoes, Apples, Grain, Flour, Fur, Wool, Cotton, Peanuts, Broom Corn, Foreign and Domestic Fruits, and, in fact, we can sell any and everything at the highest market price, make prompt returns, and LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES made on all shipments except perishable articles. To show that we do an extensive business, any game dealer in Philadelphia will tell you we handled more game last season than all other Houses in Philadelphia put together. Send for Price-List, Stencil, &c., &c. REFERENCE CASH, or we refer you to Any RESPONSIBLE HOUSE in Our City.
Butter. Cheese. Poultry.
EGGS. GAME.

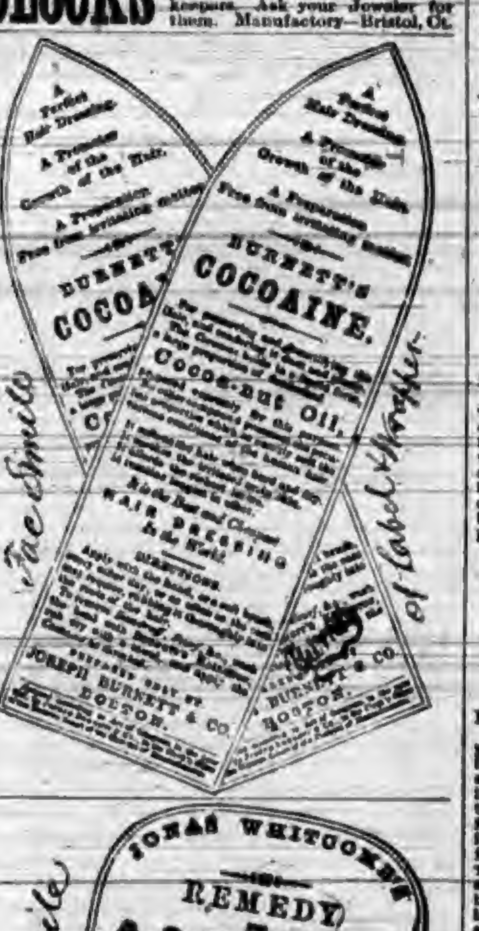
GRACE'S
SALVE



A VEGETABLE PREPARATION.
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

HUNT'S REMEDY
THE GREAT
KIDNEY MEDICINE
A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R.I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as time-keepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.



Fac Simile of Label & Wrapper

A Perfect Hair Dressing. A Promoter of the Growth of the Hair. A Preparation Free from irritating matter.

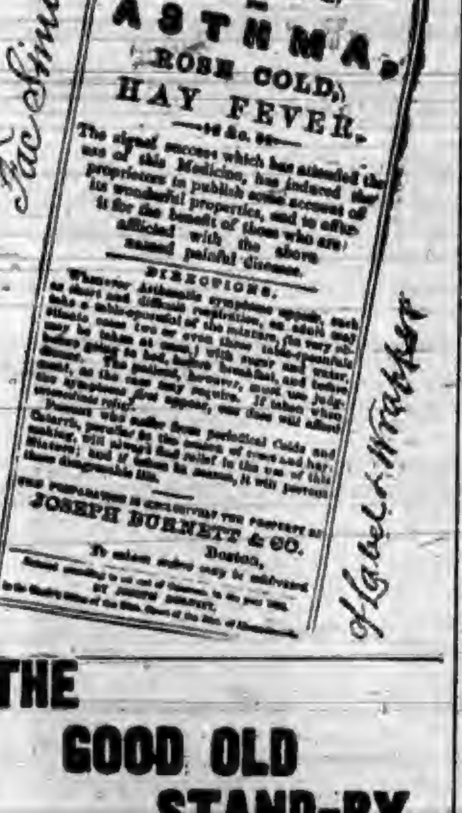
BURNETT'S COCOAINE.

Cocoa-nut Oil.

Hair Dressing.

Directions.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.
BOSTON.



Fac Simile

Label & Wrapper

JONAS WHITCOMB'S REMEDY FOR ASTHMA,
ROSE COLD,
HAY FEVER,
&c. &c.

The signal success which has attended the use of this Medicine, has induced the proprietors to publish some account of its wonderful properties, and to offer it for the benefit of those who are afflicted with the above named painful diseases.

DIRECTIONS.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.
Boston.

THE GOOD OLD STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER
TAKEN INTERNALLY
There is nothing to equal it, relieving you of pain in a short time, and curing all bowel complaints, such as colic, cramps, spasms, heartburn, diarrhea, dysentery, flux, wind in the bowels, sour stomach, dyspepsia, sick headache. In sections of the country where Fever and Ague prevails there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or bowel troubles from change of water. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.
Absolutely Pure.
All Grocers authorized to guarantee it full weight, and absolutely pure. To try it, send 60 cents for 1-pound can to ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., N. Y. Sent by mail free of postage.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

BOOK AGENTS, TAKE NOTICE!
JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE
Has "wrote another book," and it is really
SAMANTHA AT THE CENTENNIAL!
As a P. A. and P. I. outdoes herself, and WIDOW DOODLE leaves BETSY BOBBET far behind. Don't wait and lose your chance; send for circulars, territory, &c., at once. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O., and HARTFORD, CONN.

POSITIVELY CURED
When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of INDIAN HEMP, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free, on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night-sweat, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address, CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

DO YOU WANT a New York Religious Newspaper? If you do, send for THE METHODIST. It is the Christian peoples' paper, National, Independent, Fraternal, and a first-class Family Journal. One of the cheapest, best and brightest of the religious weeklies; each number contains 20 pages, printed in beautiful type, and on excellent paper. It is edited by Rev. DAVID H. WHEELER, D. D., late Professor of English Literature in the North-western University at Evanston, Ill. To promote a Western circulation it is offered to you at the low price of $2 a year, including postage, and those subscribing now for 1878 will receive the paper for the rest of this year free. We do not now furnish premiums to subscribers, but we have on hand quite a number of the portraits of the late Rev. Dr. T. M. EDDY, so well known and beloved in the West and Northwest, of the late Rev. ALFRED COOKMAN, of precious memory, and the engraving of Wesley and the Bishops, both living and dead. We propose to send free a choice of either one of these engravings to each new subscriber who responds to this advertisement. If you desire a specimen copy before subscribing send a 3-ct. stamp to prepay postage. Send money for subscription by Registered Letter, P. O. Money Order or Bank Check. Address H. W. DOUGLAS, Publisher, No. 15 Murray Street, New York.

Best Books for Singing Schools.

CHORUS CHOIR INSTRUCTION BOOK.
By A. N. JOHNSON. JUST OUT. Contains the system of this celebrated teacher, so minutely and plainly described, that it is the easiest and best Manual for Teachers and Leaders, and is also a most entertaining, useful and thorough book for all Music Classes and Conventions—with the plainest of plain instructions, and 250 pages of the best music, graded from the easiest to the most difficult, and continually referred to. The book also best answers that perplexing question: "How to have good singing in Congregations." $1.38; or $12.00 per doz.

THE ENCORE. By L. O. EMERSON. This fine book has already been used by thousands, who have had but one opinion as to its admirable collection of Sacred Music, of Glees, Quartets, Trios, Duets, Songs, &c., for practice. It is a capital Glee Book as well as Singing-Class Book. Thorough Instructive Course. 75 cts.; or $7.50 per doz.

PERKINS' SINGING SCHOOL. By W. O. PERKINS. This, like the "Encore," is an excellent Glee Book as well as Singing-School Book, and will be a fine book for Conventions and for easy practice in Choirs and Societies. Good instructive course, and the best of music. 75 cts.; or $6.75 per doz.

All teachers and convention holders are invited to insure their success this season by using one of these books. For sale everywhere. Copies sent post-free by mail for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. Ditson & Co., 843 BROADWAY, New York.
J. E. Ditson & Co., Successors to Lee & Walker, Phila.

VEGETINE.
HER OWN WORDS.
BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 18, 1877.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—Since several years I have got a sore and very painful foot. I had some physicians, but they couldn't cure me. Now, I have heard of your VEGETINE from a lady who was sick for a long time, and became all well from your VEGETINE; and I went and bought me one bottle of VEGETINE, and, after I had used one bottle, the pains left me, and it began to heal, and then I bought one other bottle, and so I take it yet. I thank God for this remedy and yourself, and wishing every sufferer may pay attention to it. It is a blessing for health.
MRS. C. KRABE, 638 West Baltimore Street.

VEGETINE.
SAFE AND SURE.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:
In 1872 your VEGETINE was recommended to me, and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time, I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and, under its persistent use, I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give VEGETINE my most unqualified indorsement, as being a safe, sure and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. VEGETINE is the only medicine I use; and, as long as I live, I never expect to find a better.
Yours truly, W. H. CLARK,
120 Monterey Street, Allegheny, Pa.

VEGETINE.
THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE.
CHARLESTOWN.
H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that, for Scrofula, or Cankerous Humors, or Rheumatic affections, it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russel Street.

VEGETINE.
WHAT IS NEEDED.
BOSTON, Feb. 13, 1871.
H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
Dear Sir—About one year since I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility. VEGETINE was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefited by its use. I procured the article, and, after using several bottles, was restored to health, and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health.
Respectfully yours,
U. L. PETTENGILL,
Firm of S. M. Pettengill & Co.,
No. 10 State Street, Boston.

VEGETINE.
ALL HAVE OBTAINED RELIEF.
SOUTH BERWICK, Me., Jan. 17, 1872.
H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
Dear Sir—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicines without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief.
Yours truly,
THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

VEGETINE
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

WONDERFUL box, contains 5 useful articles; 3-ct. stamps. Miss Eva Grant, Middleboro, Mass.

3 new vocal and 3 new instrumental pieces Sheet Music, 10c. Globe Music Co., Middleboro, Mass.

$3300 A YEAR. How to Make It. New Agents Goods. COE & YONGE, St. Louis, Mo.

$50 to $150 a week with our [illegible]

BEARD COMPOUND will force whiskers to grow. Package sent free to anyone by J. W. SMITH, Palatine, Ill.

A [illegible] our PATENT BEER FAUCET. Send for Circular. WORWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

FOR SALE—One of the finest Book-Stores in Iowa, doing a paying business. Good cause for selling. Inquire of O. GILLMAN, Nevada, Ia.

BEATTY Piano, Organ best. Look! startling news. Organs, 12 stops $55. Pianos only $130, cost $650. Cir. Free. Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N.J.

$25 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$2½ MAGNETIC TIMEPIECE. Metal works. Hunter case. Sample Watch free to Agents. A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & Co. Chicago.

$300 a month to Agents. Don't go to the poor-house. Send stamp for immense illustrated catalogue. C. G. BRYANT, Chicago, Ill.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

WANTED Detectives. A few men in each State for the Detective Service. Pay liberal. Position permanent. Send stamp for particulars. U. S. SECRET SERVICE Co., 230 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

WANTED—AGENTS—To sell our cigars to dealers: $100 a month and expenses: samples free. Send 3c stamp for answer. C. MENDENHALL & CO., Cincinnati, O.

PATENTS AND INVENTORS. EDSON BROS., U. S. and Foreign Patent Agents, 711 G St., Washington, D. C. Established in 1865. Fee after allowance. Circ. of instructions, etc., sent free.

YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $35 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Manager, Janesville, Wis.

SAW MILL MEN!
Do you need a good Saw-Gummer or Saw-Tooth Swage? If so, write to J. W. MIXTER & CO., Templeton, Mass. Agents wanted.

DYKES' BEARD ELIXIR

Before
After

[illegible] SMITH & CO., Sole Agents, Palatine, Ill. The pupils will see this caution and Address in above.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY!

Professor Martinez, the great Spanish Seer and Wizard, will for 25 Cents with your age, height, color of eyes and hair, send a correct picture of your future husband or wife, [illegible] Address, Prof. MARTINEZ, 4 Province St., Boston, Mass. This is no humbug!

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

AWNINGS, TENTS,
Waterproof Covers, Stack Covers, Signs, Window Shades, &c., &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 South Desplaines st., Chicago. Send for Illustrated Price-List.

Brilliant Jewelry! Something new—hard to detect from the finest gold. Studs and Sleeve Buttons 25 cts set; Plain or Chased Rings 25 cts. each; Ladies' or Gents' Bosom Pin, Necklace or Vest Chain, 50 cts. Ladies' Set (Pin and Ear-drops), Imitation Cameo Stone, $1. The entire lot for $2. Postage paid. W. CHANNING & Co., Augusta, Maine.

BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT
The best family newspaper published; eight pages; fifty-six columns reading.
Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of sixteen, $15 per annum, in advance.
SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.

WORK FOR ALL
In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged) Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

MILITARY
and Band Uniforms—Officers' Equipments, etc., manufactured by M. C. LILLEY & Co., Columbus, Ohio. Send for Price Lists.

AGENTS
WANTED!
FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS
WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.
829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.

MINNESOTA WHEAT LANDS.
Along the lines of the Northern Pacific, the St. Paul and Pacific, St. Paul and Sioux City, and Sioux City and St. Paul Railroads,
AT 60 CENTS TO $3.50 PER ACRE.
Lands can be purchased at these prices by using the Land Bonds or Stocks of said R. R. Companies, for sale by The German American Bank, St. Paul, Minn.
Correspondence solicited.

PRINTERS AND STATIONERS!
Send 50 cents and get a large sample package of our NOVELTIES in Ball Programmes, Visiting Cards, Wedding Stationery, Billet de Correspondence, Envelopes and Note with monogram date (something new), fine Cardboard, etc. Address THE NEWSPAPER UNION, 181 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
Creative Science;
Or, MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD, AND THEIR MUTUAL INTER-RELATIONS; LOVE, ITS LAWS, POWER, ETC.
Agents are selling from 15 to 25 copies a day. Send for specimen pages and our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

DR. WARNER'S
HEALTH CORSET
With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.
Unequaled for Beauty Style & Comfort.
APPROVED BY ALL PHYSICIANS.
For Sale by Leading Merchants.
Samples, any size, by mail. In Sateen, $1.50; Coutil, $1.75; Nursing Corset, $2.00; Misses' Corset, $1.00.
AGENTS WANTED
WARNER BROS., 351 Broadway, N. Y.

SANDAL-WOOD.
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

GREATER BRGAINS THAN EVER.

All sugars reduced a half cent. All teas down 10 cents per pound. Choice raisins reduced to 7 cts. per pound. Sugar cured hams reduced to 11 cts. per pound. Shoulders reduced to 8 cts. per pound. Pickled pork down to 8 cts. per pound. No. 1 white fish down to $4.50 half barrel.

SUCH LOW PRICES HAVE NEVER BEEN KNOWN

Our Tea Trade

Is constantly increasing. We now sell more in a day than we used to in a week—now sell a good tea at 25 cents a pound. Those who prefer a fancy article we have it up to the very finest article 60 and 90 cents per pound. No middlemen between us and our customers. We purchase direct of the importers and sell direct to the consumers, thereby saving them the profits of the speculator, jobber and wholesale dealer. All of these have to have their profits which adds 20 to 30 cents per pound to the tea before it reaches the consumer. This is the only secret of our success, doing away with the middlemen.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 40, 50, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	30 70, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 50, best 75 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	30, 50, best 70 cents per pound
English Breakfast Tea,	50, best 80 cents per pound

SUGARS, SUGARS, SUGARS!

ALL DOWN HALF CENT PER POUND.

Coffee A, 11 cents. Coffee C, 10 cents. Choice Yellow, 10 cents. Granulated and Crushed, 12 cents. Powdered, 12 cents.

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 25 cents. Good Fine Rio, 22 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents. Roasted Rio, 22 cents. Best Roasted, 28 cents.

Syrups.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents.
White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.00.
New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents.

Raisins and anned Peaches at a Terrible Sacrifice!

The large 3 lb. Can Peaches, 15 cents,
2 lb. Cans, 10 cents.
2 lb. Damsons, 15 cents.
Choice Valencia Raisins, 7 cents
Strawberries, 10 and 12 cents.
2 lb. Green Gages, 25 cents.

FISH! FISH! FISH!

Harvest time being the great fish season, we laid in a large supply when they were low to supply our customers at the owest rates.
No. 1 White Fish, half bbls $4.00 New Pickerel in half bbls., $2.50 No. 1 White Fish in kits, $1.00
New Pickerel, in kits, 75 cents, Boston Mackerel, in kits, 75 cents and $1.25.
We have a No. 3 White Fish, small but sound fish, half barrels, $1.00.

OILS, OILS, OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30cts

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardware line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Which he can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINMR and i prepared to do all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

STILL AHEA,

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

NEW ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO

THE ONLY

FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.

The ESTEY ORGAN

stands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never be excelled. Those wanting Organs should get the Estey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them.

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm.
Toledo	11 1 a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 33 "	2 25 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 51 "	2 40 "	7 30 "
Sedan	[illegible]	2 46	7 40
Corunna	2 07 "	[illegible]	[illegible]
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	[illegible]
Ligonier	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Goshen	3 23 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 15 p m	9 50 p m	7 10 "
Goshen	[illegible]	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 10 "
Kendallville	8 40 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen. Tic. Agt
J. B. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 [illegible] pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 16
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	3 10
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST.

	No. 4 Sig t ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 [illegible] a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 01
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 28	2 [illegible] pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily ex upt Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going Nort'.

Stations	Exp.		Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15 pm
St. Louis	6 4[illegible]
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "		1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "		3 05	5 13
Waterloo	11 58 "		4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm		5 30	6 35
Reading	1 49 "		7	7 32
Bankers	2 01 "		7	7 47
Jonesville	2 20 "		7	8 06
Jackson	3 45 "		9	9 20
Detroit	6 [illegible]0 "		12	3 35a
Grand Rapids	9 30 "		4	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 13
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m			3 5[illegible]p
Lansing	10 10 "			7 [illegible]
Grand Rapids	6 20 "		11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "			9 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am		5 10p	6 00a
Jonesville	12 [illegible]0 pm		7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "		7	7 30
Reading	1 22 "		8	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "		9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "		10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "		11 31	9 58
Auburn Junction			1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "			10 35
Indianapolis	[illegible] 45 "			6 35
St. Louis	8 30 am			7 25
Louisville	8 30 am			10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 1.am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 20	[illegible]00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 16
Cambridge	10 46	1 05	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2	8 50
ar Newark	1 05pm	3	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 a
Shawnee	4 30	10 m
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	3 am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	6 30
Mansfield	4 28	5	10 00
Shelby	4 54	7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 39	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 33	1 05pm
Chicago	6 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 11am	11 20am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	12 27pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 48	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 21	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 38	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 00pm	7 40
ar Newark	12 15a.m	1 10	9 43
lv Columbus	12 40	3 10
Shawnee	10 23
Newark	[illegible] 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mail.	3. Express	5 Accom.
FORT WAYNE	6 10 am	6 35 pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 25 p m
Cambridge City	9 45 am		7 45 p m
Connersville	10 30 am		[illegible]
Cincinnati	1 30 pm		11 [illegible]
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 58 pm
Louisville	10 [illegible] pm	5 20 am
Terre Haute	3 10 pm	1 [illegible] am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

GOING NORTH

STATIONS	2 Mail	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis		[illegible] 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	7 00 am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		8 20 pm
Connersville	11 30 am		10 40 am
Cambridge City	[illegible] am		11 44 am
New Castle	[illegible] am		12 55 pm
Muncie	[illegible] pm	10 45 pm	2 50 pm
Hartford	pm	11 33 pm
Montpelier	pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	40 pm	12 33 pm
Fort Wayne	3 50 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 6,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
v. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 39	9 10
Roann	9 03	9 06	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 53	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 2[illegible]
Columbia City	10 20	11 15	1 30
Col'en's	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 53
La Otto	11 2[illegible]	12 31pc	3 55
Cedar Creek	11 28	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 25
Aupurn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No.	No.	No. 7,
Logansport ar	50	1 46am	50pm
Mexico
Denver	[illegible]		4 00
Chili	6 00		3 20
Roann	[illegible]		2 30
Laketon	5 52		2 00
North Manchester	5 23		1 33
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 05
Collamar	5 05		2 [illegible] pm
South Whitley	[illegible]		12 2[illegible]
Columbia City	4 40		0 25
Collin's	4 21		9 40
Cherubusco	4 14		9 20
La Otto	[illegible]		3 41
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 26
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 23		7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 20

FRANK J. BECKER,
Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choices brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 181 East Washington St., Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 272 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL
View of Marriage!
WOMAN AND MARRIAGE
A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.
A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure. 224 large pages, price 50 cts.
A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.
Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts.
Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sam. is Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Essig deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH Essig, Adm'x.

October 18, 1877 no13.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 15th, 1877. Number 46.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2. | Six Months,......

Advertising Rates.

Space	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square	3 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	10 00	12 00	20 00
½ Column.........	10 00	15 00	20 00	50 00
1 Column.........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

E. A. FRANKS. O. E. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decedent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY. Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—8:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

TREMONT HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Accommodates three hundred guests. Terms $2.50 per day. Located corner Second street and Indiana Avenue, in full view of the Capitol City Hall.

F. P. HILL.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

GEO. S. PALMER, O. SANDS,
(Late of City Hotel,) Clerk. Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonable

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

F. W. SILVERS.

CARPETS

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & Co.,

Offer a large and choice stock of Carpets in all the newest designs.

Body Brussels Carpets,
Tapestry Carpets,
Ingrain Carpets,

COTTON CHAIN CARPETS,
HEMP CARPETS,
RAG CARPETS.

Terry's Reps, Cretonnes, Lace Curtains, Shades, Wall Paper, Stair Rods.

OIL CLOTHS,

Mattings, Rugs and Mats, Druggets

And all goods pertaining to the carpet and upholstery business.

Lambrequins

A Specialty.

Prices Low to Compete with the Times

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.
26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. [illegible]

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases Watch Chains, magnificent Holiday Gifts, Lockets, Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet Shell and Horn Jewelry, All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

CHRONIC Diseases Cured. New paths marked out by that plainest of all books—"Plain Home Talk and Medical Common Sense."—nearly 1,000 pages, 200 Illustrations by Dr. E. B. Foote, of 120 Lexington Avenue, N. Y. Purchasers of this book are at liberty to consult its author in person or by mail free. Price by mail $3.25 for the standard edition, or $1.50 for the popular edition, which contains all the same matter and illustrations. Contents free. Agents wanted. MURRAY HILL PUBLISHING Co.

129 East 28th st. N. Y.

$777 is not easily earned in these times but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once,

H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

October 11.—6m eow1.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Geo. Ensley is plaintiff, and Thomas M. Stevens et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Eleven dollars and Ten cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER, 17th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fourty-two [42] in Ensley's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Aubur Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution and fee bill to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the Singer Manufacturing Company is plaintiff and Charles M. Brown and Charles Klotz are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-seven Dollars and Thirty Cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south one-third of lot number sixty-six [66] in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for plaintiff,
Auburn, Indiana, October 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles E Wanamaker is plaintiff, and Frank Childs and Hamar M. Childs are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Fifty-Five Dollars and Fifty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lot number one hundred and fifty-nine [159] in Egnew's third addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.

Pluchin & Boyle, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 22nd A. D. 1877.

Ptr's. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein William H. Mader is plaintiff and Christian Seivert et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Sixty Four dollars and Sixty-Nine cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of lot number five [5] in Kuhlman's second addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Att'y for Plaintiffs.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs, and John Moser and William Moser are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Forty-Nine Dollars and fifty-two cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The north-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty-five [25] township thirty-four [34], north of range thirteen [13] east, taken as the property of John Moser.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Thomas W. Sharp is plaintiff and Emeline Sepey and Henry Sepey et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Twelve dollars and Seventy cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number two hundred and forty-three (243) and two hundred and forty-four (244), in Hornberger's addition to the town of Waterloo, in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct. 23, 1877

Pr. fee $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Crane, Duncan & Co are plaintiffs, and Perry Fitch is defendant requiring me to make the sum of Eight Hundred and Fifty-Eight dollars with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The south-east quarter of the north-west quarter of section thirty-five [35], township thirty-three [33], north of range twelve [12], east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS Deputy.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys. for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Oct. 24, 1877.

P. fee $8.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph K Shilling Trustee is plaintiff and Ebenezer E. Williams et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Nine Hundred and Thirteen dollars and Seventy Five cents with interest on said decree and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A part of lot number one hundred and thirty-eight [138], in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing thirty-one and three tenths feet west of the north-east corner of said lot on the north line thereof and running thence south sixty-six (66) feet to the south line of said lot, thence west forty-two [42] feet, thence north sixty-six (66) feet to the north line of said lot, thence east forty-two [42] feet to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Oct 24th, 1877.

Pr. fee $10 00.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all are furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

James Anderson is now fully prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing at his shop on Seventh street. Mr. Anderson makes a speciality of shoeing lame, and interfering horses. Give him a call and you will be satisfied that he does as he says.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. J. S. Ervin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. R. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. E. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each Sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. Chas. Treuschel, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock A. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH.

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Mrs. Fred Raut is putting a new fence around her property, on Cedar Street.

Our Methodist friends are preparing to give a grand dinner on Thanksgiving day.

Several new members were added to the Hook and Ladder force at their last meeting.

It is just the time of yeary for our rural poets to give us a "send off" on "Fallen Leaves," or on—well the weather.

Truth never need be in a hurry, but a lie must keep all the time on the jump; a lazy lie soon tires itself out, and ends in confusion.

We sympathize with our farmer friends in having such unfavorable weather to prepare for winter. Its all in a life time, however.

Squirrels are pretty plenty in the woods now and Auburn sportsmen, or some of them, at least, are waging a fierce war upon the toothsome rodents.

The city schools will have but one week vacation, beginning again next Monday. Prof. Seiler will condct the institution again this term. He gives general satisfaction to all.

Our friend Mr. Gibson at the City Bakery has now exclusive control of the baking department, and is ready with increased facilities to supply the demand for good bread. tf.

Next week most of the country schools will begin, and on the arrival home of each teacher every Saturday they will tell of the hardships they endured while boarding 'round

The Butler correspondent of the "Saturday Night," must be on the "outs" with his home paper, judging from the interest he manifests in collecting locals for other papers.

A thief stold a horse from G. D. Denison, last week, and made good his escape. The animal was old and troubled with the heaves, and Mr. D. will not make any effort to recover him.

At this season of the year the Council should turn its eyes upon the sidewalks and crossings of the city and order repairs where the same are needed. The muddy period is at hand.

Pity the poor this cold weather and let your donations consist largely of fuel. A sack of flour and a bag of potatoes, however, would not come amis if occasionally given by those who have plenty.

The stolen property found at Sedan, by parties from Michigan, is not yet accounted for. The man who was arrested for the theft, one Royal Grates, and got away from the officers, is still at large.

The painful perplexity and indecision of a young lady who has the ankle of a Venus but a foot like an ironing-board, as she clutches her dress and steps on a muddy crossing, is the saddest thing we know of.

There are a great many counterfeit quarter dollars in circulation, and one must be careful in receiving this piece. It will require only a moment's examination to detect the bogus character of the coin, but this moment must be given.

The South Bend Herald has been enlarged and supplied with a new dress. The one who selected the head of that paper ought to have a head put on him with an iron shooting stick. Parker, of the late Garrett News would display better taste. Otherwise the paper presents a good appearance.

Some of the most prominent merchants of New York have signed a call for a meeting looking to a fair representation of American products and manufactures at the Paris Exposition. Quite an interest in the matter has been created all over the country. Many of these articles exhibited at Philadelphia will be sent to Paris by the owners.

At a residence on South Jackson St., last Saturday evening was a Sour Krout bee. After it was all properly placed in the cask the mother remarked: "I hope that Krout will smell soon. I am anxious for a mess." A little eight year old sitting behind the kitchen door said: "Just have dad tramp it in his stocking feet, and it'll smell too quick." That boy slept with his face down all night and stood up next morning to eat his breakfast.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY FOR 1877-'78.

Without recalling the excellence of the past, the publishers of Scribner's Monthly announce, for the year to come, the following papers:

THE PICTURESQUE SIDE OF AMERICAN FARM LIFE.

This subject will be treated in a series of separate papers engaged from writers who stand in the front rank among Americans, both in qualities of style and in keen insight of nature. Mr. R. E. Robinson, author of a delightful paper on "Fox-Hunting in New England" in the January number, will represent the same section in this series. John Burroughs, whose papers on similar topics have been a highly prized and popular feature of Scribner will write of Farm Life in New-York. Maurice Thompson, the poet-naturalist, will describe the characteristics of Western farming, of which but little has been written. It is expected that the illustration of this series will be of a refined and typical character, commensurate with the subject-matter. It is thought that no paper or series of papers yet issued in Scribner will so fully realize the constant desire of the Magazine to keep out of the ruts, and, both in text and illustrations, to obtain quality rather then quantity, and to print fresh, strong and delicate work from the original sources.

"ROXY."

By Edward Eggleston (author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," &c.). This new novel will doubtless be the most important American serial of the year. The first number was published in November. Those who have read it in manuscript declare Roxy to be much the most striking and remarkable story this author has ever written. It is illustrated by one of the ablest of the young American painters,—Mr. Walter Shirlaw, President of "The American Art Association."

AMERICAN SPORTS.

Some of the most novel and entertaining of these papers are yet to appear, the scenes of which will be in the West, the Middle states, the South, New England and Canada.

OUT-OF-DOOR PAPERS.

By John Buroughs, author of "Wake Robin," &c., will contain not only articles on Birds, but on "Tramping," "Camping Out," and kindred topics. Mr. Buroughs' papers will begin in the January number, the first being entitled "Birds and Birds," and illustrated by Fidelia Bridges.

ARCHITECTURE OF BIRDS.

Dr. Thomas M. Brewer will contribute four exquisitely illustrated articles on birds'-nests, which every lover of nature will delight in. Dr. Brewer has probably the finest collection of birds' eggs in the world to draw upon for the illustration of these papers.

THE SADDLE-HORSE.

Col. George E. Waring, with whose excellent work of various sorts our readers are familiar, contributes two illustrated articles on the horse. He treats specially of saddle-horses and their use for pleasure and for sport, including road-riding, fox-hunting and racing. The nature of the English thoroughbred and that of his Eastern progenitor (The Arabian) are fully considered in relation to these uses.

SAXE HOLM.

New stories by this popular writer will be given in early numbers of Scribner, beginning with "Joe Hale's Red Stockings," to appear in January. This "novelett" chronicles an episode of the late war for the Union.

"HIS INHERITANCE."

By Adeline Trafton, so well begun in the Midsummer Holiday number, will be continued nearly through the year. It will be found to be of increasing interest to the very end.

"A KNIGHT OF FORTUNE."

Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen's new novel—will be begun in Scribner at the conclusion of "His Inheritance." It will reveal a phase of American society undreamed of by most of our readers, and will be certain to increase the reputation of the writer as a master of English and of his art.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS.

Will continue to employ the ablest pens in America, and will include the present admirable summarry of English publications. Besides the special articles above enumerated, the Magazine will contain Poems, Sketches, Essays, Reviews, and shorter stories of the highest character. A large practical reduction in price is made by an increase in the number of pages.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Of the Magazine, in variety and excellence of design an typographical execution, will continue to be in advance of those of any other popular magazine at home or abroad.

Subscription price, $4.00 a year, payable in advance to us or any book-seller.

No club rates or other discounts to subscribers. The Magazine is worth all it costs, and its circulation is increasing in a constant and steady ratio from year to year. SCRIBNER & CO.,
743 Broadway, New York.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

The First National Bank of Auburn Indiana tenders to the citizens of DeKalb county its facilities for the transaction of business. We loan money, receive deposits subject to check at sight or payable at a fixed date with a stipulated rate of interest. Sell exchange on New York, Chicago, Toledo and Fort Wayne procure such foreign exchange as may be desired, buy exchange and make collections on all available points, and do all usual and ordinary business done by first class banks. We will also take on deposit for safekeeping valuable papers such as deeds mortgages, notes bonds, agreements etc., guardians, administrators, trustees and all other handling trust funds together with merchants, manufacturers and farmers are solicited to open an account with us. We will deal Liberally with all who call.

J. H. FORD, President.
JAMES V. HAZZARD, Cashier.

NIGGER-TWIS'.

BY A. C. GORDON.

Right hard work while it last—dat's so;
Wurrumin' backer all day long—
Misry gets in yer back, you know—
Spechly dem what aint so strong.
Dat's my fix; but it seems ter me
Ise paid for it all when it comes ter dis:
My long-stem pipe, little Jake on my knee,
An' my pocket chock full o' nigger-twis'.

Corn-cob? Yes, sir. It aint so fine
As dat 'hogany-colored one o' yours;
But I gits as much out o' dis o' mine
As de fines' one you ever did own.
De juice all dries in de cob, you see—
Dat's de philos'phy o' pipes like dis;
An' a reed-root stem is de stem for me,
An' de sweetes' backer is nigger-twis'.

Dem dar's [illegible] things, dem snuff—
Dem little splinters what lights jes so;
Hit dey heads whar de box is rough
A sort of [illegible], an' owse dey go!
I never liked 'em, [illegible]
De devil's in 'em some way. An dis
[illegible]
A red-hot coal on de nigger-twis'.

Wouldn' I like a cigar? you say.
No, sir, I thank you. Ise tried dem dar—
Different, sir, as de night f'om day,
Fur apart as a cuss an' pra'r;
Hasn't no strength, it seems ter me;
Can't begin ter compar' wid dis;
Nothin' under de sun can be
Sweet as a cob, an' some nigger-twis'.

No—dat nuther! Well, I'll declar'!
Dat is de beatenest' Ise seed yet!
What is de name dat you call dat ar?
Say it ag'in, please? Cigarette?
Little Jake what sets on my knee
Ud turn up his nose at a thing like dis.
Ise gwine ter teach him to do like me,
'n suck de comfort f'om nigger-twis'.

Yes, dat's a fac'. 'Tis a lux'ry, sho,
Backer is, whatever you say—
Seems like I never wants nothin' mo'
'Ceptin' ter set down here, dis way—
Take little Jake up on my knee—
Have me a corn-cob pipe like dis,
Wid a stem as long as f'om you to me,
An' a pocket chock full o' nigger-twis'.

—Scribner's Monthly for November.

HER OATH.

The 11th of October, 1810, was a wild night, a night of cloud-wrack and pale, intermittent moonlight. The high westerly wind seemed like a demon let loose over sea and land. In cities houses were unroofed and chimney-pots fell with the sound of thunder. On seas, full of hurry and confusion, ships staggered blindly, with far more chance of going down than of making port. Through forests the wind roared and raved in its fierce on-rushing. One could hear great tree boughs snapped short from the trees and hurled about in great fury.

At seven o'clock in the evening a post-carriage, with smoking post-horses and shouting post-boys, drew up before the principal inn at Deal. The carriage was occupied by two persons, a man and a woman, who, having heard that they could obtain a good night's shelter, dismounted.

Seen by the bright light of the inn parlor, the two travelers showed a strange contrast. The woman, or girl rather—for she could not have been more than twenty—presented a striking type of village beauty. She was tall and straight, with a firm, shapely figure. She had brown hair, thick and curling. There was a wistful look in the dark, deep eyes, whose abundant lashes fell on rounded, warmly-tinted cheeks. The lips, ripe and red, might have excused any man for longing to kiss them.

Her companion, who was at least ten years older, was evidently in a very different position of life. He must have had good blood in his veins; at least you would have guessed it from the long slender fingers terminating in the exquisite filbert-shaped nails. He was tall and slightly-fashioned. The face would have been called a handsome one, but it was too pale and too delicate in outline to suggest the idea of complete manly beauty.

"Well, Mary, my darling," he said, holding the girl in his arms, "how do you think you shall like being Mrs. Oldworth, and a painter's wife? Would you rather have stayed only a farmer's daughter?"

"I suppose I could have remained so had I wished; or I could have been a farmer's wife. There were plenty of lads who wanted me. There was Bob Turner, son of one of the richest farmers in Kent, and Tom Miller, who fought Joe Martin because I walked home from church one Sunday evening with Joe, when I had promised to walk with Tom."

"And you prefer me to Bob, Joe, Tom?" returned the man.

"Yes, or why should I have married you?"

He drew her head down upon his shoulder, smoothing lovingly her soft brown hair. They had the room to themselves; and so wrapped up were they in each other that they failed to notice a face from outside, which, pressed close against the blindless window, was watching them with bright, strained, sinister eyes. But, when the girl, changing her position, did catch sight of the face, the blood suddenly forsook her cheeks and lips, and, uttering a short, sharp cry, she hid her face again on her husband's shoulder.

"Oh, my God, it cannot be!" she exclaimed. "We are watched, Arthur. Don't you see?"

But the face had vanished, and so Oldworth replied quietly:

"My darling, I see nothing. It was only a nervous fancy;" adding, as she was shivering in his arms: "The long, windy drive has been too much for you; you have taken a chill."

"Yes, I think I have. Let us go."

Oldworth was about to ring the bell, when a door opened and closed, and a man came up to where they were standing—a man about the middle height, but powerfully built. His face, beaten by wind and tanned by sun, was one which, having seen, you would not easily forget. The eyes, which looked straight out at you, from under the heavy, overhanging brows, had in them a strange and indescribable fascination. He was a man, you could tell, who meant to have his own way—a sort of mastiff, dangerous when roused.

"I have come to offer my congratulations," he said, addressing himself to Oldworth's wife, and holding out his hand, which she did not appear to see. "I have heard all about it from the post-boys—all about the grand wedding down at Farmer Grant's this morning. It is lucky my meeting you here. I was on my way to give you important news, which I have brought from over sea with me. It's not a night when a man travels farther than he needs. But I can't say you seem glad to see an old acquaintance."

"My friend," put in Oldworth, "this lady is my wife. She has had a long and fatiguing drive, and is to-night quite unfit for conversation; but, to-morrow, before resuming our journey, she will, I am sure, be happy to exchange the warmest wishes with you."

Oldworth had spoken in a tone of sweet patronage, but the other man never looked in his direction, only saying to Mary: "That's your choice, is it? Why, he looks as if a breath of wind would blow him away. But you must hear my news alone. Get rid of him, will you—or must I?"

"One word," exclaimed Oldworth, the color rising in his face, though he strove to control his voice. "You come from a journey, the night is stormy, and this is your excuse for having drunk too freely; but, if you cannot behave yourself, it will be my duty to have you removed."

"Look here," returned the other, facing now for the first time his eyes upon Oldworth's face. "My name's Mark Shaw. I am first mate of the ship Annie, brought to Dover harbor last night. I am no more drunk than you are, and when you say I am you know that you are telling a lie. You call yourself a fine gentleman; well, in the matter of words, you beat me; but you wouldn't like to have a go-in with me. No! she wouldn't like it. You wouldn't care to go sprawling at her feet; the floors here are dusty. Keep a civil tongue in your head, and I have no wish to interfere with you." His large, strong hands were clenched, but they hung down heavily. "The sooner you go, you know," he went on, "the better it will be for all three."

"Yes, do go, dear," exclaimed Mary, with an assumption of gayety in her voice. "Whatever you do, don't quarrel. Mark is rough and violent, I know; but he may have news which I ought to hear. Of course I shall tell you everything."

"I will leave you, then, for ten minutes," said Oldworth, addressing himself to Mark. "Not, you understand, on account of your threats, but because a gentleman will allow no brawl to take place before a lady, and I see nothing less than this would satisfy you. At the end of ten minutes I shall return."

Oldworth glanced at his watch, and left the room. The door closed after him, and the two were together. Mark folded his arms, and fixed his eyes on the girl's face. Under that keen and pitiless scrutiny she writhed and winced as in some great physical pain. The wind shrieked round the inn; the wood fire on the hearth crackled and sputtered, the red flames leaped up fitfully; a cart lumbered near on the dark road, and drew up ponderously at the inn door.

At length Mary broke the silence:

"For God's sake, speak," she said. "Do you wish to kill me by just looking at me?"

"I wish I could," he rejoined. "I should like to see you dying inch by inch under my eyes, without touching you. You are the right sort of girl, aren't you? for a man to have loved, before, indeed, he was a man—nothing but a small boy, who went miles after the least thing you wished for, and who only left you when he was a man to get money enough to build a home for you. You're the right sort of girl to have trusted and believed in—to have prayed for night and day. Why, in some of our great storms I have done what I never did till then. I have prayed, 'God save me, for if I go down and don't come back any more, how will that girl I know of far off in Kent bear it? If she knew that Mark would never come again to take her in his arms and kiss her any more, why, it would just break her heart or send her mad.' And all the time you were making love to this fine gentleman—this creature that looks more like a sick girl than a man! Why, if I were to strike the thing friendly like on the shoulder it would go down under my hand like a nine-pin, and bowl for pain! Did you hear any rumor of the ship being lost?"

"No," said she.

"You hadn't that excuse then! Do you love him?"

"I fancied I did."

"Have you any excuse?"

"No, only mother and father were failing, and he said he would do everything for them, and make me a lady, and take me to places I wanted to see so much. And every one said it would be such a fine thing for me; and they made me proud; and that was how it happened."

"Are you ashamed of yourself?" he questioned.

"Yes."

"Do you despise yourself?"

"Yes."

"Do you hate yourself as you deserve to be hated?"

"Yes, God knows I do."

"Well," he replied, "the strange thing is that I, who ought to hate you, ought to scorn and spurn you, love you just as madly as ever. Polly! Polly! I can't bear it! For God's sake, come to me, my darling!"

For a moment she stood irresolute; then, with a low cry, she flung her arms round his neck, and dropped against his heart. He strained her close to him, kissing her with long, passionate kisses, calling her with a hundred endearing names, seeming to forget everything save the fact that she was in his arms again after their cruel separation. At length, with a sudden revulsion of feeling, he thrust her from him almost roughly, saying in a voice that jarred with suppressed passion, "Have you forgotten your oath—the oath you swore to me that last night, under the moonlight, when we stood together in your father's garden?"

She cowered against the wall, shrinking from his eyes, as a child from the hand which has stricken it. "I forget nothing," she moaned.

"Say that oath over, then," he exclaimed, holding her hands in his, as in a vise.

"Spare me this," she cried.

"What have you done that I should spare you?" he retorted almost brutally. "Come, I have a fancy to hear that oath, and hear it I will. I can prompt you with it." And then, as one speaking in a trance, she spoke:

"If ever during your absence I let any man touch my lips, or willingly listen to any words of love, or become, in the least word, thought, or deed, unfaithful, may I be slain, soul and body, so help me God!"

"That's the oath you made and broke, then!" he exclaimed, still holding her hands, still looking at her face with his keen, pitiless eyes.

"Oh, Mark!" she cried, "I love you, and defy you. It is not too late yet. To-morrow let us fly together."

"No, we can't get out of it like that," he rejoined. "I don't know that I've much conscience; or it may be that I have a good deal in my own way. Where two folks love each other they make their own laws, is what I think. What's right to them is right, and what's wrong is wrong; but this man, your husband, I'd toss him over, as in rough weather we've tossed overboard far more precious cargo to save the ship. I am not what men call pious either. I don't live different on Sundays to what I do other days, and I'm not particular about going to church when I'm ashore, but I am a bit superstitious. I believe in a God, and if [illegible] it meant everything. If you'd made a blunder, [illegible] the time, and just said, simple and childlike, 'Mark, I am sorry. Forgive me,' I'd have taken you back to my heart, and thought nothing hard of you. But we can't get away from this oath. What sort of God would He be who would let His name be taken and sworn by just to make a fine sound? No, we can't escape it. Don't you know we can't? Wasn't it for this, just to meet you here, that the ship came back three months before the time she was due? Do just as I tell you;" and he would have taken her in his arms again, but at that moment the door opened and Oldworth came in.

"I told you I should be gone ten minutes," he said, "and I have been twelve. Come, Mary; your room is ready. Wish your friend good-night."

"It strikes me," observed Mark, "she's not as anxious for that as you would have her. You've come back too soon; we haven't done our talk yet; we've a fancy to finish it on the shore."

"A fancy which you must most certainly resign," replied Oldworth, forcing a smile, though he was white as death, and his hands and lips were quivering.

"Mary, my dear, are you coming?"

"No, she isn't," put in Mark. "Do you think she'd rest without knowing my news? I tell you again, you came back too soon. Five minutes' walk and talk on the shore, and then it will all be over."

"Yes. Then it will all be over, dear," said Mary, going to her husband.

"You don't want to grieve me, do you? he answered. "Come, Mary."

"No. I must go to the shore first," she replied. "Indeed, I should like it. It is such strange news Mark has for me that it makes my head throb and burn, and the night air might cool it."

"You will tell me everything?" said Oldworth.

"Yes, everything," she answered.

"Well, of course I shall come with you."

"As you like," ejaculated Mark, who during this brief dialogue had been waiting with a look of sullen impatience on his face.

So those three went out into the night. The white, panic-stricken moon seemed to be flying through the sky, followed by great masses of cloud. As these three came to the shore you could hardly tell which was the louder, the wind's voice or the sea's. The spirits of the ocean and the storm seemed to be holding some wild revel. The huge, black, foam-crested waves came with the sound of thunder against the land, and the hissing spray, blown up like smoke, dashed in the faces of the two men and the woman. When they were fairly on the beach Mark turned to Oldworth, and said in a voice that was quite audible through the sound of wind and waves:

"Look here, now; I'll be frank and above-board with you. I loved this girl a long time ago; we were playmates together; and it's rough on me that she should love you better. Come, now, don't be greedy; let us have five minutes to ourselves to say good-by in, and then I will never again cross your path or hers. This I swear."

Oldworth turned to his wife.

"Do you wish it?" he asked.

She murmured faintly, "Yes, it will be better, I suppose."

So he held her with his arm for a minute while he kissed her lips lovingly; then he let her go and walked aside, turning his back to the sea.

The moon was hurrying through the heavens, and all around Oldworth the night shook and clamored. At times he seemed to hear footsteps coming and going near him, and at times he seemed to hear a sound of singing through the storm, but these were only sick fancies. He waited five minutes; he waited ten; then he turned and went nearer the sea, but his eyes could not discover that for which they were looking.

"Mary!" he called at the top of his voice. "Mary, my darling, where are you?"

But there came no answer to his call. Wind and sea laughed him to derision, and overhead the moon fled faster than ever between the great spaces of black cloud. Oldworth searched the beach in all directions; then he went to its extremity, where two sailors were lounging together.

"Have you seen a man and a woman pass up this way?" he inquired.

"We saw you and another man go down with a girl some minutes back," replied one of the sailors. "They certainly have not come up this way. Now I think of it, they can't have got round any other way, because the tide is high up over the rocks."

"Why, you must be drunk, Bill, to talk like that," cried the second sailor. "Don't you know the gentleman was married to her to-day?" Then he turned to Oldworth: "Never mind him, sir, they've only gone higher up. I'll be bound we'll find them fast enough. What might the man's name be?"

"How in Heaven's name should that help you?" returned Oldworth desperately. "The man's name was Mark Shaw, and he was a sailor."

"Mark, Mark! Why, that's our mate!" cried both men together. "Well, we'll do all we can." And they went down to the sea, and while Oldworth stood, feeling that the horror which he suspected could not really be, and wondering what he should do next, the men returned bearing something with them.

"It's a woman's hat, sir," said the second sailor, the one who had reproved his companion for what he deemed his inconsiderate speech. "But don't you take on, sir; more hats than one get blown away this weather."

"Thank you. I know the hat," returned Oldworth, with awful quiet in his voice. Then he turned from them.

"Take my arm, won't you, sir?" said the sailor who had last spoken, observing that Oldworth seemed hardly able to control his steps. This sailor was known on the Annie as "Jim the pigeon-hearted."

"Thank you," rejoined Oldworth, taking the man's hand. "I know you mean well, and I shall not forget you. You're a sailor. Is there any boat, do you think, that could follow and find them? Can they be all the way down yet? Down at the very bottom of the sea? Why, I thought just now I heard her laugh. Don't you think [illegible] some day. Not to-night, perhaps, but some day."

He pressed his hand to his forehead as if trying to collect his thoughts; then a cry, which those who heard will never forget, broke from his lips and rang through the storm. High up it went, far away over the wind. The dead must have heard it. Then he fell senseless to the ground. The sailors, good-hearted men both, bore Oldworth back on their shoulders to the inn. Medical aid was procured, but all that night he raved deliriously. Very early the next morning, in the first low light, the bodies of a man and woman, clasped in one another's arms, were washed ashore. Two sailors identified the man's body as that of their first mate, Mark Shaw, of the schooner Annie. William Grant, a farmer in Kent, swore to the woman's body as being that of his daughter, who had been married only the day before. The two had decent burial, side by side. Oldworth lived, but reason never returned to him. "He is a troublesome patient, and a dangerous one," say his keepers, "whenever the wind is high and westerly."—Philip Bourke Marston, in November Galaxy.

Nervous Disorders.

Among the numerous forms of diseases which prevail in this country nervous exhaustion occupies a conspicuous place, and the subject in its various forms has been recently discussed in an able manner in the Medical Record by Dr. George M. Beard. Speaking of the future of these diseases in this country, he finds reason to think that they tend to disappear. Among the prominent causes now operating to impede the increase of nervousness among the people of this country, he enumerates the following: A higher and better mode of living, a more bountiful use of nutritious food, and indulgence in recreation. The increase of a large leisure class exerts a beneficial influence on national health. The tendency to diminish the increase of families strengthens the feeling of social responsibility, as well as giving a more favorable chance of success in the struggle for existence. The declining influence of the terrors of the dogmatic theology has relieved the general mind of a heavy burden. It is shown that we have sensibly increased in weight during the last quarter of a century. Both men and women now enjoy a much higher average of health than formerly, and a marked improvement in physical beauty is everywhere discernible. Nervous dyspepsia is rapidly disappearing, and has lost in a great degree the intractable character it formerly possessed. The various forms of asthenopia, so common in colleges and seminaries a few years ago, are now comparatively rare. There is also reason to believe that hay fever and inebriety may at no distant day reach their maximum and decline. The increased longevity of the brain-workers is an indication of a favorable state of national health. All these forces and influences tend to modify and increase that greatest blessing of civilization—good health.—New York Graphic.

The Lone Star State.

Texas, says the St. Louis Republican, is the most stupendous success in America. California is nothing to it. It is an empire as large as all France, and capable of more varied productions than France and Germany put together. Cotton, sugar, coffee, tea, wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, tobacco, oranges, lemons, bananas, flax, hemp, apples, peaches, figs, rice, etc., etc., are as easily grown in Texas as white beans are in Kansas. Besides this, cattle exist by the millions, sheep thrive splendidly, and hogs grow as rapidly and freely as dog fennel in Illinois. Texas can sustain a population of 50,000,000, and do it well. At present she is sparsely peopled, but the tide of emigration is setting toward her strong and steady. Her cheap lands, salubrious climate, rich soil, vast herds of cheap cattle, and the independence and freedom involved in the pursuit of this fascinating and special industry make Texas the great point of attraction to-day. Cattle-growing in Texas is as sure a source of wealth as any human being can devise, and it is an occupation which is open to even the most limited intellect, and to men of the very simplest attainment. It is a business also which cannot be overdone. The world eats millions of pounds of beef each day. France alone consumes 40,000,000 pounds daily; and if meat can be placed in reach of all the poor in the world its consumption will be greatly increased.

Subterranean Telegraphy.

Entire success is claimed for the enterprise of subterranean telegraphy in Germany. The wires between Berlin and Halle have been in use for twelve months, and their conducting power has increased, no fault having yet been detected in the insulation. The line is formed by a cable of seven thin copper wires twisted together so as to be a single conductor; they are cased in India-rubber, and laid in a trench which is dug and afterward filled in by a steam excavator. The trench dug by this machine is uniform; it is one metre deep and half a metre wide. The work in ordinary soil is said to go forward with great expedition, and underground wires will soon be laid between all the chief cities.

Abolition of Pension Agents.

An effort will be made this winter to induce Congress to abolish the office of Pension Agent and provide for the payment of pensions by check directly from the treasury of the United States. The Committee on Pensions in the Senate has already been instructed to inquire into the expediency of abolishing that office.

WOMEN IN INDIA.

Their Miserable Lives from the Cradle to the Grave.

A writer in Cassell's Magazine, London, draws a dark picture of the social condition of women in India. "There can be no more interesting object of benevolent enterprise than the improvement of the social condition of the women of India. The estimation in which the native Indian woman is held is well known by Englishmen—how she is compelled to undergo every kind of menial work at the command of her husband, while the lord and master enjoys his life to the utmost—worked for, waited on and looked up to by his wife as a slave. The wretched existence of these women has been described concisely in a single sentence: 'She is unwelcomed at her birth, untaught in her childhood, enslaved when married, accursed as a widow, and often unlamented at her death.' Lady Anna Gore Langton has been recently visiting India, and has taken much pains to acquaint herself with the manners and customs of the natives, especially in the South of India. Indian children, she informs us, are married at 8 years of age. Native fathers consider it a disgrace to have single girls in the family, and endeavor to get them married in childhood, but, when married, they do not always go at once to their husbands' homes. Although but little money is laid out in clothes and education, the marriages are very expensive, as there is a great deal of feasting; indeed, many families have been impoverished for years by the expense of marriages. Infanticide is not so prevalent now as it was a few years ago, and Government has done a great deal to put it down. The marriages are generally arranged by the old women, who go from family to family to discover suitable matches. The men in India are, to a great extent, ruled by the women, who are very conservative, and have decided objections to any improvement in their customs. The lower-class women work very hard, pulling stone rollers, cutting grass, and helping their husbands in brick-laying. Widows are treated by the natives very badly. Their clothes and jewels are taken from them, and they are made as miserable as possible. 'Nothing,' says Lady Anna Gore-Langton, 'is more painful than to see the vacant, hopeless, melancholy face of the adult woman; and nothing is wanted more than lady doctors, who might save Indian women much suffering.' Sir Salar Jung exerted himself some time back to secure a lady doctor for India. He had to send to America for one, and she has now a large practice among the native women."

Society in Poland.

The Pole is proud and dressy; he will not carry bundles; he does not go out to walk without his cane; he must have his watch-fob, gloves and beaver. Walk in Saxony Garden about 1 o'clock of a summer Sunday, or "Under the Limes" at about 6, and you will see more fine-mannered, elegantly-attired people than in any other city of its size in the world. The coats and dresses fit to perfection; the hats and bonnets are the latest importations; the smiles and salutations could not be surpassed by people accustomed all their lives to go to court. But the women are the fundamental charm. I remember in particular one young lady at the Saxony Garden promenade who passed me several times, accompanied by two young men whom I supposed to be her brothers. She was graceful, lithe, erect and tall, a superb creature, with mobile lips, lustrous eyes, and a full, broad forehead.—Letter from Warsaw.

The New Minister to England.

John Welsh is a native of Philadelphia, and is 72 years of age. He has been many years a member of a large house in the India trade, importing for others on commission, but not on their own account. They pay a heavy amount of duties into the Custom House, perhaps more than any other firm in this city. Mr. Welsh is best known as the President of the Centennial Board of Finance, and to his efforts Philadelphians largely attribute the success of the great exhibition. His services were recognized by a subscription of $50,000 for a testimonial from his fellow-citizens, and this testimonial, at his suggestion, took the shape of the John Welsh Professorship in the University of Pennsylvania. He is a prominent member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and is one of the founders and largest contributors to the Protestant Episcopal Hospital in this city.—Philadelphia Letter.

Exterminating the Squirrels.

The California farmers, who have been greatly annoyed by the depredations of myriads of squirrels, are being relieved by a man who seems to be a legitimate successor of the Pied Piper. His stock in trade are poisonous pills, sugar-covered with something which he has discovered to be especially attractive to the squirrel tribe, and he undertakes to rid farms of all the squirrels at so much an acre. He has been very successful, and wherever he has distributed his patent pills the dead squirrels lie in heaps.

A Power to Supersede Steam.

Mr. Wm. Wallwork, who died a few days ago at London, Eng., completed an invention just before his death which he styled "a new new power to supersede steam." Subsequently the machine was tested, and, it is reported, partially justifies what the deceased said it would do. Its power, he said, was unlimited, and it blew off air at a pressure of forty pounds. The machine is now being patented. It is very simple of construction; it emits no smoke, having no fire; works noiselessly, and, it is claimed, will do the work of a fifty-horse-power engine.

Driven to Insanity by Base-Ball.

Samuel Lindsay, a prominent base-ball player of Catskill, N. Y., has been placed in the Insane Hospital at Poughkeepsie. Lindsay was a catcher; a red-hot ball had been sent in by the pitcher, and the striker had tipped it just enough to throw it out of its course, and the man behind the bat was struck on the forehead. He was insensible for several days, but attempted, after a fortnight's illness, to return to his work. Subsequently he manifested symptoms of insanity, and it became necessary to keep him manacled and strapped.

SHEEP are being shipped from Mexico through Texas to St. Louis and Chicago.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

BY [illegible] F. CHANCE.

"Naught but the fittest lives," I hear
Sung on the [illegible] breezes of thought;
"To Nature's heart the strong are dear;
The weak must pass unloved, unsought."

And yet, in undertones, a Voice
Is heard that says: "Oh child of earth,
Your mind's best work, your heart's best choice,
Shall stand with God for what they're worth."

'Tis not the strong alone survives;
Truth, Beauty, Virtue, scattered wide
In humble soil, bear noble lives
Whose fruits forever must abide.

Time's buildings are not all of stone;
With frailest fibers Nature spins
Her living webs from zone to zone,
And what is lost she daily wins.

[illegible]
Between [illegible] and farms,
[illegible]
[illegible]

This [illegible]
From open windows to the breeze,
Some bird of spring perchance may use
To build her nest in garden trees.

These pictures, painted without art,
Surpassed by younger sight and skill,
May pass into some friendly heart,
Some room with Nature's smiles may fill.

These leaves of light and earnest rhyme,
Dropped on the windy world, though lost
Neglected now, some future time
May weave into its nest of song.

—Atlantic Monthly for November.

PITH AND POINT.

JOINT occupation—Carving.

RULING classes—Schoolmasters.

HOTEL-KEEPERS are people we have to "put up with."

"THIS," thought a boy while being trounced by his fond papa, "is very like a whale."

A STUTTERING PROFESSOR says: "The Dog Star is no star at all. It is a p-p-p-pup-planet."

"NO, MA'AM," said a grocer to an applicant for credit, "I wouldn't even trust my own feelings."

THE man who sees a friend running after him nowadays thinks whether he owes him anything before he says "Good morning."

SEVEN-EIGHTHS of the entire population of America are in debt to each other. Well, indeed may our people be called the sturdy owemanry.—Hawk-Eye.

A SHOPKEEPER of great experience says that however talkative clerks may be during the day, they are always ready to shut up at night.

"THE single-scull race!" exclaimed an old lady as she laid down her morning paper, "I didn't know as they had discovered a race with double skulls!"

OLD gent to boy (who is smoking the end of a cigar he has picked up)—"Ugh, for shame, throw the nasty thing away." Boy—"What! for you to pick up and smoke, eh? I knows yer!"

A TRAMP called at a house on West Hill, the other day, and asked for something to eat. He was so thin, he said, that when he had a pain he couldn't tell whether it was a touch of the colic or the backache.—Hawk-Eye.

IT is admitted on all sides that business is much better now than it was at this period last year, and yet there is less bustle seen on our principal streets than was exhibited a year ago. Fashion is to blame for this.

A BACKWOODSMAN, on hearing an Eastern Bishop preach a sermon in a frontier church without a manuscript, said: "He is the first of them fine fellers that I have ever seen that could shoot without a rest."

SUE chuckled and was much amused;
A pun—she showed it in her face;
"Having," she said, "the past perused,
I Cleopatra's needle traced—
Why, Tom, it probably was used
To hem old Pompey's pillow-case!"

—Graphic.

THAT Georgia negro preacher was both frank and shrewd who remarked to his flock: "We have a collection to make this morning, and, for the glory of heaven, whichever of you stole Mr. Smith's sheep, don't put anything on the plate."

A COUNTRY couple, newly married, stopped at a hotel, and the bridegroom called for some wine. When asked what kind of wine he would have, he replied: "We want that kind of wine where the corks pop out and the liquor boils up like soap-suds."

"I WAS born in Bath," said a dirty-looking customer, as he harangued a crowd at a political meeting, "and I love my native place." "You don't look as if you had ever been there since," said one of his hearers, as he proceeded to laud an opposition candidate.

THESE are Puck's Autumn Thoughts:

Autumn man get drunk?
Autumn mule kick?
Autumn monkey marry?
Autumn maiden kiss?
Autumn musician musick?
Ought 'um?

A LADY in general conversation, by ingeniously cooking her dates, was reducing her age to an astonishing limit. Her daughter, whose partly French blood had brought her a keen wit, interposed with the remonstrance, "At least, leave nine months between our ages, mamma!"

"IT is social death," says a fashionable magazine, "when it becomes known that a young man wears corsets." This is as it should be, too. It's all very well for an enterprising young man to wear corsets for a day or two, just to become an expert with them, but to wear them as a practice is miserable.

WHEN you see a young fellow who a year ago used to step up and order lager for the crowd with the utmost sang froid patiently trundling a baby carriage along the street on Sunday afternoon, and looking chapfallen in his last season's hat, don't it speak volumes for the reforming influence of woman's society?—Puck.

A CLERGYMAN was preparing his discourse for Sunday, stopping occasionally to review what he had written, and to erase that which he disapproved, when he was accosted by his little son, who numbered but five summers: "Father, does God tell you what to preach?" "Certainly, my child." "Then what makes you scratch it out?"

A COMMON TALE.

Down dropped the pipe, the elbow fell,
The good wife scolded free,
And the misfit joints they wrought a spell
That raised old Cain with me.
I pounded them in, I pried them out,
But hear, oh man and brother!
Both ends of every joint of pipe
Were bigger than the other.
Oh! never again while life may last
Will I be found so green,
However may howl the wintry blast,
To fool with a stove, I ween.

—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

MODERN REVIVAL HYMNS.

The Remarkable Spread of Moody and Sankey's Songs.

(From the Galaxy.)

A distinguishing feature of our great religious revivals of the past half dozen years has been the important part which singing has played in them. Not only has a singer accompanied the preacher—as Mr. Sankey accompanied Mr. Moody, as Mr. Bliss accompanied Maj. Whittle, as Mr. Bentley accompanied Mr. Hammond, as Mr. Hillman accompanied Mr. Graves, and as Mr. Johnson accompanied Mr. Needham—but great local choirs in each city have aided the evangelists by an impressive service of song.

The extent of this hymnal service has not been more remarkable than its excellence, both as regards words and melodies. Its leading trait has been hearty hopefulness, cheerfulness and enthusiasm. The key-note of old-time revivals was terror; that of modern revivals is persuasion. And this difference appears more clearly even in their songs than in their sermons. Moffat and Cartwright, Finney and Knapp, drew awful pictures of the fate of the impenitent; but the modern evangelist paints rather the hopes of heaven, and the glories of belonging to the noble army of Christian workers on earth. Hence a genuine martial ring is heard in the popular revival melody. There is a thrilling quality in "Only an Armor-Bearer," or "Hold the Fort," or "Pull for the Shore," which seems to be almost a modern characteristic. It is true that some early popular revival melodies had this trait: "When I can read my title clear," and "Canaan," and in general the "Jerusalem" style of ditties, not to speak of the grandly sonorous tunes, like "Coronation," being quite as rapturous as anything in more recent hymnology. But in the earlier hand-books of revival music the proportion of "awakening," that is to say, mournfully startling hymns, such as, "Oh, there will be wailing, wailing, wailing, at the judgment-seat of God!" was much greater than in the modern.

Perhaps in the effort to be bright and encouraging some of the revival tunes have gone to the extreme of liveliness, and are too much like a jig for decorous and solemn worship. By giving a little extra speed and trippingness to "Hold the Fort" it has been used for dancing. But there is no denying the power or the popularity of these gospel tunes, often called the "Moody and Sankey tunes." They have gone to every home; they are sung in camp, on shipboard, on the railroad train; the very street-organs grind them out; and the other day they even got into the witness-box, for a witness in a Pennsylvania lawsuit, an Englishman, began his testimony, "As I was walking along, singing 'What shall the 'arvest be?'" etc.

Forrest's Version of the Fort Pillow Affair.

"When I went into the war I meant to fight. Fighting means killing. I have lost twenty-nine horses in the war, and have killed a man each time. The other day I was a horse ahead, but at Selma they surrounded me and I killed two—jumped my horse over a one-horse wagon and got away." I began to think I had some idea of the man at last. He continued: "My Provost Marshal's book will show that I have taken 31,000 prisoners during the war. At Fort Pillow I sent in a flag of truce, and demanded an unconditional surrender, or I would not answer for my men. This they refused. I sent them another note, giving them one hour to determine. This they refused. I could see on the river boats loaded with troops. They sent back asking for an hour more. I gave them twenty minutes. I sat on my horse during the whole time. The fort was filled with niggers and deserters from our army; men who lived side by side with my men. I waited five minutes after the time, and then blew my bugle for the charge. In twenty minutes my men were over the works and the firing had ceased. The citizens and Yankees had broken in the heads of whisky and lager-beer barrels and were all drunk. They kept up firing all the time as they went down the hill. Hundreds of them rushed to the river and tried to swim to the gunboats, and my men shot them down. The Mississippi river was red with their blood for 300 yards. During all this their flag was still flying, and I rushed over the works and cut the halyards and let it down and stopped the fight. Many of the Yankees were in tents in front, and they were in their way, as they concealed my men, and some of them set them on fire. If any were burned to death it was in these tents. They have a living witness in Capt. Young, their Quartermaster, who is still alive, and I will leave it to any prisoner I have ever taken if I have not treated them well."

Nine Years Without Sleep.

Mr. Thomas McElrath, an emigrant from the North of Ireland, settled in Marlborough, Ulster county, N. Y., many years ago. He is an upright, honest, and a much-respected citizen of that place, being a member of the Rev. B. C. Niven's congregation. A rumor has been in circulation for years to the effect that this gentleman has worked at his occupation as a farmer, apparently happy, enjoying good health, and yet had not at any time in nine years been blessed with a really refreshing sleep. To make sure of the facts before publishing we sent a reporter to interview Mr. McElrath and make a verbatim report. The reporter informed this gentleman what his mission was, when he replied as follows: "I came to this country in the year 1832 from County Antrim, Ireland. I was in excellent health, and continued to remain so until nine years ago. I was then attacked with dysentery, and was confined to my bed for over a month. Dr. William Gedney, of Milton, attended me then and since. After I began to get well I could not sleep till about 12 o'clock at night. A week or ten days later I could not sleep till 1 o'clock, and so on for six months, till the present time I have not closed my eyes in sleep for nine years. I hear every sound during the night while my family are in bed and sound asleep. I frequently rise and read for hours, but my head feels dizzy all the time; my back aches, my eyes are sore; although people tell me I look well for my years, I am really very weak, and have not worked very much for the last two or three years on my farm. Oh! yes, I lie down during the day, but sleep nary a wink. Yes, sir, I am positive I have not slept in nine years. My family and others have watched me for many weeks—yes, and for months—to see if they could catch me asleep; but it's of no use. I can't sleep, and that's the end of it. I'll give any man $50 who will give me just one night's rest. No, I can't stay on my feet for over two or three hours at a time. My memory is good. How much do I weigh? Well, I should judge somewhere about 160 pounds. I've tried everything, and nothing affords me relief. I wish I was dead."—Kingston (N. Y.) Courier.

Stock-Gambling in San Francisco.

It is absolutely surprising to see what a mania prevails here for stock-gambling. Capitalists, merchants, clerks, servant-girls—all shades of professions and vocations—are engaged in it, hoping to realize sudden fortunes. Men of opulence are impoverished by a single deal. Mill[illegible] change hands in a month. When one comes to ascertain that the most of the mining stocks in the market are absolutely worthless, it is past my comprehension why investments in them are made. I have been making some figures and I find that only thirty-two out of the sixty-seven mines in Nevada ever declared a dividend. Thirteen only have declared dividends within the past two years. There are some 217 mining industries on the Pacific coast, and their total dividends up to the present time foot up $108,859,690. Of this amount Consolidated Virginia and California have paid $50,760,000, or nearly one-half. The total amount of assessments levied on these 217 mines aggregates $59,259,103. Taking out four mines from the list, it is found that there has been more money put into the rest than was ever taken out. Deducting $97,580,700, the aggregate dividends of the seventeen bonanza mines, and we have $11,279,110 as the total dividends of the remaining 200 mines, or $48,000,000 less than the total amount of assessments levied during the period that dividends were made. Outside of a few of the bonanzas all the money made in mining stocks is by mine managers and their friends. The victims are the fools who are captured by stock-sharps, and who are led to risk every dollar they have in the world, too often on a single venture. Such fraud and robbery as is practiced by stock manipulators here is without precedent.
—Cor. Boston Journal.

The Origin of Postage Stamps.

The origin of the stamp had a tinge of romance in it. It was thirty-seven years ago that Rowland Hill, while crossing a district in the North of England, arrived at the door of an inn where a postman had stopped to deliver a letter. A young girl came out to receive it; she turned it over and over in her hand and asked the price of postage. This was a large sum, and evidently the girl was poor, for the postman demanded a shilling. She sighed sadly, and said the letter was from her brother, but that she had no money; and so she returned the letter to the postman. Touched with pity, Mr. Hill paid the postage and gave the letter to the girl, who seemed very much embarrassed. Scarcely had the postman turned his back when the innkeeper's young daughter confessed that it was a trick between her and her brother. Some signs on the envelope told her all she wanted to know, but the letter contained no writing. "We are both so poor," she added, "that we invented this mode of corresponding without paying for our letters." The traveler, continuing his road, asked himself if a system giving place to such frauds was not a vicious one. Before sunset Rowland had planned to organize the postal service on a new basis—with what success is known to the world.

Gov. Morton's Disease.

In conversation Dr. Thompson expressed himself very confident that the Senator's death resulted not from any reflex action of the paralysis of the left arm, but from a paralysis of the nervous center itself. For the past ten days he has received an average of six letters a day suggesting treatment for dyspepsia and indigestion, showing that a wrong impression obtained as to the Senator's condition. He was not troubled with dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, except as it resulted from a partial paralysis of the pneumogastric nerve—hence treatment for dyspepsia would not touch the trouble. It was the paralysis which had to be reached, and failure to restore this nerve thus affected naturally resulted in death.—Indianapolis Journal.

OVER-PRODUCTION is the bane of the pig-iron business. R. W. Raymond, in the November Atlantic, shows that the 750 furnaces in this country could produce 5,000,000 tons of the article, while only 2,000,000 tons are actually needed.

Vienna Rolls.

To one quart of flour add two teaspoonfuls of DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER, sift thoroughly, put in a little salt, and rub a table-spoonful of lard or butter through the flour; use enough sweet milk for a soft dough; roll out and cut with a round cutter; fold over like a turn-over, wetting the edges with milk to make them adhere; wash over with milk to give them a gloss; place in a pan so they will not touch each other, and bake fifteen or twenty minutes. They are delicious.

Gleason's Publications.

Great reduction in price for 1878 of GLEASON'S PICTORIAL to $2 a year. Single copies 5 cents.

The HOME CIRCLE to $2 a year, single copies 6 cents; for sale by all newsdealers.

GLEASON'S MONTHLY COMPANION to $1 a year, single copies 10 cents. All postage free.

The price of Chromos has just been greatly reduced. No one now gives such liberal terms to agents as we do. Send for new free circular. Address F. GLEASON & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

Mrs. General Sherman,

Wife of the General of the United States Army, says: "I have frequently purchased Durang's Rheumatic Remedy for friends suffering with Rheumatism; and in every instance it worked like magic." Send for circular to Helphenstine & Bentley, Druggists, Washington, D. C.

THE editorial staff of the Christian Union (Horatio C. King, Publisher, 27 Park Place, New York), comprises Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and Rev. Lyman Abbott (Editors), C. L. Norton, John Habberton (author of "Helen's Babies," etc.), Rev. L. W. Bacon, Mrs. H. W. Beecher, and W. H. Coleman. Price $3. Four months, $1. A serial story by Mrs. H. B. Stowe will begin in November.

BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS.—The superiority of these extracts consists in their perfect purity and great strength. They are warranted free from the poisonous oils and acids which enter into the composition of many of the factitious fruit flavors now in the market.

The Welfare of the Human System

Is, in a great measure, dependent upon the way in which the bowels perform their evacuative function. If they are regular—and they can always be rendered so by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—an important essential of health is secured, and that blessing is very apt to follow. If they are irregular, chronic constipation and indigestion supervene, the liver becomes disordered, and the bile, being diverted from its natural channel and purposes, enters and contaminates the blood, producing that yellowish cast of the skin and whites of the eyes which is such a sure index of biliousness. All these disastrous consequences, as well as others of a far more serious nature, are remedied and prevented by Hostetter's Bitters, the leading American specific for disorders of the bowels, stomach and liver.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

"Durang's Rheumatic Remedy," the great Internal Medicine, will positively cure any case of rheumatism on the face of the earth. Price, $1 a bottle, six bottles, $5. Sold by all druggists. Send for circular to Helphenstine & Bentley, Druggists, Washington, D. C.

[illegible] nothing. It's your interest to be again on. So I'll run the risk; as I have no money to pay till I'm satisfied. I can buy a Five-Ton Wagon Scale of Jones, of Binghamton, Binghamton, N. Y., for $60, on trial, and freight paid at that.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

SEE Something New advertised by Goodhue & Co.

Handsome Pictures Free!—Two elegant 6x8 Chromos, worthy to adorn the walls of any home, and a Three Months' Trial of LEISURE HOURS, a charming 16-page literary paper, full of the best Stories, Poetry, Wit, etc., sent Free to any one sending Fifteen Cents (stamps taken) to pay mailing expenses. Money returned to those not satisfied they are Double Value. J. L. Patten & Co., Publishers, 162 William St., N. Y. $1,500 in prizes, and big pay, given to agents. Write now.

THE GREAT REGULATOR.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

PURELY VEGETABLE.

An Effectual Specific for Malarious Fevers,
Bowel Complaints, Dyspepsia,
Mental Depression,
Restlessness,
Jaundice,
Nausea, Colic
Sick Headache,
Constipation and Biliousness.

ASK the recovered dyspeptics, Bilious sufferers, victims of Fever and Ague, the mercurial diseased patient, how they recovered health, cheerful spirits and good appetite—they will tell you by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This justly celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion, and fortifies the system against malarial diseases.

Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies."

CONSTIPATION.

TESTIMONY OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF GEORGIA.—"I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it."—HIRAM WARNER, Chief Justice of Georgia.

ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

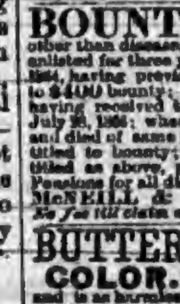
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & Co. Chicago.

WORK FOR ALL

In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged) Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

WEBER'S METROPOLITAN CORSET!



THE ONLY CORSET COMBINING

Grace, Comfort and Beauty!

Is constructed on purely scientific principles. The back is whole boned and left open at the hips to be laced at pleasure of wearer, and is so gored in back that the fabrics and bones adapt themselves with marvelous accuracy to every curve and undulation of the finest type or figure. For sale by all leading merchants. Lady Agents wanted. Sample by mail on receipt of $1.50.

Eastern Depot, J. Beckel & Co., 454 Broadway, New York.

WESTERN DEPOT, KEITH BROS., Chicago, Ill.

BOUNTY! Soldiers discharged for wounds, rupture, or injury, other than disease, can secure full bounty; those who re-enlisted for three years between Jan. 1, 1863, and April 1, 1864, having previously served nine months, are entitled to $400 bounty; those who enlisted before July 4, 1861, having received but $100, are entitled to bounty, act July 28, 1866; where soldier was discharged for disease, and died of same prior to July 28, 1866, the widow is entitled to bounty; if soldier is dead, the heirs are entitled as above, provided bounty has not been paid. Pensions for all disabled soldiers. Address, with stamp, McNEILL & BIRCH, Washington, D. C. No fee till claim allowed.

BUTTER COLOR. After fair trial and severe tests, it was awarded Centennial Prize Medal. WHY IT IS SUPERIOR TO ALL: 1st. It has no taste or smell, and is as harmless as water. 2d. It is liquid, is easy to handle, and is mixed in cream before churning. 3d. It produces a color resembling June Grass Butter. 4th. It is the only article that will color the butter and not the buttermilk. 5th. It gathers the butter materials, increases the weight more than will pay for the color used. It is the best ever known. Send your address on postal card for my receipt book, free. It tells how to make butter, pack, preserve, extract rancidity. Mrs. B. SMITH, 327 Arch St. P. O. Box 1851, Philadelphia, Pa.

DURING the past four years we have given employment to thousands of persons and can give the same to as many more—if you want to engage in a safe, legitimate and profitable business, you should apply at once. We are the originators of the most popular plan now in existence for agents and others to develop the Tea business—costs nothing to get it—is thoroughly practical—no humbug—procures unlimited sales—pays handsomely—a perfect success adapted to both male and female—for particulars, address

THE CARTON TEA CO.,
P. O. Box 572. 148 Chambers Street, New York.

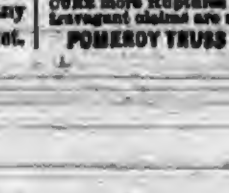
DAVIS' PAIN KILLER
TAKEN INTERNALLY

There is nothing to equal it, relieving you of pain in a short time, and curing all bowel complaints, such as colic, cramps, spasms, heartburn, diarrhea, dysentery, flux, wind in the bowels, sour stomach, dyspepsia, sick headache. In sections of the country where Fever and Ague prevails there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or bowel troubles from change of water. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,

Desiring the Best Book extant, should try FAVORITE SONGS. An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. B. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $6.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

Nature's Cure. For Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Neuralgia, Nervous Weakness and Diseases is The Voltaic Belt. When worn it generates Electricity—the great curative agent. Physicians use and recommend it. Try it. $5. Novelty Truss—a comfortable, durable and perfect Hernia supporter—$4. Adjustable Uterine Supporter—highly recommended—$5. Digital Syringe—combines syringe, forceps and speculum, hard rubber—$3. Pile Supporter—comfortably worn on horseback—medicine case as it—$3.50. Discount to trade and physicians. Goods sent C. O. D. Address CHICAGO VOLTAIC AND TRUSS CO., 50 Washington Street, Chicago.



The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.

POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

SOMETHING NEW (from Boston) in Copying and Enlarging Photographs, etc., and coloring them in natural colors to hang on the wall. Agents wanted. Profits large. Reap the first fruits of something new. Sample free. GOODHUE & CO., Chicago.

WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGANS.

The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.

New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

JACKSON'S BEST SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO

was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

$1.00 $1.00

Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.

The choicest ornaments for the home. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
BOSTON, MASS.

$1.00 $1.00

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

The prevention and cure of CONSUMPTION, as also of Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the LUNGS and THROAT, may be realized in which is also recommended as a certain and radical cure for all general and special derangements of the Nervous System, Disorders of the Blood, and FUNCTIONAL Disorders of the STOMACH and BOWELS, and as a general BRAIN, NERVE and BLOOD TONIC.

PULMONA,

PULMONA banishes, with wonderful rapidity, all the general symptoms of CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. It imparts strength and color to the pale blood, subdues the CHILLS and FEVER, and diminishes the expectoration. It checks the NIGHT SWEATS, invigorates the appetite, relieves the cough and difficult breathing, stops the wasting of flesh, and induces a calm and refreshing sleep.

PULMONA is adapted to every disease, however called by name, in which is exhibited any derangement of either the NERVOUS or the BLOOD SYSTEMS. For Female Disorders it is positively unequaled.

PULMONA supplies the place of "Cough Mixtures" for the Cough, "Tonics" for the Appetite, "Expectorants" for the Expectoration, Anodynes for the Nervous Irritation, and Iron for the Blood, and thus is both the best and the most economical medicine that can be taken. By a specific action upon the Constitutional Condition it reaches and has a direct effect upon the whole series of symptoms. PULMONA is confidently recommended in all cases wherein are exhibited any one or more of the following symptoms:

COUGH, DIFFICULTY OR IRREGULARITY OF BREATHING, WASTING OF THE FLESH, LOSS OF APPETITE OR STRENGTH, BLEEDING FROM THE LUNGS, GENERAL DEBILITY, FLYING PAINS THROUGH THE CHEST, LIMBS OR FACE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, NIGHT SWEATS, DIZZINESS OR VERTIGO, SORE THROAT, SLEEPLESSNESS, INDIGESTION, SINKING OF THE STOMACH, REMITTENT FEVER, and especially in all Female Diseases or Uterine Irregularities.

Read the Following Certificates.

COLLEGE HILL, CINCINNATI, O.—"I was in the last stage of Consumption. Ten days after taking PULMONA my Chills, Night Sweats, Fever, &c., decreased, and finally ceased altogether. My restored health is a marvel to all who know me."—T. J. CARSON.

"PULMONA saved my daughter's life, and probably saved me hundreds of dollars."—REV. E. JONES, Rome, N. Y.

"We bless God for the benefit we received from your PULMONA."—REV. P. WARREN, Canton, Pa.

A SUFFERER FROM ASTHMA writes: "Your PULMONA is decidedly the best remedy we have ever had, and the only one that has produced entirely favorable results."—GEO. M. GRAHAM, Amsterdam, N. Y.

The price of the PULMONA is $1 per bottle. It may be obtained through Druggists generally, or directly from the Proprietor, OSCAR G. MOSES, 18 Cortlandt Street, New York. Send for free circular, containing particulars of MANY cases successfully treated.

Best Books for Singing Schools.

CHORUS CHOIR INSTRUCTION BOOK.

By A. N. JOHNSON. JUST OUT. Contains the system of this celebrated teacher, so minutely and plainly described, that it is the easiest and best Manual for Teachers and Leaders, and is also a most entertaining, useful, and thorough book for all Music Classes and Conventions—with the plainest of plain instructions, and 280 pages of the best music, graded from the easiest to the most difficult, and continually referred to. This book also best answers that perplexing question: "How to have good singing in Congregations." $1.25; or $12.00 per doz.

THE ENCORE. By L. O. EMERSON. This fine book has already been used by thousands, who have had but one opinion as to its admirable collection of Sacred Music, of Glees, Quartets, Trios, Duets, Songs, &c., for practice. It is a capital Glee Book as well as Singing-Class Book. Thorough Instructive Course. 75 cts.; or $7.50 per doz.

PERKINS' SINGING SCHOOL. By W. O. PERKINS. This, like the "Encore," is an excellent Glee Book as well as Singing-School Book, and will be a fine book for Conventions and for easy practice in Choirs and Societies. Good instructive course, and the best of music. 75 cts.; or $6.75 per doz.

All teachers and convention holders are invited to insure their success this season by using one of these books. For sale everywhere. Copies sent post-free by mail for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

C. H. Ditson & Co.,	J. E. Ditson & Co.,
843 BROADWAY,	Successors to Lee & Walker,
New York.	Phila.

THOMSON'S PATENT GLOVE-FITTING CORSETS.

The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark a CROWN, are stamped on every Corset & Steel.

SURPASSES ALL OTHERS IN COMFORT
GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

PRINTERS

SEND [illegible] FOR [illegible] ON BEAUTIFUL [illegible] SHOWING 56 PRINTING PRESSES AND OVER 1000 SMALL FONTS OF TYPE, CUTS, BORDERS &c.

BENTON, GOVE & CO
MILWAUKEE WIS.

THE GOOD OLD STAND-BY.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

FOR MAN AND BEAST.

ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

THE CHEAPEST & BEST ADVERTISING

TO REACH READERS OUTSIDE OF THE LARGE CITIES.

We represent over 1,000 Newspapers, having a weekly circulation of over 800,000 Copies, divided into six different lists, covering different sections of the country.

Advertisements received for one or more lists. For catalogues, containing names of papers and other information, and for estimates, address

BEALS & FOSTER,
41 Park Row (Times Building), New York.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

Absolutely Pure.

All Grocers authorized to guarantee it full weight, and absolutely pure. To try it, send 60 cents for 1-pound can to ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., N. Y. Sent by mail free of postage.

BOOK AGENTS, TAKE NOTICE!

JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE

Has "wrote another book," and it is really

SAMANTHA AT THE CENTENNIAL!

As a P. A. and P. I. outdoes herself, and WIDOW DOODLE leaves BETSEY BOBBET far behind. Don't wait and lose your chance; send for circulars, territory, &c., at once. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O., and HARTFORD, CONN.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having received from an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections; also a cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French, or English, with full directions. Address, with stamp, W. W. SHERAR, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

"The Best Polish in the World."

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief for ASTHMA. Price 35cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

BURNETT'S KALLISTON

FOR REMOVING

Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Eruptions of the Skin, and for Rendering the Complexion Clear and Beautiful.

Of all the effects that exposure of the skin to the air or sun produces, the most disagreeable is called freckles, or tan. If spread over the entire surface of the parts exposed, it is called tan; if scattered at intervals, freckles. The finest skins are most subject to them. The KALLISTON, prepared by Joseph Burnett & Co., Boston, contains a peculiar emulsive property which will remove these disagreeable stains. It is at the same time perfectly harmless, allays all tendency to inflammation, and renders the complexion clear and beautiful.

JONAS WHITCOMB'S ASTHMA REMEDY
—TRADE MARK—

FOR ASTHMA, ROSE COLD, HAY FEVER, Etc.

This remedy has been used in thousands of the worst cases, with astonishing and uniform success, and is offered to the public with full confidence in its merits. It contains no poisonous or injurious properties whatever, and an infant may take it with perfect safety.

Extract from the "Life of Washington Irving," by his nephew, Pierre M. Irving, Vol. IV., page 272.

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment,—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit,—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma,' a teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

"I have had the spasmodic asthma fifteen years. I commenced taking 'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for the Asthma' eighteen months ago, and have not had a severe paroxysm since." SARAH SEELY, Eddytown, Yates Co., N. Y., to Editors Rural New Yorker.

"Have sold 'Whitcomb's Remedy' for nearly twenty years. I know of nothing so uniformly successful." THEODORE METCALF, Druggist, Tremont Street, Boston.

"I have derived very great benefit from 'Jonas Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy.'" G. F. OSBORNE, President Neptune Insurance Co., Boston, Mass.

"My mother had suffered eight years from the harvest asthma. The recurrence of this three-months' agony every year must soon wear her out. 'Jonas Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy' arrested the terrible disease, and has kept it off for the whole season, to the great joy of the family." Rev. JOS. E. ROY, Chicago, Agent of the American Home Missionary Society, in the N. Y. Independent.

Prepared only by JOSEPH BURNETT & CO. Boston. For sale by all Druggists.

POND'S EXTRACT. POND'S EXTRACT.

The People's Remedy.

The Universal Pain Extractor.

Note: Ask for Pond's Extract.

Take no Other.

"Hear, for I will speak of excellent things."

POND'S EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for cleanliness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled.

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises, Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application. Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc. Arrests inflammation, reduces swellings, stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly.

LADIES find it their best friend. It assuages the pains to which they are peculiarly subject—notably fullness and pressure in the head, nausea, vertigo, etc. It promptly ameliorates and permanently heals all kinds of inflammations and ulcerations.

HEMORRHOIDS or PILES find in this the only immediate relief and ultimate cure. No case, however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use.

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure.

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere.

TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved and often permanently cured.

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract recommend it in their practice. We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians; many of whom order it for use in their own practice. In addition to the foregoing they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simple and chronic Diarrhœa, Catarrh (for which it is a specific), Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc., Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin diseases.

TOILET USE. Removes Soreness, Roughness and Smarting; heals Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples. It revives, invigorates and refreshes, while wonderfully improving the Complexion.

TO FARMERS—Pond's Extract. No Stock Breeder, no Livery Man can afford to be without it. It is used by all the leading Livery Stables, Street Railroads and first Horsemen in New York City. It has no equal for Sprains, Harness or Saddle Chafings, Stiffness, Scratches, Swellings, Cuts, Lacerations, Bleedings, Pneumonia, Colic, Diarrhœa, Chills, Colds, etc. Its range of action is wide, and the relief it affords is so prompt that it is invaluable in every Farm-yard as well as in every Farm-house. Let it be tried once and you will never be without it.

CAUTION! Pond's Extract has been imitated. The genuine article has the words Pond's Extract blown in each bottle. It is prepared by the only persons living who ever knew how to prepare it properly. Refuse all other preparations of Witch Hazel. This is the only article used by Physicians, and in the hospitals of this country and Europe.

HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT COMPANY, 98 Maiden Lane, New York.

NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

GOOD FOR THE CHILDREN.

BOSTON HOME, 14 Tyler street,
Boston, April, 1876.

H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—We feel that the children in our Home have been greatly benefited by the VEGETINE you have so kindly given us from time to time, especially those troubled with the Scrofula.
With respect,
MRS. N. WORMELL, Matron.

Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for pictures to Chicago, Ill.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.

$3300 A YEAR. How to Make It. New Agents Goods. COE & YONGE, St. Louis, Mo.

$50 to $75 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Pub'g House, Chicago.

BEATTY Piano, Organ best. [illegible] Organs, 13 stops $98. Pianos only [illegible] cost $650. Cir. Free. Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

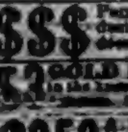
$$$ Persons, male or female, old or young, who desire liberal pay for honest [illegible] W. F. [illegible] & Co., [illegible]

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. [illegible]

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

A [illegible] CAN MAKE $25 PER DAY [illegible] PATENT [illegible] FAUCET. [illegible] Circular. WORSWICK M'F'G CO., Cleveland, Ohio.

PENSIONS Increased [illegible] every wounded, ruptured [illegible] permanently injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. L. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Ag'ty, Washington, D. C.



SELF-INKING TRIUMPH PRINTING PRESS, $3.50; Outfit & Press, $6.50. Young Americas hand & self-inkers the best for business. Send 3 stamps for catalogue to D. W. WATSON, 73 Cornhill, Boston, Mass.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

Brilliant Jewelry! Something new—hard to detect from the finest gold. Studs and Sleeve Buttons 25 cts set; Plain or Chased Rings 25 cts. each; Ladies' or Gents' Bosom Pin, Necklace or Vest Chain, 50 cts. Ladies' Set (Pin and Ear-drops) imitation Cameo Stone, $1. The entire set for $2, postage paid. W. CHANNING & Co., Augusta, Maine.

BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT.

The best family newspaper published; eight pages, fifty-six columns reading.

Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of eleven, $20 per annum, in advance.

SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.

BOYS GIRLS Wanted Everywhere to send for a sample copy of "The Home Companion," [illegible] the cheapest and best young folks' paper published. An immense circulation built up in 4 years. Great premiums for getting up clubs, including Organs, Gold Watches, &c. Only 50c a year. Eight pages full of puzzles, stories & choicest reading. Samples and terms free. S. L. THORPE, Publisher, 14 Bolivar St., Cleveland, O.

AGENTS WANTED!

FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS

WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.

829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.

PRINTERS AND STATIONERS!

Send 50 cents and get a large sample package of our NOVELTIES in Ball Programmes, Visiting Cards, Wedding Stationery, Billet de Correspondence Envelopes and Note with monogram, date (something new), fine Cardboard, etc. Address THE NEWSPAPER UNION, 181 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED FOR

Creative Science;

Or, MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD, AND THEIR MUTUAL INTER-RELATIONS; LOVE, ITS LAWS, POWER, ETC.

Agents are selling from 15 to 25 copies a day. Send for specimen pages and our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure. The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N. Y.

TO ADVERTISERS! We will send free to all applicants who do any newspaper advertising, the THIRD EDITION of AYER & SON'S MANUAL FOR ADVERTISERS. 160 8vo pp. More complete than any which have preceded it. Gives the names, circulation, and advertising rates of several thousand newspapers in the United States and Canada, and contains more information of value to an advertiser than can be found in any other publication. All lists have been carefully revised, and where practicable prices have been reduced. The special offers are numerous and unusually advantageous. Be sure to send for it before spending any money in newspaper advertising. Address N. W. AYER & SON, ADVERTISING AGENTS, Times Building, Philadelphia.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivaled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment, the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture. For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 oz. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address

B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

GRACE'S SALVE

A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,

Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon to King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds, that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

SANDAL-WOOD.

A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.

Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster st., New York.

O. N. U. No. 45

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 15, 1877.

Senator Voorhees—it sounds well.

Governor Hendricks is quietly attending to his law practice. He will remain in peace until 1880, when he and his friends intend to make a rush for the Presidency. He will make a hot fight for it.

Conkling comes to the front. He declares his hostility to President Hayes, and openly asserts his intention of attacking the Administration. He feels considerably better since the New York election, and intends to be a big dog in the fight this winter.

We are very glad that the Democratic papers every where speak in favorable terms about the illness and death of Senator Morton. In return for this the Republican papers speak derisively of Mr. Voorhees, and seem to enjoy heaping abuse upon him. There is not another man in Indiana who will more ably fill the vacant seat than Mr. Voorhees, and the very papers engaged in traducing him, know this to be a fact.

An editor out west, who has been running a local paper for three years, and never uttered a word of personal abuse, always told a lie about his subscription list; never was worthy of an enemy; always published the best paper in the county—to hear him tell it—has lately discovered that he has been out of his element for thirty-six months, and will soon take charge of the editorial department of Radway's Ready Relief almanac for 1878. It is strange what a vast amount of time some men spend in finding out just where they belong.

There has been some peculiar comments upon the death of Senator Morton. One of our exchanges say that Indiana troops met with more deference and respect on account of the Governor. If such was the case it never came under our observation. It was the good fighting qualities that won for them respect, and not the name of any Governor. Morton was good to the boys, but Morton was working for Morton at the same time, and he had his eye on a splendid reward in his future. But whatever his motives, he made a good Governor at the time and deserves all credit. There was an Indiana regiment in the same brigade with two sister regiments of Ohio, and the gallant Col. Straight led it, but it never got any respect on account of its Governor, but wholly from the fact that it staid with the boys in every battle.

The soldiers of Indiana have formed a permanent organization for the purpose of raising funds to build a monument to the late Senator Morton. Gen Lew Wallace, President, C. N. Lee, Secretary, Hon. John C. New, Treasurer. Counties are asked to form organizations for more effective work in the cause. Col. Robertson is the representative of the Twelfth District. And thus it is that the private soldier is constantly paying out money for the erection of monuments to some one who has had the lion's share of the glory and a good office besides, while he has been eking out a miserable existence, and perhaps without the common comforts of life. Let the soldier officers who did well in the war, and since, contribute the monument.

DEAR EDITOR COURIER.—I have been a constant reader of your paper, and in last week's issue my attention was attracted to an article headed "Communication," and it made such an impression on my mind, (one I cannot shake off) that I feel it a duty to thank you and (J.) for that article, which I believe will find its way in more hearts than mine; and my sincere wish is that it will appeal to the hearts of many, and that they may be benefitted by the truths it presents. I for one feel thankful that we have one in our midst who is trying to abate this evil spoken of in J's. communication by bringing the subject before the public. I too, have been an observer of young men (they at least think themselves men) congregated on the street corners hurling remarks, not only at inoffensive grey-haired fathers, but at ladies who chance to be passing by. You who are strong and who should stand as protectors to the aged and weaker sex, (and who should honor and respect the sex that gave you birth), stand there cooly and deliberately speak slanderously and jeeringly about those who you know in their weakness cannot defend themselves The question arises of whom and where was this lesson first taught. I fear it can be too often traced to your homes. Mothers, sisters, do you ever in the presence of your sons and daughters, sit and gossip over the short comings of others, and speak slanderously against those who are not in hearing. If you in your hearts would say "no, I will not thus set an example before our boys," the world would be better off—you would be happier, and many a heart felt pang saved by slanderous remarks made by young boys, that too often reach the sensitive ear of a passer-by and by thus setting a good example before your family, you will be another who will help abate this evil.

A YOUNG LADY.

A woman may not be able to sharpen a pencil or hold an umbrella, but she can pack more articles into a trunk than a man can in a one horse wagon.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

NOTICE OF THE PRESS.

The veteran Magazine, which long ago outgrew its original title of the New Monthly Magazine, has not in the least abated the popularity it won at the outset, but has added to it in many ways, and has kept fairly abreast of the times, thanks to the enterprise of the publishers and tact and wisdom of its editors. For whatever is best an most readable in the literature of travel, discovery, and fiction, the average reader of to-day looks to Harper's Magazine, just as expectantly as did the reader of a quarter of a century ago; there is the same admirable variety of contents and the same freshness and suggestiveness in its editorial departments now as then. —[Boston Journal.

TERMS.

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States.

Harper's Magazine, one year. $4.00

$4.00 includes prepayment of U. S. pastage by the publishers.

Subscriptions to Harper's Magazine, Weekly, and Bazar, to one address for one year, $10.00; or, two of Harper's Periodicals, to one address for one year $7.00; pastage free.

An extra copy of either the Magazine, Weekly, or Bazar will be supplied gratis for every club of five subscribers at $4.00 each, paid for by one remittance; or, six copies one year, without extra copy, for $20.00.

Back numbers can be supplied at any time.

The volumes of the Magazine commences with the number for June and December of each year. When no time is specified, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to begin with the current number.

A complete set of Harrper's Magazines now comprising 55 volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express, freight at expense of purchaser, for $2.25 per volume. Single volumes, by mail, pospaid, $3.00. Cloth cases, for binding, 58 cents, by mail, postpaid.

A complete Analytical Index to the first fifty volumes of Harper's Magazine has been published, rendering available for reference the vast and varied welth of information which constitutes this periodical a perfect illustrated literary cyclopedia. 8vo Cloth, $3.00; Half Calf, $2.25. Sent postage prepaid.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS,
New York,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Alonzo Lockwood is plaintiff and Samuel Hickman, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Eighty-Five dollars and Seventy-Four cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 8th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lots number twenty-three [23] and twenty-four 24, in Ralston's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff,
THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

Altenberg & Lockwood Att'ys, for plaintiff.
Auburn Indiana, Nov. 14th, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.50.

True Merit Will Win.

A few years since the proprietor of Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound introduced it there.—Our people soon found it out to be the reliable and already it has become the most staple and popular pulmonary remedy in the market. It quickly cures the worst colds, coughs, croupe, bronchitis, asthma and incipient consumption Nothing acts so nicely in whooping cough, and it is so pleasant that children really like it. Containing no opium, or other dangerous drug, it is as safe as it is sure. Trial size 10c; large sizes 50c and $1.00. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson Township, DeKalb County in the State of Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said State will at the December session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, in the year 1877, apply for license to retail, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors at the following place in said township to-wit: On that portion of the North west quarter of section-six (6) in said township, bounded on the east by the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, on the south by the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad, and on the west by the Fort Wayne, Jackson and Saginaw Railroad and on the north by the line of said township.

Nov. 1 '77. CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

Administrator's Sale

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned administratrix of the estate of William Essig deceased, will offer for sale at public outcry, at the late residence of the deceased, in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the 17th day of November, 1877, the personal property of said estate, consisting of horses, cattle, sheep and farming implements and various other articles. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock, a. m.

TERMS.—All sums of three dollars and under cash, all over three dollars a credit of nine months will be given, the purchaser giving note with approved security, waiving valuation and appraisement laws, with interest.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

Liquor License.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn, in DeKalb County, in the State of Indiana is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session in December, A. D. 1877, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, in the lower story of the building situated on the north one-third of lot sixty-three in the original plat of said town, with the privilege of having the same drank where sold.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

STATE OF INDIANA, DeKalb county.

NOTICE is hereby given that Jesse M. Brumbach, Administrator of the estate of Lyman Green, deceased, has filed his petition to sell the real estate of the decedent the personal being insufficient to pay his debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Attest, G. A. K. MOSS, Clerk.
B. D. Hanna, Deputy.

The South Bend Herald has been enlarged to 48 columns, and it presents a neat and tasty appearance.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein John A. Gaiver is plaintiff and Hubbell and Bordner and Solomon Bordner are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty Dollars and fifty cents with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number eighteen [18] and nineteen [19] in Danford's addition to the town of Butler. DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs. Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Chas. W. Pricairo, Att'y for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indianan, Nov. 13th, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Chas. Kelly is plaintiff, and Orpheus L. Hall et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty, 460, dollars and fifty, 50, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number sixteen, 16 seventeen, 17, eighteen, 18, and nineteen, 19, in McAnally's addition to the town of Waterloo, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.

C. Kelly, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877. Pf. $8.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff and John A. Scholfield, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and thirteen cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 7187.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of the north-east quarter of section ten [10], township thirty five [35] north of rang fourteen [14 east, containing forty acres of land, more or less, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever, from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST CLAIR, Sheriff,

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Nov. 13th, 1877.

Pr. fee $6.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles Kelly is plaintiff, and Geo. Haines, Henry O. Haines, et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty Dollars with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number eighty-six [86], old plat, Waterloo DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.

D. Y. Husselman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 14th A. D. 1877.

Pltf's. fee $7 25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Jas. I. Best and Chas A. O. McClellan is plaintiffs, and Irven McFadden et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one thousand and four hundred and eighty-five [1485] dollars and ninety-one [91] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A portion of the north western quarter of section number three [3] in township number thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13] east in DeKalb county, Indiana, described as follows to-wit: all that portion of said quarter section lying south of the Cemetery as now recorded on said quarter section and west of the west line of the Fort Wayne Jackson and Saginaw Rail Road containing two [2] acres more or less.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

O. B. Leas one of defendants Attorneys.
Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877. Pf. $9.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mathew H. Griffith James Roberts and J. Milton Butler are plaintiffs, and George W. Young and William Richmond are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seventy five dollar ($375) and twenty-four (24) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A piece of land off the south side of the north east quarter of section thirty one (31) township thirty four-four, 34, north of range fifteen, 15 east bounded as follows to-wit: on the east by the road leading from Newville to Wannamakers corners, on the north by land owned by Lawrence Gibson, on the west by land owned by H. H. Smith on the south by open half section line running between said land and John Loveland the same to contain forty-four, 44 acres of land more or less in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CL IR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $10.75

We have not got enough wood yet to last us through the winter. Those intending to pay their subscription in this way are hereby notified.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Jacob Wibert is plaintiff, and Charles Baker and Francis Fisher are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and eleven, 111, dollars and sixty-seven, 67, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and four, 104, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Eliota Bristol and George P Bristol are plaintiffs and Jesse E. Woodford, Henrietta A. Woodford et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of nine hundred and 42, 942, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-one, 21, in Parks addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $7.75,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Edward J. Baker I plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seven, 307, dollars and ninety-four, 94, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and sixty-six, 166, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana, excepting forty, 40 feet off the east end thereof conveyed to Casper Altenberg by said Baldock.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

R. Foster Taft, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. 8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed, from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein the Auburn Building Loan and Saving Association is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and seventy-four, 474, dollars and sixty-two, 62, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and sixty-five, 165, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. 8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Orlando T. Letcher and William Letcher are plaintiffs, and Martin Maze and Mary Maze are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of six thousand fifty-two 6,052 dollars and seventy-one, 71, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The north east quarter of section twenty-four, 24, in township thirty-four, 34, north of range fourteen, 14, east excepting one acre off the north west corner of said land above described deeded to James Leonard balance containing one hundred and sixty, 160, acres more or less in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Dragoo is plaintiff, and Samuel Grush et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and forty-five [545] dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, the undivided one-third of the following described real estate, commencing at a corner stone between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road thence south seventeen and one-half [17½] degrees west along the center of said road eight and twelve one hundredths chains to a stake, thence south seventy two and one half, 72½, degrees east four 4 chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half 17½, degrees west three and seventy-five one hundredths chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one-half 72½ degrees west four, 4, chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence north seventeen and one-half, degrees, 17½, east three and seventy-five one hundredth 3.75 chains to the place of beginning, containing one and ½ acres of land in the south-west quarter of section thirty-two, 32, in township No. 34 north of range No. thirteen, 13, east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for Plaintiff,
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $12.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Miles Waterman is plaintiff, and William L. Gilmore and Ellen M. Gilmore is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and eighty-nine (289) dollars and eighty-eight (88) cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number forty-seven (47) forty-eight (48) fifty-five (55) and fifty-six (56) in Danforth's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Attorneys for plff.
Auburn, Oct. 24th, 1877. Pf. $9.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Hyman and Jacob Keller is plaintiffs, and John W. Garvey is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of six hundred, 600, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number one, 1, and two, 2, in block number thirty-two, 32 in the Town of Garrett DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Covill, Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for plff.
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $7.75,

Sheriff Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein Alfred Kelly is plaintiff and John Trosh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of ninety-six 96 Dollars, and Fifty 50 cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number Twenty seven 27 in the Western Addition to the Town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Ind.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs. I will at the same time and place expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. GROSS, Deputy.

W. L. Penfield, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Nov. 1, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Geo. Emerson, Pliny Watson, and Zebulon C. Pheatt are plaintiffs, and Eliza Gonsor, Henry Ernest et al are defendants requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and ten (510) dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

The south half of the south west quarter and the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section twenty-two (22) and fourteen (14) acres off the east side of the south east quarter of the south east quarter of section twenty-one (21) township thirty-five (35) north of range twelve (12) east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff

A. A. Chapin, Attorney for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 1st, 1877. $9.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause where Geo. Emerson et al is plaintiffs and Benajah B. Long, Edgar E Long and et al is defendants requiring me to make the sum of eleven hundred a thirty dollars ($1130), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Commencing fifteen (15) rods east of the north west corner of section four (4) thence running south to the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Rail Road thence east thirty-five (35) rods thence north to said section line thence west to the place of begining all in township thirty four (34) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff

Best & McClellan, Attorneys for plaintiffs
Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877. Pf. $9.25,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Dragoo is plaintiff, and William Whitstone, Rebecca Whitstone David Grush, and Samuel Grush are defendants requiring me to make the sum of five thousand one hundred and eighty-seven [5187] dollars and eighty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing at a corner stone in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, from thence south seventeen and one-half degrees west along the centre of said road, eight and twelve one hundredth chains to a stake thence south seventy-two and one half [72½] degrees east four [4] chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half degrees, west three and seventy-five hundredth chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one half [72½] degrees, west four chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence north seventeen and ½ deg's, east 3 75-100 chain's to the place of beginning, a piece of ground in the south west quarter of section thirty-two [32] in township thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13], east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $12.50.

NO PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

suffer as much with Neuralgia or Rheumatic complaints as Americans, and no nation is so prolific in remedies to cure, yet we come in contact every day with scores who are suffering without having found the cure they have sought for. To those who have used

Lawson's Curative

we need only to say that it is compounded with the same scientific skill and care as heretofore, and maintains the deserved reputation which it has acquired by the wonderful cures it has performed. To those who have never tested the CURATIVE we urge a trial of its virtues for the diseases named below.

Eminent and Skillful Physicians

use the CURATIVE largely in their practice, and prominent [illegible]

Rheumatism, Diphtheria,
Dyspepsia, Sciatica,
Neuralgia, Toothache,
Pleurisy, Sore Throat,
Swollen Joints, Chilblains,
Headache, Sprains,
Lame Back, Burns,
Erysipelas, Scalds,

All yield to the magic influence of the CURATIVE, no matter of how long standing. It is only necessary to use it faithfully and perseveringly, according to the directions which accompany each bottle, and you will be cured.

Lawson's Curative

Is Healing and Cooling to Wounds, Sores, Burns and Scalds.

Try it and you will never be without it.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price $1.00 per Bottle, 6 for $5.00.

PREPARED BY
Lawson Chemical Co., Cleveland, O.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

LADIES FANCY DRY GOODS

AND

MILLINERY STORE

North of Court House, Auburn, Ind.

You will find there the very newest shapes and styles in

LADIES HATS,

AND MILLINERY GOODS

Fancy Dry Goods,

Dress Goods, Feathers, Plumes and ties in all designs. Also

LADIES CLOAKS,

Of the latest patterns. Hosiery and Gloves in every discription. The lines in the new goods are complete.

J. R. LANNING.

BOOK STORE

WILLIS & CO.

Successors to C. P. Houser, having purchased the above named stock, we wish to say to the people of Auburn and vicinity that by the patronage that we hope to merit, we expect to build up a first-class

BOOK AND NEWS STORE,

that will be a credit to the place. We are adding a large variety of goods, and shall endeavor to keep on hand the novelties of the season. We solicit orders for

Books, Magazines, Papers, etc.,

which will be furnished promptly at the publishers prices by

WILLIS & CO.

October 11, '77—no11.

HURRAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE.
SIMPLEST & BEST.

A MAN CRAZY

Selling

SEWING MACHINES!

For 30 DOLLARS

Go and see them

G. H. YESBERA, AGT

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

What is my Mission.

Shall I live only for myself? Does not the sun that rises upon my luxury shine also upon the tear stained face of sorrow? Are there not slender feet stumbling wearily in rugged, lonely paths? How am I better? What word of comfort has fallen from my lips on the ear of the grief-stricken? silverware and silver-plated ware, china, glass, and crockery, knives and forks chamber sets, toilet ware, card baskets, tea sets, berry dishes, [illegible] castors, looking glasses, student lamps, chandeliers. Ward's Cheap Crockery Store, No. 9 Columbia street, Ward's Iron Dog.

A little girl named Gasion was burned to death while trying to light a fire with coal oil, a few days ago at Hicksville.

A. J. Little visited Corunna this week to get some "collatrals" from the delinquents for several parties in this place.

The R. R. temperance reading room will be kept open evenings at Butler, if the members of the club will keep up the oil.

Those of our friends who imagine that we can live and pay our debts on promises, are laboring under a fearful mistake.

The Hook and Ladder boys are preparing to give a dance on Christmas Eve. We bespeak for them a large attendance.

Quail are safe when Auburn hunters go after them. Six out of every family went out this week and no quails in the market yet.

A meeting at the M. E church last Monday was held for the purpose of making arrangements for the thanksgiving dinner.

The United Brethren minister, and the M. E. minister, at Butler, recieved a donation from the good people of that place, last week.

The army appropriation bill passed the House last Monday. It provides for an army of 20,000 soldiers. That is surely large enough.

The lawyers at Wabash complain of a want of business in their line. Well, DeKalb county has very few attorneys growling on that score.

Hides are way down—selling now at 2c., and we are informed by the buyers that they can be bought for 1c. or 1½c., before the market closes.

Notice the advertisement of the Fort Wayne Fruit House in another column and see what an immense stock for the holidays they are receiving.

Jas. Anderson has reduced horse shoeing to $2.50 a span. Dont let the dumb brutes go bare-footed when you can get work at these low figures.

The recent rains had a tendency to make the creek high, but not withstanding, a number of our citizens visited the 9th street bridge, on Sabbath last.

The will of Senator Morton has been probated. He left all his property to his wife. The value of the estate is not known, but is believed to be small.

Miss Molly Kline took laudanum for ague medicine last Sabbath morning, and with the assistance of two doctors was able to attend church in the evening.

We are opposed to the holding of the Democratic State Convention on the 8th of January next. Let the balmy air of early summer float in upon the assemblage.

One of our shoulder bumpers had a little unpleasantness last Sunday with one of the fair sex. Justice Walborn settled the matter for $13.56, Monday morning.

An Iowa boy wanted to hear how birdshot sounded as it flew out of the muzzle of a gun. Never more will the music of a gun barrel strike the tympanum of that lug.

The reliable dry goods merchants of Fort Wayne, Messrs. Root & Company, will have a new announcement in our next A press of business prevents us giving it this week.

Guy Plum and several gentlemen with whom we were not acquainted, took the Saginaw train south Tuesday for a hunt. The market for game is liable to decline on their return.

The county asylum is undergoing a thorough renovating, and being painted outside and in. Carpenters are also at work building additional structures, so as to make things convenient.

A stranger enquired of an eight-year old yesterday if this town supported a boot-black. "Yes, sir," answered the lad. "Where is he," asked the man in broadcloth. "Damfino," says the lad.

He had not slept for twenty-four hours, coughing all the time His sister bought a 25 cent bottle of Dr. Bull's cough syrup at the nearest drug store, gave him a dose, and the cough was broken at once and he slept quietly during the night. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

The man who delivered the temperance lecture on the alegorical style, created some excitement Tuesday by placing his illustrated map in front of the P. O.

We have a young man in this city who sleeps in an unoccupied house every night, without bed or covers, and spends his money for the good of the family. He is generous.

Sixty thousand dollars have been offered for Tenbroeck. That's a good deal of money to offer for a quadruped; but the merry monarch who offered his kingdom for a horse is still entitled to the blue-ribbon.

If you are a passably good singer, or actor, or mediocre in anything and have not yet achieved a world wide renown, go to Fort Wayne, and the papers there will give you a reputation in two hemispheres—a la Miss Emma Abbott.

The Knights-Templar Drum Corps of Fort Wayne give their third annual Hop on the 28th of this month, in that city. These occasions are select, entertaining, and enjoyable. We acknowledge a receipt of an invitation.

The Stave factory at Hicksville "blowed up" last Thursday, killing one man and badly wounding another. The boiler at this institution has been in a dangerous condition for some time, and the accident and loss is through pure carelessness.

The trustee of North Richland township, it is said, will not hire either of the school marm's chosen by the people at the school meeting. A man occupying such a high position should show his authority when the opportunity presents itself.

Some mischievous boys fastened a dog's tail to a tin pan, Friday night, and the dog got down to Goldsmith Maid's time, to relieve that tail, but when he turned Fluke's corner the tail and the pan was close behind him. He bolted the track near the Saginaw depot.

We notice by the Sentinel of Fort Wayne, that our handsome friend, Capt. Robert Stratton was married to Miss Alice McDonald, of that city last Thursday. We congratulate the Captain, and wish him and his bonny bride a prosperous, happy journey through life.

Weamer don't seem to have much nerve. He attacked the Waterloo Fair Association in an indiscreet article, and, now in a puerile attempt, endeavors to escape from the responsibility. We are inclined to the opinion that something is gradually supping away his backbone.

The Ladies Social of the Presbyterian church will be entertained at the residence of Mrs. S. C. Swineford on Saturday afternoon of this week. Supper served promptly at 5 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance as a very enjoyable time is anticipated MRS. R. ELSON, Sec'y.

The Fruit House at Fort Wayne, comes out this week with a new price list, on last page. Capt. White is bound to keep up with the demand these hard times, and that is cheap groceries and good quality. This is still the popular resort in the city, and many things are seen there not to be found in any other establishment.

We are in receipt of a copy of "The Convention and Choir," a splendid new musical work just issued by Prof Strauli, a gentleman well known in our midst. It is a better selection of music than we have yet seen published in one volume, and aims at a higher grade of excellence in the art. We believe it is the best work of the kind ever published.

Prof. S W. Straub, one of the musical celebrities of the west, gave us a call this week. He contemplates giving instructions to a class in this place in a few weeks, and from the great success in his frumer efforts here, we believe he will be well sustained. No one who desires to advance in the art will fail to attend. While all should give their herrty co-operation to a project so full of general interest to every body.

The greenback club held a meeting Saturday night, and we presume changed their allegiance from Kelly to Baker. If they didn't they are ungrateful.—Waterloo Press.

Baxter don't seem to be pleased with the record of Baker on the greenback question. Baker stands with the entire Indiana delegation in the late vote in the House, and there is not even another paper to keep company with the Press. Charley stands like a blasted tree upon a barren heath.

For years Lawson's Curative has given universal satisfaction, and every day it is increasing in popular favor. Without doubt it is the most reliable preparation yet introduced for Rheumatic diseases and those also which have their origin in the nerve structure. Wherever there is pain, inflammation, or swelling use the Curative, and you will not be disappointed. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

A pretty picture is a healthy looking and well cared for Baby. By the use of Dr. Bull's baby syrup you can keep the health of your baby in splendid condition. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Look out for fires now.

Wood is in great demand.

Mr. M. Kline is quite sick.

The Veto cigar at Ralston's.

One bird in the calaboose Sunday.

Local on the first page of this paper.

Read the prospectus on the first page.

Joe Hazzard antisipates moving west.

Mr. T. Baldock is repairing his chimney.

The public schools open again next Monday.

Mr. Edge, of Waterloo, is the new butcher.

Have patience and thanksgiving will be here.

Saginaw & New York salt, at G. C. Ralston's.

Bargains in wall and window paper at Davenport's.

Rev. Rice, of the Lutheran church has located here.

For your school books call on Davenport the druggist.

Candy peddlers are running on prices 'Two for 5c now.

The roads are somewhat better for hauling purposes.

Teacher's institute is being held at Butler this week.

Ludington Oysters always on hand at G. C. Ralston's.

Mr. I. N. Cool had some trouble with a sick horse Tuesday.

There is talk of starting a greenback paper at Kendallville.

Mr. J. Grogg has closed the Sorgum business for the season.

Boyers 3 lb. can peaches $2.40 per dozen at G. C. Ralston's.

One of our harness makers, it is reported, has skipped out.

Billy Little will again open his little shoe shop over Pommert's.

For pure drugs at bottom prices call on Davenport the druggist.

B. Rainier takes Frank Griswold's place in the hack business.

Davenport the druggest, has all kinds of school books at lowest prices.

Captain Silvers has just recovered from a severe attack of lung fever.

A candy factory has been started in the old warm meal house, on Main St.

Mrs. Dr. Ford left last week on a visit to New York State, near Niagara Falls.

See the splendid stock of box papers just received by Davenport the druggist.

It is rumored that Dr. Parker will issue his paper at Kendallville next Saturday.

Don't teach school without a license. The State Board furnishes the questions now.

M. F. Long went to Corunna Tuesday, in the interest of the organ business.

Hold fast to that which is good and go to the New York Store for your dry goods.

One of our Reverend gentleman is about to apply for a divorce, so says rumor.

The wife of H. Ford has been on a visit to her daughter in O., for several weeks.

W. W. Humes will take day boarders next week. He has things tastily arranged.

"Who killed Pat. Murphy?" Nobody; he is painting the poor farm dwelling.

Mr. Miller, sister and Miss Molly Kline, have returned from their Hicksville visit.

If you have not been to the New York Store go at once and see what can be done for you.

Mr. Mansfield, one of the large contractors on the E. R. R. R., was in the city this week.

The butcher business is becoming immense in this city. Only seven now in the retail trade.

If you do not get your money's worth at the New York Store, you can't get it DeKalb county.

Uncle Geo. McMellen and Charley Mercer, of Corunna, was in town on Tuesday this week.

The Presbyterian society will meet at the Swineford House next Saturday. Supper at 5 o'clock.

The Hardware man who is successor of D. D. Snyder, has moved into Mr Baldocks residence.

The Presbyterian choir have added several to their former number, which makes the music ring.

The sidewalk emntioned in the Courier last week along the Presbyterian church has been laid.

Wheat $1 25, oats 25c, corn, shelled 40c, Ear, 35c, Clover seed, $4.50, @ $4.75. All markets firm.

Hersay informs us that the new barber who was to locate here, was arrested at Waterloo last week.

Look out for the advertisement of the Boss Harness Shop in next week's issue, J. E. Shiling proprietor.

Charley, the song and dancer, is out on furlough. Wonder if he will investigate Constable Miller again.

File. Lockwood has the Kinsey property in pretty good shape. It cost something to re-build that edifice.

We are in receipt of our namesake, the Wabash Courier, which like all Couriers is a good spicy local paper.

Wm. Leaham has opened up a butcher shop in the building formerly occupied by Micheal Long, on 8th street.

We notice that our marble works at the north end of town, on Van Buren St., has recently built a new work shop.

Prayer meeting was held at the residence of Micheal Long, last Sabbath afternoon, by the members of his church.

Church Music.

Music has charms etc., it is said, but loud and boisterous noises is not music, nor is the mingling and congregating of a number of noises or voices the standard of musical sounds. There is nothing more solemn, pure and devotional than sacred music, and there is not anything that is more elevating to the mind, bringing with it those enlarged views of nature and nature's God, as well as that happy delirium of thought, when we experience no consciousness of the present, but are bathing in the sun light of peace and harmony, produced by the beauties of symphony, harmony and the concordant melodies of nature's own musical organs. Nothing attracts the attention and admiration of the young so quickly, and nothing soothes and tempers with sweetness the decline of old age, as well timed sacred music.

Without the sacred melodies, church attendance and church service would be slight, uninteresting and of very little merit. It chains us with its entrancement, restrains our evil thoughts, centres them on holy things, elevates our morals and happifies the soul and feeds our hungering moral desires. All persons whether old or young, grave or gay, rich or poor, literate or illiterate have felt its influence, and after experiencing them will appreciate the fact that it was well for them to have been there and heard it. If it has this refining, elevating and moral tendancy, which the religious and all pure minded people must admit, let me ask in kindness, yet with criticism, why do not our church organizations pay more attention to this one thing, which is so essential to church service? They expend large sums for their edifices, their preachers and other purposes, all right enough too. Their ministers must study and labor for years to prepare himself for the pulpit, and during the entire week must labor with diligence to appear before his people in the Sunday services. But what preparation or study, what thought and drill is bestowed by the bulk of those who so frequently lead in the singing, or the persons who compose our choir? What examination or selection is there when a choir is being chosen? Some think the number of singers should be the rule others the volume or strength of voice should be the criterion in selecting a choir. Some think the choir should be composed of those having a literaay education, some on account of their friends, others their fine clothes, figures or faces, and others because of their friendship. Such qualifications destroy the choir, its singing, and moreover its moral effect. Harmony, equality and assimulation of tune and voice is essential, and not number, volume and the ability to make a loud noise. Four persons, each assuming a part, with well cultivated voices, modulated in harmony with each other, will create better music than a larger number, and would fill the capacity of any church in our town. The voice assimulated and modulated, none being drowned by others, as is so often the case where weak and strong ones are thrown together and each vieing with the other to be heard over the rest, the several voices can be distinctly heard as if there were but the one voice. Voices or sounds in pure accord and harmony penetrates to a greater distance than discordant ones, because there is harmony in all nature, but discords are soon swallowed up in their vain attempts to live.

In eastern cities where sittings of the churches are so much greater than ours, it is seldom more than four are in a choir, oftener a less number. Recently in a church as large as any two of ours I saw but two females occupying the choir, who with the organ, rendered most exquisit music, filled the entire church, and each word and note was articulated so plainly that one could almost feel the harmony and concord in the beautiful strains of its simplicity. The manner in which some choirs are selected and perform their parts, having a large number of singers, some with weak voices, some strong, some loud and shrill, some hoarse and course, some deep and tremulous, others not heard at all, has brought to my mind the bedlam of a farm yard, in listening to the cackle of the pullets, the bellowing of the ox, the squealing of the pigs, the braying of the jack, the bleating of the sheep, with the baying of the old yellow hound. To some ears, those that only love noise, one is as good music as the other. I hope to be able ere long to give credit to the choir that will improve most in sweet, sacred music. X.

The ladies are puzzled now. Winter is coming on and them plants will freeze.

Died at Newville on Friday, Nov. 9th at 11 p. m. Mrs. Harriette Headly, consort of George Headly, and daughter of W. R. Chilson. Aged 37 years and six months.

Mrs Headly has been afflicted for over one year with Bronchial consumption, with which she bore with christian resignation. The funeral services were conducted on Sunday by Rev. W. B. Hendricks, who preached from Rev. xiv chapter and 13th verse. If the faith of Christ be blessed, then is the subject of this truly blessed.

One trial is sufficient to covince the most skeptical of the invaluable and unfailing efficacy of Dr. Marshall's lung Syrup for curing coughs, consumption, asthams, Bronchitis, etc. Try it by all means. Price only 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

FIRST DAY.

The DeKalb county teachers institute convened in the high school buildind at Butler on last Monday, and was called to order by Supt. Barns at 2 p. m. The institute was opened with prayer by J. G. Bowersox, after which Mary M. Brundage was chosen secretary with C. H. Thurston assistant. Then there was a short recess taken to enable the teachers to register. After recess the subject of elocution and how to teach reading, was discussed by Professors Ridge and Shortridge. The institute then adjourned to meet at 7 o'clock in the Luthern church. The exercises in the evening consisted of a social, music by the orchestra, and singing by choir. There were [illegible] persons enrolled their names as members during the first day.

SECOND DAY.

Institute opened by singing, followed by an address by Prof. Shortridge, upon the qualities to be possesed by a teacher.

RECESS.

After recess a lesson was given in elocution by Prof. Ridge and a musical exercise conducted by Prof. Ainsworth.

NOON RECESS.

Afternoon: Institute commenced with singing, after which C. H Thurston conducted a recitation in grammar, on diagraming sentences. This was followed by a lively discussion on the part of several members of the institute on the subjecs of determining the gender of nouns.

RECESS.

After recess Prof. Ridge continued his lesson in elocution, particularly treating of the vocal organs and distinct enunciation of the consonant sounds, closed with singing to meet at the Lutheran church at 7 p. m.

Evening session commenced with singing by the choir A lively discussion was then engageged in by several members on the self reporting system used in schools. After a short recess, questions from the query box were read by the Superintendent and answered by members of the institute, closed by singing, to meet at 9 p. m., Wednesday evening.

THIRD DAY.

Institute opened by singing and calling the roll. The enrollment reaching 160.

Recitation in mathematical geography, conducted by J. S. Otis.

RECESS.

After recess the lesson on geography was continued. Superintendent Barnes being called to meet the Trustees, the chair was occupied by Frank Van Auken. Criticism of the geography lesson by the teachers, followed with singing by the institute, and a lesson by Prof. Ridge.

Dr. Marshall's lung syrup is particularly recommended for children. It is the most pleasant, soothing and effective cough remedy known. Call on your druggist and try a bottle of it; it only costs 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

LaOtto Items.

The corn crop is only a half crop in this section, but better than expected.

Rev. Mr. Worth preaches at Lee Chapel next Sunday morning and evening.

Services at the Lutheran church next Saturday evening and Sunday at 4 o'clock p. m.

Ernest Grang has a new boarder,—its a girl. "Still he don't vas happy," so "Swample" says.

Levi Love is the name of the new-comer hailing from Michigan and now is a citizen of LaOtto.

Will Gilbert, of the firm of Kalse & Gilbert, while "monkeying" with a revolver, accidently shot himself through the hand. Any one wishing a "shooter" can get one of G. at cost.

Swan township against the world for elopements. Miss Nellie Clark and Ed. Hilkert, of Swan, "lit" last Monday night for Michigan, and matrimony "Parterfamilias" with hostile intent, quickly gathered in his forces and pursued the fugitives, but "man proposes and—the trains are uncertain." We understand that Mr. Clark is reconciled, but not jubilent at the turn affairs have taken. We wish Ed. and Nellie plenty of good luck and future prosperity.

OUVRIER.

Some little excitement was raised at Lagrange last week by an attempt by one Peterson to kidnap his own child from its mother. The parties had been separated for some time, and Peterson living at Indianapolis came to Fort Wayne got Ed. Downy and Ed. Shouff to help him. They went to Kendallville to look over the ground, when his assistance got drunk and blowed the job, which was to steal the child from the mother. Some one hearing the boys, telegraphed to Lagrange to friends of the mother, and a Sheriff came down, and by going to Fort Wayne arrested the whole kit Petersen and Shouff are now under arrest.

New Restaurant.

We are glad to notice that Mr. Humes has fitted up his new restaurant, next door to Abright's, in first class style. He has added neat new furniture, carpets, etc., and has made the place very cosy and attractive. With the dining room under the excellent management of his wife, meals will be served in the best of style. Oysters and lunches served at any time. He will be ready for boarders next week. Prices always reasonable.

Auburn Public Schools.

RATES OF TUITION—For the benefit of foreign students who contemplate attending the Auburn schools during the next term, the rates of tuition are announced: High School, $5.00; Intermediate Grades, $3.00; Primary Grades, $2.00. The term will continue sixteen weeks, with a vacation of one week during the holidays. All new students should present themselves on the first day.

M. SEILER, Supt.

LOOK AT THIS!

HOW IS IT FOR LOW PRICES!

Granulated and Crushed Sugars for 12½ cts., generally sold for 14 and 15 cts. Coffee A. Sugar 12 cts. Extra C. white 11 cts. Light Browon 10 cts.

COFFEE. COFFEE.

Best Rio per pound 25 cts., 25 cent Coffee for 23 cts., Pea Berry Coffee equal to Java 27 cts

A GOOD DOLLAR TEA FOR 80 cts.
Young Hyson 50 cts.

Fine Cut Tobacco for 45 and 50 cts.,
Good Plug for 60 cts.

MILK CROCKS $1 per doz!

A full line of QUEENS WARE always on hand.

Orff's Empire Flour!

The best in Northern Indiana.

The highest prices paid for Country Produce.

G. C. RALSTON.

"THEY ALL DO IT!"

SAVE MONEY.

BUY YOUR

CLOTHONG AND UNDERWEAR

OF

SAM, PETE & MAX.

FORT WAYNE

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOV. 15, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE NOVEMBER ELECTIONS.

Elections were held in twelve States of the Union on Tuesday, Nov. 6, namely: Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Mississippi, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska. The election in Massachusetts was for State officers, Executive Councilors, State Senators, Representatives and county officers. The following State officers, all Republicans, were elected by pluralities ranging from 15,000 to 17,000: Governor, Alexander H. Rice; Lieutenant Governor, Horatio G. Knight; Secretary, Henry B. Peirce; Treasurer, Charles Endicott; Auditor, Julius L. Clarke; Attorney General, Charles R. Train. The Senators elect stand 33 Republicans to 8 Democrats. The lower house is also largely Republican.

New York voted for minor State officers and members of the Legislature. Allen C. Beach, Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, is elected by about 15,000 majority. The Republicans secured a working majority in the Legislature.

Connecticut voted for State Senators, members of the House of Representatives, and county officers. The vote was very light, not exceeding 80,000. The Republicans succeeded in securing about the same majority in the Legislature as last year.

In New Jersey the Democrats elected Gen. George B. McClellan Governor by 12,000 majority, and also secured a majority in both branches of the Legislature.

The election in Pennsylvania was for minor State officers. The Democratic candidates—John Trunkey for Supreme Judge, W. P. Schell for Auditor General, and Amos C. Noyes for Treasurer—were chosen by majorities approximating 10,000.

A State Comptroller and members of the Legislature were voted for in Maryland. Thomas J. Keating, Democrat, was elected Comptroller by a large majority, and the Legislature is Democratic by the usual majority.

Virginia voted for State officers and members of the Legislature. The Democratic candidates, headed by F. W. M. Halliday for Governor, had no opposition, and the Republicans made few nominations for the Legislature, consequently that body is overwhelmingly Democratic in both branches.

In Mississippi, also, the Democrats had things their own way, the Republicans declining to make any nominations. The vote was extremely light. The names of the State officers elect are as follows: Governor, John M. Stone; Lieutenant Governor, William H. Sims; Secretary, Kinloch Falconer; Treasurer, Wm. L. Hemingway; Auditor, Sylvester Gwinn; Attorney General, T. C. Catchings; Superintendent of Public Instruction, James Argyle Smith.

The people of Wisconsin elected State officers and members of the Legislature. The entire Republican State ticket was elected by about 5,000 majority. The Legislature is Republican by a small majority. The names of the State officers elected are: Governor, Wm. E. Smith; Lieutenant Governor, James M. Bingham; Secretary, Hans B. Warner; Treasurer, Richard Guenther; Attorney General, Alexander Wilson; Superintendent of Public Instruction, W. C. Whitford.

The election in Minnesota was for State officers and members of the Legislature, and resulted in the choice of the entire Republican ticket by 10,000 to 12,000 majority. The Republicans also secure a good working majority in both branches of the Legislature. The names of the successful candidates are as follows: Governor, John S. Pillsbury; Lieutenant Governor, James B. Wakefield; Treasurer, Wm. Pfænder; Attorney General, George P. Wilson; Railroad Commissioner, William B. Marshall.

Kansas elected a Lieutenant Governor and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The Republican candidates, L. W. Humphrey and Albert H. Horton, were chosen by a large majority.

A Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and two Regents of the State University were elected in Nebraska. George B. Lake, H. B. Persinger and Charles A. Holmes were chosen by 10,000 majority.

In Illinois there was an election for county officers. Little interest was taken in the election, and a very light vote was polled. In Cook county (embracing Chicago) the Republicans elected their candidates by majorities ranging between 4,000 and 7,000.

THE EAST.

Jesse Pomeroy, the boy murderer, serving a life sentence in Charlestown (Mass.) Penitentiary, attempted to escape the other night, by removing stones from the wall of his cell.

THE WEST.

Indictments have been found by the United States Grand Jury of Idaho Territory against thirty-two Indians, principals and accessories in murders of white people in connection with the Nez-Perce outbreak.... A San Francisco dispatch says: "By a traveler on the schooner Leo, from Alaska, it is learned that the recently-reported killing of some fifteen Indians at Cape Prince of Wales was by the crew of a Honolulu whaling brig. The natives boarded the vessel and demanded liquor. On being refused, they attacked the crew, who obtained arms from the cabin and beat off their assailants.

The city of Indianapolis never had within her gates such an immense number of strangers as gathered there to do homage to the memory of the late Gov. Morton. The funeral obsequies were the most imposing that have been witnessed since the death of Abraham Lincoln. Among the notable persons present were members of President Hayes' Cabinet, Senators and Representatives of Congress, Governors of States, a number of State officials, representatives of the army and navy, etc. The funeral ceremonies at the grave were conducted by the Odd Fellows, about 8,000 of whom were in the line of procession.

There was a spirited shooting-bee in the streets of Dodge City, Kan., the other day. Deputy Marshal Edward Masterson, in attempting to disarm Henry Shaw and Texas Dick, two desperadoes, was shot by Shaw in the right shoulder. Masterson, after falling, raised himself to a sitting position, shooting Shaw in the thigh, breast, and head, and Texas Dick in the arm, and a man named Monroe in the groin. All are still alive.

THE SOUTH.

The Governor of Tennessee has called an extra session of the Legislature of that State to consider the proposition of the New York arbiters to adjust the State debt.

GENERAL.

On the announcement of the death of Senator Morton, President Hayes sent the following telegram of sympathy to Col. W. R. Holloway, of Indianapolis:

> I desire, through you, to offer to Gov. Morton's widow and family my warmest sympathy in their great affliction. Amid the general and sincere manifestations of sorrow at the public loss, of which no one can be more sensible than myself, my long friendship for Gov. Morton makes me wish to be counted among those who feel in his death the grief of a personal bereavement. R. B. Hayes.

Business Failures: Ives & Porter, proprietors of the Bates House, Indianapolis, Ind.; T. Hofbrock, Jr., tobacco manufacturer, Louisville, Ky., liabilities $65,000; H. Chandler, provisions, Montreal, Canada, liabilities $65,000.

The whole country from Montreal and Ogdensburg, and east to the Atlantic, was seriously shaken up by an earthquake on the morning of the 4th inst.

Recent deaths: The Rev. William H. Wyckoff, Secretary of the American Bible Union; Ezra Hall, one of the proprietors of the Hartford Evening Post; Dr. Paul F. Eve, a distinguished surgeon of Nashville, Tenn.

The late Senator Morton's physical infirmity was the obstacle that prevented him from becoming Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. Gen. Grant has lately said that had his health been good he would have named him as the successor of Mr. Chase.

The so-called Dr. Smith, who so brutally maltreated and caused the death of Miss Alberta Wade, of Castleton, Canada, in attempting to procure an abortion, has been sentenced to be hanged the 19th of December next.

Burned: Crawford, Coffman & Co.'s last and peg factory, Dayton, Ohio, loss $30,000; Gilmore, Walter & Co.'s flouring mill, Allegheny City, Pa., loss $16,000; the Keith paper mill, Turner's Falls, Mass., loss $300,000; the Ames Manufacturing Company's pocket-book factory, Northampton, Mass., loss $30,000; D. Fowler & Sons' oilcloth works, at Newburgh, N. Y., loss $18,000.... The [illegible] of five persons of the schooner Edward Tilley were drowned while attempting to land during the gale at Port St. Peters, Quebec, a few nights ago.

Business failures: Corydon Weed, an extensive dealer in Illinois farm mortgages, Bloomington, Ill., liabilities $1,800,000, assets one suit of clothes; F. K. Phoenix, proprietor of the extensive nurseries at Bloomington and Normal, Ill., liabilities $120,000; Mulholland & Baker, one of the oldest hardware houses in Montreal, Canada, liabilities heavy; Fordham & Jennings, ship chandlers, San Francisco, Cal., liabilities $90,000.

WASHINGTON.

The President issued the following proclamation on the occasion of the death of Senator Morton:

> I lament the sad occasion which makes it my duty to testify the public respect for the eminent citizen and distinguished statesman whose death yesterday at his home in Indianapolis has been made known to the people by telegraphic announcement. The services of Oliver P. Morton to the nation in the difficult and responsible administration of the affairs of the State of Indiana as its Governor at a critical juncture of civil war can never be overvalued by his countrymen. His long service in the Senate has shown his great powers as a legislator and as a leader and chief counselor of a political party charged with the conduct of the Government during that period. In all things, and at all times, he has been able, strenuous, and faithful in the public service, and his fame with his countrymen rests upon a secure foundation. The several executive departments will be closed on the day of his funeral, and appropriate honors should be paid to the memory of the deceased statesman by the whole nation. R. B. Hayes.

A bill for the remonetization and free coinage of silver has been agreed upon by the House Committee on Banking and Currency. It authorizes the coinage of the dollar of 1837, containing 412½ grains, and makes the coin a full legal-tender for all debts, public and private, the payment of which is not otherwise provided for by law.... Robert T. Lincoln, of Chicago, is said to have again declined the Third Assistant Secretaryship of State.... The Senate Committee on Patents has voted to recommend an appropriation of $45,000 for the restoration of such models which passed through the fire in the Patent Office as can be repaired.

The opposition to the confirmation of John Welsh as Minister to England charge that the Philadelphia firm of which Mr. Welsh is a member is the owner in Cuba of a sugar plantation and a large number of slaves. The friends of William Welsh make the explanation that the firm in question, being engaged in the West India sugar trade, have been compelled to take mortgages upon plantations as security for advances to planters, and that the slaves, as an indispensable and inseparable part of the realty, have in this manner come into the firm's possession.

Appointments by the President: John Q. Smith, of Ohio, to be Consul General at Montreal, Can.; D. N. Cooley, of Tennessee, to be Consul General at Spezzia, Italy; Alexander M. Stern, to be Assistant Treasurer of the United States at Cincinnati.

Hon. Henry S. Sandford has been nominated by the President to be Minister to Belgium. ....There has been a thorough investigation of all charges made against Public Printer Defrees. The charges were made by a discharged employe, and, after complete examination, the Committee on Printing fully exonerates Defrees.

POLITICAL.

The Governor of Indiana has appointed D. W. Voorhees to fill the unexpired term of the late Gov. Morton in the United States Senate. ....John Morrissey has been elected to the Senate from the Seventh District of New York, over Augustus Schell, Tammany.

John Morrissey was elected to the State Senate from the Seventh District of New York, over Augustus Schell, Tammany candidate.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

Dispatches from the Turkish headquarters at Shumla admit that Silistria is threatened with isolation and a siege by the Russians advancing from the Dobrudscha. The fortress is supposed to be one of the strongest in Europe, and the Turks assert that it is fully garrisoned and thoroughly prepared for an obstinate defense. If these conditions exist Gen. Zimmerman will probably find that he has a winter's job before him.

The beginning of the end of the Turko-Russian war appears to be approaching. In every part of the field of conflict the Turks seem to be losing ground. Mukhtar Pasha has not recovered from his terrible defeat near Kars, but is still on the retreat toward Erzeroum, with the Grand Duke Michael in swift pursuit, capturing fresh battalions almost daily. He is in a desperate situation, and, if he is attacked and defeated again, which must involve of necessity the fall of Erzeroum, the war on the Asiatic side will be at an end, and Armenia will be held by the Russians, to be claimed in the final settlement as indemnity for the expense of the war. In Europe, prospects are but little brighter. The Russians are gradually closing in around Plevna, and the capture of that formidable position is only a question of time.

An Erzeroum dispatch of the 6th says: "A severe attack was made to-day on the Turkish positions. There was fighting along the whole line. After ten hours' engagement the Turkish center was driven in, and the Turks compelled to fall back. Mukhtar Pasha was slightly wounded."....A Turkish force numbering between 3,000 and 4,000 men, from south of the Balkans, attacked the Russian force at Mahren, south of Elena. After three hours' fighting, the Turks retreated, leaving 100 dead and many wounded.

A Constantinople dispatch announces that the Russians have occupied Erzeroum.

The Russian losses from the commencement of hostilities to the 1st inst. were 64,601 men. ....Four hundred of the principal inhabitants of Bulgaria, including the Geshoffs and their families, have been sentenced to exile in Asia Minor....The Porte has demanded the withdrawal of the Servian corps of observation now occupying the frontier, and threatens vigorous military measures if the demand is not complied with.... A very strong, united effort is being made to stir up a war feeling in England. It is argued that every town in India will be unfavorably affected by the Turkish downfall in Asia, and that the result will be most dangerous to the English hold on the Indian population.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

An Alexandria telegram reports that the King of Abyssinia threatens to invade Egypt with 120,000 men.

The funeral obsequies of Henry Meiggs were the most imposing ever witnessed in Peru.

Late advices from Havana report that "a decree just issued declares all estates ruined during the war, and in the way of reconstruction, free from contributions for five years; also, every new estate, and all new property acquired in the Central and Oriental Departments. All industries in those departments, nearly established, will be exempt three years. All female cattle, imported with the exclusive object of raising stock, will be duty free two years."

A Constantinople dispatch says many prominent dignitaries have been arrested by order of the Grand Vizier. It is said that a conspiracy on the part of the party of ex-Sultan Murad has been discovered.... A London telegram says that, owing to the improved condition of the famine districts of India, the Mansion House relief fund has been closed. The subscription amounts to $2,[illegible].

Lord Derby has notified the Chinese Government that the destruction of the Woo-Sung railroad would be regarded by Great Britain as an unfriendly act.... The French Legislature convened at Versailles on the 7th inst. M. Grevy, Republican, was chosen Provisional President of the House of Deputies by a vote of 290 against 170. President MacMahon, in receiving the delegation of Deputies of the Right, gave them a very categorical answer, implying that he would not resign.... The Official Journal announced that the [illegible] Ministers, at President MacMahon's request, have withdrawn their resignations. [illegible] insist it shall be fully understood that, while continuing to discharge their functions, this shall in no wise prejudice the President's subsequent decision.

The successor of Sir Edward Thornton, as British Minister to Washington, has been selected in the person of Hon. Lionel Sackville-West, brother and heir presumptive of Lord Sackville, now British Minister to Buenos Ayres....The Spanish Cortes is to be convoked for January, to approve of King Alphonso's marriage to the Princess Maria Mercedes, daughter of the Duc de Montpensier, which is to take place on the 23d of that month.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

Friday, Nov. 2.—Senate.—The reading of the journal was dispensed with, and the death of Senator Morton was announced by Senator McDonald. A resolution submitted by him, providing for the appointment of a committee of six Senators to attend the funeral, was agreed to, and the Senate then, as a further mark of respect to the memory of Senator Morton, adjourned till Tuesday, Nov. 6.

House.—In the House Mr. Ewing withdrew his motion to recommit the bill repealing a part of the Resumption act, accepted Mr. Fort's bill as a substitute, and moved the previous question. Mr. Hale moved to lay the bill and the amendment on the table. The motion was defeated—yeas, 108; nays, 140. The Fort bill was then made the special order for Nov. 13....Mr. Hanna offered the following resolution, which was agreed to unanimously: "Resolved, In view of the sad intelligence of the death of Oliver P. Morton, distinguished Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Indiana, that the Speaker of this House, as a mark of respect for the memory of the man whose death is the nation's loss, appoint a committee of seven members to represent this House at the funeral obsequies."....Mr. Atkins, Chairman of the Appropriation Committee, reported the Army Appropriation bill, which was referred to the committee of the whole. The bill appropriates $25,722,000.....Mr. Wood asked leave to offer a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury to furnish the House copies of contract made with certain syndicate American and foreign bankers for the negotiation of the 4-per-cent. bonds of the United States, together with copies of all other papers relating thereto. Mr. Pridemore objected.

Saturday, Nov. 3.—Senate.—Not in session.

House.—Consideration was resumed of the bill for the repeal of a part of the Resumption act. After discussion as to the proposed terms for the management and consideration of the bill, Mr. Kelley proposed to offer a resolution making it the special order for Tuesday, the 6th, and until Thursday, the 15th, when the previous question should be ordered, but Mr. Willis objected absolutely to the resolution being received, inasmuch as he regarded the bill as an assault upon the national credit.... The bill for the free coinage of a standard silver dollar was introduced by Mr. Buckner, and was, on motion of Mr. Stephens, after discussion, referred to the Committee on Coinage, rather than to the Banking Committee.... Two other bills were introduced for the remonetization of silver—one by Mr. Clark and one by Mr. Townsend....Mr. Finley introduced a bill to amend the constitution so as to elect the President and Vice President by a direct vote of the people.

Monday, Nov. 5.—Senate.—The Senate was not in session.

House.—The silver men achieved a substantial victory in the House by suspending the rules and passing Mr. Bland's old Silver bill, providing for a silver dollar of 412½ grains to be legal tender for all debts, public and private, except where otherwise provided by law, and also providing for free coinage. Mr. Bland introduced the bill, and moved a suspension of the rules and the passing of the bill. This was agreed to by a vote of 163 to 34. ....After disposing of the Silver bill a resolution was passed, under a suspension of the rules, making Ewing's bill repealing the date of the Resumption act the special order until Tuesday, Nov. 13. The vote was 143 to 47.... Bills were introduced as follows: By Mr. Phillips, to create a postal savings bank; by Mr. Frye, to amend the Bankrupt law—also, to make persons charged with crimes and offenses competent witnesses in United States courts; by Mr. Ward, authorizing the Directors of national banks to declare quarterly dividends; by Mr. Hunter, for the recomputation of the accounts between the United States and several States, growing out of moneys expended by them in the war of 1812; by Mr. Cabell, to reduce the tax on manufactured tobacco; by Mr. Scales, for the transfer of the Office of Indian Affairs from the Interior to the War Department; by Mr. Shelley, to appropriate the cotton tax for school purposes; by Mr. Hooker, authorizing the election of a delegate from the Indian Territory; by Mr. Sayler, to secure the rights of homestead settlers on public lands; by Mr. Neal, imposing a duty on barley; by Mr. Banning, amending the act relative to the tax on cigars; also, removing all restrictions now existing in relation to the enlistment of colored citizens in the army; by Mr. Riddle, directing the transmission of printed matter through the mails when the postage is insufficient; also for the election of Postmasters; by Mr. Bland, removing the legal disabilities of women (it provides that, when a woman has been admitted to practice in the Superior Court, she shall be allowed to practice in the United States Supreme Court); by Mr. Buckner, for the repeal of all bankrupt laws; also for the establishment of a National University for Women in Washington.

Tuesday, Nov. 6.—Senate.—A large number of petitions were presented by various Senators from females throughout the country setting forth that they are taxpayers, asking that their political disabilities be removed, and that they be allowed to exercise the right of citizens at the ballot-box.... A bill was introduced by Mr. Plumb to further define the rights of persons with respect to homestead entries on the public domain; also to provide for the payment of the clerical and other expenses of the land office; also to declare certain lands subject to taxation....Mr. Maxey submitted a joint resolution authorizing the appointment of a commission to confer with such commission as may be appointed by Mexico, and ascertain upon what terms a reciprocal treaty of commerce can be arranged....Mr. Wallace submitted several amendments to the bill introduced by him on the 23d ult. to authorize a long bond for the investment of savings. The amendments provide that the bonds shall bear 4 per cent. per annum interest, instead of 3.65, originally proposed, and that the Secretary of the Treasury shall keep them for sale at the money depositories as well as at the different sub-treasuries.... The House bill to authorize free coinage of the standard silver dollar and restore its legal-tender character, was read by title and referred to the Committee on Finance....Adjourned till Thursday, 8th.

House.—Bills introduced: By Mr. Willetts, granting pensions to the family of the late Gen. Custer; by Mr. Giddings, to establish mail-steamship service between the United States and Brazil; by Mr. Oliver, to limit the sale of agricultural lands to settlers under the Homestead and Pre-emption laws; also, to abolish capital punishment; also, amending the constitution in regard to the election of the President, Vice President, and United States Senators; by Mr. Stewart, extending the time for the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad; by Mr. Strait, to extend the provisions of the act for the relief of settlers on railroad lands; by Mr. Welch, to establish the Territory of Lincoln; by Mr. House, to amend the constitution so as to limit the Presidential term to six years.... Mr. Brentano offered a resolution declaring it to be in the interest of the civil service that all Government officials receiving a salary of $2,500 and upward shall devote their whole time to their official duties, and shall not be permitted to carry on any other business....The House took up the bill repealing the third section of the Resumption act, and a number of amendments were offered.

Wednesday, Nov. 7.—Senate.—Not in session.

House.—The House devoted the most of the day to the discussion of the bill repealing the Resumption act. Mr. Price, of Iowa, made a lengthy speech against the bill. Mr. Cox, of New York, supported his plan of gradual resumption....Rev. Dr. Parsol, Chaplain of the House, tendered his resignation....Mr. Blount, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the Naval Deficiency bill.

Thursday, Nov. 8.—Senate.—The resolution submitted by Mr. Maxey, on Tuesday, calling upon the President for information in regard to the rescue of prisoners from the Starr county (Tex.) jail by outlaws from Mexico, in August last, was taken up and agreed to; also, a resolution submitted by Mr. Mitchell calling upon the Secretary of the Interior for information as to the number of miles of Northern Pacific railroad constructed, what change has been made in the line, etc.... Mr. Matthews introduced a bill supplementary to the act entitled "An act to provide for the resumption of specie payments," approved Jan. 14, 1875.

House.—The House, in committee of the whole, devoted the entire session to the discussion of the Army Appropriation bill, the Republicans favoring the maintenance of the fighting force at 25,000 men, while most of the Democrats thought that 15,000 or 20,000 would suffice for all the necessities of the service.

The Ohio Senatorship.

It is claimed that the southern portion of the State as well as the southern portion of the country desires the election of George H. Pendleton. They say that Pendleton deserves much of his party; that he was a member of Congress when it cost all a man was worth to be a Democrat, and that he battled with radicalism with an unwavering faith. Mr. Pendleton has some of the shrewdest political workers in his party enlisted in his behalf, among whom may be mentioned ex-Speaker Converse.

Gen. Tom Ewing was thought to possess considerable strength, but his prospects do not pan out well of late.

Next to these two leading champions come in Governor-elect Bishop, who is being urged by his friends on the same principle that Gen. Hayes was taken up for the Presidency.

The Hon. H. B. Payne is not a popular man, although the ablest in many respects of those who are talked of for the office. He is understood to be a hard-money man, although his recent record has shown that he is willing to speak sphinx-like upon the subject.

Then there is old Gov. William Allen. It is thought by some shrewd perusers of the political horoscope that he will be brought forward.

Bringing up the rear in starting are Judge Hoadly, Durbin Ward and Gen. Morgan, all of whom have good backing in certain parts of the State. Probably Durbin Ward is the most prominent of these, having been a leading candidate before the State Convention for Governor.—Columbus (Ohio) Cor. Chicago Tribune.

The Mosquito.

It was never suspected till lately that the mosquito could lay claim to a place among professors of the healing art, though the idea might have been suggested from the length of the bill presented and its unexpected suddenness. The new theory is that the mosquito is a physician who applies the same medicine and practice in all cases—an inbouteaneous injection of quinine. The performance is unfortunately irritating to people who are not in need of quinine, but to those who are, such as patients with fever and ague, the mosquito bite is said to be highly beneficial. As malarial fevers and mosquitoes are apt to be found in the same locality, the chances are good that the people who most need it will get the quinine injection. The authority on which this discovery rests has not been made public, but the assertion of it has attained wide currency. The old theory regarded the poison of a mosquito-bite as an acid, and treated it with ammonia, soda and the like; if the new one be correct, perhaps it will be proposed to cure the bites with mild sulphuric acid.—New York Tribune.

Chief Joseph's Reply.

An officer who was with Gen. Miles furnishes the Bismarck Tribune the following verbatim copy of Joseph's reply, when he was asked for the last time to surrender to Gen. Miles, through Howard's Nez Perces sent into Joseph's camp: "Tell Gen. Howard I know his heart. What he told me before I have in my heart. I am tired of fighting. Our chiefs are killed. Looking-Glass is dead. Ta-hool-hool-shoot is dead. The old men are all dead. It is the young men who say yes or no. He who leads the young men is dead. It is cold and we have no blankets. The little children are freezing to death. My people, some of them, have run away to the hills and have no blankets, no food; no one knows where they are—may be freezing to death. I want time to look for my children and see how many of them I can find. May be I shall find them among the dead. Hear me, my chiefs: I am tired. My heart is sick and sad. From where the sun now stands I will fight no more forever."

The Food Supply.

The Commissioner of Agriculture has returns which indicate that England will have to buy 104,000,000 bushel of wheat this year, owing to disappointment in raising a good crop at home. The English crop was unusually short this year, owing to defective curing. On the continent of Europe there has been a fair general crop. The war will limit the exportation from Russia and Turkey, and in Eastern Europe the supply will not greatly exceed the local demand. Egypt and India will have a larger surplus than usual, and will probably increase their shipments to Europe. The export of wheat from the United States now amounts to 55,000,000 bushels a year, but the Commissioner of Agriculture thinks that this country may be able this year to supply the entire British deficiency.

Hugh Lyle, who lived near Red Bluff, Ore., was bitten by a rattlesnake recently. It appears that he saw a snake in the path before him and shot it. The snake ran into a hole in the ground after being shot, and Lyle, in order to secure it, put his hand in to seize it by the tail. Another snake was in the hole, and bit him twice in the hand. He ran to the nearest cabin, and, taking a lead-pencil, attempted to write his age on a piece of paper, but the pain became so intense that he was unable to write anything more than the word "born." He died the following day.

Thorpe, the Auburn (N. Y.) murderer, who was sentenced to death a few days ago, thus politely informs his father of the fact: "I have the pleasure to inform you that I am sentenced to be hung on the 7th of December next."

Two professors of Dartmouth College, while at work in the college chapel, on Saturday night last, were locked in by some mischievous students, and were unable to obtain their release until late Sunday morning.

FEDERAL LEGISLATION.

Bills Introduced in Congress.

Sixteen bills have been introduced in the House for the remonetization of silver. They were submitted by the following gentlemen: Cox, of New York; Banning, of Ohio; Ewing and Jones, of Ohio; Bright, of Tennessee; Hunter and Baker, of Indiana; Sparks, Harrison, Knapp and Fort, of Illinois; Bland, of Missouri; Culberson, of Texas; Cummings and Oliver, of Iowa; and Phillips, of Kansas.

The following members have introduced bills in the House for the repeal or modification of the Resumption act: Kelley, of Pennsylvania; Southard and Ewing, of Ohio; Durham, of Kentucky; Atkins and Bright, of Tennessee; Fuller, of Indiana; Sparks, Harrison, Knapp, and Cannon, of Illinois; Franklin, of Missouri, and Culberson, of Texas. Of these, Hunter, of Indiana, and Culberson, of Texas, presented bills authorizing the reissue of greenbacks retired already under the Resumption act.

The following gentlemen have introduced bills for the payment of duties in greenbacks: Walker, of Virginia; Riddle, of Tennessee; Sparks, Springer, and Hartzell, of Illinois.

Gen. Banning, Chairman of the House Military Committee, has offered a bill repealing all laws which forbid the appointment in the army and navy of those who served in the Confederate army.

Representative Willis, of New York, offers a bill to simplify the existing laws imposing and collecting duties on imports, to remove all ambiguities therefrom; also, to reduce the rates on imported merchandise, to restore the duties on tea and coffee, and enlarge the free list; also, a bill to restore the national credit by funding the non-interest-bearing debt into bonds bearing 4 per cent. interest, payable at the expiration of forty years; also, providing for the repeal of all taxes on the capital and deposits in State and national banking institutions; also, to abolish the tax on bank checks.

Representative Hewitt, of New York, has introduced a bill in relation to the Paris Exposition of 1878. It provides for the acceptance of the invitation, for the appointment of a General Commissioner at a salary not to exceed $3,000, and of fifteen additional Commissioners, eight of whom are to be skilled artisans and seven scientific experts, whose pay and expenses are not to exceed $1,000 each, and authorizes the assignment of one or more public vessels to transport to and from France, free of cost, articles for exhibition. It appropriates $150,000 to cover all expenses.

Mr. Robbins, of North Carolina, introduced a bill to reduce the tax on distilled spirits to 45 cents per gallon, on tobacco to 12 cents per pound, and on cigars to $3 per 1,000; also, allowing producers of leaf tobacco to sell $100 worth to consumers without tax.

Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, offers a bill to enable Indians to become citizens of the United States. It provides that whenever any Indian belonging to any organized tribe or nation having treaty relations with the United States shall desire to become a citizen of the United States, he may do so by appearing in any United States Circuit or District Court, and making proof to the satisfaction of the court that he is sufficiently intelligent and prudent to control his own affairs and interests; that he has adopted the habits of civilized life, and has for at least five years been able to support himself and family, and by taking an oath to support the constitution of the United States.

Senator Burnside wants to remove all restrictions now existing in regard to the enlistment of colored citizens in any arm of the United States army. His bill provides that hereafter the word "color" shall not be used to designate any soldier of the United States army; that the colored citizen shall be entitled to all privileges and rights of any citizen to enlist in any arm of the United States army, and no distinction shall hereafter be made in the assignment of a soldier on account of color or previous descent; that all arms of the service—engineers, artillery, cavalry, infantry, Signal Corps—irrespective of color, shall be open to him.

Representative Schleicher, of Texas, has introduced a bill to aid the Washington, Cincinnati and St. Louis road to construct a narrow-gauge railway from tide-water to St. Louis and Chicago.

Senator Matthews, of Ohio, introduces a bill to amend the bankrupt laws and establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States. It provides, among other things, that in all cases of bankruptcy no discharge shall be granted to a debtor whose estate shall not pay a dividend of at least 25 per centum on the claims proved and allowed against his estate, upon which he shall be liable as a principal debtor, without the consent in writing of at least one-third of such creditors in number and value.

Representative Cabill, of Virginia, offers a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the owners the value of the cotton and tobacco seized by the Government since April 10, 1865.

Several amnesty bills have been introduced in the House, all of them proposing to remove the political disabilities imposed by the Fifteenth amendment.

A New Military Arm—The Torpedo Hunters.

A correspondent of a German journal, writing from Erzeroum, gives the following account of the new corps of divers which has been organized by the Turkish Government for the purpose of removing the torpedoes laid down by the Russians in the Danube and on the shores of the Black sea:

The divers are Mohammedans from Lazistan, and a certain number of them are attached to each of the Turkish squadrons cruising in the Black Sea. When the ships arrive near a spot where the existence of torpedoes is suspected two of the divers row to the place in a very light boat, drawing so little water that there is scarcely any danger of its striking against the torpedoes. On arriving at their destination one of the rowers dives into the sea; if he finds a wire or rope by which the torpedo is attached he cuts it with a sharp instrument and returns quickly into the boat. The liberated torpedo floats to the surface of the water, the men pass a short lasso around it, take it in tow, and then row back to the ship as quickly as possible. For each torpedo thus captured the divers are paid $45, and also a sum of an amount equal to one-half of its value. Although the men have been often employed in this dangerous service, not a single accident has occurred to any of them.

FEDERAL FINANCE.

The Currency.

The Comptroller of the Currency has made the following statement showing the issue and retirement of national-bank notes and legal-tender notes, under the acts of June 20, 1874, and Jan. 14, 1875, to Nov. 1, 1877:

National-bank notes outstanding when the act of June 20, 1874, was passed	$349,894,182
National-bank notes issued from June 20, 1874, to Jan. 14, 1875	4,734,500
National-bank notes redeemed and retired between same dates	2,767,232
Increase from June 20, 1874, to Jan. 14, 1875	1,967,268
National-bank notes outstanding Jan. 14, 1875	$351,861,450
National-bank notes redeemed and retired from Jan. 14, 1875, to date	$ 69,342,[illegible]
National-bank notes surrendered between the same dates	[illegible]
Total redeemed and surrendered	$ 69,472,736
National-bank notes issued between the same dates	$ 34,3[illegible]
Decrease from Jan. 14, 1875, to date	35,0[illegible]
National-bank notes outstanding to date	316,775,111
Greenbacks on deposit in the treasury June 20, 1874, to retire notes of insolvent and liquidating banks	$ 3,813,675
Greenbacks deposited from June 20, 1874, to date, to retire national-bank notes	72,407,543
Total deposits	$ 76,221,2[illegible]
Circulation redeemed by Treasurer between same dates without reissue	$ 63,109,849
Greenbacks on deposit at date	13,111,371
Greenbacks retired under act of Jan. 14, 1875	37,500,100

The Redemption Agency.

The following is a statement of the operations of the National Bank Redemption Agency for the month of October, compared with the same month last year: National bank notes fit for circulation, assorted and returned to banks, $12,024,700; National bank notes unfit for circulation, assorted and delivered to the Comptroller of the Currency for destruction and replacement with new notes, $3,493,100; notes of failed, liquidating and reducing banks deposited with the Treasury, $1,005,100. Total, October, '77, $17,522,900; total, October, '76, $14,458,800; increase, $3,064,100.

Coinage.

The coinage executed in the United States mints for the month of October, 1877, is as follows: Double eagles, $5,454,800; half eagles, $5,000; quarter eagles, $20,000; total gold coinage, $5,477,800. Trade dollars, $1,075,050; half dollars, $711,225; quarter dollars, $554,012; twenty-cent pieces, $10; dimes, $76,405; total silver coinage, $2,416,702.

Darien Canal.

Interest in the Darien canal project has been revived by the report of Lieut. Wyse to the Paris Geographical Society. Lieut. Wyse was the leader of the French expedition last year to explore the Darien route through Columbian territory, and he reports a practicable line for a ship canal from the Chucunaque river, on the Pacific side, northwest to Port Grandi, on the Atlantic side. The route from the river to Acanto or Grandi is comparatively level, and he believes that an inter-oceanic canal, by way of Columbia, will soon be an accomplished fact.

Hogs and Corn.

The Cincinnati Price Current publishes an elaborate special report on hogs and corn, based on information derived from a large number of places throughout the prominent hog and corn-producing sections of the West. The general result indicates a probable increase of 5 per cent. in the number of hogs for winter marketing, and a large supply for next spring and summer, with a generally healthier condition of hogs compared with last year, and a probable increase in the weight of hogs for winter packing.

Tramps.

The London Spectator, in an article on American tramps, says the result of experience in England, after attempts to suppress tramping by capital sentences, by hard labor, and by enforced production, is that the only way to mitigate the evil is to establish a rural police. The Spectator pronounces the American idea of sending idle men and women to severely governed industrial schools "a very curious experiment," and doubts its success.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$8 60	@11 25
Hogs	5 35	@ 5 75
Cotton	11	@ 11¼
Flour—Superfine	4 75	@ 5 25
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 25	@ 1 29
Corn—Western Mixed	62	@ 63
Oats—Mixed	33	@ 38
Rye—Western	71	@ 72
Pork—New Mess	14 25	@14 35
Lard	8½	@ 8¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 50	@ 5 75
Choice Natives	4 75	@ 5 25
Cows and Heifers	2 85	@ 3 65
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 50
Hogs—Live	4 25	@ 5 10
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 25	@ 5 60
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 05	@ 1 06
No. 3 Spring	1 00	@ 1 01
Corn—No. 2	43	@ 44
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 25
Rye—No. 2	53	@ 54
Barley—No. 2	58	@ 59
Butter—Choice Creamery	31	@ 33
Eggs—Fresh	18	@ 19
Pork—Mess	12 00	@12 50
Lard	8	@ 8¼
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 11½	@ 1 15
No. 2	1 06	@ 1 08½
Corn—No. 2	45	@ 46
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
Rye—No. 1	54	@ 55
Barley—No. 2	62	@ 63
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 3 Red Fall	1 23	@ 1 24
Corn—No. 2 Mixed	42	@ 43
Oats—No. 2	25	@ 26
Rye	53	@ 54
Pork—Mess	13 40	@13 50
Lard	8	@ 8¼
Hogs	4 20	@ 4 75
Cattle	2 25	@ 6 00
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 20	@ 1 27
Corn	45	@ 46
Oats	27	@ 31
Rye	59	@ 60
Pork—Mess	13 00	@13 25
Lard	8	@ 8¼
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White Michigan	1 30	@ 1 32
No. 2 Red Winter	1 28	@ 1 29
Corn	45½	@ 48
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice White	6 00	@ 6 25
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 29	@ 1 30
No. 1 Amber	1 28	@ 1 29
Corn—No. 1	49	@ 50
Oats—Mixed	26	@ 30
Barley (per cental)	1 15	@ 1 35
Pork—Mess	14 75	@15 25
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 50	@ 5 87½
Fair	4 50	@ 5 00
Common	4 00	@ 4 50
Hogs	4 20	@ 4 30
Sheep	3 50	@ 4 50

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

By-the-by, is the great loss of weight that occurs in eggs which are kept long generally known? I have weighed mine several times, and it has proved to be lighter at each successive weighing.—Mark Lane Express.

Stephen Burrows, after trying for several years to eradicate a patch of Canada thistles on his farm, with very indifferent success, hit upon a plan last fall that he claims finished up the job. The pomace from his cider-mill applied to them did the work effectually.—Whitewater Register.

Warming your honey before the fire will not prevent fermentation, but rather increase it. Some American bee-keepers boil their honey when fermentation begins. Boiling may act for a time, and is probably the best thing that can be done to hinder the fermenting process. As soon as any of our honey begins to ferment we boil it, and then give it either to poor people or weak hives.—Cottage Gardener.

To keep roots sound and plump, Mr. Benjamin P. Ware, of Marblehead, a successful gardener, cuts off the fine roots close to the body, and pares away the crown of the turnip or beet sufficiently to destroy all buds or rudiments of buds. The thus doctored roots are then placed in barrels of sand or covered with earth in the cellar to prevent wilting. Removing the buds and rootlets prevents that corkiness so common with these roots when kept till late in winter, which is caused by the support of sprouts and rootlets using up much of the more tender and edible substance of the roots. Turnips and beets thus treated are as nice for the table in late winter or early spring as when first harvested.—Scientific Farmer.

Animal manures of all kinds are good but different in the rapidity of their fertilizing effects, as well as their duration. Horn, hair and wool, as Prof. Johnson has well remarked, depend for their efficacy precisely on the same principle as the blood and flesh of animals. They differ chiefly in this, that they are dry, while the blood and flesh contain from 80 to 90 per cent. of their weight in water. Hence, a ton of horn shavings, of hair, or of dry woolen rags contains vastly more fertilizing materials than the same weight in blood or flesh, but the effect of soft animal matter is more immediate and apparent, while that of hard and dry substances is less visible, but continues for a much longer time.—Rural New Yorker.

A Hint to Careless Boys and Men.—To make breachy cattle an excellent way is, when turning stock into or out of the pasture, instead of letting down all the bars, to leave two or three of the lower rails in their place, and then by shouting or beating [illegible] force the animals to leap over them. This is capital training for teaching them to try their powers of jumping where a top rail happens to be off, and, having achieved success in this, to set all fences at defiance, as inclination or the sight of an abundant meal of grass or grain in a neighboring field may prompt them. Another good way is to open the gate but a little way and by threats or blows compel the cattle to pass through it. Having learned this lesson, some of them will soon manifest a resolute spirit to force their way into yards, fields, or indeed into any place where a gate or door may have accidentally been left open.—Moore's Rural.

The implement we use is simply an ordinary iron beam plow with the mold-board taken off and the share lengthened out by putting on a piece of steel, about half an inch thick, two inches wide and twenty inches long. We attach two horses to this, and straddling the row to adjust the draught, that the standard of the plow will run to the left of each hill in the row, and the long steel cutter attached to the share will pass under and cut loose the potatoes in each hill, leaving the hill apparently undisturbed, but loosened up completely, so that the digger, with a four-tined fork, can throw the tubers out very fast, and with much less hard work than without the use of this [illegible]. We have been digging during the last week, and in two days three men dug 600 bushels; after this cutter had been run under the hills, and with nine-and-a-half days' work 1,150 bushels were thrown out of the hill, or about 127 bushels for each day's work.—Detroit Free Press.

About the House.

To Cure a Bunion.—Try binding on the pulp of a lemon every night.

To Keep the Hands White.—Never use hard water; soften it with a little borax; if the hands are very tender or become chapped, wear kid gloves at night.

Suet Pudding.—One cupful of stoned and chopped raisins, one cupful finely chopped suet, one cupful sugar, [illegible] sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, flour enough to make it stiff as bread [illegible]. Steam three hours.

Uses of Turpentine.—It is stated that spirits of turpentine, sprinkled through the house once a week, is a sure preventive against scarlet fever and other diseases. It is also said to keep moths out of carpets.—Our Home Journal.

Cream Sponge Cake.—Beat two eggs in a coffee-cup until light, and then fill the cup with sweet cream; add one cup of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one of cream-of-tartar and one and one-half cup of flour. Should sour cream be used, omit the cream-of-tartar.

To Crystallize Grasses.—Dissolve about twelve ounces of alum in two quarts of boiling-hot water; place the grasses (tied in a bunch) in the solution while it is hot; do not disturb it; when cold separate the grasses; remove all unnecessary lumps. If the crystals are too large made the solution weaker.

Recipe for Toilet Soap.—Take two ounces of glycerine, an ounce of oil of sweet almonds, and two ounces of powdered Florentine orris root, and melt with four ounces of mutton tallow and a pound of English white Castile soap. Before the soap sets, it can be cut with a knife in any shape the fancy dictates.—Economist.

Potted Pigeons.—After picking, drawing and washing, [illegible] the pinions, dry well with a cloth, season with pepper and salt, roll a lump of butter in chopped parsley, and put it into the pigeons; sew them up, place them in a pot, cover them with butter, bake in a moderately-heated oven; when done, put them in potting-pots, and pour clarified butter over. Keep in a dry place.

Glycerine for Oil Stones.—About every one has more or less use for an oil stone, but in these days a good oil is hard to obtain, and kerosene is often used instead. This is a bad plan, for, although it makes the steel "take hold," it ruins the stone. Glycerine is much better, does not dry on the stone, and is easily washed off when dirty. Use soap or soda and water to clean the stone, and then apply the glycerine. Clean water is only needed to wash the stone with, and, if treated in this way, the latter can be kept bright for a long time with the grit unimpaired.—Husbandman.

Onions as a Disinfectant.—Onions sliced and put in plates in a sick room are an excellent disinfectant, and will prevent contagion from eruptive troubles. They should be removed, and fresh slices put in their places, as soon as discolored. Be sure that these slices are buried, or put where they cannot be eaten, as soon as taken from the room. It is not safe to use onions that are not taken fresh from the earth, during any epidemic of eruptive diseases, as they are so quickly sensitive to or impregnated with any contagion or malaria in the atmosphere.—Boston Transcript.

Sea Bathing at Galveston.

The other evening quite a nice little party of ladies and gentlemen repaired to the beach at Galveston, Texas, to enjoy for the first time during the season the delights of the bath. Everything was as lovely as could be when the beach was reached by the bathers. The south winds were as soft as the down upon the angel's wing, and perfumed with the richest and rarest odors the flowery isles of the gulf can produce. The ladies went off to themselves, and donning their robes for the plunge, gave the word when all was ready to the boys, who underwent a similar change in their raiment at another place.

The girls screamed nice little screams as the laughing waters would leap up to their mouths and kiss the red rosy lips that tempted them, and the boys would stand stiff and stubborn against the plunging waves, defying the strength of old Ocean's billows. The bath was being hugely enjoyed until one of the girls gave a scream.

The first outburst of agony was followed by a second, deeper and more terrible than words can express. Then came the third scream, and the lady fainted—fell lifeless into old Ocean's arms.

There was gathering in hot haste about this fatal place. Men from the beach rushed with their clothes on into the sea to render all the assistance in their power to save the "dying girl." The confusion continued to increase until the beach and the gulf were alive with anxious, eager people, men and women, who wanted to know what the matter was. The unfortunate lady was seized by a stalwart arm and carried to the shore, where her brow was fanned with the brim of a Panama hat, which soon restored her to consciousness. With the first gleam of reason that shot across her soul she brought another scream. This time it was "Shark! I am bitten by a shark!"

With that announcement there was a departure in hot haste from that memorable spot which will live forever in the fears of those who filled up the ranks of the skedaddlers. The idea seemed to seize that delegation that a shark could travel on dry land as well as in the sea, and under this impression a tremendous assemblage of bathers, in thin bathing costume, could be seen flying like a routed army through the highways of East Galveston.

After peace had been restored the heroes of this escape armed themselves with fishing-hooks, shot guns, six shooters and all the available weapons attainable, and started to the beach to attack the shark. He was found floating just as he was when he made the assault upon the young lady. He was roped, hooked, shot and brought ashore, and proved to be a stick of timber worth about fifteen cents.

Bonanza of Wealth in South Carolina.

The most remarkable instance of a geological discovery, revolutionizing a district and enriching a State, has occurred in the development of what is known as the Ashley River (S. C.) deposits of what seems to be the remains of cartilaginous fish, especially of the shark family, though they also contain numerous bones and teeth of cetaceans, or whale-like animals, many of which were larger or as large as the whales found in the seas of the present time. From the number of their bones and teeth exhumed or washed out by the waves of the ocean, they must have existed in large "shoals," and, together with the enormous sharks of that age, animals rivaling the whale in size, must have constituted a vast marine army of "flesh-eaters" and spacious "scavengers" of the Eocene ocean. Large ships and steamers are daily seeking cargoes from the Ashley, Stono, Wando, Ashepoo, and other rivers, and the State of South Carolina is now reaping a great harvest. Over $6,000,000 has already been invested, by Northern capitalists in mining and manufacturing the rocks into rich fertilizers, and many people who, in 1867, were unbelievers, have now their thousands invested in it. This is a simple and true history of the discovery and development of the phosphate rocks of South Carolina. The exports for the past year amount to nearly 200,000 tons.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Colorado Giant.

The Denver News demolishes the Colorado giant. Thousands of feet of limestone and sandstone have worn away from above the shale where it was found; there are no remains of a prehistoric people in the neighborhood; the material of the statue is so soft that if it were buried for a year it would fall to pieces, and no anthropoid apes or remains of them have ever been found in this hemisphere, so that the addition of a tail is an absurdity.

O. P. MORTON.

Personal Reminiscences of the Dead War Governor.

Mr. William Henry Smith, of Chicago, whose long [illegible] with political affairs in Ohio gave him an opportunity to know the late Senator Morton during the most eventful portion of his career, while the War of the Rebellion was in progress, [illegible] following [illegible] reminiscences [illegible]:

Mr. Smith [illegible] first met Oliver P. Morton in [illegible]. He was at that time engaged in the [illegible] practice in the eastern part of Indiana, principally at Richmond and Centerville. He was a young man of [illegible], large, strong, and [illegible], of extraordinary vigor and force of will. His first connection with politics [illegible]. His opponent was George W. Julian, the noted abolitionist, who was [illegible] Congress. Morton didn't like him, and, with his friends, did what he could to defeat him. Sam Parker was [illegible] by Morton and his friends, and he succeeded in [illegible]. [illegible] between the latter and Morton never ceased. Even after the latter became the head of the Republican party in Indiana the old feeling of animosity between him and Julian would crop out in the party councils. One of Morton's warm friends in those days was old Sol Meredith, a quaint combination of farmer and politician, whom I think it would be difficult to match.

The main facts in his life you will find in the many articles published concerning him during the past year. Every one remembers the thrill that swept over the country when, early in 1861, he made his great speech at a public meeting, declaring that the Union must be preserved at any cost. His was the first voice to utter these words publicly, and that speech did more to crystalize the Union feeling of the North into a determination that the Union must be preserved than any other public utterance of that eventful period.

Again, early in April, just before President Lincoln issued his proclamation calling for 75,000 troops for three months, Morton's dispatch offering, in the name of Indiana, to furnish 10,000 men to put down the rebellion created intense excitement.

I think he was one of the first men to realize that the rebellion was not to be put down so easily as at first supposed, and he urged the necessity of the most vigorous measures. He was, from the first, the trusty adviser of Mr. Lincoln.

The promptitude he displayed in carrying out his designs was little short of marvelous. Red tape never tied him down. The troops of Indiana were, owing to his energy, among the first in the field, and, through his fatherly solicitude and watchfulness for their welfare, they were better cared for than any other regiments in the army.

It was he who first set the example of sending agents with the troops from his own State, whose duty it was to report their sanitary condition at all times. When Gov. Brough become Governor of Ohio—he was elected in 1863—he adopted this plan.

My official acquaintance with Gov. Morton began when I became Private Secretary to Gov. Brough, and continued until I was elected Secretary of State of Ohio. This was the most trying period of the war, the dark days of 1863-4. Brough and Morton were warm personal friends, and in many respects were very similar. Both were men of great energy and will power, and from the first they worked in concert. Before Brough's election the people of Ohio looked with more confidence to Morton to protect them from threatened incursions than to Todd, our own Governor. In 1863, when Morgan's men threatened Cincinnati, Morton was appealed to for protection and he did what he could.

In his efforts to discover and put down the treasonable organizations known as the Knights of the Golden Circle, Sons of Liberty, and kindred associations he worked without ceasing, and with unequaled energy and vigilance. Secret agents were constantly passing between him and Gov. Brough, at all hours of the day and night. The amount of work he did was marvelous. During this time I was frequently called to Indianapolis and know that not an hour of the twenty-four passed without some demand on him for advice or action.

He was always a strong partisan, and in this respect his leadership bore a stronger resemblance to Henry Clay than to any other American statesman.

Personally he was most agreeable and entertaining. He made friends of all he met in the social circle, and was especially beloved in his own city. He possessed all the elements of a great leader. His energy, great abilities, strong common sense, and devotion to the Union were his most marked characteristics.

Russian and Turk—What They Are Fighting For.

It must, then, be fully understood that the Turk is not fighting for his own home or his own country. He is fighting for the right to play the tyrant—to play the Turk—in the country and homes of other men. He is fighting to [illegible] his spoils from their lawful owners. He fights in order that he may keep the [illegible] of unrestrained murder, robbery and [illegible] over as large a part of the [illegible] as he can. To the fine [illegible] gentlemen at Stafford House, [illegible] Duke who talks in their [illegible] a "sacred cause." Those who try to put a check upon the doings of men engaged in this sacred cause are spoken of as "aggressors." The "aggression" of Russia consists in the noble determination of the Russian people that this state of things shall be put an end to—in their determination themselves to spend and be spent in the glorious work. If by Turkey we mean the lands so marked on the map and the people of those lands, the Russians are not fighting against Turkey, but for Turkey. They fight to free the people of Turkey from barbarian bondage. They fight to free the land of Turkey from the exactions of barbarian tax-gatherers. They fight to free the homes of Turkey from the plunder and defilement of barbarian robbers and ravishers. They fight, in short, to free the land from the barbarian intruder and give it back to its own people. May such "aggression" as this ever prosper. It is grievous to us as Englishmen that Russia should be left to do alone the work which England should have done at her side. But we can none the less feel our hearts beat for those who are doing the work in which we are kept back from sharing. They have [illegible] the good [illegible], they have jeopardied their lives unto the death to put down the wrong and uphold the right.—[illegible] Freeman, in Contemporary Review.

Return of A. Oakey Hall.

A. Oakey Hall has returned to New York. His reappearance is as mysterious as his [illegible] on the 15th of March last [illegible] inexplicable. Having [illegible] the bosom of his family at [illegible] West Forty-second [illegible] morning his family [illegible]. Mr. Aaron [illegible], former law-partner of the ex-Mayor, said that he was surprised when he was visited by Mr. Hall. Mr. Hall was [illegible], and seemed much improved in health.

"How did he reach the city?" asked the reporter.

"I don't know; I didn't ask him. I know that he was in London about twenty days ago. I merely guess that he came by way of Boston."

"He intends to remain in New York?"

"Yes; I think that is very certain. I always thought there was something wrong with his head when he went away. He was annoyed and nearly worn out. Now he has had rest, and it has done him good. I think that he will resume the practice of his profession."

Mr. Vanderpool agreed with many persons with whom the reporter conversed, that no one excepting Mr. Hall knows what he intends to do, and, so far as can be learned, he has told no one of his intentions.

District Attorney Phelps was asked to-night whether legal proceedings would be begun against the ex-Mayor. He said there would not be, so far as his office was concerned. "Hall has been tried once and acquitted," he said, "and, of course, he can be tried again if he obtains new evidence; but if he is tried and acquitted that is the end of it, new evidence or not. The statute of limitations would bar any proceedings on the alleged fraudulent minutes of the Board of Audit. It was done more than five years ago. There will be no criminal suit against him. What civil suits may be brought I know nothing about."

Mr. Wm. C. Whitney, the Corporation Counsel, said that so far as Mr. Hall had ever been in the "ring" suits, the case had been settled, and he did not think there was any prospect of any suit being brought against him.

Many theories are afloat as to the impelling motive that brought Hall home. It is believed by many that he does not know why he returned, but has been brought back by the crazy impulse of a brain that was unsettled before he left this city. A few put his return on the solid basis that he is now of sound mind and in good health, and that he intends to resume the practice of his profession, and attempt to wipe out the memories of the past.—New York World.

A Whisky Monomaniac.

A singular instance of the power of alcoholic drink was brought publicly to notice yesterday. A young gentleman, a journalist, a capitalist and a Christian, is the victim of a suddenly-acquired mania which is quite remarkable. He went to visit his former home last summer in Cincinnati. On his way [illegible] Kansas City he became sick, and, in the absence of a doctor, went to the steamboat bar and asked for and was given a drink of whisky. The drink, coming upon a system unaccustomed to it, created an intoxication, which has been perpetual ever since. It gave the young man such a mania for strong drink that nothing could restrain him in his excesses. There was nothing about his intoxication offensive to those who visited him. On the contrary, his brilliant mind and inexhaustible fund of conversation seemed to be renewed. He knew that he was surrendering himself to drink and its fascinating effects, but paid no attention to the remonstrances of his friends. There was nothing violent in his excesses. He was calm, but desired to drink, and he kept on drinking. He had a wife to whom he was devoted; he idolized her and made every provision for her comfort. He was a member of the church and in good standing, a good lawyer, and the chosen leader of the Young Men's Republican Club. He owns a large amount of real estate, and was on the highway to wealth and prosperity. He had never taken a drop of intoxicating liquor in his life before this drink taken on the Ohio steamboat. Yesterday he was taken East by his father and brother, where restraint will be placed upon his actions, in the hope that the brilliant and cultivated mind may be saved from this strange and fatal infatuation.—Kansas City Times.

The Richmond Battle-Fields.

The battle-fields around Richmond are quiet meadows now, reclaimed by nature, with few signs of the days of "blood and iron." At Cold Harbor, Fair Oaks, Seven Pines, and Malvern Hill, one sees little to remind him of the terrible scenes enacted there twelve and [illegible] years ago. In the woods and on [illegible] river bluffs in the Peninsula [illegible] attempt has been [illegible] the land, sloping [illegible] to be seen, but elsewhere the intrenchments have been leveled. [illegible] Petersburg there are few traces [illegible] formidable fortifications as Fort Steadman, Hell and Damnation. The Crater and the fields around it are owned by Mr. Griffiths, who was born close by, and was in Petersburg when the mine was sprung. He has built a house near the Crater, and now has his father's farm under excellent cultivation. The Crater itself has been left almost untouched, and a thick underbrush of peach trees and sprouts has sprung up from the [illegible] thrown away by the soldiers during the siege. The ravine where the dead lay in great heaps on that terrible morning has been brought under the plow year after year, until now only a slight depression in the field can be pointed out. The visitor has to pay 25 cents for a glimpse of the Crater and the interior of a shed stocked with battle relics.

A Texas stock man recently sold to some parties in Southwestern Kansas 40,000 head of cattle and 2,000 head of horses for $140,000.

THE PRESIDENTIAL FRAUD.

An Extraordinary Letter from Judge Strong, [illegible] Court.

[From the New York Sun.]

The Hon. William Strong, of Pennsylvania, is one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was one of the fifteen members who constituted the Electoral Commission through whose action Rutherford B. Hayes was declared to be elected President of the United States. Had Judge Strong, as a member of that commission, voted the other way Mr. Hayes would have been excluded from the office of President. It is therefore to the vote of Judge Strong that Mr. Hayes owes his office. The commission consisted of fifteen, of whom, leaving Judge Strong in doubt, seven were for Mr. Hayes and seven were against him. The grand result depended upon the way Judge Strong should vote. Under these circumstances, and with such consequences hanging upon his vote, Judge Strong made up his mind to vote for Mr. Hayes.

It now appears, however—and it appears by a letter under his own hand—that in arriving at this conclusion Judge Strong was governed by a strictly technical rule, and that, although he cast the determining vote in favor of Mr. Hayes for President, he does not believe, and never did believe, that Mr. Hayes was lawfully elected to that office! The view taken by Judge Strong was that Congress has no right to inquire into State elections for State electors; that the Electoral Commission had no more power than Congress had; and so he voted for Hayes although he feared a great wrong had been perpetrated by the Louisiana Returning Board!

All this fully appears in a letter addressed by Mr. Justice Strong to an old personal friend of his, the Hon. George W. Jones, of Tennessee. This letter, being entirely upon a public question of overshadowing importance, has been forwarded to us by Mr. Jones for publication, and we print the two letters, which are as follows, in full:

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 16, 1877.

Hon. Charles A. Dana:

Dear Sir: During the sitting of the Electoral Commission in Washington last winter, I wrote to Mr. Justice Strong, of the United States Supreme Court, and a member of the commission, with whom I had been associated formerly in Congress. I did not keep a copy of my letter, but, addressing him, I wrote in substance as follows:

"When you and I were in Congress together you were a Democrat, and regarded as an honest man. Do you believe that the people of Louisiana elected or voted for the Hayes electors?"

I inclose herewith a copy of Justice Strong's letter in response to mine. If you think his letter worth publishing, you are at liberty to give it to the public.

In my reply to Justice Strong's letter I wrote:

"By the constitution of the United States it is provided that Presidential electors shall be appointed in such manner as shall be prescribed by the State Legislatures; but the returns of the electoral votes are to be returned to the President of the Senate, and shall be opened in the presence of the two houses of Congress, and be then counted. Congress clearly has the right to inquire and determine whether or not the electors of the several States had been appointed in the manner prescribed by their respective States."

I never write secrets nor keep copies of the letters I write. And I do not believe that the official acts of public servants and the reasons for their acts should be regarded as private and secret. Very respectfully yours,

G. W. Jones.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26, 1877.

The Hon. George W. Jones:

My Dear Sir: I was a Democrat when you and I were together in Congress. I am a Democrat now. I hold to all the opinions the State-Rights Democrats have always held, and which the acknowledged leaders of the party have avowed up to the present winter—never more clearly than in 1873 to 1875.

I do not believe that Congress has any constitutional right to inquire into State elections for State electors.

Congress has, of late years, interfered quite too much with the States. The Electoral Commission has no more power than Congress has, and I think it would be a most dangerous usurpation were it to do what the States alone have a right to do, even to cure what I fear was a great wrong of the Louisiana Returning Board.

I can not doubt that such will be your opinion when you reflect to what the assertion of such a power would lead. It would place the right of the States, respecting the choice of electors, at the mercy of the Federal Government, and be the greatest stride ever made towards centralization.

Better suffer a present evil than open such a door, better than abandon all the time-honored principles of the Democratic party.

I am yours, very respectfully,

W. Strong.

The letter of Judge Strong is in one sense very creditable to him. It shows that he acted from conviction. We can not give our assent to the correctness of his conclusion, but we can understand that his view is one which might be honestly taken by a technical lawyer, not much addicted to equity and to going to the bottom of things.

The great and momentous fact which appears from the correspondence, and which presents itself, by its gigantic magnitude upon the serious consideration of the whole country, is that Rutherford B. Hayes occupies the office of President of the United States by force of the vote of a man who doesn't believe he was legally elected. From this conclusion there is no escape. It stands forth now, and will stand forever, as an historical fact, established by conclusive and unquestionable evidence.

To urge that every other vote in the Electoral Commission had the same potency as that of Judge Strong does not all detract from the strength of our argument. Conceding that, because it is undeniable, the stubborn fact still remains that, without Judge Strong the members of the commission were equally divided, and that if Mr. Hayes had not received the vote of this member of the commission, who did not believe he was legally elected, he would never have been declared President.

Evidence Against the Louisiana Returning Board.

[From the New Orleans Times.]

Soon after the information against the members of the late Returning Board seems that the returns of that parish were never in the possession of the present State authorities. In fact, all of the evidence relating to the altering and forging of the Vernon parish returns was was filed, the Times made the statement that the original returns of the parish of Vernon were not in this city, but were in possession of David Dudley Field, who managed Tilden's case in Congress. It collected by an agent of Mr. Tilden, under the direction of Col. Pelton, Mr. Tilden's Private Secretary. The authorities here, as far as can be gathered, knew nothing of Littlefield or his evidence, or the manner in which the return of Vernon had been tampered with until [illegible] committee at Washington. Yesterday ex-Gov. Wickliffe returned from New York, where he had been for the purpose of getting these original returns of Vernon parish. He succeeded in getting them, and they now are under lock and key, in the safe of the St. Charles Hotel. Gov. Wickliffe [illegible] his mission very quietly, and his return to this city was perhaps the first intimation to the public that he had been engaged in looking after these returns. Of course it would have been impossible to have proceeded with the trial without them, and it is reasonable to suppose that the delay in arraigning the accused parties was caused by the absence of the evidence, since it is hardly probable that the Attorney General cared to have them plead to the charge against them until he was sure of his ability to proceed with the case. It seems that Gov. Wickliffe had some difficulty in securing the returns, not because there was any objection to give them up, but because Mr. Field had permitted them to pass out of his keeping, and it was only after diligent search and inquiry that they were discovered. Gov. Wickliffe succeeded in getting them, however, and it is not probable that they will be lost sight of until the trial is over. The returns show very clearly that they have been altered. Originally they showed 400 Democratic and two Republican votes. The alteration makes the returns show 149 Republican votes. It was said when the change was first noticed that it had been made for the purpose of assisting one of Wells' cronies, who was a candidate in the district of which Vernon parish forms a part. Gov. Wickliffe expresses the opinion that with these returns no great difficulty ought to be experienced in securing a successful prosecution.

ALL SORTS.

Deadwood has sixty gin-mills.

Calico was first manufactured in England in 1776.

Schuylkill county, Pa., has twelve female Postmasters.

Twenty-five people died of consumption in Boston last week.

In Greece it was the custom, at meals, for the two sexes always to eat separately.

Six students in American colleges have committed suicide within the past six months.

Jennie June says that Anna Dickinson has had an offer of marriage from Gen. Butler.

Utah is said to have produced three-fourths of the supply of refined lead in this country last year.

Gas was not used for the purpose of lighting the streets of London until as late as the year 1809.

Since the Crimean war England has reduced her national debt from £900,000,000 to £712,000,000.

The eucalyptus trees planted at Nice have prevented, during the last two years, the malarial fevers usual in that city.

The best brushes in the world are made in America, but the bristles are imported chiefly from Germany and Russia.

The largest real-estate owner in America, if not in the world, is ex-Gov. Abner Coburn, of Maine, whose possessions include 598,000 acres of land.

Mrs. A. T. Stewart, wife of the late millionaire, is erecting a monument on Long island to the memory of her husband, which is to cost $1,500,000.

Zack Chandler says that if he had a boy to-day he would rather have him go to work upon an eighty-acre farm than go into the best political office that could be found.

A German was about to make a journey to his fatherland, and, wishing to say "good-by" to a friend, extended his hand and said: "Vell, off I don'd come back, hullo."

An Aleppo girl, who has more than one lover, subjects her suitors to a trying ordeal for her hand. Taking three bits of live coal from the fire, she lays one in each of her lovers' hands. The one who holds out the longest wins the girl for his bride.

The New York Bulletin prints the following at the head of its editorial columns daily:

Taxes of New York city, 1876	$33,000,000.00
Taxes per head in New York	27.30
Taxes of London	40,000,000.00
Taxes per head in London	10.00
Taxes of Paris	36,400,000.00
Taxes per head in Paris	17.20

Mr. Bergh, the New York humanitarian, appears almost daily in the courts with a horse case, a dog case, a bird case, or some case or other in the interest of humanity, and gets fines tacked upon the cruel and unfeeling tormentors of the animal kingdom.

There is a young lady in Silver City who has eighteen beaux—more beaux than years. In order of plurality there are five miner beaux, three teamster beaux, two merchants' clerk beaux, two engineer beaux, two printer beaux, two millmen beaux, and two elbows.—Lynn County (Nev.) Times.

A million and fifty thousand men are reported to be on the military register of the German Government. Of this number 398,000 are upon a so-called black list, for not having served, including 190,000 who have left the country to avoid serving. It is estimated that one German in every eight expatriates himself to avoid military service.

Daniel Webster, in a discussion on the influence of the press, spoke as follows: "Every parent whose son is away from home, at school, should supply him with a newspaper. I well remember what a marked difference there was between those of my school-mates who had, and those who had not, newspapers. The first were always superior to the last in debate, composition and general intelligence."

Domestic bliss: no more to roam—
Held fast in fetters silken;
The Doctor brings a Durham home
And Belle she goes to Milkin.

The widow sits by the vacant chair,
A combing her strands of yellow hair,
While her soul by a thought is vexed—
Not of the man who sat there last,
Not of the joys of the buried past,
But of who would sit there next.

When I have plucked the rose,
I cannot give it vital growth again,
It needs must wither; I'll smell it on the tree.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

Great Reduction on Sugars

All grades reduced 1 cent per pound; the lowest they have sold for fifteen years. Best white coffee sugar 10c, best coffee C 9c, choice yellow sugar 8c.

An immense stock of all goods for

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEARS!

Candies, Nuts, Toys, Liquors and Cigars.

TEAS!

Fifty more chests of the choice 40c tea and 40 chests of the good 25c tea. We sell large amounts of these two teas; being good drawers, strong and well flavored. We now sell more chests of tea in a month than we used to in a year, and this comes simply from our purchasing direct of the importers and selling direct to our customers, thereby saving the profit of the middle men, which is 20 to 40c on the pound.

Young Hyson Tea, ...	25, 50, 70, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea, ...	60, 70, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea, ...	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea, ...	25, 60, best 70 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea, ...	35, 50, best 70 cents per pound

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 22 cents. Good Fine Rio, 20 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents

SYRUPS.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents. New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.

RAISENS, and ZANTEE CURRENTS for CHRISTMAS CAKE, CITRON, LEMON and ORANGE PEEL.

Valencia raisins per pound 8c. Best layers raisins 12½c. Zantee currents 9c Leghorn citron 35c. Orange and Lemon peal 30c,

CANDIES.

Toy candies of all kinds. Stick candy per pound 18c. French mixed 20c, Toy candy all sorts and varieties 30c. Toys for Santa Claus from a penny whistle to a nice album to make presents with a thousand different things to amuse the little ones—Dogs, cats, rats, mice, birds, elephants, lions, tigers, drums, wagons, horses, Chineese lanterns, pistol caps, &c., something for every little one in the country.

And for Christmas tree candles we have a large assortment of every color, from ½ cent to 2 cents each or 50c per box.

OILS. OILS. OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30ct

Nuts for Christmas and New Years.

Brasil nuts 10c. Filberts, quart 15c. Almons, qurrt 25c. English walnuts, quart 15c. Pecans, quart 12 1-2c. Roasted pea nuts quart 5c.

Liquors of all Kinds for Medical use Whisky, Rum, Brandy, Gin, Wines and Ales.

Good old bourbon $1 and $1.25. 2 years old $1.40 and 1.50. Best old 76 for medical use $2.50. Sherry Wine as good as any in the country $1.50. Port wine best in the market $1.50. California Angelica wine best $1.50. Gin $1.50 and $2.50. Dublin and London Porter 22c. Scotch 22c.

TOBACCOS AND CIGRS-

A No. 1 smoking for 30c per pound. Choice fine cut 50c per pound. No. 1 Plug Tobacco 50c per pound.

We have a large assortment and can sell a good cigar at $1.25 per box. And a choice No. 1 cigar for $1.75 per 100.

FRESH OYSTERS LOWER THIS YEAR THAN MEAT—We sell a fine Oyster at 15c. No. 1 full count saloon oyster 20c. Large A standard 30c.

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to furnish everything in the Hardwase line.

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINMR and is prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

NEW ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place

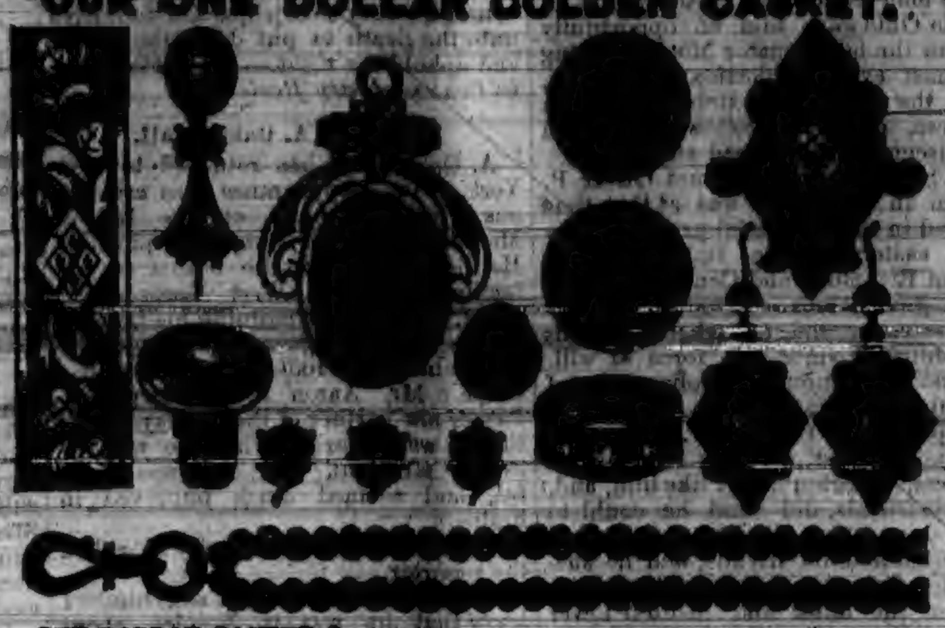
DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page Illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.



OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) plated spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of [illegible]. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
17 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our ctizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO.

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENT.

The ESTEY ORGAN

tands unrivalled. It has stood the test of years, and has never be excelled. Those wanting Organs should get theEstey, the very best there is made. Hundreds of testimonials in its favor, and increased rates every year. Call and examine them.

G. H. YESBERA, Agt.

Next Door to Abright's, Main Street, Auburn, Indiana

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom.
Toledo	11 12a m	12 01 a m	4 05 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 20 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 21 "
Butler	1 25 "	2 15 "	7 [illegible] "
Waterloo	1 51 "	2 35 "	7 [illegible] "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 40 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 05 "	2 54 "	7 47 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 [illegible] "
Ligonier	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Goshen	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Elkhart	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 10 p m	9 40 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 02 "	10 10 "	7 [illegible] "
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 41 "	8 02 "
Kendallville	8 49 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 [illegible] "	11 [illegible] "	9 [illegible] "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 3[illegible] "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 0[illegible] "	11 40 "	9 10 "
Butler	"	12 06 a m	9 30 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tkt. Agt.
J. H. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex.	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 26	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	3 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	5 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 40

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex.	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 03
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect June 21—run by Chicago time

Going North.

Stations	Exp.		Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 15pm
St. Louis	6 45
Indianapolis	4 25am
Ft Wayne	10 50 "		1 30	4 15p
Auburn	11 40 "		3 03	5 12
Waterloo	11 58 "		4 00	5 31
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 58 pm		5 20	6 38
Reading	1 40 "		7	7 22
Bankers	2 05 "		7	7 47
Jonesville	2 30 "		7	8 05
Jackson	3 45 "		9	9 20
Detroit	6 30 "		12	3 57a
Grand Rapids	8 20 "		6	6 55
Lansing	6 00 "
Saginaw	9 15
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 15 a m			2 55p
Lansing	10 10			7 25
Grand Rapids	6 20 "		11 50a	7 00
Detroit	7 00 "			8 50
Jackson Dep	11 40 am		5 10p	6 05a
Jonesville	12 50 pm		7	7 12
Bankers	1 07 "		7	7 30
Reading	1 25 "		8	7 45
Ar Angola	2 12 "		9	8 41
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 47 "		10 45	9 22
Auburn	3 02 "		11 31	9 38
Auburn Junction			1 00a
Fort Wayne Arrive	3 55 "			10 30
Indianapolis	7 45 "			5 55
St. Louis	6 30 am			7 55
Louisville	6 30 am			10 50

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Com'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 30
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05pm	6 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 30	00
Barnesville	9 45	11 48	8 16
Cambridge	10 45	1 0[illegible]	7 36
Zanesville	11 55	2	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 a
Shawnee	4 30	10 m
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	[illegible]	4 30pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6	10 00
Shelby	4 54	3 7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 28	10 20
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 08	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 30pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 00	6 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 52	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 20pm	1 14am	1 20am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 24	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 06	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 45	6 22	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 25	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 30
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 00	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 28	6 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 10pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 00
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 53	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 30	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	12 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	2 10am	1 15pm
New York	5 35	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:50 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:15 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mail.	3. Express.	5 Accom.
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	2 [illegible] pm
Bluffton	6 17 am	[illegible] pm
Montpelier	6 56 am	[illegible] pm
Hartford	7 30 am	3 42 pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	[illegible] pm	6 00 am
Newcastle	9 05 am		6 25 pm
Cambridge City	9 46 am		7 45 pm
Connersville	10 30 am		8 50 pm
Cincinnati	1 20 pm		11 45 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	12 30 pm
Louisville	10 30 pm	6 [illegible] am
Terre Haute	[illegible]	[illegible] am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	9 00 am

GOING NORTH

STATIONS	2	4 Express.	Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am
Terre Haute		2 55 pm
Louisville		3 30 pm
Cincinnati	7 00 am		7 00 am
Indianapolis		[illegible] pm
Connersville	11 30 am		10 00 am
Cambridge City	11 45 am		11 44 am
New Castle	[illegible] pm		12 55 pm
Muncie	[illegible] pm	10 45 pm	3 10 pm
Hartford	pm	11 23 pm
Montpelier	pm	11 57 pm
Bluffton	[illegible] pm	12 33 pm
Fort Wayne	3 40 pm	1 45 am

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

Geo. W. Mullen, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. Worthington, Gen. Supt.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877

GOING EAST.

	MAIL No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 4.	LOCAL FT No. 6.
Lv. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 02
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 38	9 30
Roann	9 05	9 04	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 22	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 40	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 55	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 09	10 35	12 [illegible]
Columbia City	10 26	11 18	1 30
Coburn's	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 09	2 52
La Otto	11 20	12 31pm	3 35
Cedar Creek	11 29	12 44	4 13
Auburn Junct'n	11 42	1 07	4 53
Auburn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20pm	2 00	6 30

Going West.

	No. 1.	No.	No. 7.
Logansport ar.	6 5[illegible]pm	1 4 2 a m	3 [illegible]pm
Mexico	6 16		4 30
Denver	6 07		4 05
Chili	6 00		3 50
Roann	5 47		3 40
Laketon	5 38		2 00
North Manchester	5 28		1 35
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 05
Collamer	5 05		12 25am
South Whitley	5 02		12 20
Columbia City	4 40		10 55
Collins	4 26		9 40
Churubusco	4 14		9 25
La Otto	3 55		8 45
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 25
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	4	7 35
Butler lv	2 45	6 45	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad

---

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town, to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S [illegible]

MARRIAGE GUIDE [illegible]

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE

A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. [illegible]

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, [illegible]

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., [illegible]

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, [illegible] Address [illegible] St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—[illegible] J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. [illegible]

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit [illegible] Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Notice of Administration.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by theClerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of William Essig deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

ELIZABETH ESSIG, Adm'x.

October 18, 1877 no12

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 22nd, 1877. Number 47.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year, ...$2. | Six Months, ...

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1 y.
1 Square	3 00	[illegible]	[illegible]	12 00
¼ Column	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column	15 00	20 00	60 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
[illegible]th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

[illegible] FRANKS. [illegible] HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. McBRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m. 7 to 8 p. m.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

SCARBROUGH & KEPLER, Prop's., Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

TREMONT HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Accommodates three hundred guests. Terms $2.50 per day. Located corner Second street and Indiana Avenue, in full view of the Capitol City Hall.

F. P. HILL.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, [Late of City Hotel,] C erk. O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Keeping good teams and [illegible]

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge.

F. W. SILVERS.

CARPETS

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & Co.,

Offer a large and choice stock of Carpets in all the newest designs.

Body Brussels Carpets,
Tapestry Carpets,
Ingrain Carpets.

COTTON CHAIN CARPETS,
HEMP CARPETS,
RAG CARPETS.

Terry's Reps, Cretonnes, Lace Curtains, Shades, Wall Paper, Stair Rods.

OIL CLOTHS,

Mattings, Rugs and Mats, Druggets

And all goods pertaining to the carpet and upholstery business.

Lambrequins

A Specialty.

Prices Low to Compete with the Times

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.
26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. [illegible]

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases Watch Chains, magnificent Holiday Gifts, Lockets, Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SET

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

$777 is not easily earned in these times but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once, H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine. October 31,—6m.coll.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Miles Waterman is plaintiff, and William L. Gilmore and Ellen M. Gilmore is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and eighty-nine (289) dollars and eighty-eight (88) cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number forty-seven (47) forty-eight (48) fifty-five (55) and fifty-six (56) in Danforth's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morlan & Leas, Attorneys for plff.
Auburn, Oct. 30th, 1877. Pf. [illegible]

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Hyman and Jacob Keller is plaintiffs, and John W. Garvey is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of six hundred, 600, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number one, 1, and two, 2, in block number thirty-two, 32 in the Town of Garrett DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs. I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Covill, Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for plff.
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein Alfred Kelly is plaintiff and John Treesh is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of ninety-six 96 Dollars, and Fifty 50 cents, with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number Twenty-seven 27 in the Western Addition to the Town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Ind.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs. I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By T. D. GROSS, Deputy.

W. L. Penfield, Att'y for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Nov. 1, 1877. Pr. fee $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause where Geo. Emerson et al is plaintiffs and Benajah B. Long, Edgar B Long and et al is defendants requiring me to make the sum of eleven hundred a thirty dollars ($1130), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Commencing fifteen (15) rods east of the north west corner of section four (4) thence running south to the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Rail Road thence east thirty-five (35) rods thence north to said section line thence west to the place of begining all in township thirty four (34) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Best & McClellan, Attorneys for plaintiffs
Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877. Pf. $9.25,

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Jas. I. Best and Chas A. O. McClellan is plaintiffs, and Irven McFadden et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one thousand and four hundred and eighty-five [1485] dollars and ninety-one [91] cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in Auburn DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

A portion of the north western quarter of section number three [3] in township number thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13] east in DeKalb county, Indiana, described as follows to-wit: all that portion of said quarter section lying south of the Cemetery as now recorded on said quarter section and west of the west line of the Fort Wayne Jackson and Saginaw Rail Road containing two [2] acres more or less.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

O. B. Leas one of defendants Attorneys.
Auburn, Oct. 31st, 1877. Pf. $9.25

If you do not get your money's worth at the New York Store, you can't get it DeKalb county.

True Merit Will Win.

A few years since the proprietor of Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound, introduced it [illegible]. Our people soon found it out to be the reliable and already it has become the most staple and popular pulmonary remedy in the market. It quickly cures the worst colds, coughs, croups, bronchitis, asthma and incipient consumption. Nothing acts so nicely in whooping cough, and it is so pleasant that children really like it. Containing no opium, or other dangerous drug, it is as safe as it is sure. Trial size 10c; large sizes 50c and $1.00. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

AGENTS WANTED.

$12,000 was paid for simple engraving our great premium for 1878, Cole's Voyage of Life, which we give with The Contributor, the popular religious and family paper, with its 64 column and 18 departments. Rev. Drs. Earle, Pentecost, Abbot, and many other noted authors and preachers write for it. Takes everywhere. The great chance of the year for agents. The costliest premium ever before offered, and as fascinating as it is costly. Sample paper, terms, reports from agents, &c., &c., free. Large commissions. Secure teritory at once. Address J. H. EARLE,
Boston, Mass.

The Death Bed of Senator Morton.

A magnificient picture, just published, on heavy plate paper 14x18 inches in size It touchingly portrays the last moments of the great statesmen, with family and friends grouped sorrowfully around him. One copy of this beautiful work of art will be sent by mail, in a pasteboard roller, to any address, post paid on receipt of 25c; three copies for 60c; or six for $1.00, in currency or postage stamps. Agents wanted everywhere, to sell this and a great variety of other popular pictures. No trouble to sell them. Send stamp for our catalogue and terms. Address,

A. CREGAR & Co., Publishers,
168 Market St., Chattanooga, Tenn.

For Kansas and Colorado.

Take the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, extending from Kansas City and Atchison, on the Missouri river, via Topeka, the capital of Kansas, through the fertile Arkansas Valley, to Pueblo, where direct connections is made with the Denver & Rio Grande Railway for Colorado Springs, Manitou, Denver, Cannon City, and all points of note on the Denver & Rio Grande. The track is excelled by that of no road in the West, and the passenger equipment embraces all the modern improvements for comfort and safety. Through express trains leave union depots, Kansas City and Atchison, daily, on the arrival of trains from the East, and run through to the Rocky Mountains, with Pulman Sleeping Cars attached. For maps, circulars and detailed information send to T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Ag't., Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, your self and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

From the Logansport Pharos.

Notes and Items of Early Times.

BY MAJOR M'FADDEN.

Before commencing my story I will give you some incidents for the children which the old folks can jump over. As heretofore mentioned, we have a large fire-place in one end of our cabin, and the main thing for us in the winter was to get in a big back log every evening, to last all night and the next day, and then make a big fire. After the rest of the folks had gone to bed, I would stay up and parch about a peck of corn in the big skillet for the next day. I could live on it, honey and jerked venison, and called it high life in America. A hunter can live longer on parched corn without water than on anything else. Some times when parching corn or baking Johnnie cakes on a smoothe clapboard, I would play Daniel Boone and imagine myself camped out in the woods by a big fire and living on roasted coon. We moved to this country in a covered wagon and camped out, and that is when I first fell in love with camping out and running wild, and it is hard for me now to go back on my first love and keep from following off every covered wagon that comes along We had a new comer who had moved so often that whenever a covered wagon drove up or passed his cabin, his chickens would fall in line and march over the fence, lay down and cross their legs ready to be tied, thinking that they were going to move again. At night after we had gone to bed the ground squirrels would come up through the puncheon floor, and it was fun to see them play hide-and-go-seek, blind man's bluff, and I have laid for hours and laughed myself to death seeing them play circus and try to stand on their heads. They were so plenty that we had to watch our corn patch when it was first planted or they would dig it all up, and eat it. One morning I went out to watch our little patch of corn, which was our earthly all for bread, and being constitutionally tired carrying myself around, although I had not worked any that morning, I sat down by a stump in the field and soon fell asleep, and when I awoke I was surprised to see thirty or forty ground-squirrels sitting around me in a circle. I got up to interview them and find out the object of their meeting, and found that they had dug up all the corn around me, and that I had accidentally sat down on a hill of corn, and they were waiting for me to get up, so that they could get at the last hill. I thought that was heaping insult upon misfortune, and I broke up the convention with a club, and killed about seventeen of them, and we were never troubled with them after that. One night I woke up and saw something lying on the floor by the fire, that looked very bright and glistning. I thought perhaps I was dreaming about Alladin and the Wonderful Lamp, or Cinderella and the Glass Slippers, but come to look closer it was a huge rattlesnake that had come up through the floor to warm himself. The gun stood within reach and was always loaded, and I drew a bead on him, fired and shot his head off. A gun shot off in a room makes an awful noise, and it scared the rest of the folks almost to death, and they all hallowed murder. Father wanted to know what in the world was the matter, and I told him that I had killed a boa constrictor or an anaconda, and that I had saved the whole family. He gave me a moral lecture and said it was very wrong to scare a person to death while asleep. The snake was very fat and we saved the oil for rheumatism and a weak back and we always found it a sure cure. Speaking about sleep, the Rev. Sidney Smith, the great English divine, said that sleep was so near like death that he never trusted himself to it without first committing his soul to God, and I always did so too. One day Tom and George Hollenback, father and mysel were out hunting, and the dogs made a big fuss in a thicket and we rushed in to see what was the matter, and found that they had come across a den of young wolves and the old one was not at home. There were six of them and about quarter grown, but very active and ferocious, and we had hard work to catch them, as they had such a careless way of feeling around for a fellow's fingers and would snap at you like steel traps. At last we got a forked stick and held their necks down while we tied them. One of the boys had a big pocket in his coat and concluded to carry one in it. We got ready and started for home with our menagerie, when all at once the wolf in the pocket grabbed the boy by the hind part of his leg and held on like grim death. The poor fellow ran around and howled. We tried to break his hold, but it would not let go. We could not beat or choke it off, and we had to cut its head off and it still held on. At last we concluded to pour some powder in its jaws and blow them open. We did so, and got some fire with steel, flint and punk, and touched it off, and it blew the jaws all to pieces, and the teeth flew around and came near putting some of our eyes out. That made the boys so mad that they killed all the wolves but one, and that I took home and tied him with a chain to a stake in the yard. In five minutes he could dig a hole in the sand big enough to hide himself, and then he would lay with his nose sticking out and let on that he was asleep, and the chickens would come around to investigate the subject, and woe unto the chickens that came within the length of his chain. He could figure on it to an inch, and then when they got within reach he went for them like ligtning and would gobble them up, pick them and eat them before you could say Jack Robinson. One morning he came up missing; he was out and gone, chain and all. I did not care anything about him, as he had eaten up most all our chickens except an old setting hen that he did not relish, but I did not like to loose my chain. In the fall while out hunting in the woods and the wind was blowing very hard, I heard a rattling noise like a horse-fiddle, and went to see what it was, and lo, and behold, there was my chain hanging to the limb of a tree with a bunch of bones to it, and the wind was playing Yankee Doodle on them. It was the remains of my wolf, but I never could tell if it was a case of intentional suicide or he got fast and hung himself accidentally. As he was already dead, I cut him down, took my chain and left him for the wild winds to mourn his requiem.

THE SUN.

As the time approaches for the renewal of subscriptions, THE SUN would remind its friends and wellwishers everywhere, that it is again a candidate for their consideration and support. Upon its record for the past ten years it relies for a continuance of the hearty sympathy and generous co-operation which have hitherto been extended to it from every quarter of the Union.

The Daily Sun is a four paged sheet of 28 columns, Price by mail, post paid 55 cents a month, or $6.50 per year.

The Sunday edition of The Sun is an eight-page sheet of 56 columns While giving the news of the day, it also contains a large amount of literary and miscellaneous matter specially prepared for it. The Sunday Sun has met with great success. Post paid $1.20 a year.

THE WEEKLY SUN.

Who does not know The Weekly Sun? It circulates through out the United States, the Canadas, and beyond Ninety thousand families greet its welcome pages weekly, and regard it in the light of guide, counsellor, and friend. Its news, editorial, agricultural, and literary departments make it essentially a journal for the family and the fireside. Terms: One Dollar a year, post paid. The price, quality considered, makes it the cheapest paper published. For clubs of ten, with $10 cash, we will send an extra copy free. Address

PUBLISHER OF THE SUN,
New York City.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitas, Catarrh, Asthama, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for general debility and all nervous complaints, after having thouroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. The receipt will be sent free of charge, to all who desire it, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Address with stamp naming this paper, Dr. J. C. Stone, 44 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia Pa.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson Township, DeKalb County in the State of Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said State will at the December session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, in the year 1877, apply for license to retail, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors at the following place in said township to-wit: On that portion of the North west quarter of section-six (6) in said township, bounded on the east by the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, on the south by the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad, and on the west by the Fort Wayne, Jackson and Saginaw Railroad and on the north by the line of said township.

Nov. 1 '77. CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

Liquor License.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn, in DeKalb County, in the State of Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session in December, A. D. 1877, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, in the lower story of the building situated on the north one-third of lot sixty-five in the original plat of said town, with the privilege of having the same drank where sold.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOV. 22, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

For a long time a fierce feud has existed between the Protestant and Catholic miners in the Duquesne (Pa.) coal mines, and a number of incendiary fires have resulted as a consequence. Evidence has at last been secured against some of the fire-bugs, and sixteen of them are now under arrest.

The fight over the estate of the late Commodore Vanderbilt has opened in earnest in the Surrogate's Court of New York. A married daughter of the dead hundred-millionaire, Mrs. La Bau, who was cut off with a pittance of $500,000, now comes forward to assert her claim to an equal division of the enormous estate, the bulk of which was bequeathed to Wm. H. Vanderbilt. The lady has for her counsel Scott Lord and Jere Black.

The careless druggist is abroad in Rhode Island. A Providence dispatch chronicles the death of Deacon W. B. Spooner, of Bristol, for whom the wrong medicine was put up. Isaac H. Wadleigh, of East Greenwich, met his death in a similar manner....Mrs. Evelyn Stuart, the wife of Robert Stuart, a wealthy New Yorker, living on Fifth avenue, committed suicide the other day on account of the intemperate habits of her husband. About the same hour Henry Hausman, a poor man living on Christie street, while laboring under a fit of despondency caused by the intemperance of his wife, shot his three children and then took his own life.

The striking engineers on the Boston and Maine railroad, on trial at Portland, Me., have all been found guilty of conspiracy and obstructing the mails....In the case of The People vs. William M. Tweed, to recover $233,646 paid by the city of New York on fraudulent bills through conspiracy with Watson, deceased, judgment against defendant has been entered by confession in the Supreme Court.

THE WEST.

Monroe county, Ill., was recently the scene of a double murder of unparalleled brutality, supplemented by the hanging of the guilty wretch by an incensed mob. The victims were a young farmer named Goetz and his wife, both Germans. A neighbor of Goetz called to see him on business, and was horrified to find the dead body of Mrs. Goetz, terribly mutilated by blows from an ax, the house stripped of its furniture, and the wagon and horses of Goetz missing. Evidences were also found that not only the wife, but the husband himself had been murdered and his body dragged off to the woods. The alarm was at once given, and officers started in pursuit of Carl Strahl, alias Joe Engler, upon whom suspicion had settled as the author of the foul deed. He was found in St. Louis, and when arrested was trying to sell a team of mules and a wagon that had belonged to his victims. A trunk containing a number of small articles, consisting in part of a breast-pin, a parasol, and shawl, was identified as the property of the murdered woman. When charged with the murder Strahl refused to make any statement whatever, but consented to return to Illinois without a warrant. He was immediately taken back to Columbia, Monroe county. The news of the arrest of the murderer was not long in spreading, and shortly after the return of the officers with the prisoner the little village was filled with people from the surrounding country. A small party took the prisoner and started toward the Goetz farm, for the purpose of forcing him to reveal where he had hidden the body of Goetz, he having finally admitted the killing. About half a mile from the farm and two miles from the town, Strahl led the party to a thicket, where he said he had hid Goetz's body. After a short search the remains were found hidden under leaves and brush. Goetz had been struck on the head with the ax, and killed in much the same manner as his wife. The body had lain in its hiding place a week and was becoming badly decomposed. The sight seemed to strengthen the determination of those who counseled summary justice. The party started toward the town, but before half the distance was made a self-appointed committee of six took the prisoner, and, telling the others they had something to say to him, bade them not follow. The committee and the prisoner went into the woods. The former returned in half an hour and said Strahl had hung himself. The crowd went into the woods, and, after a search, found Strahl's body dangling from a limb.

The late Senator Morton, in his last will and testament, bequeathed his entire estate, valued at $50,000 to his immediate family.

Shaffenburg, ex-United States Marshal of Colorado, who was convicted of stealing $40,000 from the Government, and sentenced, a short time ago, to the Kansas penitentiary for the term of two years, has been pardoned by President Hayes.

A fire in St. Louis, last week, destroyed Steinberg's hat-store and John Brunet's restaurant, on Fourth street. Loss, over $100,000....A San Francisco dispatch announces the destruction by fire of the North Point warehouse. Loss, $310,000.

Chicago elevators contain 531,325 bushels of wheat; 465,995 bushels of corn; 160,072 bushels of oats; 92,036 bushels of rye, and 578,243 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 1,827,671 bushels, against 5,140,285 bushels at this period last year.

Chicago has been the scene of another destructive conflagration. At 8 o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, the 14th inst., flames broke out in the palatial dry-goods store of Messrs. Field, Leiter & Co., the third largest house in the United States and the second largest in the retail business, and in a few hours the magnificent structure, with its vast stock of goods, was reduced to a mass of ruins. During the progress of the conflagration two firemen were killed and four badly injured by the falling of one of the floors of the burning structure. The total loss by the fire is estimated at about $1,000,000. The stock was valued at nearly $1,250,000, a considerable portion of which was saved in a damaged condition. There was an insurance on the stock of $950,000. The building was erected in the spring of 1872 by the Singer Sewing Machine Company, at a cost of between $750,000 and $800,000. The first story was mostly of iron, but the remainder was of limestone. It had a truss roof, the girders of iron, overlaid with wood, and this sheathed with tin. The center of the roof contained a skylight, and an open court or well, surrounded by a railing on each floor, extended down to the main floor. During the progress of its erection a scaffolding upon which a number of men were standing at work on the skylight gave way, and they were precipitated through the court, a distance of eighty feet, to the first floor. Three of them were killed outright, and a fourth escaped by clinging to a portion of the scaffolding that remained until he was rescued. Shortly before Messrs. Field & Leiter took possession of the building, a fire broke out. It was extinguished after about $50,000 damage had been done. The origin of the last fire will perhaps ever remain a mystery. It commenced in the sixth story, near the roof, and is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Hon. William F. Coolbaugh, President of the Union National Bank, and an old and highly-esteemed citizen of Chicago, committed suicide on the night of the 13th inst. His body was found at an early hour in the morning at the base of the Douglas monument in the southern portion of the city. A bullet hole through the head and a pistol beside the body gave certain proof of the manner of death. Domestic infelicity is reported as the cause of the rash act. The sad event created a profound sensation throughout the city of Chicago.

The Coroner's jury, in the case of the Hon. W. F. Coolbaugh, of Chicago, rendered a verdict of suicide while in a state of temporary insanity. That the dead banker was insane at the time of committing the deed is undoubtedly true. Insanity, it appears, was hereditary in the family, and a brother and sister of the deceased are now afflicted with the dread malady, the latter being an inmate of an asylum. The Union National Bank, of which Mr. Coolbaugh was President, is the leading national bank of the West, and is in a sound condition. The deceased leaves an estate estimated at $1,000,000. His life was insured for $100,000....Portions of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Dakota experienced quite an earthquake shock on the 12th inst. At Omaha and other points in Nebraska the shock was quite severe, producing quite a panic among the people. The duration of the shock at Fort Randall, Yankton Agency, and Springfield, Dak., was about one minute, and the direction west to east. At the Indian agencies the loose [illegible] [illegible] and goods on shelves in trading-stores shaken off. There was great excitement among whites and Indians. At Yankton the glass in many of the windows was broken by the shock, and many people rushed from their houses in great fright.

THE SOUTH.

A party of Mexican soldiers recently crossed the Rio Grande into Texas and attacked a band of Indians who had been depredating in Mexico, killing several, and recovering sixty-eight head of stock that they had run out of Mexico.

A report comes by way of Galveston that "Lieut. Bullis, with a small party of scouts, crossed the Rio Grande near the mouth of the Pecos river, and was attacked by a body of 500 Indians and compelled to retreat. Loss not stated. Col. Young has left Fort Clark with 200 cavalry to reinforce Bullis."

Advices from Texas state that Maj. Jones, of the Texas battalion, at El Paso, has telegraphed the Governor that immediate trouble is apprehended, and the Governor has been solicited by a number of persons, especially military officers, to precipitate the conflict with Mexico, if the Federal Government will not.

Ex-Congressman Smalls and ex-Revenue Collector Carpenter, on trial at Columbia, S. C., the former for bribery and the latter for forgery, have been found guilty.

GENERAL.

An agent of the Russian Government, now in Philadelphia, is empowered to make a contract with parties in this country for the construction of a bridge to be thrown across the Danube into Roumania. The requirements are such, however, that the leading company in Philadelphia distrusts its ability to meet them, and has declined the contract.

WASHINGTON.

Mr. Sandford, who has just been tendered the Belgian mission, was rejected as Minister to that court in 1867, and also as Minister to Spain in 1869....Col. W. C. Goodloe, of Kentucky, has been named by the President as Minister to the Netherlands.

The President has urged upon the heads of departments a reduction of their estimates of appropriations for the next fiscal year, and the War Department has set a good example by reducing its figures as originally prepared $10,000,000....The Secretary of War has ordered Maj. Benyaurd to remove the raft in the Red river above Shreveport, and keep the river open. A Government vessel will be placed at the disposal of the city of New Orleans for the improvement of the harbor there.

Judge Thomas A. Spence, Assistant Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, is dead.

An order has been issued by the War Department directing that, until further orders, the names of battle-fields shall not be printed in the army register at the head of the regiments which took part in them.

Federal appointments: Alexander Reed, Postmaster at Toledo, Ohio; Manuel Govin, of Florida, United States Consul at Leghorn; Effingham Lawrence, Collector of Customs, District of New Orleans; Chauncey I. Filley, Postmaster at St. Louis, Mo. Indian Agents—Samuel S. Ely, Otoe Agency, Nebraska; Isaiah Lightner, Sante Agency, Nebraska; John E. Pyle, Navajo Agency, New Mexico; William H. Danielson, Fort Hall Agency, Idaho; Edwin A. Howard, Ponca Agency, Indian Territory; F. A. Weaver, Ute Agency, Colorado.

The United States Treasury Department is imitating the precautions adopted by European Governments, in prohibiting the importation of cattle or hides from disease-infected live-stock regions. The present object is to prevent the rinderpest from reaching our shores.

POLITICAL.

A secret caucus of Republican members of the Senate, at which there was a very full attendance, was held on the 10th inst. An Associated Press report of the caucus says the "topics discussed were the so-called 'Southern policy' and 'civil-service policy' of the administration, with special reference to the Louisiana contest and sundry nominations before the committees. Opinions were freely interchanged by nearly all the Senators, showing that the majority were not in accord with the views and actions of the President on the subjects discussed, and that less than a majority are disposed to make any formal issue with him. Such a course was not deemed expedient in a party sense, nor called for by public interest under the present circumstances."....At a caucus of the Democratic Senators, it was agreed to support all the nominations of the President unless it should be ascertained in any case that the person nominated was unfit.

The following is the official vote of Pennsylvania cast at the recent election: Supreme Judge—Sterrett (Republican), 244,480; Trunkey (Democrat), 251,060; Bartley (Greenback), 51,582; Winton (Prohibition), 2,895; Trunkey's plurality, 6,520. State Treasurer—Hart (Republican), 241,816; Noyes (Democrat), 251,717; Wright (Greenback), 52,854; Cornett (Prohibition), 2,827; Noyes' plurality, 9,901. Auditor General—Passmore (Republican), 242,288; Schell, (Democrat), 251,256; Emerson (Greenback), 52,988; Barker, (Prohibition), 2,997; Schell's plurality, 8,968.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

According to Turkish reports, the Russians attacked the fortified positions in front of Erzeroum on the morning of the 9th inst., and after several hours' severe fighting were repulsed. The Turks pursued them for some distance, capturing a large quantity of arms and ammunition and some prisoners....Several of Mukhtar Pasha's officers have been sentenced to be shot for cowardice in the battle of the 5th....The reported occupation of Erzeroum, in Asia, by the Russians, proves false.

The Turks acknowledge a loss of 2,500 killed, wounded and prisoners, and nearly all their artillery, in the battle of Deve-Boyun....A Berlin dispatch says that the Porte has confidentially communicated to some of the powers a draft of the programme for the conclusion of peace....Constantinople dispatches furnish the following: "There are dissensions in the Turkish Cabinet on the subject of peace or war, but the peace party fear being accused of secret dealings with Russia. Forty of ex-Sultan Murad's servants are reported to have been strangled because of a conspiracy to reinstate Murad. The excitement increased by a rumor that the Prophet has appeared to the Sultan, ordering him to conclude peace. The Russians have recommenced a vigorous bombardment of Batoum. All the officers in Kars down to Major unanimously voted to reject the summons to surrender made by the Russians, and resolved to defend the city to the last extremity."

Cable dispatches state that "Osman Pasha's losses are estimated at 200 to 300 men daily from the concentrated fire of the Russian artillery. Osman Pasha is busily constructing fresh fortifications, which seem to point to his holding out as long as possible rather than to attempt a sortie. Prisoners and deserters state that the Turks have six weeks' provisions."

An attack upon Gen. Skobeleff's new position in the rear of Plevna by a strong Turkish column found the Russians strongly intrenched, and, after the assaulting party had endured for a short time the fire of seventy cannon, they concluded to abandon the undertaking, and retired in confusion and with great slaughter.

Servia has replied to the Porte's demand for a withdrawal of Servia's troops from the frontier, that it is impossible to leave the inhabitants of the frontier without military protection.

A Vienna correspondent estimates the Russian force before Erzeroum at 25,000 men, which is insufficient to invest the place. Mukhtar Pasha is now confident of his ability to hold out until reinforcements arrive. Batoum [illegible]....Reports are received through Constantinople of two Russian reverses in Armenia—one near Kars and the other in the vicinity of Erzeroum. A heavy snow has fallen in Asia Minor, but the Russians are used to that sort of thing at home, and know how to fight in all kinds of weather.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

There is trouble in the Samoan islands, in the Pacific ocean, between the American, English and German Consuls. Charges and counter-charges are made in the respective interests, and the feeling has run so high that a committee of safety has been organized to preserve the peace....A Calcutta dispatch reports that the Mussulmans of India are much excited at the news of Turkish defeats.

It is announced in a dispatch from Rome that the Pope is lying near death's door, the physicians, after a careful examination, having given up all hope of his recovery....Advices from Queenstown, Holyhead, Plymouth and many other points on the coasts of the British islands, announce the prevalence of a general and tremendous gale. There was great destruction of property on land and sea.

A cable dispatch states that Stanley, the African explorer and 120 followers, has been brought to the Cape of Good Hope in Her Majesty's storeship Industry, which also takes them to Zanzibar....The Argentine torpedo ship Fulminate recently exploded in the harbor of Buenos Ayres, killing eleven persons.

The several Governments of Europe have advised the Marshal-President of France to pursue a policy of conciliation—which means that they deprecate an open rupture in that country between the republicans and monarchists.

Pongo, London's pet gorilla, is dead....Unusual activity prevails against the adherents of Lerdo on the Texas border....About 300 Russian Mennonites left Berlin, on the 9th inst., for the United States....Borrowdale & Schiller, merchants of Calcutta, have failed. Liabilities, $1,000,000.

In the French Chamber of Deputies, on Thursday, the Duke de Broglie declared himself and his colleagues ready to meet the impeachment, but warned the Chamber that the proposed one-sided inquiry would not be submitted to. He bitterly reproached the opposition for spreading false reports among the people during the election. A suggestion for a compromise cabinet, with Louis Blanc as one of its members, was thrown out, but met with little favor. The Chamber adopted the resolution for an inquiry by a majority showing about the full force of the dominant party.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

Friday, Nov. 9.—Senate.—Among the bills introduced were the following: By Mr. Beck, to authorize the payment of all customs duties in legal-tender notes; by Mr. Dawes, in relation to the jurisdiction of the District Court of the Territory of Utah in matters of divorce....The Vice President appointed Mr. Kirkwood a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, Mr. Ingalls a member of the Committee on Privileges and Elections and Mr. Saunders a member of the Committee on Railroads, to fill the vacancies on these committees occasioned by the death of Senator Morton....Mr. Mitchell (Oregon) submitted a resolution declaring Mr. Wadleigh (New Hampshire) the Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, vice Mr. Morton, deceased, and it was agreed to....The Senate, in executive session, confirmed the nomination of John Welsh to be Minister to England.

House.—The Army Appropriation bill occupied the attention of the House the greater portion of the day. An amendment was adopted in committee of the whole increasing the army to 25,000 men, the Texas delegation voting solidly for it. The vote stood 122 to 114....Rev. R. D. Harrison was elected Chaplain of the House....Mr. Swan, the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, presented communications from the Secretary of State, with reference to the Paris Exposition. They estimate the expenses of American representation at $125,000....Mr. Atkins, the Chairman of the Appropriation Committee, reported a bill for the settlement of the accounts of the workingmen for an excess of eight hours' labor.

Saturday, Nov. 10.—Senate.—Not in session.

House.—The Army Appropriation bill occupied the exclusive attention of the House, in committee of the whole. Mr. Culberson offered an amendment that the four cavalry regiments be recruited to 100 men to each company, which force shall be employed in the defense of the Mexican and Indian frontier of Texas. Adopted—114 to 112—after being amended on motion of Mr. Clymer thus: "That the recruiting of enlisted men shall be limited to 20,000, of which four full regiments of cavalry shall be kept upon the Mexican frontier." An amendment offered by Mr. Hooker prohibiting the use of troops to suppress insurrections or preserve order in any State, except on the demand of the Legislature or the Executive, gave rise to an animated discussion, Mr. Garfield leading the opposition, and pointing out the danger of having such a law on the statute book as would have, in 1861, tied the hands of the President and wrought the destruction of the Government. Mr. Hooker's amendment was rejected—137 to 98. Mr. Atkins then offered an amendment, as an additional section, providing that the officers assigned to staff duty shall not be entitled to additional rank or pay. Agreed to.

Monday, Nov. 12.—Senate.—Mr. Conkling made a personal explanation touching an alleged interview with him printed in the New York Herald of the 9th. He stated that the report contained many statements which he never uttered, even in private conversation, and expressions of thought and language that never came from him....Bills were introduced by Mr. Windom to establish a Department of Commerce, and by Mr. Matthews for the enforcement of judgments and decrees in States other than those where rendered or made....Mr. Maxey submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire into the expediency of constructing defensive works on the Rio Grande frontier....Mr. Booth was appointed Chairman of the Committee on Patents, in place of Mr. Wadleigh, who was recently appointed Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections....Mr. Voorhees was sworn in as a member of the Senate from Indiana....The Senate, in executive session, confirmed the appointment of John M. Stevens, of Maine, as Minister to Norway and Sweden; John Defrees, of Indiana, as Public Printer at Washington; Kenneth Rayner as Solicitor of the Treasury; and Robert H. Chittenden, United States Attorney for Iowa.

House.—The Clymer amendment to the Army bill, limiting the number to 20,000 men, but providing for stationing four full cavalry regiments on the Mexican border, was concurred in by the House on a call of the yeas and nays, by vote of 129 to 127. The amendment providing that officers, when assigned to staff duty, shall receive no higher rank or pay than their lineal rank or pay, was defeated. The bill was then passed without division....A large number of bills were then introduced and referred, including a bill to amend the laws in relation to mailable matter of the the third class; the existing banking laws; designating the time for the meeting of Congress on the first Monday in January; to reduce the number of military cadets; for payment of all cotton seized after the 29th of May, 1865; also, to refund the tax on raw cotton collected from 1863 to 1868; to prohibit by constitutional amendment the payment of claims arising out of the late rebellion; for the payment of import duties in legal-tender notes as soon as they are quoted at par with legal-tender coin of the United States.

Tuesday, Nov. 13.—Senate.—The following bills were introduced: By Mr. McDonald, in relation to distilling and rectifying spirits. By Mr. Garland, to authorize the election of a Delegate to Congress from the Indian Territory. By Mr. Cameron (Wis.), to aid the Winnebago Indians of Wisconsin to obtain subsistence by agricultural pursuits, and to promote their civilization....Mr. Chaffee called up the resolution submitted by him last week in regard to the management of the Pacific railroad, and spoke at length in regard to the subject....The Army Appropriation bill was read by its title and referred....The Senate adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Booth, of California, calling upon the President for information as to the cause of the Nez Perces war, its cost, the number of Indians and soldiers engaged therein, the number of lives lost, and the disposition made of Chief Joseph and the Indians who surrendered with him.

House.—The House further debated the Resumption act. Mr. Chittenden, of New York, made a pronounced hard-money speech. He denounced the proposed repeal of the Resumption act as practical repudiation. He attacked the Silver bill with equal bitterness....The House passed the Navy Deficiency bill....The following bills were introduced: By Mr. Banks, to extend, facilitate and cheapen land and water transportation of freight and passengers, and to promote industry and labor without further appreciation of the public debt; by Mr. Townsend (Ill.), a resolution instructing the Committee on Banking and Currency to inquire into the expediency of winding up national banks, withdrawing their circulation, and substituting in lieu thereof greenbacks and other similar currency.

Wednesday, Nov. 14.—Senate.—The Army bill was reported to the Senate, with the limitation of 20,000 men, and the mandatory provision for four full regiments of cavalry on the Texas frontier stricken out. Instead of this, the Senate committee inserted a clause providing that cavalry regiments may be recruited to a hundred men to each company, "and a sufficient force of cavalry shall be employed in the defense of the Mexican and Indian frontiers of Texas."...A communication was received from the President, covering a detailed statement of recent outrages on the Rio Grande and of the proceedings taken by this Government in consequence. Referring to the proposed negotiation of a new treaty, the President expressed a doubt whether it would be most expedient to commence negotiations immediately or wait until circumstances justified the recognition of the Diaz Government. Mr. Ingalls, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported, with amendments, the Senate bill to enable the Indians to become citizens of the United States. Placed on the calendar....The Vice President was authorized to fill the vacancy on the Committee on Pensions occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Davis, and on the Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Saunders. He thereupon appointed Mr. Voorhees to fill both vacancies.

House.—Mr. Townsend offered a resolution instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the facts of the imprisonment of Robert Smalls (colored), a member of the House from South Carolina, and to report whether such imprisonment is or is not a violation of the constitutional privileges of the House....The House devoted the day to discussing the Resumption Repeal bill.

Thursday, Nov. 15.—Senate.—The Senate passed the Army Appropriation bill as it came from the House, with the exception of an amendment fixing the army at 25,000 instead of 20,000....The Deficiency bill was also passed without amendment and without discussion....Mr. Dawes presented the remonstrance of the forty-five national banks of Boston against the passage of the bill for the remonetization of silver. The petitioners set forth that they are required by law to hold many millions of United States bonds, and are apprehensive that the passage of the bill will greatly depreciate their value and have a bad effect on the business of the country....Mr. Eaton introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution providing for a tribunal by States for the decision of all contested issues arising in the choice of electors for President and Vice President.

House.—The following bills were introduced and referred: By Mr. Harkell, providing for the payment of duties on imports in gold, silver and legal-tender notes; by Mr. Schleicher, providing for cheap transportation between tide-water on the Atlantic and the Ohio and Mississippi valleys; by Mr. Sapp, for the construction of a railway from New York to Council Bluffs, Iowa....Mr. Cobb, from the Committee on Mileage, reported back adversely the bill allowing members mileage for attendance on the extra session. Laid on the table....The House indulged in another long debate on the finances.

A COLONY OF TRAMPS.

A Curious Community—How the Ragged Rascals Pass Their Time.

[Cor. Philadelphia Press.]

In a woodland on Darby road, in one of the most picturesque sections of country in the vicinity of Philadelphia, there is a certain community or settlement of tramps. During the day they lounge around fires of brushwood, made in a little stony hollow, sometimes singing, sometimes cooking, or mending, or washing, sometimes drinking. Occasionally some of them, spurred by appetite or tired of idleness, go out in the fields and gather herbs or flowers and bring them into the city to sell, and with the money received buy whisky, upon which they all get drunk and make the woods ring with songs and boisterous laughter, or savage cries. The size of this motley gathering varies with the time and the seasons. It hardly ever numbers less than twenty, and has reached to eighty. There are men and women, old and young. Nearly all day long, as I have said, they linger around the fires in the wood, and when the weather is not unpleasantly cold they also sleep out under the trees, but in the winter, and when storms of great violence occur, they take refuge in barns in the neighborhood. Upon a beautiful wooded knoll they have set up a little cabin made of logs and the bark of trees. In the stony hollow in the side of a hill, where they pass much of their time, they have kettles and pans and other household utensils, and a wooden tripod upon which to hang a kettle over a fire, and strung from tree to tree, lines upon whire to hang their clothes to dry. They fare well. They beg from the farmers in the neighborhood, who dare not refuse them, and fear even to murmur at their demands. Any offense to them might result in the burning of the barn or home of the helpless offender. It is no wonder that a man should live in dread with a gang of lawless vagabonds about his door and no protection near him for himself or his wife or daughters. This community seems to be governed by a "master" and "mistress"—the latter an old, white-haired wretch who has been known in the vicinity for years. They receive the allegiance of all the others, and refuse admittance into the circle to such applicants as do not, for any reason, please their fancy. Of course, their authority is not always submitted to, but, to a great extent, they are the rulers of the colony. The society generally is not inviting, and, individually, it is repulsive. So many low-browed, scowling, savage human beings one seldom meets with in the same day. If an honest laborer looks contemptuously at them they scowl in return or mutter threateningly; if a curious stranger go too near their "residence" they warn him off, or if he laughs at their patched garments flapping in the breeze they curse him; if he alludes to them as "bummers" they rise in their majesty and pour forth their indignation. Now, to break up this settlement is a question which has agitated the minds of the farmers round about for a long time. Winter does not destroy it. All last winter the tramps could be tracked by the foot-prints on the snow from the barn were they slept to the hollow in the woods, where they had gathered together an immense mound of leaves and withered brush. No one is willing to order them off. It is not safe. They have been tolerated until patience has given way, and how to get rid of them is a problem which is yet to be solved.

Nobody can tell how many disputes for the front side of the bed have been settled by moving the bedstead into the center of the room.

THE ARMY.

What It Costs to Maintain the Military Establishment.

[Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The Cabinet has decided that it will be necessary to revise some of the estimates, in view of the fact that they seem to be greater than the probable revenue for the next fiscal year will warrant. The following are the estimates as submitted.

War Department	$32,436,784
Library of Congress	22,800
Court of Claims	1,206,459
Treasury Department	273,391
Postoffice Department	700,000
Navy Department	2,002,961
Judicial	263,535
Total	[illegible]

Accompanying the estimates are the following, submitted by the Secretary of War, without recommendation:

Forts and fortifications	$2,078,000
Rivers and harbors	13,220,100

The estimate of $1,031,458 for permanent annual appropriations is also submitted for the information of Congress, but is not recommended.

The summary of the estimates in the War Department proper is this:

Military Establishment	$30,352,750
Public Works—
Fortifications	2,078,000
Harbors and rivers	13,220,100
Buildings and grounds, Military Academy	16,000
Building for State, War, and Navy Departments	526,000
Miscellaneous—
Publication of official records of the Rebellion	30,000
Collection and payment of bounties, etc.	25,000
Surveys and reconnoissances in military divisions and departments	50,000
National cemeteries	125,000
Pay of Superintendents of national cemeteries	59,000

The branch of the army which seems to give the greatest benefit to the public, at the least expense, is the signal service. The chief of the signal service asks, for the expenses of his bureau, which include the purchase, equipment, and report of the field-telegraph, and stores of all sorts, for the fiscal year, only $12,500.

The following is the pay of the principal officers of the army:

1 General	$13,500
1 Lieutenant General	11,000
3 Major Generals	22,500
14 Brigadier Generals	77,000
30 Aides-de-Camp, in addition to pay in the line	21,000
72 Colonels	252,000
85 Lieutenant Colonels	255,000
244 Majors	610,000
290 Captains, mounted	580,000
305 Captains, not mounted	549,000
34 Chaplains	51,000
22 Storekeepers (1 at $2,500 and 21 at $2,000)	44,500
40 Adjutants	72,000
40 Regimental Quartermasters	72,000

In addition to the pay, there are a good many perquisites for forage and quarters, which bring the pay of the army officers of a high grade up to a very considerable sum.

The cost to the Government for the pay of retired officers is $559,950 annually.

The pay of a common soldier is $13 a month. It costs the Government for his food and clothing about $15 additional. Total monthly cost of an enlisted man to the Government, $28.

There are in the army 200 hospital stewards, a large number of women laundresses, 200 hospital matrons, and fifty-two veterinary surgeons. The allowance for the army rations is 24 cents each. It takes 11,070,450 rations in a year to go around.

By Telephone.

A worthy and elderly divine from the rural regions, who has zealously labored for a number of years in his divine calling in the true spirit of meek and innocent simplicity, came to the city a few days ago. His visits to the city are not very frequent, and they occur at great intervals. He has not quite so much followed the world's progress in scientific advancements and discoveries as he is interested in the wayward trials and vicissitudes of his own little band of sinners in the rural field.

He dropped in at the office of a companion of his youth, the chief of a large and extended manufacturing establishment. They have a quiet, pleasant chat in the elegant, cozily-furnished apartment. One of the novelties in the room is a telephone connecting it with the factory some dozen miles off. Our friend the chief is suddenly called out; the revered gentleman remains alone in the room. He pulls out the latest tracts, adjusts his specs, nestles down in the fauteuil and begins to read.

"Ello!" in sepulchral tones. Looks up. Thinks it is outside.

"El-low! Wake up, old boy."

Our divine starts up and gazes around.

"Why the devil don't you answer?"

"I—I—beg—beg—your"——

"What in h—ll are you doing?" continues the telephone.

"Really—my dear—dear sir," gasps our kind sir, swaying unsteadily through the room.

"Order down two car-loads of coke and a barrel of brimstone."

"Lord have mercy on their souls," mumbles the preacher, in panic-stricken terror.

"Send down a new pack, a box of cigars and a half-dozen bottles of Joe March's best."

This was too much. The elderly divine bolts through the door, flies down the street, boards the first train homeward, and never gets over his excitement until he has landed safely in the parsonage in the rural domain.

A few days after our worthy friend, the manufacturing chief, receives a long, kind epistle, offering earnest prayers for the salvation of his soul, and that God may finally purge him from all the sins and great wickedness with which he is surrounded.—Cleveland Herald.

A Man Lives Thirty Hours with a Knife-Blade in His Heart.

About midnight on Monday a man was discovered in the vicinity of the Third District Police Station, staggering along the street, and acting in a boisterous manner. He was taken into the station on the charge of disorderly conduct and placed in a cell, where he remained until the following morning, when he was released. The man, whose name could not then be ascertained, went to the house of a friend named Quigley, on Seventh street, and told Quigley he was very ill with a pain in his breast. Quigley took him to the City Dispensary, where an examination was had and the discovery made that the man had been stabbed in or through the breast bone, though the wound was considered light. He continued to grow weaker and more stupid, and this morning he died.

The case was so curious that a post-mortem investigation was held by the Coroner, and it was found that the man had been stabbed with a long-bladed jack-knife, the blade of it not only going through the outward wall of the body, but through the pericardium of the heart and slightly penetrating that organ, death being produced by hemorrhage of the heart, though the bleeding was so slow and the victim so strong a man that it took thirty hours for him to bleed to death. The point of the broken knife-blade, an inch long, was found inside of the body, held firmly by the bone through which it was driven, and still penetrating the outward covering of the heart.—St. Louis Republican.

Falling-off of Revenue Receipts.

The rise and fall of revenue receipts—the rate of taxation remaining the same—are believed by economists to give valuable indications of the industrial condition of a country. If this be true, the times are getting no better in the United States, despite the brief spurt of activity this fall. The following official figures obtained from the Treasury Department show a heavy falling-off of revenue from all sources:

RECEIPTS FOR FIRST FOUR MONTHS OF THE FISCAL YEAR 1877.

Customs	$48,873,632.84
Internal revenue	38,561,328.46
Miscellaneous	9,771,217.51
Total	$97,206,178.81

RECEIPTS FOR FIRST FOUR MONTHS OF THE FISCAL YEAR 1878.

Customs	$48,587,233.73
Internal revenue	37,920,268.22
Miscellaneous	6,831,192.12
Total	$93,338,694.07

Here we see a decrease under every item. In the last four months the customs receipts have been $286,399.11 less, the internal-revenue receipts $641,060.24 less, and the miscellaneous receipts $2,940,025.39 less than in the corresponding four months of last year. In a country where the amount of revenue-cheating is great but uncertain, as exact inferences cannot be drawn from this decrease of revenue as would be possible in France or England, but coupled with other potent facts it shows that the ability of the people to consume the various commodities of commerce is still decreasing.—Chicago Tribune.

John Morrissey.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. Morrissey was going to Buffalo. When the train stopped at Bergen two men who had been drinking entered the car in which he was seated. Their talk, loud and profane, soon became indecent. Two ladies, accompanied only by a small boy, sat opposite to these rowdies. Morrissey left his seat, walked up to the offenders, and said, good naturedly, "Come, boys, let's go into the smoking-car and have a good cigar." One of the men churlishly declined. Morrissey then seated himself in front of them and asked them not to talk so loud. Immediately one of them began to tell an indelicate story. Morrissey requested him to desist, and was told in reply to mind his own business. "My business," said Morrissey, "is to protect ladies from insult, and if either of you say another improper word I will pitch you both out of the car." The men rose simultaneously, one making a pass at Morrissey, which was of course warded off. Morrissey seized both men by the coat collars and knocked their heads together. The conductor appeared, and was requested to open the car doors, when Morrissey pushed one man and dragged the other out of that car, through another, into the smoking-car, where he left them.—New York Sun.

Sumner's Domestic Troubles.

The domestic troubles of Mr. Sumner have been almost concealed from the public eye, both before and since his death, but ex-Secretary Fish has lifted the veil slightly, and given an idea of how great that affliction was:

"I called," says Mr. Fish, "as I was in the frequent habit of doing, late one evening at Mr. Sumner's house, and found him much depressed and in tears. I endeavored to rally him, but he alluded to certain troubles which I need not indicate, contrasting his own relations in those regards with, as he said, more happy ones, and expressed the wish that some morning he might be found dead in his bed."

Verily, there is a skeleton in every closet.

The French wheat crop of this year is below the average yield.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 75	@11 25
Hogs	4 35	@ 6 25
Cotton	11	@ 11¼
Flour—Superfine	4 20	@ 5 31
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 31	@ 1 32
Corn—Western Mixed	61½	@ 63¼
Oats—Mixed	35	@ 40
Rye—Western	71	@ 74
Pork—New Mess	14 25	@14 35
Lard	8½	@ 8¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 60	@ 6 75
Choice Natives	4 60	@ 5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 60
Medium to Fair	3 75	@ 4 25
Hogs—Live	4 30	@ 4 65
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 25	@ 5 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 09	@ 1 10
No. 3 Spring	1 03	@ 1 04
Corn—No. 2	45	@ 46
Oats—No. 2	25	@ 26
Rye—No. 2	53	@ 54
Barley—No. 2	59	@ 60
Butter—Choice Creamery	31	@ 33
Eggs—Fresh	19	@ 20
Pork—Mess	12 25	@12 50
Lard	7¾	@ 8
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 14½	@ 1 16½
No. 2	1 09	@ 1 10
Corn—No. 2	48	@ 49
Oats—No. 2	25	@ 25½
Rye—No. 1	55	@ 56
Barley—No. 2	63	@ 64
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 3 Red Fall	1 25	@ 1 26
Corn—No. 2 Mixed	43	@ 44
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
Rye	55	@ 56
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	7¾	@ 8
Hogs	4 00	@ 4 50
Cattle	2 50	@ 4 75
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 20	@ 1 32
Corn—New	37	@ 38
Oats	27	@ 31
Rye	59	@ 60
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	7¾	@ 8
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White Michigan	1 31	@ 1 32
No. 2 Red Winter	1 30	@ 1 31
Corn	49	@ 50
Oats—No. 2	28	@ 29
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice White	6 00	@ 6 40
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 30	@ 1 31
No. 1 Amber	1 29	@ 1 29½
Corn—No. 1	50	@ 51
Oats—Mixed	29	@ 30
Barley (per cental)	1 10	@ 1 40
Pork—Mess	13 75	@14 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 00	@ 5 50
Fair	4 50	@ 4 75
Common	4 00	@ 4 25
Hogs	4 50	@ 4 80
Sheep	3 50	@ 4 60

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

It is said that oats boiled and fed in slop to hogs afflicted with cholera will cure them up in a few days.

To remove rust, saturate with paraffine (kerosene) oil and let it stand twelve hours, and afterward scrape the parts where the rust is most set in with a knife. Then take some emery cloth and keep it wet with paraffine oil, and rub till you remove all the rust, which you will not have much trouble in doing, without in any way causing any harm to the iron.—English Mechanic.

I exhibited at the New Jersey State Fair, two weeks ago, a Hubbard squash which I raised in 1876, the mate of which was used the middle of August, and, to all appearance and taste, was as good as new. No particular care was used to keep them, except to keep them in a warm, dry air, being kept last winter in a closet by a warm chimney, and during the summer in a very warm attic.—Country Gentleman.

The loss caused by the shrinkage in the milk of dairy cows (the past season) will amount to thousands of dollars. Farmers must learn to supplement their pastures with green forage—millet or corn; an acre—more would be better of either—this year would have made the cows smooth and sleek, filled the milk-pails, and been a most grateful panacea for the disease which has made the barn-yard desolate.—Moore's Rural.

A very intelligent correspondent from Orange county lately expressed to us in conversation the conclusion he had reached after some experience with Clawson wheat, which was to the effect that it will not bear grinding white as new as other varieties may be safely ground—flour from old Clawson wheat having made the best of bread, while that from new had failed to do so.—Country Gentleman.

A correspondent of the Rural Home, speaking of the benefit which birds render the farmer, says: "On Thursday last, while at work near a wheatfield, my attention was called to the fact that some of the wheat had been picked from the heads in certain parts of the field. As my neighbor seemed to think that the mischief was done by yellow birds, I procured a gun and killed one of the supposed offenders. Although interrupted while taking his breakfast, we found in his stomach only three grains of wheat, and, by actual count, 350 weevils."

The poisonous property of brine, in which pork or bacon has been pickled, when fed to pigs, is known by unfortunate experience to many, and, years ago, was mentioned by the celebrated veterinarian Youatt. Quite a large number of cases are on record in which swine have died in consequence of a small quantity of such brine having been mixed with their feed, under the mistaken impression that it would answer the same purpose and be equally beneficial as the admixture of the same quantity of salt. And for one case in which death has occurred from this cause, there are scores in which pigs have suffered more or less severely.

In the case of Texas fever, something can be done by the owner of an infected pasture. Such pasture should at once be cleared of all cattle, and by way of precaution against the possible development of the disease, all cattle that have been on such field should receive one-half ounce hyposulphate of soda; and one dram carbolic acid, to be repeated twice daily for a week. These agents may be easily given disolved in drinking water, or mixed with food. The cattle should also be cleared of ticks by rubbing them over with kerosene, or by using a liniment of one part oil of tar and fifteen parts whale oil.—Prof. Law, in New York Tribune.

Roots have become a necessity with progressive farmers, as winter stock food, and their great value in this connection should commend them to those who have not essayed their cultivation. Even the owners of work and driving horses in the large cities, where no opportunity is had to raise them, annually buy hundreds of bushels of carrots, mangel-wurzels, turnips, etc., to be fed in connection with grain food to their horses, and they are well assured of the profitableness of using them; for the animals are always sleek, fat, and glossy in appearance, and never become hide-bound or sickly.—Practical Farmer.

About the House.

Wash grained wood-work with cold tea.

Never leave vegetables soaking in water.

To brighten stove-zincs, rub with kerosene.

Try a very small piece of hard soap and a little butter in hot starch.

Clean silverware once a week with soap and warm water and rub well with flannel.

Sponge Cake.—Mix one cupful of flour with one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, one cupful of sugar, three eggs, one table-spoonful of sweet milk; stir briskly; bake at once.

To Remove Black-heads from the Skin.—Black-heads may be got rid of and prevented from returning, by washing with tepid water, by proper friction with a towel, and by applying a little cold cream.

Scrofulous Sore Eyes.—The common blue violets, which grow wild in many places; take the top and root and wash clean, and dry; make a tea, and drink several times a day; wash the eyes with it each time.

Spice Balls.—One-half cupful good butter and one cupful sugar, creamed; one well-beaten egg, half cupful molasses, half cupful sweet milk, one cupful chopped raisins, teaspoonful of ground cloves, one grated nutmeg, teaspoonful of soda; mix with sifted flour enough to roll out; cut in pieces and roll up in a ball; do not let them touch each other in the pan; when baked, frost; flavor the frosting with lemon.

Lemon Jelly.—One ounce of gelatine, one and a half pounds of white sugar, three grated lemons, use only the rind of one; pour one quart of boiling water on the gelatine, add the lemon and sugar, mix well, then strain; add a glass of sherry wine; pour in molds to cool.

To Keep Cider from Becoming Sour.—Last fall I put some cider in a kettle and brought it to a boiling heat; then filled some bottles which I had ready, as for canning fruit, and poured the hot cider into the bottles, and put the corks in tight. The cider is as sweet now as new cider.

Indigestion from Onions.—"Asthmatic" recommends raw onions for several complaints. I like raw onions very much, but they leave unpleasant effects in mouth and breath for about thirty hours—the result of their being undigested. Can "Asthmatic," or any other reader, recommend any case for this indigestion?

Dried-Apple Cake.—Soak three cupfuls dried apples over night, then draw off the water, through a sieve; chop the apples slightly, then simmer them in three cupfuls of molasses for two hours; after that add two eggs, one cupful sugar, one cupful sweet milk or water, three-quarters cupful butter and lard, one teaspoonful baking powder, flour enough to make pretty stiff batter, add cinnamon, cloves to taste.

LOOKING AT THE YEAR 1880.

Forestalling the Census-Taker by a Guess at Possibilities—Figures Showing the Increase of Population of the United States Since 1790.

[From the New York Sun.]

The speculative American mind is already exercised concerning the present population of our beloved country, and is taxing its Yankee privilege of guessing what that population will be in the year 1880—if this weary old world lives long enough to hail that year of enumeration.

Under ordinary and regular conditions the merest tyro in mathematics could forecast our increase. But the conditions are not ordinary, and great allowances must be made for variations. For instance, if we had a certain ratio of increase from 1840 to 1850, and from 1850 to 1860, it would naturally follow, supposing conditions equal, that something like a similar ratio would prevail for the next ten years. But the conditions are radically changed; the circumstances are not only different but exceptional, and no formula of the past can be made to apply. The war of the Rebellion, besides abolishing slavery and upsetting almost every established idea and institution in the land, made fearful inroads into the population of the country. There was not only the loss by battle and attending evils, but the absence of 500,000 of young and middle-aged men necessarily reduced the natural increase in times of peace. Then there was a rapid decline in immigration; a decline that has continued to the present time, and bids fair to go still further. Between the arrival of 500,000 and less than 100,000 in a year there is a very material difference. It should be noted, too, that the great majority of immigrants are men and women in the beginning of life, founders of immediate families.

These hints are thrown out to prepare the reader for the estimates, to be made further on, of the population of the Union now, and the probable population in 1880. Keep in view the tremendous drain by actual loss in the war, the natural retardation of increase in consequence of the absence of heads of families, and the sudden reduction of immigration.

Going back to the first census taken in 1790, we summarize the enumerations up to 1870. Bear in mind, however, that a considerable fraction of population has been added by annexation, as in the purchase of Louisiana and Florida, the conquest of Texas, the partition of Mexico, and the forlorn outpost of Alaska. Here is the summary:

Census of	Total Population.	Increase in 10 years.	Per cent. inc.
1790	3,929,214
1800	5,308,483	1,379,269	35.10
1810	7,239,881	1,931,398	36.38
1820	9,633,822	2,393,941	33.06
1830	12,866,020	3,232,198	33.57
1840	17,069,453	4,203,433	32.70
1850	23,191,876	6,122,423	35.85
1860	31,443,321	8,251,445	35.58
1870	38,558,371	7,115,050	22.63

The uniformity of the increase up to the war of the Rebellion is very remarkable. Taken altogether, it shows a little more than 3½ per cent. a year. At that rate we should have had in 1870 about 42,500,000. We fell short about 4,000,000.

We are getting well along into the last half of the decade, and several State enumerations were made in 1875. From these, and from the figures of the past, there may be found reasonable grounds for estimating the present population, and the probable population in 1880.

ENUMERATIONS SINCE 1870.

Censuses were taken in twelve States in 1875. Michigan took one in 1874, and Missouri and Nebraska in 1876. In the following table are given the results of these enumerations, compared with the Federal census of 1870, showing the increase of population in actual number of persons; giving also the rate of increase by percentage:

States.	Populat'n, 1870.	Populat'n, 1875.	Increase.	Incr'se, per ct.
Iowa	1,194,020	1,350,544	156,524	13.11
Kansas	364,399	528,437	164,038	45.01
Louisiana	726,915	857,039	130,124	17.90
Massachu'ts	1 457,351	1,651,912	194,561	13.35
Michigan	1,184,059	*1,334,031	149,972	12.66
Minnesota	439,706	597,407	157,641	35.85
Missouri	1,721,295	†2,085,537	364,242	21.16
Nebraska	122,993	†257,747	134,814	109.67
Nevada	42,491	52,540	10,049	23.65
New Jersey	906,096	1,019,413	113,317	12.51
New York	4,382,759	4,705,208	322,449	7.36
Oregon	90,923	104,920	13,997	15.39
R. Island	217,353	258,239	40,886	18.81
S. Carolina	705,606	823,447	117,841	16.70
Wisconsin	1,054,670	1,236,599	181,929	17.25
Totals	14,610,636	16,863,030	2,253,384	15.42

*Census of 1874. †Census of 1876.

Now let us compare the rate of increase above indicated with those of previous enumerations. In order to make the comparison more clear, we must double the rates above given to correspond with the ratios of earlier periods of ten years:

States.	Increase per cent. 1850 to 1860.	Increase per cent. 1860 to 1870.	Incr'se per cent. 1870 to 1880.
Iowa	251.11	76.91	26.22
Kansas	....	240.00	90.02
Louisiana	36.74	2.67	35.80
Massachusetts	23.78	18.38	26.70
Michigan	88.66	58.01	25.32
Minnesota	2,730.72	155.58	71.70
Missouri	73.30	45.62	42.95
Nebraska	....	377.11	219.34
Nevada	....	519.67	47.30
New Jersey	37.27	34.83	28.02
New York	25.61	12.98	14.72
Oregon	297.13	73.10	30.78
Rhode Island	18.36	24.56	37.62
South Carolina	5.30	0.27	33.40
Wisconsin	154.06	35.90	34.50

The next operation is to reduce this percentage of increase into figures, which produces the following result for 1880, supposing the increase from 1870 to 1875 to continue:

States.	Populat'n 1870.	Per Cent. Increase.	Populat'n 1880.
Iowa	1,194,020	26.22	1,507,[illegible]
Kansas	364,399	90.02	692,410
Louisiana	726,915	35.80	987,169
Massachusetts	1,457,351	26.70	1,846,478
Michigan	1,184,059	25.32	1,484,021
Minnesota	439,706	71.70	756,0[illegible]
Missouri	1,721,295	42.95	2,460,7[illegible]
Nebraska	122,993	219.34	392,661
Nevada	42,491	47.30	62,589
New Jersey	906,096	28.02	1,163,790
New York	4,382,759	14.72	5,027,657
Oregon	90,923	30.78	118,917
Rhode Island	217,353	37.62	299,196
South Carolina	705,606	33.40	941,280
Wisconsin	1,054,670	34.50	1,418,518
Totals	14,610,636	30.84	19,118,404

The States that have made no enumeration since 1870 must be estimated, of course, in accordance with their previous ratios. We give them with their per cent. of increase from 1850 to 1860, and from 1860 to 1870:

States.	Inc. 1850 to 1860.	Inc. 1860 to 1870.	States.	Inc. 1850 to 1860.	Inc. 1860 to 1870.
Alabama	24.96	3.40	Maryland	17.81	13.[illegible]
Arkansas	107.41	11.26	Mississippi	30.47	4.68
California	309.31	47.44	New Hamp.	2.54	*2.44
Connecticut	24.10	21.16	N. Carolina	14.29	7.98
Delaware	22.84	11.41	Ohio	18.14	13.92
Florida	60.57	25.70	Pennsylvania	25.91	21.19
Georgia	16.67	12.10	Tennessee	10.68	13.40
Illinois	101.06	48.36	Texas	184.21	35.47
Indiana	36.63	24.46	Vermont	0.31	0.49
Maine	7.73	*2.17	Va. and W. Va	12.29	4.44

*Loss.

Surely each of these States must have increased since 1870 considerably faster than during the war period; yet we will take in round numbers very nearly the rate of increase from 1860 to 1870, and apply it as follows:

States.	Population in 1870.	Increase, per ct.	Population in 1880.
Alabama	996,992	4.00	1,036,869
Arkansas	484,471	12.00	536,607
California	560,247	50.00	840,370
Connecticut	537,454	20.00	644,744
Delaware	125,015	10.00	137,516
Florida	187,748	30.00	244,[illegible]
Georgia	1,184,109	12.00	1,326,202
Illinois	2,539,891	50.00	3,809,836
Indiana	1,680,637	25.00	2,100,791
Maine	626,915	....	626,915
Maryland	780,894	12.00	875,451
Mississippi	827,922	5.00	869,318
New Hampshire	318,300	....	318,300
North Carolina	1,071,361	9.00	1,167,068
Ohio	2,665,260	15.00	3,065,049
Pennsylvania	3,521,951	25.00	4,402,439
Tennessee	1,258,520	12.00	1,409,540
Texas	818,579	40.00	1,146,010
Vermont	330,551	....	330,551
Virginia and W. Va.	1,667,177	5.00	1,750,536
Totals	23,505,005	18.24	28,616,396
Add above	14,610,636	30.84	19,118,404
Aggregate	38,115,641	20.00	45,781,799

We shall probably have over 46,000,000, the Territories included, in 1880. Some rather enthusiastic editors feel confident of more than 50,000,000, but that is clearly too high a figure. That would demand an increase of 30 per cent. all around, which, considering the fact that immigration has dwindled to almost nothing, is not expected.

SECTIONAL MIGRATION.

It is little satisfaction to take State by State, and show where the people of the several States go to when they go at all. We are essentially sectional, and our internal migration runs on lines of latitude in the most remarkable manner. Take the swarming hive that has peopled the great West, for instance. That hive comprises all New England, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

What this Eastern section has done in the peopling of the country may be understood from the tables herewith submitted. We divide the country into four sections—the Eastern, embracing New England, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania; the Western embracing Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska; the Pacific, embracing Nevada, California, and Oregon; and the Southern, taking in all the old slave States except Missouri, which goes with the West. These condensed tables show the number of natives of the Eastern and Middle States in 1850, 1860, and 1870; the number of such natives residing within the said territory, and the number of natives of the Eastern and Middle States who were living in other States; also the percentage of all natives of said section who had gone to the West and South.

LIVING IN THE STATES.

States.	In 1850.	In 1860.	In 1870.
Maine	584,810	676,066	696,392
New Hampshire	371,469	382,521	365,576
Vermont	377,441	418,852	418,126
Massachusetts	694,816	1,040,585	1,134,171
Rhode Island	145,491	155,264	167,032
Connecticut	447,594	478,310	477,373
New York	2,608,414	3,469,492	4,080,041
New Jersey	518,810	612,094	696,050
Pennsylvania	2,266,797	2,852,816	2,941,153
Total	8,305,074	10,086,640	11,296,229
Increase per cent. in ten years		21.47	11.97

In the last column the white population only is included.

To show how these Eastern and Middle States have spoiled themselves for the West, we take only the State of Michigan. In 1870 that State contained 916,049 inhabitants who were born in the United States. They were natives of the following States:

Michigan	507,268	Connecticut	7,412
EASTERN AND MIDDLE.		Rhode Island	1,137
Maine	3,932	New York	231,509
New Hampshire	3,633	New Jersey	8,033
Vermont	14,445	Pennsylvania	28,507
Massachusetts	10,839
Eastern and Middle			309,447

So it seems that of the natives of the United States living in Michigan, 55.37 per cent. were born in that State, 33.78 per cent. were from Eastern and Middle States, and 10.85 per cent. from other parts of the Union. Of the last contingent, only a mere sprinkling came from the South, and a large proportion of those were colored people.

The line of migration in the South is even more distinctly marked by lines of latitude than in the North. The overflow of the South Atlantic States is due west toward and beyond the Mississippi. Of course the border States give something to their neighbors, but the flood is not in that direction.

The Territories have not been taken into consideration in any of the above calculations. One of them (Colorado) has been admitted as a State since 1870. The native-born population of all the Territories in 1870 was 348,530. At the rate they are growing this would mean nearly a million in 1880. So we may "guess" the entire population at the next centennial census at somewhere near 47,000,000.

Learned professors have occasionally been outwitted by sayings of the simple. Dr. Hill, an Edinburgh professor of the last century, met in the suburbs of the city an inoffensive creature who was generally regarded as an imbecile. Somewhat irritated by the creature's intrusion on the privacy of his walk, the professor said to him, "How long, Tom, may one live without brains?" "I dinna ken," said Tom; "how lang hae ye lived yersel?"

Last year England imported over $10,800,000 worth of eggs.

FEDERAL LEGISLATION.

Measures Before Congress.

Representative Townsend, of New York, has introduced a bill to abridge the jurisdiction of Federal courts. The bill simply repeals the right now existing to move causes from State to Federal courts, in cases involving questions in reference to the United States revenue, questions arising under the constitution or any treaty of the United States. One object of the bill is to remove the inconvenience arising to litigants in carrying their cases from State courts to Federal courts. Another object is to aid in reducing the number of cases at present on the docket of the Supreme Court, which now number over 900, the majority of which are of the class contemplated in Mr. Townsend's bill. The Supreme Court is now three years behind in its work.

Mr. Oliver, of Iowa, offers a bill to abolish capital punishment. It provides that death shall not be inflicted for any crime committed against the United States or District of Columbia, nor for any offense hereafter committed by any soldier or mariner in the service of the United States, and that the punishment for crimes hereafter committed which are now by law punished by death shall be imprisonment for life. The same gentleman introduces a bill limiting the duration of patents to five years, and not allowing the entire duration in the case of an extension to exceed fifteen years; also a bill providing for a joint convention of all civilized nations for the purpose of establishing a uniform system of weights and measures.

Mr. Giddings, of Texas, introduces a bill to authorize the establishment of an ocean-mail steamship service between the United States and Brazil. It provides that the expense of the line shall be divided between the two Governments, the United States to pay not to exceed $150,000 per annum, during which time there shall be twelve round trips. The termini of the line shall be Galveston, Texas, and Rio de Janeiro, in Brazil.

Mr. Pacheco, of California, wants to regulate the survey and sale of the timber lands of the United States. His bill provides that the public lands, valuable chiefly for timber, are declared not to be subject to entry under the provisions of the Pre-emption or Homestead laws, but shall hereafter be sold for cash or located with land warrants or scrip issued under the act of June, 1860, said land warrants and scrip to be received at the value of $1.25 per acre for the number of acres mentioned in the warrants or scrip certificates. According to the bill these public lands shall remain for sale at $1.25 per acre, or $2.50 per acre where that price is fixed by existing law. The bill further provides that the public lands, valuable chiefly for timber, which have not been offered for sale according to law, returns of the survey of which have heretofore been made and approved at any time before the expiration of the fiscal year ending on June 30, 1877, shall before being so offered be subject to sale or location at $2.50 per acre to citizens of the United States and persons intending to become citizens.

Mr. Joyce, of Vermont, introduces a peculiar bill, which provides for the establishment of a commission of five members on the subject of liquor traffic, whose duty it shall be to investigate the subject in its economic, criminal, moral and scientific aspects, in connection with pauperism, crime, social vice, the public health, and general welfare of the people; and also to inquire and take testimony as to the practical results of license and restrictive legislation for the prevention of intemperance in the several States. The bill provides that the commission shall ascertain for the information of Congress, as near as may be, the number of gallons of wine, beer or distilled liquors annually consumed in different countries, including the United States; the number of deaths annually from alcoholism; the number and character of crimes caused by drinking; the diseases produced by drinking, mental as well as physical; the number of arrests for drunkenness; the amount of pauperism produced by liquor-drinking; the amount of revenue received by the Government from the liquor traffic and liquor making; the amount of food transformed into alcohol; the cost of alcohol consumed; the cost of caring for the criminals and paupers made by such drinking; the amount of capital employed in the liquor-making and the traffic in it; the quantity of spirituous liquors imported and exported.

Mr. Frye, of Maine, wants to allow persons charged with crime in the United States courts to testify in their own behalf.

Mr. Banning, of Ohio, proposes to abolish the Indian Bureau and transfer the care of the Indians to the War Department. Mr. Scales, of North Carolina, offers a bill of the same purport.

Mr. Buckner, of Missouri, offers an amendment to the constitution designed to exclude Chinese from the privileges of citizenship.

Mr. Pridemore, of Virginia, presents a bill to amend the Patent laws so as to provide that the grant to a patentee shall be for a term of seventeen years, unless the invention be upon an agricultural, horticultural, or mechanical implement or tool, in which case the grant shall be only for a term of eight years, permitting a reissuing of the patent upon application at the expiration of that time.

Mr. Springer, of Illinois, contributes a bill for the readjustment of the claims of American citizens against the Government of Venezuela.

Mr. Riddle, of Tennessee, proposes an amendment to the constitution, providing for the election of Postmasters every four years by the voters of the district, village, town, or city in which the duties of their offices are to be performed.

Mr. Hartzell wants to divide the State of Illinois into three judicial districts.

Mr. Phillips, of Kansas, wants to create and open at all postoffices where the salary of the Postmaster is $1,000 per year and upward, a savings bank where the people may deposit sums not less than 25 cents and an amount not to exceed $200 from any one person. The bill further provides that where the account of a depositor shall reach the amount of $25 and when the depositor shall place it subject to call on three months' notice thereof, the depositor shall receive on any and all such sums so deposited interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum.

Mr. Hooker, of Mississippi, wants the Cherokee, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Creek and Seminole Indians represented in Congress, and has introduced a measure to that effect.

Mr. Glover, of Missouri, offers a bill to remove the legal disabilities of women. It provides that any woman who shall have been a member of the highest court of any State or Territory, or of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, for the space of three years, and shall have maintained a good standing before such court, and who shall be a person of good moral character, shall, on motion and production of such record, be admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Buckner, of Missouri, wants to provide for the national education of women by establishing a National Female University in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Willis, of New York, presents a bill for the education of the blind. It proposes an appropriation of $250,000, to be invested in United States bonds as a perpetual fund, the interest on which is to be paid semi-annually to the Trustees of the American Printing House for the Blind at Louisville.

Mr. Young, of Tennessee, introduces a bill for the construction of levees along the Mississippi river. It provides for the appointment of a Board of Levee Commissioners to take charge of the work. It also authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue thirty-year bonds, bearing interest at 4 per cent. per annum, to the amount of $45,000,000, the proceeds to be applied to the construction of such works as may be recommended by the board, a tax to be levied upon all lands reclaimed from overflow, and upon the tonnage of all vessels navigating the stream in the levee district; this tax to constitute a sinking fund for the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds, and the cost and expenses of keeping the levees in repair.

PHILLIPS ON THE CURRENCY.

A letter from Wendell Phillips to Eugene Beebe, Secretary of the Legal-Tender Club of New York, sets forth that gentleman's peculiar views on the subject of a currency based wholly on credit, at considerable length. He deals with two questions touching currency: First. Upon what basis shall it rest? Second. How much of it shall we have? The following extracts contain the substance of what he says:

"It is idle to talk to-day of a specie basis. That gentle hallucination has been encouraged to quiet timid men and delude the masses. But the thing has not really existed for fifty or a hundred years. Great Britain, where, if anywhere, such a basis could be maintained, has not, to-day, 50 cents of coin to $100 of paper. Any individual may have that fifty cents provided he does not need it, and provided there is no special reason why he should have it. If at any time his business absolutely requires that he should have that fifty cents of coin, at that time he cannot have it. * * * Business experience has decided that currency, in civilized and commercial nations, must rest on credit and consist of paper. Thus experience answers our first question; the currency does rest and must rest on credit. Whose shall that credit be? Shall it be the credit of banks and their customers, or the credit of the nation? This question also experience has answered. Before the war we had banks resting each one on its own credit. We all remember the result. The bills ceased generally to be current a hundred miles from its counter. You lost 10 per cent. in changing those of the South and West for Eastern bills, and Horace Greeley demurely told the committee who paid him a handful of Western bills, 'If convenient, I should much prefer a well-executed counterfeit on some Eastern bank.' What makes our national-bank bills good, and equally good, everywhere to-day? The nation stands behind them. Such notes pass everywhere, and everywhere at the same value, because the nation guarantees them. All the note currency we have rests on national credit, directly or indirectly. No man can give a reason why they should not rest directly on national credit; why all bank bills should not be withdrawn and legal tenders supply their place."

On the second question, this is his answer:

"Let the Government stand ready to issue all the currency any business man wishes and can give good security for, at low interest and convertible into long bonds. If necessary, in order to conciliate existing prejudices, let the capital of these bonds, having long terms to run, be payable in gold. Make greenbacks legal tender for all purposes, customs and all Government dues included. There is every reason why this should be done. History is repeating itself. England never knew more prosperous years than from 1800 to 1820, during which she neither had gold, nor wished to have it, nor promised to pay gold to anyone whatever. All that while she extended and contracted her currency, without any regard whatever to gold. Her enormous trade and expenditures were all on paper, resting on credit and nothing else. We had similar prosperity during the war and after, on the same terms. In 1820 England, yielding to theorists and dreamers, tried to put this new wine into old bottles, and dragged her business back to methods a century old—to specie. Bankruptcy, the very history of which makes the blood cold to-day, blighted the empire. It took half a generation to recover from the mistake. No man can to-day begin to show that such suffering was necessary; that it achieved any good, or that it effected any changes which could not have been as well made without it. We entered that same valley of the shadow of death when, in 1865, McCulloch began contraction. We are hurrying fast to England's 1820; property sunk to half its former value; the streets crowded with unemployed men fast rotting into criminals; grass growing on the wharves, machinery rusting, wealth alarmed, poverty starving. Woe to the political party which the nation shall finally pronounce responsible for this fatal mistake! No previous merits will avail for its pardon. Its leaders will be buried in curses, as men whom neither history nor their own experience could make wise."—Boston Globe.

Effect of Contraction.

You ask what has a contraction of the currency to do with the question? How does it affect the bondholders? Let us see. Ten years ago they had, for instance, $2,000,000,000 of bonds. They said, among themselves, "now, we can't increase the amount of these bonds; we can't write a figure 2 in place of a figure 1 on their face, and thereby double the number of dollars that must be paid us, but we can double their value, we can double their purchasing power, or the purchasing power of the dollars which we shall receive for them. How? Why, by simply reducing prices of commodities. By the reduction of the prices of those things which we will want to invest our money in when it is paid us. Wheat, for instance, is worth $2 per bushel. At $2 per bushel, a $1,000 bond will only buy 500 bushels; but, if we can reduce wheat to a $1 per bushel, then, with $1,000 bond we can get 1,000 bushels. Labor, for instance, is worth $2 a day. We can get only 500 days' work for a $1,000 bond; but, if we can get labor down to $1 per day, then we can get 1,000 days' work with a $1,000 bond! In short, if we reduce prices to one-half, our bonds, or the money which we get for them, will go twice as far. We can build twice as many miles of railroads; we can buy twice as many farms; we can build twice as many houses; we can buy twice as much real estate; we can buy twice as much, in short, of any commodity. How shall we reduce prices? Why, create a stringency in the money market, contract the currency—that will bring down the prices." Now, that is why we are having a contraction of the currency. That is why they hire book writers; that is why they hire newspapers; that is why they hire eloquent speakers to cry out, "We must get down to hard-pan," "We must get down to ante-war prices," "We have had too much inflation," "Too much irredeemable paper," "That we want a dollar that is good in Europe." That is why we are having contraction of the currency. No matter how many business men it may ruin, no matter if we have fifteen thousand failures in this country in less than two years, no matter if $350,000,000 of liabilities to business men must be dishonored, no matter if the road to "hard-pan" is strewn with wrecked hopes, and wrecked fortunes, and wrecked homes, no matter if it forecloses mortgages and sends women and children into the streets (why, in the city of Chicago, they are publishing daily about three hundred bankruptcy and foreclosure notices), no matter if it throws a million of men out of employment, no matter if women and children suffer from hunger and cold, we must have contraction of the currency and reduction of prices, in order to increase the purchasing power of the bonds! This system of contraction has the same effect upon mortgages as it does upon the bonds. It increases the purchasing power of the mortgages. For instance, if a man had a mortgage of $1,000 on his home five years ago, when he was getting two dollars per day, he could earn the money in five hundred days, but, if he is only getting one dollar a day now, it will take a thousand days' work to work it off. Well, the $2,000,000,000 of United States bonds are a first mortgage, and the laborers of the country must work and earn the money to pay it off. It will take only 1,000,000,000 at two dollars per day, but it will take 2,000,000,000 at one dollar per day. But, before that extra billion of days' work is wrung out of the bones and sinews of the laborers of this country, they will find out how they have been swindled by the system of contraction of the currency and a reduction of the prices.—Industrial Greenbacker.

A Panic-Stricken Village.

Passengers on the deck of a large pleasure steamboat, running through the Narrows of New York harbor, several years ago, were amazed and greatly alarmed by seeing a large cannon-ball pass over the boat. The ball was from a cannon in Fort Hamilton, which the gunners had supposed was aimed at a target nowhere near the boat. The residents of the quiet village of Minton, in England, have also had an experience of bombardment in time of peace. At midday, a 16-pound shell fell in the middle of the main street, and plowed up the turf a long distance. Another shell soon fell into a garden near by, and a third, entering the roof of a barn, utterly demolished the building. The frightened villagers fled from their homes to the open country. It was soon ascertained that the Royal Horse Artillery were practicing gunnery upon a lofty eminence some two miles distant, and that the gunners had put their targets in a line with the village. A mounted messenger informed the officer in command of the village catastrophe, and the firing ceased.

Texas Table Talk.

A San Antonio gentleman recently had occasion to visit a neighboring town. He did not expect much in the way of accommodation at the local hotel, and in this his anticipations were more than realized. He was very hungry, but had the luck to lose most of his appetite before he got through with his dinner, owing to his discovering a few blonde hairs in the soup. He thought the landlord would feel very bad about it, but that gentleman merely remarked, as he excavated a perishing fly from the butter: "All I ask is, Judge, that you don't fish 'em out with your finger. You have got to use a fork. It is one of the rules of the house that no gentleman is expected to put his fingers in the vittles. This ain't no railroad town, but, when it comes to style and tone, we carry off the blue ribbon every time the horn toots."—San Antonio Herald.

Children who are remarkable for what they know at 5 years old are generally more remarkable at 25 for what they don't know.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 22, 1877.

Kars was captured by the Russians on the 18th by storm, after a battle of twelve hours.

Bob. Ingersol has been tendered the Mission to Berlin He hesitates to accept, fearing no doubt, that this and his opposition to God and the Democratic party will be more than he can handle.

However the House may vote on the bill for the repeal of the Resumption act, whatever may be the size of the majority obtained for it, there is no occasion for panic. Gold isn't frightened, as the quotations show. The chance of the Senate's acquiescing in the repeal is admitted on all hands to be slight; and even if it should be successfully steered past that danger, it would be morally sure to come to rack on a vote. Hayes, left to himself, might be unequal to the emergency; he is of a vacillating temperament. But John Sherman has too big a take on the success of the new syndicate to be caught dozing upon his post.—New York Sun.

That is the way the papers talk which are in favor of the Resumption act. And still they say this act is not in favor of the bond holder.

At the conclusion of a greenback orator's harangue, on the street last Saturday, a farmer who stood near the speaker remarked that his receipt for the hard times was for every man, who can do so, to pay his honest debts. The greenback orator evidently thought this a personal allusion directed at him, and he adjourned the meeting.—Waterloo Press.

Very good advice. The qualification is timely. But when the legislation of the country steps in and says we want to resume in '79, and must get down to specie basis in one jump, how can the honest man pay his debts. He holds the paper of this man and that man, and when it comes due he can and will pay what he owes, but the depression caused by the resumptionists, closes up the man from whom he expected the cash, and when the time comes he cannot pay. Yet according to the above, you must not favor greenbacks, &c., or you will be looked upon as a being dishonest as is intimated. We believe a poor man has a right to express himself as well as the bondholder, and his being in debt is no evidence of dishonesty We can't all set in palaces, and cut off our coupons and get gold for them, but thank the Lord those who cannot do so, have the right in this free America to protest against a system of robbery that is destined to crush them down into want and poverty, to make the rich more wealthy. And the Press's withering sarcasm will hardly be able to prevent the exercise of this blessed privilege.

Mr. Editor.—In last week's Courier somebody was troubled with a bad stomach, criticised our choir. He says, "The minister must study and labor for years to prepare himself for the pulpit, but what preparation or study, what thought or drill is bestowed by the bulk of those who so frequently lead in singing, or the persons who compose our choirs." I ask Mr. X. what chance has our choirs had to prepare themselves for singing in the manner he wishes them to sing. We have had no singing societies, no conventions, not even the old fashioned singing school. Our leaders are not professors of music neither do they claim to be. Our ministers study and labor for years, and when they are ready for the pulpit, they get paid for every sermon they preach.

I ask Mr. X. how much do our choirs get for singing. Not one cent, and very often they pay for the books they use. I know of one choir in this place that with the help of the minister, have paid for nearly every book they have used for the last three years—the members of the church paying but a small sum. How much do you pay Mr. X? You compare our choirs to the bellowing of an ox, the braying of the jack etc. I think Mr. X., that your liver is out of order, you need some soothing syrup.

Most of the persons belonging to the choirs are not there of their own accord The members of the church say we must have a choir, so they force people into it who do not want to sing, or bellow. Without proper training we can not have perfect singing. Will Mr. X. help get up a singing society that will help our choirs? Mr. X. hopes to give credit to the choir that will improve most in sweet, sacred music. If Mr. X. wants to create jealousy and envy between two choirs, let him do this. I think he had better let that alone. Y.

What Young Men Should Do.

1. Every young man should strive to make the best of himself, intellectually, morally and physically.

2. He should depend upon his own efforts to accomplish these results.

3. He should be willing to take advice from those competent to give it, and to follow such advice, unless his own judgment or conviction, properly founded, should otherwise direct.

4. He should never be discouraged by small beginnings, but remember that all great results have been wrought out from apparently slight causes.

5. He should never, under any circumstances, be idle. If he cannot find the employment he prefers, let him come as near his desires as possible—he will thus reach the object of his ambition.

6. All young men have, "inalienable rights," among which none is greater or more sacred than the privilege to be "somebody."

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

FOURTH DAY.

Thursday, Nov. 15.

Institute opened at 9 A. M. by Mr. Barns. First singing then calling the roll. An exercise in Arithmetic was then conducted by Prof. Williams.

RECESS.

After recess remarks on the subject of teaching drawing in school by Prof. Goodison, with illustrations on the black board. Lesson by Mr Ridge; subject, teaching primary pupils to read, with exercises upon the board, showing method of giving object lessons.

NOON RECESS.

Afternoon exercises commenced by singing. F. Van Aukes then conducted an interesting exercise in Grammar.

RECESS.

Lesson in drawing by Mr. Goodison, which was both interesting and instructive. Mr. Barns then gave a very instructive lesson in History; subject, classes into which senators are divided, in order of their election. An entertainment was given by prof. Ridge, consisting of recitations of both humerous and pathetic nature. Number enrolled 210.

FIFTH DAY.

Friday, Nov. 16.

Institute called to order by Superintendent Barns. A discussion was then engaged in by several of the teachers, on giving prizes in school The majority of teachers decided to give rewards on certain conditions to be attained by the pupils, but that special prizes should not be awarded to certain ones for objects attained. Remarks to teachers, on text-books to be used in school.

NOON RECESS.

The subject of primary reading was continued from yesterday by Mr. Ridge, also correct pronunciation of words which are usually misspronounced. Continuation of lecture on school government by Mr. Fertich. Object of punishment in school, and modes of punishment to be adopted; closing with recitation of the Poems entitled "No sect in Heaven," and "The American Flag." Remarks were then made to the teachers by Mr. Barnes, on the work before them the coming year. On behalf of the Institute, he offered thanks to the people of Butler, for their hospality, and kindness, for the use of the Lucheran church for evening sessions; to the people of the Methodist church, for the use of their organ; and to the instructors from abroad, for their presence and assistance.

J. A. Barns, Supt.
Mary M. Brundage, } Sec's.
H. C. Thurssin. }

The following names comprise the list of teachers in attendance at the Teachers Institue:

G. W. Allen, Lillie Allen, Belle Arford, Nerva Ackley, Melissa Ansbaugh, J. N. Boyle, J. G. Bowersox, F. K. Blake, J. B. Baxter, J. W. Baxter, Jennie Baxter, Lottie Brundage, Mary Brundage, Ella Bryant, C. Bowden, Nancy Ball, W. D. Boyle, Frank Burrell, Christie Blaker, A. W. Bair, W. B. Brown, C. H. Brown, Wm. Chambers, Henry Coe, Mary Crise, Wm. P. Carpender, Jennie Crooks, Linnie Crooks, Lucinda Daniels, M. M. Eberly, R. A. Franks, Jossie Gillott, Maria Goldsmith Allie Goldsmith, B. H. Gilmore, O. Z. Hubbell, C. H. Husselman, A. J. Jennings, Minnick Kutsely, Laura Kennedy, Frank Mitchell, J. R. McOsker, J. M. Merica, W. S. Maxwell, C. J. Maxwell, Katie Maxwell, Addie McCurdy, J. M. Noragon, J. S. Otis, Edith Platter, Lizzie Rawsen, Israel Ringler, P. C. Smith, A. P. Shurts, J. R. Shilling, Ida Swartz, Frank Stahl, W. R. Snyder, O. H. Taylor, Henry Waters, A. R. Wyatt, W. M. Wirrick, Clara Wiley, Flora Williams, Charles Wily, O. L. Young, Emma Young, Mary Young, Emma Yarlott, Sarah Zahner, J. J. Eakright, Ella Erehart, John P. Ensley, Byron Grube, Mary Greenawald, Cora Grube, Mary Gunsenhouser, Nannie Hornberger, Ellen Inius, Ella Joslins, Millie Kester, Rubie Moody, Hattie Matthews, Frank Miller, Ida Mann, Eva Mason, Ella Schamp, Sarah Shoub, Alla Shoub, Jennie Smith, Ella Scoville, Josie Thomas, Etta Wanamaker, Minnie Wagoner, Ida Wychoff, Hattie Wise T. H. Shoub, C. P. Housel, J. Ringler; J. Conrad, J. E. Dermott, J. L. Wychoff Minta Wyatt, W. J. Whetzee, Ida McCurdy, J. A. Knott, Theodosie Helwig, Clara Gilmore, Mary Emmerson, R. C. Baxter, W. T. Bope, J. C. Brown, Kate Barber, C. H. Thurstin, J. A. Krum, F. B. Coder, J. A. Cambell, Flora Schoals, G. Flint, L. L. Bair, Mattie May, Joseph Hall, Sarah Allen, Eliza Bearns, Mary Blake, Priscilla Coder, Mary Beard, Ida Taylor, Ellen Taylor, Edith L. Jackman, Florence Jackman, W. S. Herrick, S. J. Kiser, Florence Wyant, Callie Whetsel, Lucy Blaker, J. J. Walter, Mattie Billings, Libbie Bevier, Frank Gillott, L. M. Bassett, Isaac Coy, Emma Danks, J. C. Frets, B. F. Frets, Lucy Seery, W. M. Urie, S. Olmstead, Wm. Pepple, J. E. Dilgard, J. M. Diehl, Lusanna Smith, J. N. McCurdy, D. G. Bell, J. L. Ackley Della Pernell, Libbie Leas, Addie E. Leas, Lillie McTighe, George Pugsly, J. L. Fierstone, Luda Livergood, Lettia Coats, Lottie Chilson, Olive Peterman, Frank P. Blair, J. D. Essig, C. M. Merica. Ella Comparet, Nellie Parker, Libbie Rice, Clara Parker, Frank Van Auken, G. W. Coats, Lizzie Dickenson, Kate Dickenson, Etta Imhoof, Almeda Zerkle, Drusie Schull, Lucy Headly, C. S. Arford, E. C. Miller, B. McEntarfer, Lida Beck, W. D. Miller, T. J. Baxter, E. A. Henning, A. J. Beard, Rena Boyer John McCurdy, Ida McDowell, Laura Reynolds, W. H. Hoagland, A. B. Walsworth, Joseph Kuestrick, B. A. Hadsell, Mattie Starr, W. N. Shatto, C. W. Strob, Ida Blair, H. R. Little, J. B. Boyle, J. Barber, D. B. Chilcoat, A. Conrad, J. R. Irish, Rose Blair, L. R. Williams, W. H. Keran, C. J. Hadsell, A. B. Coburn, James A. Barns, W. H. Fertich, John Goodison, John G. Ridge, Mollie Peachy, H. J. Shaffer, Jennie Noragon, A. C. Noragon, Belle Hornberger, Sue. Hornberger.

CHRONIC Diseases Cured. New paths marked out by that plainest of all books—"Plain Home Talk and Medical Common sense,"—nearly 1,000 pages, 200 illustrations by Dr. E. B. Foote of 120 Lexington Avenue, N. Y. Purchasers of this book are at liberty to consult its author in person or by mail free. Price by mail $3.25 for the standard edition, or $1.50 for the popular edition, which contains all the same matter and illustrations. Contents free. Agents wanted. Murray Hill Publishing Co., 129 East 28th st. N. Y.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Thomas Richardson is plaintiff and Robert Zacher, et al are defendants require me to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven dollars, with interest on said decree and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M, of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to wit:

Town lot number seventy-two [72] in Kesler's 2nd addition to the town of Auburn, in DeKalb County and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs. I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
A. A. Chapin, atty for pltff.
Nov. 21st, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Stephen W. Buckley is plaintiff, and Julius Proctor is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Ninety-Five Dollars and Forty-Five cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Southeast quarter of the Northwest quarter of section twelve [12], township thirty-four [34] north of range fourteen [14], east in DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
Rose & Hartman, Atty's. for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 20th, 1877.
Pr. fee $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an Execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein J. M. Combs et al. are plaintiffs, and Burgett & Freeburn, are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Fourteen Dollars with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number seventy-three (73) in Egnew's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
Best & McClellan, Att'ys for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov 20th, 1877.
Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb County Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs and Joseph Jones et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Forty-Four Dollars, and Twelve cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fifty-six [56], in the town of Lawrence, (now Sedan,) in DeKalb County, Ind.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
McBride, Morlan & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Nov. 20, 1877.
Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an Execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Sumner K. Randall is plaintiff, and Charles G. Smith and Daniel W. Smith are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-Eight Dollars and Seventy-Two cents, with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-five [25] and forty-five [45] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross Deputy.
Moody & Huffman, Att'ys. for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Nov. 21, 1877.
P. fee $7.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Stiefle & Ochs are plaintiffs and George M. Tappan is defendent, requiring me to make the sum of Two hundred and fifteen [215] and fifty [50] cents with interest on said judgement and costs, I will expose to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided one seventh (1-7) of one hundred acres off the north part of the southeast quarter of section twelve, 12, township thirty-four, 34 north of range fourteen, 14, east in De Kalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
Young & Ralston, Attorneys for plaintiffs
Auburn, Nov. 21st, 1877. Pf. $9.25, et al is plaintiffs and Benajah B. Long, Edgar E Long and et al is defendants requiring me to make the sum of eleven hundred & thirty dollars ...

Commencing fifteen (15) rods east of the north west corner of section four (4) thence running south to the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Rail Road thence east thirty-five (35) rods thence north to said section line thence west to the place of begining all in township thirty four (34) north of range thirteen (13) east in DeKalb county Indiana.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Geo. Emerson, Pliny Watson, and Zebulon C. Pheott are plaintiffs, and Elias Housor, Henry Ernest et al are defendants requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and ten (510) dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

The north half of the south west quarter and the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section twenty-two [22] and fourteen (14) acres off the east side of the south east quarter of the south east quarter of section twenty-one (21) township thirty-five (35) north of range twelve (12) east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
A. A. Chapin, Attorney for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 1st, 1877. $9.00.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein John A. Gaver is plaintiff and Hubbell and Bordner and Solomon Bordner are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty Dollars and fifty cents with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number eighteen [18] and nineteen [19] in Danford's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
Chas. W. Pitcairn, Att'y. for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 13th, 1877.
Pr fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Jacob Elbert is plaintiff, and Charles Baker and Francis Picker are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and eleven, 111, dollars and sixty-seven, 67, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M, and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit,

Lot number one hundred and four, 104, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Edward J. Baker is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seven, 307, dollars and ninety-four, 94, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and sixty-six, 166, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana, excepting forty, 40 feet off the east end thereof conveyed to Casper Altenburg by said Baldock.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS D. GROSS, Deputy.
R. Baxter Taft, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf, 8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Orlando T. Letcher and William Letcher are plaintiffs, and Martin Maze and Mary Maze are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of six thousand fifty-two 6,052 dollars and seventy-one, 71, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The north east quarter of section twenty-four, 24, in township thirty-four, 34, north of range fourteen, 14, east excepting one acre off the north west corner of said land above described deeded to James Leonard balance containing one hundred and sixty, 160, acres more or less in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf, $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mathew H. Griffith, James Roberts and J. Milton Butler are plaintiffs, and George W. Young and William Richmond are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seventy-five dollar ($375) and twenty-four (24) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A piece of land off the south side of the north east quarter of section thirty one [31] township thirty four four, 34, north of range fifteen, 15 east bounded as follows to-wit: on the east by the road leading from Newville to Wanamakers corners, on the north by land owned by Lawrence Gibson, on the west by land owned by H. H. Smith on the south by one half section line running between said land and John Loveland the same to contain forty-four, 44 acres of land more or less in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs,
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $10.75

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St, Chicago, Ill.

ROOT & COMPANY
46 and 48 Calhoun Street.
FORT WAYNE, IND.

BLACK SILKS Superb stock, most of them bought at auction sales and will be sold cheap. Prices, 65c, 75c, 85c, $1.00, 1.15, 1.25, 1.30, 1.50 per yards.

CASHMERE SILKS Black silks, brilliant color warranted to wear, $1.50, 1.65, 1.75, 2.00, 2.25, 2.50, 3.00 per yard.

COLORED SILKS All the popular shades for dresses and trimmings at greatly reduced prices. viz: 75c, 85c, 1.00, 1.15, 1.25, 1.40, 1.50 per yard.

CHENEY'S American gros grain silks, 22 inches wide, in all the new dark shades, warranted to wear and give satisfaction. Price 1.50 per yard.

BLACK CASHMERES Full lines of all our popular numbers. The best value in the city at 60c, 68c, 75c, 85, 90c, 1.00 1.25, per yard.

COLORED CASHMERES, In seal brown, navy blue, myrtle green, plum color, draubs, bargains at 60c, 75c, 85c 1.00 per yard.

BOURETTE CLOTHS Niegase and matalasse effects, Knickerbocker and snow flake goods for overdresses. Suits, etc., 25c, 35c, 50c, 75c, 1.00, 150 per yard

MOURNING GOODS, Large choice stock cashmeres, black merinos, henriettas, Austrailian crepes, bombazines, tamise cloths, barathens, matalasse, etc.; etc.

COURTAULD'S ENGLISH CREPES 3-4 4-4 5-4 6 4 wide, cut on the bias at 75c, 85c, 1.00, 1.25, 1.50, up to 8.00 per yard. Also crepe vails, al sizes, best goods 2.50 to 9.00 each.

UNDERWEAR for gentlemen, ladies, and infants wear. All sizes from smallest to the largest. The largest stock and lowest prices in the city.

HARRIS KID GLOVES is the best kid glove sold. In 2, 3, 4, 6 buttons. Prices reduced, Also 2 and 3 button kids at 75c, 1.00, 1.25 and 1.50 per pair.

HOSIERY KID GLOVES for wear, complete stock, newest styles and lowest prices. Balbriggan hosiery for ladies and gentlemen.

CLOAKS, SUITS, SHAWLS, Paris and New York styles. Immense stock to select from. New styles open daily.

CARPETS, this department is the most prosperous in our establishment, choice styles and low popular prices do the business

HOUSEKEEPING GOODS of all kinds, table linens, and damasks, towels and towelings, quilts, napkins, table covers, piano covers, etc.

Root & Company.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Draggoo is plaintiff, and William Whetstone, Rebecca Whetstone David Grosh, and Samuel Grosh are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five thousand one hundred and eighty-seven [5187] dollars and eighty cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing at a corner stone in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, from thence south seventeen and one-half degrees west along the centre of said road, eight and twelve one hundredth chains to a stake thence south seventy-two and one half [72½] degrees east four [4] chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half degrees, west three and seventy-five hundredths chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one half [72½] degrees, west four chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence north seventeen and ½ deg's, east 3 75-100 chains to the place of beginning, a piece of ground in the south west quarter of section thirty-two [32] in township thirty-four [34] north of range thirteen [13], east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $12.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Chas. Kelly is plaintiff, and Orpheus L. Holt et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty, 460, dollars and fifty, 50, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number sixteen, 16 seventeen, 17, eighteen, 18, and nineteen, 19, in McAnally's addition to the town of Waterloo, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
C. Kelly, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877. Pf, $8,00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue, of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Alonzo Lockwood is plaintiff and Samuel Hickman, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Eighty-Five dollars and Seventy-Four cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 8th, 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lots number twenty-three [23] and twenty-four 24, in Ralston's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StClair, Sheriff,
Thos. D. Gross, Dept.
Altenberg & Lockwood Att'ys, for plaintiff.
Aubur Indiana, Nov. 14th. 1877.
Pf. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles Kelly is plaintiff, and Geo. Haines, Henry O. Haines, et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty Dollars with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M, and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number eighty six [86], original, Waterloo DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
D. Y. Husselman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 14th A. D. 1877.
Shr's. fee $7.25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein James Draggoo is plaintiff, and Samuel Grosh et al is defendants, requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and forty-five [545] dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

The following described real estate situated in DeKalb county, Indiana, the undivided one-third of the following described real estate, commencing at a corner stone between Lewis Spangler and George Ensley, in the center of the Fort Wayne and Coldwater road thence south seventeen and one-half [17½] degrees west along the center of said road eight and twelve one hundredths chains to a stake, thence south seventy two and one half, 72½, degrees east four 4 chains to a stake, thence south seventeen and one-half 17½, degrees west three and seventy-five one hundredths chains to a stake thence north seventy-two and one half 72½ degrees west four, 4, chains to a stake in the center of the road aforesaid, thence north seventeen and one-half, degrees, 17½, east three and seventy-five one hundredth 3.75 chains to the place of beginning, containing one and ¾ acres of land in the south-west quarter of section thirty-two, 32, in township No. 34 north of range No, thirteen, 13, east in said county.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 1st, 1877. Pf. $12.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff and John A. Scholfield et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and thirteen cents, with interest on said decree and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 7187.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of the north-east quarter of section ten [10], township thirty five [35] north of rang fourteen [14 east, containing forty acres of land, more or less, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.
McBride, Morlan & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Nov. 13th, 1877,
Pr. fee $8.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein the Auburn Building Loan and Saving Association is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and seventy-four ,474, dollars and sixty-two, 62, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit.

Lot number one hundred and sixty-five, 165, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. 8.25.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Electa Bristol and George P Bristol are plaintiffs, and Jesse E. Woodford, Henrietta S. Woodford et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of nine hundred and 12, 912, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-one, 21, in Parks addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Next week comes Thanksgiving. We ought to be thankful at all times. We should be especially thankful this year for a bountiful harvest.

Mr. L. L. Irons has sold his landed interests at DeKalb station, this county, formerly known as St. Johns, to Mr. Vandercook, of Angola. Mr. Irons will still remain with us.

We are in receipt of the Weekly News, published at Kendallville, by our old friend A. S. Parker, late of Garrett. The News starts out well, and if the Doctor will steer it just right, we doubt not he will meet with success.

Last week Wednesday John E. Walters, of this city, sold to Mr. Cambell, of Salem, Ohio, one hundred and sixty-five sheep, the average weight of which was 129¼ pounds. The amount of greenbacks received was nearly $1,000. Who can beat it?—Kendallville Standard.

The Angola Herald gives an extended account of marriage in high life in that place, on the 7th inst., in which Mr. Adolph Hirsh, of Chicago, and Miss Bella Stiefle, of Angola, were the contracting parties. The presents were numerous and the attendance large.

The handsomest display of perfume we have seen for a long time is now made by Davenport. His revolving pyramid of the choicest brands, should be seen to be appreciated. He has a fine assortment at almost any price, and if you want to smell sweet, buy a bottle.

Another Reduction.

Schaab, Beugnot & Co. made another reduction on the prices of groceries, as follows:

Coffee A sugar, 11½c.; Extra C sugar, 10½c.; Choice Dried Peaches, 8½c.; Best Rio Coffee, 25c., and all other groceries equally as low, and of standard quality.

We call attention to the advertisement of J. E. Shilling, on the 8th page. Mr. Shilling has embarked in the harness trade, and from his known business qualifications, his untiring energy, and good name, we conclude he will be found the right man in the right place. He has a fine new stock and offers them at very reasonable prices. It would be discreet to give him a call.

Arrangements are being made for a grand Hop for the benefit of the Hook and Ladder Company about Thanksgiving. The boys have been very prompt in the discharge of their duties, and have not asked assistance from the public. They want to raise a fund to procure uniform shirts, and they deserve to be patronized. Everybody should buy a ticket, if they do not go.

Well cooked food, it is said, is sold in New York at a decent place, at a cent a dish. We wish somebody would move right along this way with such an institution. Lets see, at one dish a meal, that would be 21 cents a week for one person. Well, if some of our delinquent subscribers do not pay up soon, we'll have to start a hashery of this kind before long.

Who want's to be rich. Look at the life of Vanderbilt. The heirs are now trying to break his will, and the way the testimony comes in about the life this rich man led is awful. He said to his son-in-law, a short time before he died, "Daniel, when I die there'll be h—l to pay." Somebody interrupted him at the time, and the additional words "and no pitch hot," were left unsaid. Don't get rich.

We are in receipt of a very handsome whip from the enterprising harness establishment of G. Rhodenbaugh & Co., for which they have our thanks. We are glad to state this firm is getting a large number of orders in their line and are enjoying a large increased trade. The genial Smith is always on hand ready to show goods and give prices. They keep a well selected stock of goods which they ask the public to inspect.

According to the Wabash Courier, there is a paper in that burg which has a saloon editor and a tom tit. Which would you rather be. It reminds us of the darkey who was told that English sparrows were introduced in this country to kill off the worms on the trees, but that the birds were more of an annoyance now than the worms. In response to the question which he preferred, the sparrows or the worms, he said he didn't know, as he never had the sparrows.

German Syrup.

No other medicine in the world was ever given such a test of its curative qualities as Boschee's German Syrup. In three years two million four hundred thousand small bottles of this medicine was distributed free of charge by Druggists in this country to those afflicted with Consumtion, Asthama, Croupe, Severe Coughs, Pheumonia and other diseases of the throat and lungs, giving the American people undeniable proof that German Syrup will cure them. The result has been that Druggists in every town an village in the United States are recommending it to their customers. Go to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and ask what he knows about it. Sample bottles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case.

Apples at Ralston's next Saturday.

Give the New York Store a chance.

Hank Little left Monday for Corunna.

Howard Griswold left Monday for Iowa.

Sim. Rainier has again located in the city.

For repairing go to Billy Little's, over Pomert's.

A change in the time card of the Jackson road.

The Bank will be closed on Thanksgiving Day.

More new goods just received at Schaab, Beugnot Co's.

Mrs. Little is now with the millinery house of H. H. Stamets.

Next Thursday is thanksgiving. Get your "gobblers in shape."

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Patterson, we learn will again move to the city.

Mr. Goodman is happy. A boy last week. Good man, good boy.

The New York Store does not sell auction goods but first-class goods.

Read Stamets' new price list of millinery and fancy goods in this issue.

Cook. Ford has rented Mr. Case's barn and is now using it for his livery.

For good fine cut tobacco and a good 5c. cigar, go to Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

Our old farmer friend, Mr. Wm. Nelson, has our thanks for a lot of splendid turnips.

Look at the announcement of Stamets' in millinery and fancy goods, in another column.

Notice the advertisement of the "Boss Harness Shop," on eighth page; J. E. Shilling, proprietor.

Our enterprising firm, Rhodenbaugh & Co., have erected a new sign in front of their business house.

Mr. J. H. Van Arnum, of Kendallville is here introducing a very fine portable folding clothes basket.

Although a girl may be as proud as Lucifer it desen't always follow that she makes a good match.

See change in Root & Company's advertisemen. They have got their goods down to hard time prices.

Congress has finally succeeded in passing the army appropriation bill providing for 25,000 soldiers.

Mr. Kist, of the Butler Record, has our thanks for a proof of the proceedings of the Teachers' Institute.

Billy Little is now fully prepared to do all kinds of custom work. Give him a call, over Pomert's barber shop.

The large retail store of Field, Leiter & Co, of Chicago, was consumed by fire Wednesday night of last week. Loss nearly a million.

T. C. Ford, late of Fayette, Ohio, returned last Saturday, bringing with him his livery establishment. He will open out in the Case barn.

Several new men have been employed in the railroad blacksmith shop at Garrett, among them Mr. Seward, of Auburn.—Kendallville News.

FURS—A splendid line of Furs just received, from $3.00 to $12.00 per set, at Lanning's. Call and examine. Childrens, Misses and ladies' styles very low.

Mr. Nick Ensley has shown us a fine large lemon fully matured, which was produced from a small tree now at his residence. When in bloom it fills the whole house with a rich perfume.

Auburn Markets.

The market is steady, and the following prices are now paid: Wheat $1.25 Oats 25c. Ear corn 35c, Shelled 38c, Clover seed $4.60 @ $4.75.

It is reported that an attempt has been made to assassinate King William and Bismarck. And it is this to be a king. Uneasy the head that wears the crown.

If you have a friend with a cough or a cold, tell him to try Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. He will thank you for your advice. The price is only 25 cents. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Coughs, colds, sore throat, asthama, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are readily cured by Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, a remedy which never fails to give satisfaction. Price only 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

Lawson's Curative, which is advertised in our columns, has deserved reputation gained by actual merit. We know of no remedy which has acquired such a hold in the estimation of the people, for the simple reason that the medicine is what it is represented to be a cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, and nervous diseases. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Children cry for Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup. It is the most pleasant preparation for coughs and colds known, and perfectly harmless. Price 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

Gen. McClellan's majority in New Jersey is about 13,000. The Democratic majority in New York is about 18,000, in Pennsylvaina, about 9,000, Wisconsin, Republican about 8,000.

The ladies social of the Presbyterian church will give a Christmas dinner and supper in the Odd Fellows Building. Further notice will be given hereafter.

Mrs. R. Eason, Sec'y.

Musical Institute.

Prof. Straub has concluded to open a Musical Institute, assisted by Mr. Reed, of Waterloo. The session will continue fifteen days, and instructions will be given in the rudiments, voice culture, harmony, &c. This will afford an excellent opportunity to reap a great advantage in the art of music, not only in this vicinity, but throughout the country. The professor has put his terms down very low, and will furnish all necessary books. Don't fail to attend.

Thanksgiving Dinner.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will give a splendid dinner on Thanksgiving Day. This is about the first entertainment given by them this year, and it is hoped they will be largely patronized. It will be cheaper to eat turkey with them than at home, and everybody should make it suit to attend. The dinner will be given in the Odd Fellows' Building.

Who can fathom the anticipated joy which wells up from the average juvenile as the Holidays approach. Parents should favor and encourage these finer sensibilities, and not neglect to remember, in a tangible way, the little ones of the household. To do this it will only be necessary to visit Joe Abright's, where a fine assortment of Jewelry, Watches, Clocks, Silver ware, Musical instruments Spectacles, &c., is now on exhibition. Joe has struck a gold mine and has supplied his establishment with every thing that a person could wish. His silver mine has yielded an immense supply as his shelves will show; the articles are warranted to be as represented and will be sold at small advance above cost. His stock is full and of the latest patterns. Call and see him, 2nd door north of Postoffice. Special attention given to repairing watches, jewelry &c. If your turnip is out of shape, let Joe have it and it will soon be in order again.

We spent a few hours with some of our old friends at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, last Sabbath, among whom we mention with pleasure, the accomplished County Clerk Hon. R. D. Dumm and estimable family, and Col. John Henderson, both of whom were at one time connected with the Sentinel at Fort Wayne. We were also pleased to meet the pioneer editor, Hon. P. Cuneo, late postmaster. We were astonished at the remarkable progress made in that city for several years past. Palatial private residences of the finest architectual beauty, massive business blocks, an elegant new Opera House, macademized streets, fine new hotels and splendid churches mark her prosperous path, until she now ranks with the best inland cities of the State. There's always a genial fascinating air in and about the place, that retains for it a green place in our memory, and this with the clustering of many friends who always receive one with an inborn hospitality, makes a visit doubly attractive and delightful.

"THAT BRIDGE"—If the Auburn papers think any considerable portion of the citizens of their own town, favor the building of the new 9th street bridge they ought to have "sand" enough to say so, and not go off into "glittering generalities" about "our bridge," etc. They should recollect that "our bridge" is paid for by the county, and that, while a majority of citizens of their own town condemn the bridge building as an unnecessary expense, they ought not to expect tax-payers in the balance of the county to grow enthusiastic over the improvement.—Waterloo Press.

There's "That Editor Again." Charley is periodically comic, and it is delightful to get him out of his usual prosy groove, now and then, that we feel like petting him. We have lots of "sand" Charley, but no gravel, and there's where you are ahead of us. We don't think any considerable portion of our citizens favor this bridge. We know it, and in due time Charley will awaken like a Rip Van Winkle and see a sight that will give him a crick in the back. If Waterloo should succeed in getting another bridge to connect them with Uniontown, we shall not assume the provience of blackguarding its citizens, for what they deem a needed improvement.

Baby shows are the fashion now, but as long as mothers continue to nurse their little ones with Laudanum or other opiates, they cannot expect their babies to look bright. If your baby needs medicine get a good and harmless one such as D. Bull's Baby Syrup. 25 cents a bottle. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing consumption, severe coughs, croup, asthma, pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 40,000 dozen bottles was sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Our accomplished friend Dr. T. J. Dills of Fort Wayne is a progressive man. In fact it is impossible for him to remain still. He must either go forward or backward. He is now in jail. But we are glad to state, that his incarceration is not the result of criminal intent, but the vindication of a grand principle and it is the first evidence of nerve and backbone we have ever discovered in the medical fraternity of Fort Wayne. The Doctor was summoned to give evidence in a rape case. He demanded fees of the Court in advance, commensurate with the time and money he had spent so as to be enabled to give the desired testimony, but the Court couldn't see it, not understanding herself, and he refused to testify. There upon he was declared in contempt and was bound with chains and the grating doors of bastile closed upon him. The case will now go to the courts, and the matter tested, and while Dr. Dills as a martyr, looks through the grated window upon the gloom without, and longs for the balmy air and flowers of spring, Doc Myers will go on and testify, with the expectation of getting full fees if the Court decide favorably. As we look down over the hills and valleys that intervene to the the little den whose rocky walls invest the Doctor, we can see a character whose glory shall shine resplendent in the future, the sheen of whose brightness with lambent light shall transfix the lingering ages, and before whose martyrdom a Rodgers shall pale. Stand by your guns, Doctor and don't yield a barelycorn. The law may be vindicated, but truth justice and principle must stand forth, untrammeled, exalted, triumphant. Desdemonia, the handkerchief.

Corunna Jottings.

—The village has been unusually quiet for several days, nothing transpiring to arouse the citizens.

—One family have the typhoid fever, but great care is taken to prevent its spreading.

—Lipsett brothers have opened out a grocery at their packing establishment. Two good groceries in town now.

—I. Bacthel has his flouring mills in a splendid condition, and is doing the best business of any mill in the county. We hear it said that he will trade for the Eagle Mills at Auburn.

La Otto Items.

Still it raineth, yea it maketh much mud.

No. 1 wheat is worth $1.23 per bushel at this place.

It is rumored that Messrs Rice and Rowly will visit this place and hold a series of meetings.

Dr. Bowker is "taking in" the medical lectures at Fort Wayne this winter.

Notwithstanding the rain storm last Wednesday evening, the juveniles had a good time at C. W. De Moss.'

The report reached us that Samuel Broughton, Jr., while handling a revolver accidently discharged it, the ball just missing his eye, but inflicting not a serious wound. We trust the rumor is false.

Charley Shonts has returned from Fort Wayne where he has been attending school.

The Swan high School opened Monday, Prof. R. F. Simon acting as principal. Miss Gilber takes charge of the primary department.

Miss Alpha Taylor has returned from a prolonged visit to the Old Buckeye State.

We understand that Nate Benjamin is about to open a sorgum factory.

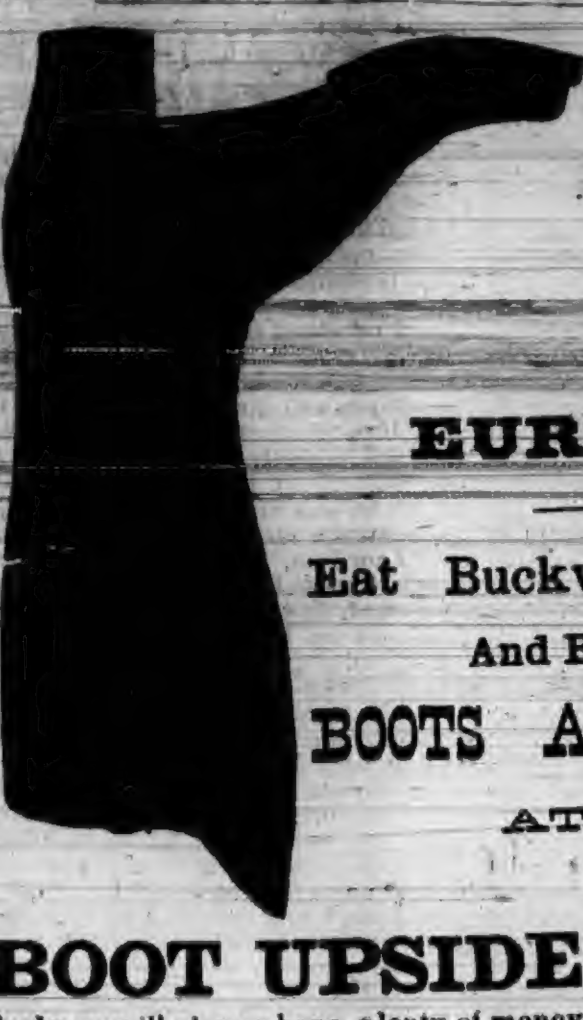
Superintendant Bell, of the Eel River railroad, passed over the road last Thursday letting contracts for wood and ties.

OUVRIER.

Hon. John H. Baker, of the 13th district has done himself infinite credit by the introduction of a bill in congress to protect farmers and other innocent purchasers from patent right men. The substance of the bill is to confine the liability of infringement on a patent to the manufacturers and dealers, and this provision is so eminently just that it will probably become a law. We have had a case in point in the drive-well embroglio. The purchasers are mostly innocent farmers. The man who sells an infringement is absolutely free, the purchaser and user is compeled by lay to pay the royalty or penalty for infringement. It is high time this law was changed. Our farmers have been made its scape-goat long enough.—South Bend Herald.

The day that will prevent the Kendallville Standard from twisting a fair criticism into a partizan advantage will by a sorry one for C. O., and he will find himself in the same pew with our old friend Othello. In our item relative to the manifest indifference of Congress, now in special session, we did not bitterly attack the Senate, a Republican body, but criticised both bodies, one being as bad as the other. The Standard is gratified to find, however, that we meant the House exclusively, and delights in purposely misconstruing the item. Don't be mean C. O., if you are pretty.

The Lake Shore railroad has indemnified the relatives and heirs of 65 out of the 81 persons who lost their lives by the bridge accident at Ashtabula. The largest amount paid to any one party was $9,000. The heirs of Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, who were on their wedding tour, received $3,000. The claims generally fall under $5,000.



AUSTIN ALWAYS ALIVE!

EUREKA!

Eat Buckwheat Cakes

And Buy Your

BOOTS AND SHOES

AT THE

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN!

And you will always have plenty of money and be happy—because they have $12000.00 worth of goods which they sell

20 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any other house in this county.

MEN'S GUM BOOTS $3.50

Save your money by trading at the

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN.

LOOK AT THIS!

Never has our Millinery Department been so full and complete and

PRICES LOWER

Than has ever been known.

HATS. HATS.

Ladies and childrens untrimmed hats for 25c. 50c. 75c. and $1.00
" " well trimmed hats for 50c. 75c, and $1.00 and upward

Ladies silk ties 15c, 20c, 25c, and 50c

FUR AND FEATHER TRIMMINGS,

A good assortment. Ball and Silk Fringes, all prices.

FURS. FURS.

Our line of Furs has never been better. Children's sets 50c, 75c, and upward. Ladies Mink, full set 7, 12, and $18. Ladies Bever, sets 2, 2 50, $3 per set

CLOAKS.

A new lot of Ladies Cloaks just received for 4 50, 5, 6, and $7, and as high as $20

SHAWKS AND SKIRTS

A find assortment. Ladies and Children Unddrwear 35c, 40c, and 50 cents

NOTIONS.

Our Notion department is full. Gloves, hose, buttons, Misses knit sacques and hoods, etc.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT.

Waterproof all styles 75c, 1 00, $1 25, per yard, Calico 5c, Gingham the best 10c, black alpacca 20c, 25c, 40c, and upward.

Germantown and Zephyrs Yarns all shades. Mottos and splits 2 to 5 cents.

H. H. STAMETS.

LOOK AT THIS!

HOW IS IT FOR LOW PRICES!

Granulated and Crushed Sugars for 12½ cts., generally sold for 14 and 15 cts. Coffee A. Sugar 12 cts. Extra C. white 11 cts. Light Browon 10 cts.

COFFEE. COFFEE.

Best Rio per pound 25 cts., 25 cent Coffee for 23 cts., Pea Berry Coffee equal to Java 27 cts

A GOOD DOLLAR TEA FOR 80 cts.

Young Hyson 50 cts.

Fine Cut Tobacco for 45 and 50 cts.,

Good Plug for 60 cts.

MILK CROCKS $1 per doz!

A full line of QUEENS WARE always on hand.

Orff's Empire Flour!

The best in Northern Indiana.

The highest prices paid for Country Produce.

G. C. RALSTON.

THANKSGIVING.

BY B. P. SHILLABER.

Many and bright are the scenes that are planned,
Many the hearts that with gladness expand,
Many the [illegible] with [illegible] at hand,
And the voice of the turkey is heard in the land;
For Thanksgiving day
Is welcomed alway,
A heart-warming, glorious, genial season,
When the feelings, repressed
By traffic's behest,
On one day at least, for dominion contest,
And strive, as of old, to be specially blest,
While care is a species of treason.

The city shuts up its shop for the day,
The oldest and youngest play or pray;
The churches are open in the ancient way,
For preachers to utter whatever they may,
With few to listen to what they say,
While all the chaises and carriages
Are dashing around with their merry loads
Of babies dressed in their prettiest modes,
To dump at the doors of kindred abodes
Or filled with those still happier nodes
[illegible]
Which [illegible] in marriages.

The horse in the stall, the dog at the door,
Are loved and caressed and kissed once more,
And smiles are joyously beaming,
And the pullets, destined for [illegible],
Look on the scene with a cheerful eye,
In sympathetic seeming.

The land is vocal with psalm and prayer,
And joy's glad note sounds everywhere,
A festival oblation,
And savory streams like clouds arise,
To tickle the palate and glad the eyes
Of lovers of virtue and pumpkin pies,
Where grave and gay, and dull and wise,
Pay tribute to gustation.

TOM'S THANKSGIVING.

A Story for the Season.

"It was very provoking that seamstresses and such people would get married, like the rest of the world," Mrs. Greenough said, half in fun and half in earnest. Her fall sewing was just coming on, and here was Lizzie Brown, who had suited her so nicely, going off to be married, and she had no resource but to advertise, and take whomsoever she could get. No less than ten women had been there that day, and not one would answer.

"There comes number eleven; you will see," she cried, as the bell rang.

Kitty Greenough looked on with interest. Indeed, it was her gowns, rather than her mother's, that were most pressing. She was just 16, and since last winter she had shot up suddenly, as girls of that age so often do, and left all her clothes behind her.

Mrs. Greenough was right—it was another seamstress, and Bridget showed in a plain, sad-looking woman of about 40, with an air of intense respectability. Mrs. Greenough explained what she wanted done, and the woman said quietly that she was accustomed to such work—would Mrs. Greenough be so kind as to look at some recommendations? Whereupon she handed out several lady-like looking notes, whose writers indorsed the bearer, Mrs. Margaret Graham, as faithful and capable, used to trimmings of all sorts, and quick to catch an idea.

"Very well indeed," Mrs. Greenough said, as she finished reading them; "I could ask nothing better. Can you be ready to come at once?"

"To-morrow, if you wish, madam," was the answer, and then Mrs. Graham went away.

Kitty Greenough was an impulsive, imaginative girl; no subject was too dull or too unpromising for her fancy to touch it. She made a story for herself about every new person who came in her way. After number eleven had gone down stairs, Kitty laughed.

"Isn't she a sobersides, mamma? I don't believe there will be any frisk in my dresses at all if she trims them."

"There'll be frisk enough in them if you wear them," her mother answered, smiling at the bright, saucy, winsome face of her one tall daughter.

Kitty was ready to turn the conversation.

"What do you think she is, mamma—wife or widow?" And then answering her own question: "I think she's married, and he's sick and she has to take care of him. That solemn, still way she has comes of much staying in a sick-room. She's in the habit of keeping quiet, don't you see? I wish she were a little prettier; I think he would get well quicker."

"There'd be no plain, quiet people in your world if you made one," her mother said, smiling; "but you'd make a mistake to leave them out. You would get tired even of the sun if it shone all the time."

The next day the new seamstress came, and a thoroughly good one she proved; "better even than Lizzie," Mrs. Greenough said, and this was high praise. She sewed steadily, and never opened her lips except to ask some question about her work. Even Kitty, who used to boast that she could make a dumb man talk, had not audacity enough to intrude on the reserve in which Mrs. Graham intrenched herself.

"He's worse this morning," whispered saucy Kitty to her mother; "and she can do nothing but think about him and mind her gathers."

But, by the same token, "he" must have been worse every day, for during the two weeks she sewed there Mrs. Graham never spoke of anything beyond her work.

When Mrs. Greenough had paid her, the last night, she said:

"Please give me your address, Mrs. Graham, for I may want to find you again."

"Seventeen Hudson street, ma'am; up two flights of stairs; and, if I'm not there, Tom always is."

"There, didn't I tell you?" Kitty cried, exultingly, after the woman had gone. "Didn't I tell you that he was sick? You see, now, 'Tom's always there.'"

"Yes; but Tom may not be her husband, and I don't think he is. He is much more likely to be her child."

"Mrs. Greenough, I'm astonished at you. You say that to be contradictious. Now, it is not nice to be contradictious; besides, she wouldn't look so quiet and sad if Tom were only her boy."

But weeks passed on, and nothing more was heard of Mrs. Graham, until at last Thanksgiving day was near at hand. Kitty was to have a new dress, and Mrs. Greenough, who had undertaken to finish it, found that she had not time.

"Oh, let me go for Mrs. Graham, mamma," cried Kitty, eagerly. "Luke can drive me down to Hudson street, and then I shall see Tom."

Mrs. Greenough laughed and consented. In a few minutes Luke had brought to the door the one-horse coupe, which had been the last year's Christmas gift of Papa Greenough to his wife, and in which Miss Kitty was always glad to make an excuse for going out.

Arrived at 17 Hudson street, she tripped up two flights of stairs, and rapped at a door, on which was a printed card with the name of Mrs. Graham.

A voice, with a wonderful quality of musical sweetness in it, answered:

"Please to come in; I cannot open the door."

If that were "he," he had a very singular voice for a man.

"I guess mamma was right after all," thought willful Kitty. "It's rather curious how often mamma is right, when I come to think of it."

She opened the door, and saw, not Mrs. Graham's husband, nor yet her son, but a girl, whose face looked as if she might be about [illegible] age, whose shoulders and waist told the same story; but whose lower limbs seemed curiously misshapen and shrunken—no larger, in fact, than those of a mere child. The face was a pretty, winning face, not at all sad. Short, thick brown hair curled round it, and big, brown eyes, full of good-humor, met Kitty's curious glance.

"I am Tom," the same musical voice —which made Kitty think of a bird's warble—said, in a tone of explanation. "I can't get up to open the door because, don't you see, I can't walk."

"And why—what—Tom——"

Kitty struggled desperately with the question she had begun to ask, and Tom kindly helped her out.

"Why am I Tom, do you mean, when it's a boy's name; or why can't I walk? I'm Tom because my father called me Tomasina, after his mother, and we can't afford such long names in this house; and I can't walk because I pulled a kettle of boiling water over on myself when I was 6 years old, and the only wonder is that I'm alive at all. I was left, you see, in a room by myself, while mother was busy somewhere else, and when she heard me scream, and came to me, she pulled me out from under the kettle, and saved the upper half of me all right."

"Oh, how dreadful!" Kitty cried, with the quick tears rushing to her eyes. "It must have almost killed your mother."

"Yes; that's what makes her so still and sober. She never laughs, but she never frets either; and oh! how good she is to me."

Kitty glanced around the room, which seemed to her so bare. It was spotlessly clean, and Tom's chair was soft and comfortable—as, indeed, a chair ought to be which must be sat in from morning till night. Opposite to it were a few pictures on the wall—engravings taken from books and magazines, and given, probably, to Mrs. Graham by some of her lady customers. Within easy reach was a little stand, on which stood a rose-bush in a pot, and a basket full of of bright-colored worsteds, while a book or two laid beside them.

"And do you never go out?" cried Kitty, forgetting her errand in her sympathy, forgetting, too, that Luke and his impatient horse were waiting below.

"Not lately. Mother used to take me down into the street sometimes; but I'm not very dull, even when she's gone. You wouldn't guess how many things I see from my window; and then I make worsted mats and tidies, and mother sells them; and then I sing."

Kitty stepped to the window to see what range of vision it offered, and her eye fell on Luke. She recalled her business.

"I came to see if I could get your mother to sew two or three days for me this week."

Tom was alert and business-like at once.

"Let me see," she said; "to-day is Tuesday," and she drew toward her a little book, and looked it over. "To-morrow is engaged, but you could have Thursday, Friday and Saturday, if you want so much. Please write your name against them."

Kitty pulled off her pretty gray glove and wrote her name and address with the little toy-pencil at the end of her chatelaine; and then she turned to go, but it was Tom's turn to question.

"Please," said the sweet, fresh voice, which seemed so like the clear carol of a bird, "would you mind telling me how old you are? I'm 16 myself."

"And so am I 16," said Kitty.

"And you have a father and mother both, haven't you?"

"Yes indeed," said Kitty.

"Oh, I've only mother, but she is good as two. Must you go, now? And I wonder if I shall ever see you again?"

"Yes, you will see me again," answered Kitty, cheerily; and then, moved by a sudden impulse of her kind, frank young heart, she bent over and touched her lips to the bright, bonny face of the poor girl who must sit prisoner there forever, and yet who kept this bright cheerfulness all the time.

"Oh, mamma, I've had a lesson," cried Kitty, bursting into her mother's room like a fresh wind, "and Tom has taught it to me; and he isn't he at all—she's a girl just my age, and she can't walk not a step since she was years old."

And then Kitty told all the sad, tender little story, and got to crying over it herself, and made her mother cry, too, before she got through.

After dinner she sat half the evening in a brown study. Finally she came out of it, and began talking in her usual impulsive manner.

"Can't we have them here to Thanksgiving, mamma? There's not a single pretty thing in that house except Tom, herself, and the rosebush; and everything did look so bare, and clean, and poverty-stricken; and I know they'll never afford a good dinner in the world. Oh, say yes, mamma, dear. I know you'll say yes, because you're such a dear, and you love to make every one happy."

"Yes; but first of all, I must love to to make papa happy, must I not? You know he never wants any company on Thanksgiving but grandpa, and grandma, and Uncle John. I'm sure you would not like to spoil papa's old-fashioned Thanksgiving day."

Kitty's countenance fell. She saw the justice of her mother's remark, and there was no more to be said. She sat thinking over her disappointment in a silence which her mother was the one to break.

"But I've thought of a better thing, Puss," said this wise mamma, who was herself every bit as tender of heart as Kitty, and cared just as much about making people happy. "No doubt Mrs. Graham and Tom would just as much prefer being alone together as papa prefers to be alone with his family; and how will it suit you if I have a nice dinner prepared for them, and let you go and take it to them in the coupe? Mrs. Graham is hardly the woman one could take such a liberty with; but I'll beg her to let you have the pleasure of sending dinner to Tom."

"Oh, you darling!" and Mrs. Greenough's neck-ruffle suffered, and her hair was in danger, as was apt to be the case when Kitty was overcome with emotion, which could only find vent in a rapturous squeeze.

Before bed-time Kitty had it all planned out. She was to go in the coupe and take Bridget and the basket. Bridget was to mount guard by the horse's head while Luke went up stairs with Kitty and brought down Tom for a drive; and while they were gone Bridget would take the basket in and see that everything was right, and then go home.

Mrs. Greenough consented to it all. I think she enjoyed the prospect of Tom's ride herself, just as much as Kitty did. While Mrs. Graham was sewing there she made the arrangement with her, approaching the subject so delicately that the most sensitive of women could not be hurt, and putting the acceptance of both drive and dinner in the light of a personal favor to Kitty, who had taken such a fancy to Tom.

The last afternoon of Mrs. Graham's stay Kitty called her mother into her room. Mrs. Graham saw spread out upon the bed a thick, warm, soft jacket, a woolen dress, a last year's hat.

"You know them by sight, don't you, mother, mine? They are the last winter's clothes that I grew away from, and have taken leave of. May Tom have them?"

"Yes, indeed, if you'll undertake to give them to Tom's mother."

Kitty had seldom undertaken a more embarrassing task. She stole into the sewing-room with the things in her arms.

"You'll be sure, won't you, Mrs. Graham, not to let Tom know she's going to ride until I get there, because I want to see how surprised she'll look."

"Yes, I'll be sure, never fear."

"And, Mrs. Graham, here are my coat and hat and dress that I wore last year, and I've grown away from them. Would you mind letting Tom wear them?"

"Would I mind?" A swift, hot rush of tears filled Mrs. Graham's eyes, which presently she wiped away, and somehow then the eyes looked gladder than Kitty had ever seen them before. "Do you think I am so weakly, wickedly proud as to be hurt because you take an interest in my poor girl, and want to put a little happiness into her life—that still, sad life which she bears so patiently? God bless you, Miss Kitty; and if He doesn't it won't be because I shall get tired of asking Him."

"And you'll not let her see the hat and jacket till I come, for fear she'll think something?"

At last Mrs. Graham smiled—an actual smile.

"How you do think of everything. No, I'll keep the hat and jacket out of sight, and I'll have the dress on her, all ready."

When Thanksgiving came Kitty scarcely remembered to put on the new apron that Mrs. Graham had finished with such care; scarcely gave a thought to the family festivities at home, so eager was she about Tom's Thanksgiving. She was to go to Hudson street just at noon, so that Tom might have the benefit of the utmost warmth of which the chill November was capable.

First she saw the dinner packed. There was a turkey, and cranberry sauce, and mince-pie, and plum-pudding, and a great cake full of plums, too, and fruit, and nuts, and then Mr. Greenough, who had heard about the dinner with real interest, brought out a bottle of particularly-nice sherry, and said to his wife:

"Put that in also. It will do those frozen-up souls good once in the year."

At last impatient Kitty was off. Bridget and the basket filled all the spare space in the coupe, and, when they reached Hudson street, Luke took the dinner and followed Kitty up stairs, while Bridget stood by the horse's head, according to the programme. He set the basket down in the hall, where no one would be likely to notice it in opening the door, and then he stood out of sight himself, while Kitty went in.

There was Tom, in the warm crimson thibet—a proud, happy-looking Tom as you could find in Boston that Thanksgiving day.

"I have come to take you to ride," cried eager Kitty. "Will you go?"

It was worth ten ordinary Thanksgivings to see the look on Tom's face—the joy and wonder, and then the doubt, as the breathless question came:

"How will I get down stairs?"

And then Luke was called in, and that mystery was solved. And then out of a closet came the warm jacket, and the hat, with its gay feather; and there were tears in Tom's eyes, and smiles round her lips, and she tried to say something, and broke down utterly. And then big, strong Luke took her up as if she were a baby, and marched down stairs with her, while she heard Kitty say—but it all seemed to her like a dream, and Kitty's voice like a voice in a dream:

"I'm sorry there's nothing pretty to see at this time of year. It was so lovely out doors six weeks ago."

Through Beach street they went, and then through Boylston, and the Common was beside them, with its tree-boughs traced against the November sky, and the sun shone on the Frog pond, and the dome of the State House glittered goldenly, and there were merry people walking about with their Thanksgiving faces on; and at last Tom breathed a long, deep breath which was almost a sob, and cried:

"Did you think there was nothing pretty to see to-day—this day? Why, I didn't know there was such a world!"

The clocks had struck 12 when they left Hudson street; the bells were ringing for 1 when they entered it again. Bridget was gone, but a good-natured boy stood by the horse's head, and Kitty ran lightly up stairs, followed by Luke, with Tom in his arms.

Kitty threw open the door, and there was a table spread with as good a Thanksgiving dinner as the heart could desire, with Tom's chair drawn up beside it. Luke set his light burden down.

Kitty waited to hear neither thanks nor exclamations. She saw Tom's brown eyes as they rested on the table, and that was enough. She bent for one moment over the bright face—the cheeks which the out-door air had painted red as the rose that had just opened in honor of the day—and left on the young, sweet, wistful lips a kiss, and then went silently down the stairs, leaving Tom and Tom's mother to their Thanksgiving.

The Texas Steer.

The Texas steer is armed with horns at one end and heels at the other end, and when he swings himself in a circle heels and horns, horns and heels, are promiscuously distributed.

When unmolested he is docile, but attempt to corner him, and you will be reminded of the nature of the beast.

When on a rampage he asks no favors, and grants none. Small boys and patriarchs then stand an equal show, if they stand at all in his neighborhood.

When the Texas steer gets on a bender, those in the direction in which he wants to go will be reminded of their latter end and his former end if they do not give him a wide berth. A sky-rocket of five hundred horse power, shot horizontally, would have to "hump" itself to keep out of the steer's way on such an occasion. Such things as walls and fences are not noticed at a time like this, and even a bull in a china shop would be thrashed in a twinkling should he attract the attention of our steer while the bender is under him. The Texas steer is called a steer because he steers straight when mad regardless of obstructions. He would not be a Texas steer if he didn't. You put a Texas steer in the center of Rhode Island (or, rather, let him place himself there, if you have any regard for safety), and at one leap he can clear the boundary in any given direction. He could almost do the same thing in New Jersey, for he is unaccustomed to States of that size.

When he takes a notion to leap, there is no use of bridges.

He spreads consternation among other animals when he spreads himself, and then the spread becomes mutual.

He can keep seven small boys and one washerwoman, with all her equipments, flying in the air at one and the same time, and then find time to look for other game. His resources, like his leapings, are boundless.

He obeys no halter but the lasso, and not even that while the breath of life is in him. The word "subdue" is not in his dictionary.

The Texas steer doth his own steering in a gale, and the more you lash his helm the more rapidly he steers; but with all his steering, he never aims to steer clear of difficulties.

His tail straightens as his speed increaseth, and when his wrinkles and curls are horizontal to the bone, his speed is wonderful to behold.

He can outrun a dozen Presidential candidates and then have run enough left to last a short tour of three days. Run! why run is no name for his speed. Lightning can't zigzag and keep up with him. There is so much run in him that when his skin is tanned and worked into shoes they invariably run down at the heel. He can run down faster than any spendthrift can run them up. But

Let us steer clear of the Texas steer
When he is inclined to run,
Unless we are balls out of a gun
And he is far in the rear.

The New Senator from Indiana.

Daniel Voorhees is a native of Ohio, born in Butler county in September, 1827. His parents settled in Fountain county, Ind., about ten miles from the town of Covington. Here he lived his early years a farmer's boy, and, at the age of 18, entered Asbury College at Greencastle, where he was graduated with honor in 1849. He studied law in Crawfordsville and began practice there in 1852. It will thus be seen that Mr. Voorhees is entirely a "Hoosier" production in early college education, and in the later one of law, and it is in State practice and State politics that he has made his reputation. At the age of 26, he was commissioned Prosecuting Attorney by Gov. Wright, and, three years later, in 1856, was a candidate for Congress, and was defeated by James Wilson. In 1857 he moved to Terre Haute, where he has since made his home. In 1859 he was employed by Gov. Willard to defend Cook, one of the John Brown raiders, and gained considerable reputation by his brilliant oratory. In 1860 he was elected to Congress from that district, elected again in 1862, and defeated in 1864 for a contested seat by H. D. Washburne. In 1868 he was again sent to Congress, re-elected in 1870, and again defeated in 1872, this time by Morton C. Hunter. He was a candidate for the Senate in 1875-'76, but gave way to Joseph E. McDonald before the nomination was made. He engineered the last political campaign in Indiana, was the right-hand man of Gov. Williams during the contest, and meets a reward for his political services by this appointment to serve the remainder of Senator Morton's term, which expires in 1879. He is the most popular of the Democratic leaders in the State among the masses of his party.—Chicago Times.

Christopher Columbus Not a Saint.

The Vatican has decided not to make Columbus a saint, because he never was one. That is the sense of the opinion expressed by the congregations. They base their refusal to beatify him on the grounds that his Christian virtues have not been exemplified by any great deed; that, apart from his discovery of America, his public and private life were open to grave reproach; that, until now, nobody ever thought of regarding him as a saint or invoking him as such; and, finally, that it is very doubtful whether he died a good Catholic. M. l'Abbe Cadonet has thus written his thick volume advocating the canonization of the great discoverer in vain.—London Examiner.

A Peaceable Man.

Forrest, the rebel cavalry chieftain, never acknowledged himself to have been placed "in a bad fix," except once, which was in the city of Memphis. Gen. Chalmers and a merchant in Memphis, named J. C. Davis, had some small disagreement about money matters. I think that Chalmers owned some property rented to relatives of Davis, and wrote a sharp business note to them about the rent. Davis replied by a very fierce note, which inspired Chalmers with a strong desire to "go and see him." On the way to see Davis Chalmers met Gen. Forrest, and asked the General to go there along with him. Forrest went, ignorant of the real state of affairs. Scarcely had the two Generals arrived at the head of the stairs leading to Davis' business office, when the door was suddenly flung open, and Davis knocked Chalmers from the top of the stairs to the bottom. The next instant he presented a heavy revolver at Forrest's head, explaining, "And this is what I've got for you—two Confederate Generals coming to whip one man!"

"Hold on! hold on, Mr. Davis!" cried Forrest; "there's some mistake here! I don't want any fuss with you—don't know what all this is about. Gen. Chalmers asked me to come along with him, and I didn't know there was any trouble between you."

He was glad to get away, and began to inquire what sort of a man that J. C. Davis was. Folks told him Davis was one of the most quiet, peaceable man in town. "Well, he may be peaceable," returned Forrest, "but he put me in the tightest place I was ever in in my life." Yet he never showed any ill-will to Davis afterward, evidently admiring his pluck.—Cincinnati Commercial.

BAD DREAMS DID IT.

The Singular Confession of an Arkansas Murderer.

Tom Staner, who was recently hung at Benton, Ark., for the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Mack Staner, and Mrs. P. Taylor, made the following curious confession:

The first desire I had to commit crime came from a dream which I had at John Curtis' some time last year. The dream continued to haunt me. About the 18th of January last another dream came to me. The nature of these dreams was that I had killed two persons, and had secured a large sum of money. Something within me kept urging me to kill some one and rob them of money. These dreams, and the bad thoughts they suggested, gave me so much trouble that I could not work, nor could I be contented. In fact, I was very miserable. Finally, after these dreams had wrought me up to such a pitch I could not resist the inclination to rob, or attempt to rob, I went one Sunday to the house of Moses Eads to get his money. I did not intend to kill him, or any of his family, but expected that they would be at church, and that I could get the money without interruption. Some of the family were at home, however. I got nothing; whereupon I left, inwardly asking myself, "For what purpose am I here?" Shortly afterward I went to the residence of Mr. William Gentry for the purpose of getting his money by robbery, but in this instance the family were also at home, and I got nothing. The night previous to the commission of the murder of Mrs. Staner and Mrs. Taylor I stayed at the residence of Mr. William Gentry, and did not go near the house of Uncle Mack Staner. Next morning I went to the house of Mrs. Gentry, where I was making my home. Mrs. Gentry did not go back with me, as Martha Gentry was unwell, and asked her to remain with her. As I was going home it occurred to me that I could get money by going to the house of Uncle Mack Staner. As soon as I had done some little necessary work about the house I went to Uncle Mack's, keeping well in the woods to avoid observation. When I got to the house I found Aunt Harriet Staner at the woodpile picking up chips, while Mrs. Taylor was sitting inside the east gate knitting. Aunt Harriet asked me in the house. I went in with the two women and took a seat. They talked to me about marrying the Widow Gentry, and endeavored to have some fun out of me on the subject. They then got up, went to a table in another part of the room, and commenced to clean hogs' heads and feet. Something within me urged me to kill them both. I took up the iron poker, carried it slyly by my side, and walked up to them, but my heart failed me. Three times I was urged by some monster to kill them, and the same number of times my conscience revolted against the deed, and I finally walked back to the fire-place and put the poker down, without either of the women observing my actions. Just then Mrs. Taylor, who lived but a short distance from Uncle Mack's, discovered her calf to be out, and she went down to put him in the lot. While she was gone the feeling to kill came strong upon me, and I took the poker, walked up to Aunt Harriet, and struck her two blows with it, which I thought sufficient to kill her. I waited for Mrs. Taylor, intending to kill her, in order to hide the crime of the first murder. She came in a short time, and, seeing Aunt Harriet on the floor, she said, "La, Tommy, what is the matter with Mrs. Staner?" I replied, "I do not know," and, as she was going up to the body, I struck her on the head with the poker, killing her, I suppose, as that was my intention. I then went to Aunt Harriet, got the keys out of her pocket, rifled a trunk of a pocket-book containing money, and left the place.

The evil feelings had gained greatly upon me, and it was my intention, had I been acquitted of the charge and secured my liberty, to have burned the Benton Court House and jail, and also burn Hot Springs. I had also determined to lay for M. L. Dale, Coot Rhea and W. S. Rhea, and kill them on the sly: I had but little or nothing against them. I had also intended to burn the houses, cribs and stables and kill the horses of Moses Eads, Amos Gentry and John Curtis; it was also my intention to kill Hugh Taylor and his son; it was then my intention to murder and rob men and ravish women as long as I could evade detection, of which, however, I had no fear, as death appeared to have no terror for me. After I had fully enjoyed myself it was my intention to join the Masons and the church. I had endeavored to be good, and had prayed for a change of heart. I quit swearing, and I believe if these dreams had not so oppressed me, and had I lived with my uncle, kept out of bad company, and obeyed the religious teachings, I would have done well, and not have become a murderer.
T. P. STANER.

Condition of the Treasury as Compared with Nov. 1, 1876.

The following is a comparison of the condition of the United States treasury Nov. 1, 1876, and Nov. 1, 1877:

Balances.	1876.	1877.
Currency	$12,901,326	$15,060,032
Special fund for the redemption of fractional currency	....	9,444,560
Special deposit of legal tenders for redemption of certificates of deposit	40,670,000	37,620,000
Coin	78,967,027	131,032,843
Coin certificates	36,283,100	33,553,200
Coin, less coin certificates	42,683,927	97,479,643
Outstanding called bonds	1,692,950	26,290,900
Other outstanding coin liabilities	8,146,389	4,964,414
Outstanding legal tenders	367,533,710	354,402,892
Outstanding fractional currency	28,533,478	18,362,574
Outstanding silver coin	21,918,408	36,651,960
Total debt, less cash in treasury	2,088,678,436	2,047,330,700
Reduction of debt for October	3,388,130	4,236,884
Reduction of debt since July 1	10,560,708	12,807,532
Market value of gold	109	102
Imports (12 months ending Sept. 30)	435,427,270	463,131,788
Exports (12 months ending Sept. 30)	619,179,360	657,403,877

AN effort is being made by a London publisher to compete with the cheap, unwholesome literature of the day by the republication of good, healthy books at a cheap price. One of these, Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," has already appeared, and may be obtained complete for one penny. The book is in pamphlet form, and consists of 64 pages, fairly printed, and with numerous woodcuts, which, if not highly finished, are quaintly suggestive.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying beams,
Had waked the purple hill to fire,
And citadel and dome and spire
Were gilded by the far-off gleams;
And in and out dark pine trees crept,
Full many a slender line of gold;
Gold motes athwart the river swept,
And kissed it as it onward rolled;
And sunlight lingered, loth to go,
Ah! well, it causeth sorrow
To part from those we love below;
And yet the sun as bright shall glow
To-morrow.

The tide was ebbing on the strand,
And stooping low its silver crest;
The crimson seaweed lay at rest
Upon the amber-ribbed sand;
Dashed o'er the rocks and on the shore
Flung parting wreaths of pearly spray
Then fled away; yet turned once more
And sent a sigh across the bay,
As though it could not bear to go,
Ah! well, it causeth sorrow
To part with those we love below,
Yet [illegible] the tide shall flow
To-morrow.

"Two lovers had met to say farewell
At even when the sun went down;"
Each life-sound from the busy town
Smote sadly as a passing bell.
One whispered: "Parting is sweet pain—
At morn and eve returns the tide;"
"Nay! parting rends the heart in twain,"
And still they linger side by side,
And still they linger, loth to go,
Ah! well, it causeth sorrow
To part from those we love below—
For shall we ever meet or no
To-morrow?

PITH AND POINT.

WHERE may everlasting springs be found? In an india-rubber factory.

THERE is only one way for a woman to keep a secret. That is to keep it going.

ASPARAGUS resembles long sermons in one important particular—the ends are most sought after.

SOMEBODY advertises for a servant girl who would not be above placing herself on an equality with the rest of the family.

"THE Circassians are at their old trade of selling their daughters again. That's very common among parents in this country also.

SOME parents raise children on the same plan they would a tree, evidently thinking that the more they're sprouted the better they'll grow.

THE report that Cleopatra's Needle was to be brought to Boston probably arose from the fact that the City Government voted to have a great sewer.

"NEVER catch me marrying a reformed man," said a wise little Chicago girl; "when I get married it will be to some man who doesn't need reforming."

THE householder now maketh the first fall foray at his furnace and coal-bins, and returneth to the drawing-room with a smudge on his nose and his hair full of cobwebs.

WOMEN have been known to remove their jewelry under the excitement of a camp-meeting sermon on charity and humbleness, but no one ever saw them throw away a real-hair switch.

RECEIPT for expediting wine-making (men trampling the grapes while reading the papers)—Visitor—"You give them newspapers?" Proprietor—"Yes, but opposed to each man's opinion; reading them they do their trampling with a vengeance."

TWO MEN met on the piazza of the Railroad Hotel, at Lincoln, Neb.; one claimed that Nebraska was all a good country, or should be; "all it lacks," said he, "is good society and water." "My good Lord!" says the other, "that is all h—l lacks."

A SHIPWRECKED Irish sailor was narrating how he and his companions had floated about at sea for twenty days in an open boat. "And what did you do for food, Pat, when the provisions gave out?" asked a bystander. "Sure, and we dined on one of the officers. 'Twas the first mate we'd had in a fortnight," was the reply.

A YOUNG lady asked her young man Saturday evening why he called her his Ultra, and he courteously replied that it was a Latin quotation. "This," said he, "is my knee, and when I add you to it I have my knee, plus Ultra, which is Latin for 'I don't want anything more on my knee.' Don't you see, my darling?" She said she did.

A LADY sent a note to the newspaper to get a recipe to cure the whooping cough in a pair of twins. By a mistake a recipe for pickling onions was unconsciously inserted, and her name attached, and she received this answer through the "Answers to Correspondents:" "Mrs. L. H. B.—If not too young, skin them pretty closely, immerse in scalding water, sprinkle plentifully with salt, and immerse them for a week in strong brine.

MR. SKIDERBAUGH, of Eighth street, has picked up the expression—"I suppose I was born so"—and has been using it quite frequently about the house of late. The other morning, when Mrs. Skiderbaugh set about washing her little four-year-old, the youth opened the ball with a nursery symphony that made the man overhead repairing the roof think an earthquake was hunting for a job somewhere about that part of town. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself! A great big boy like you bawling like that! Why, you're a regular baby!" said his mother, fetching the damp cloth over his little purple nose like an aggressive mop persecuting a door-step. "Well, I tan't he'p it, ma—boo-oo-oo-oo-oo!—I'pose I'us bo'n so," was the tiny reply that spluttered out from under the moist, uncomforting towel.—Cincinnati Breakfast Table.

Romeo and Juliet.

Allegheney's talk is about the attempted elopement of a pair of lovers who belonged to the wealthiest families in the city. The respective parents were as full of hatred as the Capulets and Montagues, and would not sanction a marriage. Romeo went at night underneath Juliet's window. She let down a string to which he attached a rope-ladder, which was then speedily placed in position. Juliet descended, and had barely reached the ground when her father popped his head out of the window. He climbed down the ladder as fast as he could, and caught her. Then there was a struggle between the father and the lover for the possession of the girl, who, of course, fainted. The father was the victor, and she is now under a close guard.

IN Sweden primary education is compulsory on all.

Productions of States.

Iowa now takes rank as the greatest wheat-producing State, Minnesota comes next in order, then Illinois, Wisconsin taking the fourth place. Ohio raises the most winter wheat and wool. Illinois grows the most corn and oats and produces the largest number of fat cattle and hogs. Pennsylvania grows the most rye, amounting to nearly one-fifth the total production of that cereal in the States. California produces the greatest barley crop, and also the most silk cocoons and wine. New York gives us the greatest amount of hay, hops, potatoes, peas and beans. Sweet potatoes are most largely produced in North Carolina. South Carolina is the great rice-producing State; Georgia comes next, and then Louisiana; these three States producing nearly the entire rice crop of the country. Louisiana also produces nearly all the cane sugar and molasses. Vermont, the most of the maple sugar, or one-third of the whole product, New York coming next. Indiana gives the most sorghum, one-eighth, and Ohio nearly as much. Kentucky produces over 100,000,000 pounds of tobacco, or considerably over one-third of the whole crop; also one-half of all the hemp produced in the United States.

Thus while we cannot furnish an entirely correct idea of the crops of our own country, it will be seen from the foregoing statement which of our States produces more largely of the important crops of the nation. It is to be hoped that before the next census is taken Congress will adopt means to do this work each five years. Thus a great injustice to the growing population of the West, in representation in our National Assembly, will be done away with. It should also provide for taking statistics of the industries of the country twice as often as we now get them. We opine that when the next census is taken persons will be surprised, not only at the vast increase in the population of the West, but also at her immense production of all that goes to make up the natural prosperity of the nation.—Prairie Farmer.

A Colorado Stone Giant.

A Denver assayer writes to one of the local papers:

"In August, 1875, five of us were prospecting in the vicinity of Pueblo. In coming upon a sand-stone quarry one of the party observed a sort of likeness of a man drawn upon the rock. The incident occasioned a deal of talk about ancient creations, and the idea of getting up a second Cardiff giant was favorably discussed. The party agreed to undertake the task, and a stone-cutter named Saunders, who had been working in the vicinity, and known to be a clever hand at modeling, was at once sought out and an agreement made for the figure. While the plan was in progress one of the party, in a joking way, said the thing ought to have a tail, as in ancient times men had tails six or seven inches long. It was decided among the party that the figure should be known as a petrified Aztec Indian, and that they would resurrect him after six months and impose him on the public as such. The stone-cutter, not seeing the joke, set to work and made the figure, with tail appended. The price paid the artisan was $135, and, after he had completed the figure, it was buried. The 'Muldoon' was made out of sand-stone and dried by the cabin fire, which partly accounts for the little holes on the surface. After the burial—two feet from the surface of the ground—the party went their ways to await the resurrection. A few of the prospectors got wind of the proceedings and were keeping an eye on the party, and so they dispersed in different directions. Finally they became scattered, some in New York, and the remainder in different portions of the country. I had forgotten nearly all about the matter when the discovery was chronicled in the papers. But I considered it best to keep still about it, and it was only through accident that I said anything in regard to the matter."

Genealogy of Texas Cattle.

Texas beef ought to arouse a feeling of State pride, of mournful patriotism, in the heart of every true son of Louisiana. It is not that it is much tougher than our beef, not that it calls forth more monstrous dreams and spectacles at night, but that every citizen of Louisiana can look upon it as some long-lost brother, a child of Louisiana descent.

All the cattle of America are of European descent, but from many different stocks. The herds of Paraguay and Buenos Ayres are of Spanish descent, as they show in their savagery and wildness. The meek, domestic cattle of the Western States came originally from England, where they have been domesticated for several centuries, while the cattle of Texas are of French descent, and owe their origin to some animals brought over to Louisiana with the earliest colonists of this State. It is impossible to follow all the wanderings of these; it is only known that some of them found their way to San Antonio, that they prospered more upon the soil of Texas than upon that of Louisiana, and that in a few years they had increased to thousands and now to millions.

And now, after the lapse of a century and a half, these return to us to be welcomed, admired and eaten.—New Orleans Democrat.

Sitting Bull.

Sitting Bull comfortably quartered where he can do the least harm, and the last of the Indian troubles will be over for the season. In view of what has and may take place, it is the intention of the Dominion Government, I am told, to ask Parliament for a grant sufficient to enable them to increase the police force from 300 to 400 men. The force now costs the Dominion $300,000 a year, $1,000 in gold per man and horse. It is certain that the bad blood caused by this year's work will "erupt" next season; indeed, Sitting Bull never tires talking of his intention to strike the Americans at the first opportunity. He says he knows the country lying between the Missouri and the frontier so well that he could keep Miles and Terry dancing there all summer. He was fairly modest for a successful Indian leader before the commission, but, since his interview with the Commissioners, which the Indians, without exception, regard as the greatest of his triumphs, he has become a braggart. The police officers are tired of his boasting, and Maj. Walsh took him aback the other day by telling him that if he attempted to attack American troops or traders from Canadian soil the police would shoot him on the spot.—Fort Walsh Cor. New York World.

Ups and Downs in Chicago.

Two years ago a young man, who had acted for several years in the capacity of a bookkeeper in one of our large wholesale establishments, made up his mind that he would always be obliged to keep books and be a slave at the desk unless he went into something else. He knew but little about practical farm work, but his young wife heartily joined him in the idea; he determined to follow Uncle Horace's advice and "go West." He did so, and purchased from one of the railroad lines a farm of 160 acres of land in Southeastern Kansas. When he settled his family in a comfortable little house, stocked his place with a fair amount of tools, labor-saving machinery and live stock, he found himself indebted for about one-half his property. That was a year ago. The crops this year are not all sold yet, but, nevertheless, he has paid off all his debts and has $367 in cash on hand, besides enough more produce to sell to double that amount and still leave him ample for his own consumption. Is there any hard-working mechanic or bookkeeper in any large city who is half so independent? There is to-day in this city a man who was counted worth at least $5,000,000 ten years ago. He has resided here many years, has endowed some of our institutions of learning, has entertained distinguished strangers, has been President of a reputable moneyed corporation, has owned a daily newspaper and counted his houses by scores. He is now seeking employment, and would accept a fair income in almost any position. And this man has never been a dissipated man, has never gambled, never been a fast man or run away with the money of his depositors. It is one of the lessons showing the ups and downs of life in commercial centers. Chicago Cor. Troy Times.

The Units of Value.

The following table gives the unit of value, the metal, and value of each in United States money of the different countries on the globe, as proclaimed by the Treasury Department:

COUNTRY.	Unit.	Standard.	Value.
Argentine Rep....	Peso fuerte	Gold	$1.00
Austria..........	Florin	Silver	.45.3
Azores..........	Milreis	Gold	.83 5
Belgium..........	Franc	G & S	.19.3
Bogota..........	Peso	Gold	.96.5
Bolivia..........	Dollar	G & S	.96.5
Brazil..........	Milreis	Gold	.54.5
Canada..........	Dollar	Gold	1.00
Central America..	Dollar	Silver	.91.8
Chili..........	Peso	Gold	.91.2
China..........	Tael	Silver	1.35
Cuba..........	Peso	Gold	.92.5
Denmark..........	Crown	Gold	.26.8
Ecuador..........	Dollar	Silver	.91.8
Egypt..........	Dollar	Silver	1.00.39
Egypt..........	P'd Sterling	Gold	4.97.4
France..........	Franc	G & S	.19.3
German Empire..	Mark	Gold	.23.8
Great Britain.....	P'd Sterling	Gold	4.86 65
Greece..........	Drachma	G & S	.19.3
Hayti..........	Dollar	Silver	.96.
India..........	Rupee	Silver	.43.62
Italy..........	Lira	G & S	.19.3
Jamaica..........	P'd Sterling	Gold	4.86.65
Japan..........	Yen	Gold	.99.7
Liberia..........	Dollar	Gold	1.00
Maderia..........	Milreis	Gold	1.00
Mexico..........	Dollar	Silver	.99.8
Netherlands......	Florin	Silver	.38.5
Norway..........	Crown	Gold	.26.8
Paraguay..........	Peso	Gold	1.00
Peru..........	Dollar	Silver	.91.8
Porto Rico......	Peso	Gold	.92 5
Portugal..........	Milreis	Gold	1.08
Russia..........	Roubles	Silver	.73.4
Sandwich Isles...	Dollar	Gold	1.00
Spain..........	Peseta	G & S	.19 3
Sweden..........	Crown	Gold	.26.8
Switzerland......	Franc	G & S	.19.3
Tripoli..........	Mahbub	Silver	.82.9
Tunis..........	Piaster	Silver	.11.8
Turkey..........	Piaster	Gold	.04.3
U. S. Colombia...	Peso	Silver	.91.8
United States.....	Dollar	Gold	1.00
Uruguay..........	Patacon	Gold	.94.9
Venezuela..........	Peso	Silver	.77.73

Meteoric Stones.

Within the last eighteen years twelve falls of meteoric stones have occurred in the United States, of which specimens have been collected. Eight of these falls took place in the prairie region of the West, extending from Ohio to Kansas, and from Kentucky to Wisconsin, inclusive. Prof. J. L. Smith, of Louisville, gives a map of this region in the American Journal of Science and Arts, showing the locality of each fall, and he states that the aggregate estimated weight of the eight was 1,000 kilogrammes, equal to more than 2,300 pounds. Going back further, and taking a period of sixty years, Prof. Smith finds that there have been twenty well-noted falls in the United States, ten of which were in the same region, and those ten weighed twenty times as much as the ten which occurred outside its limits.

The Boys.

"Where are the boys?" anxiously inquires a religious exchange. Why, bless your innocent soul, don't you know where they are? George is down cellar hooking choice eatables for school; Henry is in the back yard getting ready to blow himself up with a rusty gun; Alexander is indulging in a fight with a boy in the next house and getting his face built over into a German chromo; while William is being impelled wildly and vivaciously over the barn floor, the motive power being a trunk strap deftly wielded by the old man. That's where the boys are.—Rockland Courier.

Ex-Senator Trumbull's Marriage.

Lyman Trumbull, of Illinois, ex-United States Senator, was united in marriage Saturday afternoon last to Miss Mary J. Ingraham, eldest daughter of the late Captain John Ingraham, of Old Saybrook, and Saturday evening the newly-wedded couple passed through this city on their way to New York. The bride and groom are cousins.—New Haven Journal.

Exports of Spirits and Tobacco.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has prepared the following returns of exports in spirits and tobacco, which show a striking increase in three years past:

	1875.	1876.	1877.
Gallons distilled spirits	587,413	1,308,990	2,529,528
Tobacco, pounds.....	4,346,611	8,861,760	11,335,046

Mrs. General Sherman,

Wife of the General of the United States Army, says: "I have frequently purchased Durang's Rheumatic Remedy for friends suffering with Rheumatism, and in every instance it worked like magic." Send for circular to Helphenstine & Bentley, Druggists, Washington, D. C.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

The Influence of Malaria Counteracted.

That the harmful influence upon the human system of malaria may be effectually counteracted has been demonstrated for years past by the protection afforded the inhabitants of vast miasma-breeding districts in North and South America, Guatemala, Mexico and the West Indies, by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Used as a preventive, they have invariably been found to be a most reliable safeguard against chills and fever, bilious remittents, and still more malignant types of malarious disease, and when employed as a remedy have always proved their adequacy to the task of eradicating such maladies from the system. For disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, which in hot climates and miasmatic localities are particularly rife, the Bitters are a prompt and thorough remedy. They also strengthen the system, tranquilize the nerves, promote digestion and sound sleep, and impart unwonted relish for food.

Gleason's Publications.

Great reductions in price for 1878 of GLEASON'S PICTORIAL to $2 a year. Single copies 5 cents. THE HOME CIRCLE is $1 a year, single copies 5 cents; for sale by all newsdealers.

GLEASON'S MONTHLY COMPANION to $1 a year, single copies 10 cents. All postage free.

The price of Chromos has just been greatly reduced. No one now gives such liberal terms to agents as we do. Send for new free circular. Address F. GLEASON & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

The Many Thousands

Who are constantly using DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER all speak in unbounded praise of its reliability, uniform strength, and merits in producing excellent rolls, biscuits, bread, &c.

I HAVE sold Hatch's Universal Cough Syrup for about four years. By using it in my own family I became satisfied of its merit. It has become the leading article of its kind, having by far the best sale of any. Sample bottles were freely given away, and this led to its rapid introduction. JAMES JOHNSON,
Clayton, Jeff. Co., N. Y.,
Ex-Member of New York Legislature.
Sold by Van Schaack, Stevenson & Reid, Chicago, Ill.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE promotes the growth of and beautifies the Hair, and renders it dark and glossy. The COCOAINE holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized COCOANUT OIL, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

"Durang's Rheumatic Remedy," the great Internal Medicine, will positively cure any case of rheumatism on the face of the earth. Price, $1 a bottle, six bottles, $5. Sold by all druggists. Send for circular to Helphenstine & Bentley, Druggists, Washington, D. C.

PATENTEES and inventors should read advertisement of Edson Bros. in another column.

NEWSDEALERS CAN OBTAIN THE Chicago Ledger!
FROM THE
Western News Co.
At either Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis, or Chicago. Back Numbers supplied. Send in your orders. THE LEDGER.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.
$1.00 BOSTON, MASS. $1.00

HUNT'S REMEDY
THE GREAT
KIDNEY MEDICINE
A positive remedy for Dropsy and all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs. Hunt's Remedy is purely vegetable and prepared expressly for the above diseases. It has cured thousands. Every bottle warranted. Send to W. E. Clarke, Providence, R.I., for illustrated pamphlet. If your druggist don't have it, he will order it for you.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts Can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure, The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, Sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

BOOK AGENTS, TAKE NOTICE!
JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE
Has "wrote another book," and it is really
SAMANTHA AT THE CENTENNIAL!
As a P. A. and P. I. outdoes herself, and WIDOW DOODLE leaves BETSY BOBBET far behind. Don't wait and lose your chance; send for circulars, territory, &c., at once. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O., and HARTFORD, CONN.

CONSUMPTION CURED.
An old physician, retired from practice, having received from an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections; also a cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French, or English, with full directions. Address, with stamp, W. W. SHERAR, 126 Power's Block, Rochester, N.Y.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.
Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture. For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal. Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

DR. WARNER'S
HEALTH CORSET
With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.
Unequaled for Beauty, Style & Comfort.
APPROVED BY ALL PHYSICIANS.
For Sale by Leading Merchants
Samples, any size, by mail. In Satteen, $1.50; Coutil, $1.75; Nursing Corset, $2.00; Misses' Corset, $1.00.
AGENTS WANTED
WARNER BROS., 351 Broadway, N. Y.

HULL & SCOTNEY, General Commission Merchants, 346 N. Water St., Philadelphia, and wholesale dealers in Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Poultry, Game, Potatoes, Apples, Grain, Flour, Fur, Wool, Cotton, Peanuts, Broom Corn, Foreign and Domestic Fruits, and, in fact, we can sell any and everything at the highest market price, make prompt returns, and LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES made on all shipments except perishable articles. To show that we do an extensive business, any game dealer in Philadelphia will tell you we handled more game last season than all other Houses in Philadelphia put together. Send for Price-List, Stencil, &c., &c. REFERENCE CASH, or we refer you to ANY responsible House in our city.

PRINTERS AND STATIONERS!
Send 30 cents and get a large sample package of our NOVELTIES in Ball Programmes, Visiting Cards, Wedding Stationery, Billet de Correspondence Envelopes and Note with monogram date (something new), fine Cardboard, etc. Address THE NEWSPAPER UNION, 181 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

THE CHEAPEST & BEST
ADVERTISING
TO REACH READERS OUTSIDE OF THE LARGE CITIES.
We represent over 1,000 Newspapers, having a weekly circulation of over 600,000 Copies, divided into six different lists, covering different sections of the country.
Advertisements received for one or more lists. For catalogues, containing names of papers and other information, and for estimates, address
BEALS & FOSTER,
41 Park Row (Times Building), New York.

10,000 A YEAR.
It is estimated that this number die yearly in the United States of CONSUMPTION.
ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will at once allay the pain and irritated parts, stop the cough, and prevent what would be consumption. All persons with weak Lungs, or afflicted with Cough, should at once test the merits of this good Cough and Lung Balsam.
Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

TO ADVERTISERS! We will send free to all applicants who do any newspaper advertising, the THIRD EDITION of AYER & SON'S MANUAL FOR ADVERTISERS, 160 8vo pp. More complete than any which have preceded it. Gives the names, circulation, and advertising rates of several thousand newspapers in the United States and Canada, and contains more information of value to an advertiser than can be found in any other publication. All lists have been carefully revised, and where practicable prices have been reduced. The special offers are numerous and unusually advantageous. Be sure to send for it before spending any money in newspaper advertising. Address N. W. AYER & SON, ADVERTISING AGENTS, Times Building, Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
Creative Science;
Or, MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD, AND THEIR MUTUAL INTER-RELATIONS; LOVE, ITS LAWS, POWER, ETC.
Agents are selling from 15 to 25 copies a day. Send for specimen pages and our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

SETH THOMAS
CLOCKS
RUN WELL
WEAR WELL
AND KEEP GOOD TIME

WEBER'S
METROPOLITAN CORSET!
THE ONLY CORSET COMBINING
Grace, Comfort and Beauty!
Is constructed on purely scientific principles. The back is whole boned and left open at the hips to be laced at pleasure of wearer, and is so gored in back that the fabrics and bones adapt themselves with marvelous accuracy to every curve and undulation of the finest type of figure. For sale by all leading merchants. Lady Agents wanted. Sample by mail on receipt of $1.50. Eastern Depot, J. Beckel & Co., 454 Broadway, New York.
WESTERN DEPOT, KEITH BROS., Chicago, Ill.

GRAFF'S TRADE MARK PATENTED
IMPROVED
SOAP MADE IN ONE HOUR
POTASH OR LYE
WILL MAKE NINE POUNDS OF PURE SOAP IN ONLY ONE HOUR
PROF. BEDFORD'S LETTER SHOWING SUPERIORITY OF THIS ARTICLE OVER ALL OTHERS, FOR SOAP MAKING, SENT FREE BY MAIL ON APPLICATION TO H. M. ANTHONY 104 READE ST. NEW YORK.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED
The prevention and cure of CONSUMPTION, as also of Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the LUNGS and THROAT, may be realized in
PULMONA,
which is also recommended as a certain and radical cure for all general and special derangements of the Nervous System, Disorders of the Blood, and FUNCTIONAL Disorders of the STOMACH and BOWELS, and as a general BRAIN, NERVE and BLOOD TONIC.
PULMONA banishes, with wonderful rapidity, all the general symptoms of CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. It imparts strength and color to the pale blood, subdues the CHILLS and FEVER, and diminishes the expectoration. It checks the NIGHT SWEATS, invigorates the appetite, relieves the cough and difficult breathing, stops the wasting of flesh, and induces a calm and refreshing sleep.
PULMONA is adapted to every disease, however called by name, in which is exhibited any derangement of either the NERVOUS or the BLOOD SYSTEMS. For Female Disorders it is positively unequaled.
PULMONA supplies the place of "Cough Mixtures" for the Cough, "Tonics" for the Appetite, "Expectorants" for the Expectoration, Anodynes for the Nervous Irritation, and Iron for the Blood, and thus is both the best and the most economical medicine that can be taken. By a specific action upon the Constitutional Condition it reaches and has a direct effect upon the whole series of symptoms. PULMONA is confidently recommended in all cases wherein are exhibited any one or more of the following symptoms:
COUGH, DIFFICULTY OR IRREGULARITY OF BREATHING, WASTING OF THE FLESH, LOSS OF APPETITE OR STRENGTH, BLEEDING FROM THE LUNGS, GENERAL DEBILITY, FLYING PAINS THROUGH THE CHEST, FLUSHING OF FACE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, NIGHT SWEATS, DIZZINESS OR VERTIGO, SORE THROAT, SLEEPLESSNESS, INDIGESTION, SINKING OF THE STOMACH, REMITTENT FEVER, and especially in all Female Diseases or Uterine Irregularities.
Read the Following Certificates.
COLLEGE HILL, CINCINNATI, O.—"I was in the last stage of Consumption. Ten days after taking PULMONA my Chills, Night Sweats, Fever, &c., decreased, and finally ceased altogether. My restored health is a marvel to all who know me."—T. J. CARSON.
"PULMONA saved my daughter's life, and probably saved me hundreds of dollars."—REV. E. JONES, Hempstead, N.Y.
"We bless God for the benefit we received from your PULMONA."—REV. P. WARREN, Canton, Pa.
A SUFFERER FROM ASTHMA writes: "Your PULMONA is decidedly the best remedy we have ever had, and the only one that has produced entirely favorable results."—GEO. M. GRAHAM, Amsterdam, N. Y.
The price of the PULMONA is $1 per bottle. It may be obtained through Druggists generally, or directly from the Proprietor, OSCAR G. MOSES, 18 Cortlandt Street, New York. Send for free circular, containing particulars of MANY cases successfully treated.

THE
GOOD OLD STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.
Absolutely Pure.
All Grocers authorized to guarantee it full weight, and absolutely pure. To try it, send 60 cents for 1-pound can to be sent by mail free of postage. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., N. Y.

POND'S
EXTRACT
CATARRH.—Pond's Extract is nearly a Specific for this disease. It can hardly be excelled, even in old and obstinate cases. The relief is so prompt that no one who has ever tried it will be without it.
CHAPPED HANDS AND FACE.—Pond's Extract should be in every family this rough weather. It removes the soreness and roughness, and softens and heals the skin promptly.
RHEUMATISM.—During severe and changeable weather, no one subject to Rheumatic Pains should be one day without Pond's Extract, which always relieves.
SORE LUNGS, CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS.—The cold weather tries the Lungs sorely. Have Pond's Extract on hand always. It relieves the pain and cures the disease.
CHILBLAINS will be promptly relieved and ultimately cured by bathing the afflicted parts with Pond's Extract.
FROSTED LIMBS.—Pond's Extract invariably relieves the pain and finally Cures.
SORE THROAT, QUINSY, INFLAMED TONSILS AND AIR PASSAGES are promptly cured by the use of Pond's Extract. It never fails.
HISTORY and Uses of Pond's Extract, in pamphlet form, sent free on application to POND'S EXTRACT CO., 98 Maiden Lane, New York. Sold by Druggists.

MAGIC LANTERNS
FOR PUBLIC EXHIBITIONS, SUNDAY SCHOOLS
STEREOPTICONS
L. J. MARCY · C. T. MILLICAN

A Perfect
Hair Dressing.
A Promoter
of the Growth of the Hair.
A Preparation
Free from Irritating matter.
BURNETT'S
COCOAINE.
For preserving and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.
The Cocoaine holds in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized
Cocoa-nut Oil,
prepared expressly for this purpose.
No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.
It softens the hair when hard and dry.
It soothes the irritated scalp skin.
It affords the richest lustre.
It remains longest in effect.
It is the Best and Cheapest
HAIR DRESSING
IN THE WORLD.
DIRECTIONS.
Apply with the hand, or a soft brush, every other day, or as often as the case may require, rubbing it thoroughly into the roots of the hair.
To remove Dandruff, Scurf, &c., wash the head with BURNETT'S KALLISTON, rub dry with a towel, and apply the Cocoaine as directed.
PREPARED ONLY BY JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.
BOSTON.
Entered, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1861, by Joseph Burnett & Co., in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the District of Massachusetts.

"VEGETINE,"
Says a Boston Physician, "has no equal as a blood purifier. Hearing of its many wonderful cures, after all other remedies had failed, I visited the Laboratory and convinced myself of its genuine merit. It is prepared from barks, roots and herbs, each of which is highly effective, and they are compounded in such a manner as to produce astonishing results."
VEGETINE
Is the Great Blood Purifier.
VEGETINE
Will cure the worst case of Scrofula.
VEGETINE
Is recommended by Physicians and Apothecaries.
VEGETINE
Has effected some marvelous cures in cases of Cancer.
VEGETINE
Cures the worst cases of Canker.
VEGETINE
Meets with wonderful success in Mercurial Diseases.
VEGETINE
Will eradicate Salt Rheum from the system.
VEGETINE
Removes Pimples and Humors from the face.
VEGETINE
Cures Constipation and regulates the bowels.
VEGETINE
Is a valuable remedy for Headache.
VEGETINE
Will cure Dyspepsia.
VEGETINE
Restores the entire system to a healthy condition.
VEGETINE
Removes the cause of Dizziness.
VEGETINE
Relieves Faintness at the Stomach.
VEGETINE
Cures Pains in the Back.
VEGETINE
Effectually cures Kidney Complaint.
VEGETINE
Is effective in its cure of Female Weakness.
VEGETINE
Is the great remedy for General Debility.
VEGETINE
Is acknowledged by all classes of people to be the best and most reliable blood purifier in the world.
VEGETINE
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.
$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.
$200 a month. Agents wanted to sell [illegible] Child & Pratt, Cincinnati, O.
GUNS REVOLVERS. Price List free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.
WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.
WONDER box, contains 27 useful articles; [illegible] stamps. Miss Eva Grant, [illegible]
3 new vocal and 3 new instrumental pieces Sheet Music, 10c. Globe Music Co., Middleboro, Mass.
$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.
$3300 A YEAR. How to Make It. [illegible] COE & YONGE, St. Louis, Mo.
$50 to $75 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Pub'g House, Chicago.
BEATTY Piano, Organ best. [illegible] news. Organs, 13 stops [illegible] cost $650. Cir. Free. Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N.J.
$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.
$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.
$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. Van & Co., Chicago.
YOUNG MEN! Learn Telegraphy here, and earn from $45 to $100 a month. Small salary while learning. Situations furnished. Address R. VALENTINE, Manager Janesville, Wis.
PATENTS AND INVENTORS. EDSON BROS. U. S. and Foreign Patent Agents, 711 G St., Washington, D. C. Established in 1865. Fee after allowance. Circ. of instructions, etc., sent free.
CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.
DYKES' BEARD ELIXIR [illegible] SMITH & CO., Sole Agents, Palatine, Ill. This preparation is indispensable. The public will use due caution and Address as above.
WATERPROOF COVERS,
Awnings, Tents, Signs, Window Shades, &c. MURRAY & BAKER, 100 S. Desplaines St., Chicago. Send for Illustrated Price-List.
BEST HAY PRESS P. K. DEDERICK & CO. ALBANY, N. Y. [illegible]
PIANOS AND ORGANS.
BEST AND CHEAPEST in the WORLD For Cash or Installments. Send for Illustrated Catalogues. AGENTS Wanted. Horace Waters & Sons, 40 E. 14th St., N.Y.
$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]
BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT
The best family newspaper published; eight pages, fifty-six columns reading. Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of eleven, $15 per annum, in advance.
SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.
WORK FOR ALL
In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged) Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.
AGENTS
WANTED!
FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS
WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.
829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.
PENSIONS—Soldiers suffering from wounds, injuries, or disease, can procure pension, and those who are pensioned can have their pensions increased, where their present rating is too low, as is the case in thousands of instances. Widows and children of soldiers who died in or out of the army, of disease contracted in service, are entitled to pension. Full bounty is due all soldiers discharged for wounds, rupture, or injury other than disease. Soldiers who were prisoners of war can secure pay for rations for the time so held. For full information, address, with stamp, McNEILL & BIRCH, Washington, D. C.
No fee till claim allowed.
THE GOLDEN WEDDING
A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever.
This elegant Engraving, 21 by 27 inches, the finest picture ever published for the price, and worth $2.00, will be sent by return mail on receipt of 25 cents and a 3-cent stamp; or 5 Engravings for $1. Special terms to Agents, who can make $10 a day easy. Send 25 cents for sample and particulars. Give full name and address to prevent mistakes. Address CINCINNATI ENGRAVING & PUBLISHING Co., 22 East 3rd St., Cincinnati, O.
Send for Reduced Price-List of
MASON & HAMLIN
CABINET ORGANS.
NEW and SPLENDID STYLES; PRICES REDUCED $10 to $50 EACH THIS MONTH (NOV., 1877). Address MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., Boston, New York, or Chicago.
DUNHAM
PIANOS.
Dunham & Sons, Manufacturers,
Warerooms, 18 East 14th St.,
[Established 1834.] NEW YORK.
Prices Reasonable. Terms Easy.
GRACE'S
SALVE
A VEGETABLE PREPARATION.
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.
SANDAL-WOOD.
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster st., New York.
U. N. U. No. 48
WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

Great Reduction on Sugars

All grades reduced 1 cent per pound; the lowest they have sold for fifteen years. Best white coffee sugar 10c, best coffee C 9c, choice yellow sugar 8c.

An immense stock of all goods for

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEARS!

Candies, Nuts, Toys, Liquors and Cigars.

TEAS!

Fifty more chests of the choice 40c tea and 40 chests of the good 25c tea. We sell large amounts of these two teas; being good drawers, strong and well flavored. We now sell more chests of tea in a month than we used to in a year, and this comes simply from our purchasing direct of the importers and selling direct to our customers, thereby saving the profit of the middle men, which is 20 to 40c on the pound.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 50, 70, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	60, 70, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea,	25, 60, best 70 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea,	35, 50, best 70 cents per pound

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 22 cents. Good Fine Rio, 20 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.

SYRUPS.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents. New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.

RAISENS, and ZANTEE CURRENTS for CHRISTMAS CAKE, CITRON, LEMON and ORANGE PEEL.

Valencia raisins per pound 8c, Best layers raisins 12½c. Zantee currents 9c Leghorn citron 35c. Orange and Lemon peal 30c,

CANDIES.

Toy candies of all kinds. Stick candy per pound 18c. French mixed 20c, Toy candy all sorts and varieties 30c. Toys for Santa Claus from a penny whistle to a nice album to make presents with a thousand different things to amuse the little ones—Dogs, cats, rats, mice, birds, elephants, lions, tigars, drums, wagons, horses, Chineese lanterns, pistol caps, &c., something for every little one in the country.

And for Christmas tree candles we have a large assortment of every color, from ½ cent to 2 cents each or 50c per box.

OILS. OILS. OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents. Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents. Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00. Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c. Machine Oil per gal. 30ct

Nuts for Christmas and New Years.

Brazil nuts 10c. Filberts, quart 15c. Almons, qurrt 25c. English walnuts, quart 15c. Pecans, quart 12 1-2c. Roasted pea nuts quart 5c.

Liquors of all Kinds for Medical use Whisky, Rum, Brandy, Gin, Wines and Ales.

Good old bourbon $1 and $1.25. 2 years old $1.40 and 1.50. Best old 76 for medical use $2.50. Sherry Wine as good as any in the country $1.50. Port wine best in the market $1.50. California Angelica wine best $1.50. Gin $1.50 and $2.50 Dublin and London Porter 22c. Scotch 22c.

C OBACCOS AND CIGRS-

A No. 1 smoking for 30c per pound. Choice fine cut 50c per pound. No. 1 Plug Tobacco 50c per pound.

We have a large assortment and can sell a good cigar at $1.25 per box. And a choice No. 1 cigar for $1.75 per e00.

FRESH OYSTERS LOWER THIS YEAR THAN MEAT—We sell a fine Oyster at 15c. No. 1 full count saloon oyster 20c. Large A standard 30c.

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to turnish everything in the Hardwase line·

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINMR and prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Roofing, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

NEW ASSORTMENT OF

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BOSS HARNESS SHOP.

I have purchased the harness stock of Geo. Nock, and added largely to every description of stock that is usually kept in my line of trade, such as

HARNESS, DOUBLE AND SINGLE!

Bufalo Robes, Lap Robes, Horse Blankets, Collars, Whips, Brushes, Combs, Harness Oil, Axel Greese, Fine Ready-made Harness, Double and Single a Specialty.

Manufactured by the most experienced workmau that can be found in Northern Indiana, I employ none other, none other need apply. I would say to all customer frends that I will warrant all stock and work that goes out of my shop as recommended. I use none but the best Oak tanned Leather. I would invite all in need of goods in my line to call at my shop before purchasing elsewhere Shop in Flukes old Tannery Building on corner Jackson and seventh St. As I am bound not be undersold on the same class of goods in Northern Indiana

Being an old farmer formily I keep a very effable experienced Foreman to see that all work is well done. Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.

J. E. SHILLING, Sole Proprietor.
W. SHEFFER, Foreman.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our ctizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

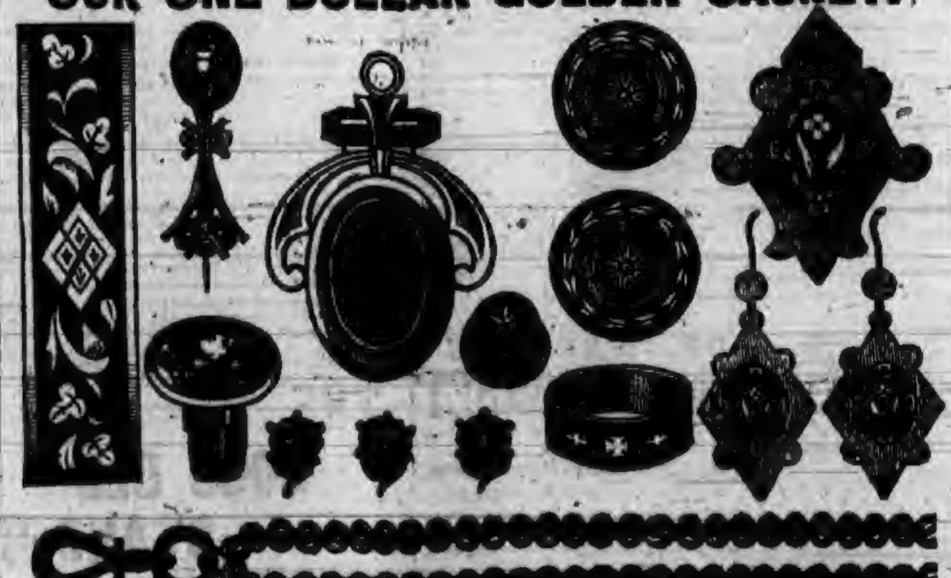
At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & CO

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.



OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Scarf; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACOBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
117 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 15 a m	12 01 a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	1 26 "	2 35 "	7 10 "
Waterloo	1 31 "	2 40 "	7 30 "
Sedan	2 00 "	2 49 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 17 "
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ligonier	2 37 "	3 33 "	8 30 "
Goshen	3 23 "	4 12 "	9 25 "
Elkhart	3 40 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	7 35 a m	9 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 05 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 08 "
Kendallville	8 40 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 21 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 30 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 08 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. R. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card June 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 46	2 30	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 15
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Nig't ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 00 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 27	9 0[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 35
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 48
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 25
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15pm	4 35	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 05	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 05	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 21 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

De'roit, Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT JULY 2, 1877.

GOING EAST,

	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 4,	LOCAL FT No. 6,
Lv. Logansport	7 45am	7 00	7 00
Mexico	8 27	8 07	8 27
Denver	8 37	8 25	9 00
Chili	8 45	8 30	9 20
Roann	9 03	9 06	10 05
Laketon	9 20	9 32	10 50
N. Manchester	9 31	9 50	11 15
Liberty Mills	9 40	10 05	11 37
Collamer	9 45	10 27	12 10pm
S. Whitley	10 00	10 35	12 28
Columbia City,	10 25	11 15	1 30
Col en's	10 43	11 43	2 20
Churubusco	10 56	12 00	2 51
La Otto	11 20	12 24pm	3 55
Cedar Creek	11 35	12 46	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 43	1 07	4 35
Aupurn	11 48	1 13	5 10
Butler	12 20am	2 00	6 20

Going West.

	No. 1,	No. [illegible]	No. 7,
Logansport ar	6 50pm	1 45	5 30pm
Mexico	6 16		4 20
Denver	6 07		4 00
Chili	6 00		3 30
Roann	5 47		2 40
Laketon	5 30		2 00
North Mancester	5 23		1 35
Liberty Mills	5 17		1 00
Collamer	5 05		2 30am
South Whitley	5 02		12 20
Columbia City	4 40		0 25
Collin's	4 24		9 49
Cherubusco	4 14		9 28
La Otto	3 55		8 43
Cedar Creek	3 45		8 28
Auburn Junction	3 27	7	8 00
Auburn	3 22	[illegible] 14	7 34
Butler lv	2 45	6 55	6 20

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	8 10am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 20	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 55
Wheeling	8 00am	10 05 am	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 30	00
Barnesville	9 45	11 46	6 16
Cambridge	10 45	1 03	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	10 00
Columbus	3 00	5 a
Shawnee	4 20	10 m
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	0am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	5	10 00
Shelby	4 54	7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 18	8 30	10 20
Fostoria	7 48	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 00	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 13
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	6 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 04
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 33	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	5 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 26pm	1 14am	11 29am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 34	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 45
Garrett	3 20	3 55	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 49	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 56	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 44	10 38	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 06pm	7 40
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 00
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 20	8 14
Barnesville	3 53	5 10	9 23
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 50am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6;40 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9;45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mall.	3. Express.	5 Acco.m
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 35 pm	....
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm	....
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm	....
Hartford	7 20 am	8 43 pm	....
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 am
Newcastle	9 [illegible]	....	6 [illegible]
Cambridge City	9 45 am	....	7 45 p m
Connersville	10 20 am	....	8 50 p m
Cincinnati	1 00 pm	....	11 45 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 25 am	11 55 pm
Louisville	[illegible]	[illegible]
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 30 am

GOING NORTH

STATIONS	2	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis	....	8 00 am	....
Terre Haute	....	2 55 pm	....
Louisville	....	3 00 pm	....
Cincinnati	7 00 am	....	7 00 am
Indianapolis	....	8 20 pm	....
Connersville	[illegible] am	....	10 40 am
Cambridge City	[illegible] am	....	11 46 am
New Castle	[illegible] am	....	12 35 pm
Muncie	[illegible] pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	pm	11 28 pm	....
Montpelier	pm	11 52 pm	....
Bluffton	pm	12 23 pm	....
Fort Wayne	pm	1 45 am	....

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect Nov 18—run by Chicago time

Going South.

Stations	Mail	Exp.	Fr't.
Jackson	6 55 am	1 40 am	3 10pm
Air Line Junc
Wilsons	7 15	11 29	5 45
Baldwins	7 28	12 11 pm	6 05
Hanover	7 37	12 20	6 30
Stony Point	7 48	12 25	6 40
Mosherville	7 53	12 34	6 55
Ar Jonesville	8 10	12 50	7 20
Bankers	8 28	1 07	7 47
Reading	8 44	1 20	8 15
Montgomery	9 00	1 35	8 33
State Line	9 11	1 44	8 56
Fremont	9 22	1 55	9 12
Ar Angola	9 45	2 12	9 45
Pleasant Lake	9 58	2 22	10 02
Summit	10 11	2 33	10 24
Waterloo	10 28	2 47	10 50
Auburn	10 41	3 01	11 15
Auburn Junc.	10 46	3 05	11 25
St. Johns	10 54	3 15	11 52
New Era	11 00	3 20	11 58
Stoners	11 10	3 28	12 11am
Huntertown	11 16	3 32	22 18
Carroll's Crossing	11 22	3 39	12 28
Academie	11 28	3 45	12 36
Ft Wayne	11 40 am	4 00 pm	1 00am

Going North.

Ft Wayne	4 15 pm	11 15 am	1 30am
Academie	4 31	11 26	1 42
Caroll's Crossing	4 38	11 33	2 00
Huntertown	4 45	11 38	2 08
Stoners	4 50	11 43	2 16
New Era	5 00	11 51	2 28
St. Johns	5 5	11 55	2 33
Auburn Junction	5 16	12 05 pm	3 00
Auburn	5 18	12 08	3 25
Waterloo	5 32	12 19	4 [illegible]
Summit	5 47	12 33	4 37
Pleasant Lake	6 02	12 45	4 55
Ar Angola	6 35	12 57	5 15
Fremont	6 55	1 16	6 00
State Line	7 06	1 25	6 15
Montgomery	7 20	1 35	6 41
Reading	7 35	1 40	7 18
Bankers	7 47	2 01	7 40
Jonesville	8 05	2 22	8 10
Mosherville	8 22	2 47	8 32
Stoney Point	8 31	2 55	8 45
Hanover	8 37	3 01	8 52
Baldwins	8 48	3 10	9 15
Wilsons	9 00	3 21	9 33
Air Line Junc
Jackso	9 20 pm	3 40 pm	10 10am

All trains daily except Sunday.
P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at W oo. First door south of the railroad

---

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast. You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free. If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Dispensary, [illegible] St. Chicago, Ills. for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, [illegible] per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE [illegible] pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price [illegible] cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts. Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 29th, 1877. Number 48.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,.........$2. | Six Months,......

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	60 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO
4th Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y.
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

R. D. MOODY. F. T. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind... Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

E. A. FRANKS. O. Z. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyances. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, Lagrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m., 7 to 8 p. m.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE.

ENOCH ZOLLARS Proprietor, Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind. Good Sample Rooms.

TREMONT HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Accommodates three hundred guests. Terms $2.50 per day. Located corner Second street and Indiana Avenue, in full view of the Capitol City Hall.
F. P. HILL.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, (Late of City Hotel,) Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.
JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON
THE DRAY MAN
Will attend promptly to all orders for
DRAYING AND HAULING.
Hauling good teams and reasonab

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge. P. W. SILVERS.

CARPETS
ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & Co.,
Offer a large and choice stock of Carpets in all the newest designs.
Body Brussels Carpets,
Tapestry Carpets,
Ingrain Carpets.
COTTON CHAIN CARPETS,
HEMP CARPETS,
RAG CARPETS.
Terry's Reps, Cretonnes, Lace Curtains, Shades, Wall Paper, Stair Rods.
OIL CLOTHS,
Mattings, Rugs and Mats, Druggets
And all goods pertaining to the carpet and upholstery business.
Lambrequins
A Specialty.
Prices Low to Compete with the Times
ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.
26 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN
No. 27, East Main-St.
FORT WAYNE, IND'A
has the largest and finest stock of
CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,
AND
CassimereS
in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of
Made up Clothing
ever shown in Fort Wayne
Youths' and Children's Clothing!
Furnishing Goods, &c.
Merchant Tailoring
All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended. see his largest stock

JUST RECEIV'D
—AT—
J. ABRIGHT'S
Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,
Rogers & Bro. Silverware,
A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents [illegible]
GOLD & SILVER SET
Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly
LOW PRICES.
Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Mathew H. Griffith, James Roberts and J. Milton Butler are plaintiffs, and George W. Young and William Richmond are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seventy-five dollar ($375) and twenty-four (24) cents, with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A piece of land off the south side of the north east quarter of section thirty one (31) township thirty four-four, 34, north of range fifteen, 15 east bounded as follows to-wit: on the east by the road leading from Newville to Wannamakers corners, on the north by land owned by Lawrence Gibson, on the west by land owned by H. H. Smith on the south by open half section line running between said land and John Loveland the same to contain forty-four, 44 acres of land more or less in DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $10.75

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Orlando T. Letcher and William Letcher are plaintiffs and Martin Maze and Mary Maze are defendants requiring to make make the sum of six thousand fifty-two 6,052 dollars and seventy-one, 71, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven, years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The north east quarter of section twenty-four, 24, in township thirty-four, 34, north of range fourteen, 14, east excepting one acre off the north west corner of said land above described deeded to James Leonard balance containing one hundred and sixty, 160, acres more or less in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $8.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Geo. Emerson, Piny Watson, and Zebulon C. Pheutt are plaintiffs, and Elias Gonsor, Henry Ernest et al are defendants requiring me to make the sum of five hundred and ten ($510) dollars, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

The north half of the south west quarter and the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section twenty-two [22] and fourteen (14) acres off the east side of the south east quarter of the south east quarter of section twenty-one [21] township thirty-five (35) north of range twelve (12) east in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
A. A. Chapin, Attorney for plaintiffs.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 1st, 1877. $9.00.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Jacob Sibert is plaintiff, and Charles Baker and Francis Picker are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one hundred and eleven, 111, dollars and sixty-seven, 67, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit.

Lot number one hundred and four, 104, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Edward J. Baker is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and seven, 307, dollars and ninety-four, 94, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number one hundred and sixty-six, 166, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and State of Indiana, excepting forty, 40 feet off the east end thereof conveyed to Casper Altenberg by said Baldock.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.
R. Baxter Taft, Attorney for plaintiff.
Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877. Pf. 8.25.

$777 is not easily earned in these times but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time. We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business. It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once.
H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.
October 11,—6m noll.

True Merit Will Win.

A few years since the proprietor of Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound introduced it there.—Our people soon found it out to be the reliable and already it has become the most staple and popular pulmonary remedy in the market. It quickly cures the worst colds, coughs, croupe, bronchitis, asthma and incipient consumption. Nothing acts so nicely in whooping cough, and it is so pleasant that children really like it. Containing no opium, or other dangerous drug, it is as safe as it is sure. Trial size 10c; large sizes 50c and $1.00. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson Township, DeKalb County in the State of Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said State will at the December session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, in the year 1877, apply for license to retail, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors at the following place in said township to-wit: On that portion of the North west quarter of section-six (6) in said township, bounded on the east by the Detroit, Eel River & Illinois Railroad, on the south by the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad, and on the west by the Fort Wayne, Jackson and Saginaw Railroad and on the north by the line of said township.

Nov. 1 '77. CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitas, Catarrh, Asthama, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for general debility and all nervous complaints, after having thouroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. The receipt will be sent free of charge, to all who desire it, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Address with stamp naming this paper, Dr. J. C. Stone, 44 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia Pa.

For Kansas and Colorado.

Take the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, extending from Kansas City and Atchison, on the Missouri river, via Topeka, the capital of Kansas, through the fertile Arkansas Valley, to Pueblo, where direct connections is made with the Denver & Rio Grande Railway for Colorado Springs, Manitou, Denver, Cannon City, and all points of note on the Denver & Rio Grande. The track is excelled by that of no road in the West, and the passenger equipment embraces all the modern improvements for comfort and safety. Through express trains leave union depots, Kansas City and Atchison, daily, on the arrival of trains from the East, and run through to the Rocky Mountains, with Pulman Sleeping Cars attached. For maps, circulars and detailed information send to T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Ag't., Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, yourself and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get acclimated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Beardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G. P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

From the Logansport Pharos.

Notes and Items of Early Times.

BY MAJOR M'FADEN.

It was in the spring the time to plow for corn and in the dark of the moon, when you could not see your nose before you. One evening some of our neighbor boys saw a big black bear going north. (It was the only one I ever heard of on Blue Grass). They came down with dogs to stay all night with me and get an early start in the morning after the bear. We had camped out on the floor, and in the night we heard a ritteling at our clapboard door, and I asked who comes there? An answer in a musical voice said Mingo. On opening the door, in stepped the Indian boy, who I remember we first called Othello, but his Indian name was Mingo. He said that a little girl, seven or eight years old, of Mr. Tobby's, who lived over on Mill Creek, eight or ten miles north of us, had got lost in the morning and that they had hunted for her all day and had not found her, and that they wanted us to come over and help hunt for her. I told the boys that was our best hold, and that we would let the bear go until we found the little girl. We got up long before day and made our breakfast off of a wild goose and a Sandhill crane that we had killed the day before, and barbacued them by the fire. We were off early on a trail, and arrived at Tobby's about nine o'clock in the morning, and oh, such a sight. There was the mother crying and weeping, nearly heart-broken and calling for Mary, the lost child. There were two or three women with her trying to console her. The men were all out looking for her, and nothing had been heard from the child up to this time, one day and night out. They had an old fashioned dinner horn, four or five feet long and as big as a saucer at the lower end, and could be heard for miles. It was understood that when any one brought in any news or found the child the horn should be sounded. It appears that on the morning that little Mary was lost, her father was plowing a piece of ground for corn and she started to go to him, but never reached him, that Obbenobbie, whom we will call Obby for short, an old Indian from the Tippecanoe, and Mingo, his grand son, had come over to Mr. Tobby's, was out helping to hunt for the child and had sent Mingo after us. Just then Obby came in with a little piece of yellow calico that he said he had found on a bush about three miles east of there. Mrs. Tobby said at once that it was a piece of the dress that Mary had worn and had been torn off by the brush. That gave her some hopes, but the terrible thought was, was she still alive, as the country was then full of wolves and the chances were against her, but we hoped and hoped ever. We then made the woods and prairies ring with the old horn, and we then agreed that not a gun should be fired until Mary was found, dead or alive, and broke for the place where Obby had found a piece of her dress. We made good time and soon reached the spot, and began to look for more sign. After looking around for a long time, we found her little foot prints in the sand and also near by in the mud, going from home. She was bare footed, and from that day to this I have never forgotten those little tracks in the sand and mud. We hunted all that day and found no further trace, and our hearts had begun to sink. We were tired and hungry, having had nothing to eat all day, although we could have killed deer during the day but did not wish to fire our guns off. We had a large grey hound that could catch a deer any time, and two coon dogs. As night was coming on we prepared to camp. While we were fixing to camp the dogs barked up a hollow tree, and we supposed there was coon in it. We made an Indian ladder, and Obby climbed up and put some fire in the tree and came down. As the tree was dry it soon began to burn and made a bright light from the top, at last two coon rolled out pretty well singed. We killed and skinned them and were getting ready to roast them. It was not dark yet, and we heard a noise and looking up something had scared two deer and they came running right to camp. We put the dogs after them, and a short distance from us was the creek, and in jumping it one of the deer fell back in the creek, in a minute the dogs was on him and we ran in and pulled him out and killed him, and in fifteen minutes from the time we first drew blood, every one of us had a piece of it on a stick and roasting it, and such a feast we did have. The body wanted more food than the soul did, and for the time being we forgot our troubles. Night came on and a dark one it was, and the wolves were howling around us and the worst of all it began to rain, and our only thought was, where was Mary Tobby. We had listened all day for the big horn, or the report of a gun, but all in vain. Remember my dear friends that this is a true story, and some of the parties are still living in Pulaski county. Remember this was the second night and second day that she was lost, and how could the heroin live so long among the wolves, with nothing to eat and nothing to protect her from the weather but a little calico dress. We did not sleep much that night, and were up early and started on our search. We hunted all day up and down, backwards and forwords, as the grass and bushes were very thick, hallowing and listening, but all in vain. At last about three o'clock we gave it up and hope died within us, and we turned our faces home ward with heavy hearts. There is some thing in man called the dormant or latent powers or energies. For instance, I have been hunting all day and returning tired and weary hardly able to lift one foot before another, and game would start up before me, and I could run for hours, and forget that I was tired. Now hold your breat. We had given up and started for home, and away off north of us we heard a gun fire. So then our dormant powers and hope went up, and we all broke and run, and reaching the edge of a prairie we saw a man on horseback in his shirt sleeves with something wrapped up in his coat before him. It was Bridge Ward and he had found Mary Tobby in his way: He too had given up and started home in dispair. As he was riding along he saw a grove north of him in the bend of the creek and something told him or influenced him to take a last look there. He turned his horse to the right and through the grove and on to the edge of the creek, and there he found little Mary Tobby, who had laid down for her last sleep, but thank God, she was still alive. Her little feet, limbs and hands were all torn and bleeding from the briars and grass, and her golden hair was all matted together. He picked her up gentally and wrapped in his coat and started for home. But how had she lived and escaped so long from the wolves and wild animals? (Here is special providence for you). Although Obby was the oldest he was still the best runner and we started him on the wings of wind to carry the glorious news to Mary's home, that she was found and still alive. It was not long before we heard the guns firing and the horn blowing, as the rest of them had all given up and retired to the house. As Mary was weak we had to go slow, and as we neared the house they all came out to meet us, and the mother was frantic with joy. I thought she would kill the child by hugging and kissing it, and then I could see the truth of the saying in the Bible, "That there is more joy in Heaven over one sinner who repents and is saved than the ninety and nine who went not astray." Mary was very weak, but after careful nursing, soon got strong again, grew up to womanhood; married and raised a family. Her father, Mr. Tobby, and Mr. Ward, who found her, are still living in Pulaski county.

Now, my dear friends, the clock is striking twelve, and—

"'Tis midnight's holy hour,
The time for meditation and prayer."

And I must close my story for the present, and in my next will tell you what we done for that bear and what the bear done for us.

BLUE GRASS AND INDIAN CREEK.

Opinion of the Attorney-General.

The following opinion from the Attorney-General is self explanatory:

Your letter of the 15th inst. has been received and considered. The act approved March 8, 1870, (Acts reg. sess. p. 58) provides for the election of township officers on the first Monday in April 1878 and every succeeding year thereafter. The Supreme Court has repeatedly decided than when an office has been created by the legislature, that body has the power to lengthen or abridge the term thereof, (see Walker vs. Peelle secretary, etc., 18 Ind., 264; Walker vs. Dunham, 17 Ind., 483; see also 2 Parsons on Contracts, p. 512). The only township officers whose offices are created and the length of the term thereof defined in our State constitution are justices of the peace. (See article 7, in section 14; article 6, section 3.) Four years is the length of a term for justices of the peace, as defined in the constitution.

In my opinion the legislature posesses the power to abridge the terms of all township officers other than justices of the peace; and the act of March 3, 1877 aforesaid, manifestly provides for the election of their successors next April, and that they shall qualify and take possession of office in ten days thereafter. So far as office of justice of the peace is concerned, I think that said act does not abridge their terms of office, nor change the time when their successors shall take possession of office but it simply changes the time for their election from October to the April preceding.

C. A. BUSKIRK,
Attorney-General.

Political Catechism.

Who owns the United States?

The people.

Who owns the people?

The Politicians.

Who owns the politicians?

The Devil.

What is a Democracy?

A country where every man has a vote.

What is a greenback?

A Government promise to pay, which the government dishonors by refusing to receive in payment for dues.

Who depreciated the greenbacks?

The speculators who by corrupt legislation prevented its issue as a full legal-tender in order that they might run up the price of gold to $3.85.

What brought about the hard times?

These same speculators, by forcing the Government to contraction.

Who have aggravated the hard times?

The politicians who have piled up the people's taxes.

Who are the dangerous classes?

The corrupt men in places of honor and trust.

What is the present penalty for stealing?

If you take a shilling, three months in the lock-up. If you take a million—exoneration and a chance to do it again.

Billy Little is now fully prepared to do all kinds of custom work. Give him a call, over Pomert's barber shop.

THANKSGIVING AT THE FARM.

BY E. NORMAN GUNNISON.

"We are all here to-night. 'Tis the night of Thanksgiving—
Here's father and mother and dear little Ned;
But one has been lost from the land of the living;
Here's Charley, and Kate with her sweet curly head.
Through the years that have passed He has cared for and blessed us,
His hand has upheld us, His love has been ours,
And but little of sorrow has touched or distressed us,
For all of life's thorns have been circled with flowers.

"Keep high on the table the fruits of the season,
The choice winter apples, the nuts and the pears,
And make our Thanksgiving the motive and reason
To banish our troubles and drive away cares.
For the year nearly past has been crowned with tradition,
And the seed we have scattered with lavishing hand
Has sprung up and ripened, and in its transition
Been gathered as food for a prosperous land.

"Our barns and our corn-cribs are bursting with plenty—
We've all we can use, and perhaps somewhat more.
The year is a good one—not one year in twenty
So adds to the stock and increases the store!
Without, in the barnyard, the cattle are lowing;
They're hungry for supper, and ought to be fed,
So, Charley, just give them the rank meadow mowing,
And tie them up for the night in the shed.

"Well! well! This is comfort! Now, isn't it, mother?
Just see how these children enjoy blind-man's-buff!
There! Kitty and Ned tumble over each other,
And the way that they scamper is funny enough.
The candles are bright and the fire flickers cheery,
The children are full of their laughter and glee,
And all of them happy and careless and merry,
From Ned, almost man, to that child at your knee.

"We've had a great deal of this world and its treasures,
Now, haven't we, mother? I'm thinking to-night
That we should be thankful for all of our pleasures,
And try to bear all of our troubles aright.
And you know, after all, we've had little of trouble
Compared with our neighbors—of sorrow and loss;
And the joys of this life have appeared to us double
When brought into contrast with trial and cross.

"I think we are happy—at least we should be so—
And bear thankful hearts on this Thanksgiving day;
We have all that we need—or at least 't seems to me so—
If we may not be cheerful, just tell us who may?
We've nothing to wish for, now, say, have we, mother?"
No answer, whilst wildly without howls the blast,
One hand on her eyes, as to shield them and cover;
Her heart is away with the days which are past.

She sees by her side, as in days long departed,
The first born, sweet Mary, the child that was hers,
And the laugh of the innocent being, light-hearted,
The love of the mother awakens and stirs.
She sees her still later—no innocent maiden,
A flower sorely crushed in its beauty and bloom,
Her life with its burden of grief overladen,
And nothing for her but the rest of the tomb.

She feels her blood chill as the child's father burns her,
A heart-broken wanderer, out from his door,
And shrinks from his tones as he curses and spurns her
Away from his home to the desolate moor.
Long years have passed on, but no word has been spoken.
Poor Mary! Poor mother! remembrance still clings
To the child of her heart, and can never be broken
Till the fount of affection releases its springs.

It is Thanksgiving now, and around her have gathered
Her children, with laughter, with music and play,
And this one alone from her fireside is severed.
She mourns for the lost one—the lamb gone astray.
Grey-haired is the sire, and the hot hatred burning
For her who disgraced him has smoldered and died;
But his lips give no token, he seeks no returning,
Nor asks why she lingers away from his side.

But somehow, to-night, as the storm whistles dreary,
The past has returned, and it will not depart.
He knows how her heart in her bosom is weary,
He thinks of her Mary—the child of her heart.
Are men, then, so good that with souls unforgiving
They live—in their blindness forgetting their sin?
O loved one! come back on this night of Thanksgiving!
And after these years he will welcome you in.

A tap on the window; the latch raises slowly,
A woman's form stands in the half-open door;
Then prone on her face, as one contrite and lowly,
She sinks humbly down at his feet on the floor.
There is joy in the heavens when one sinner repenting,
Comes home to the fold of the shepherd to rest.
There was joy on that night, when the father, relenting,
Stooped slowly, and gathered his child to his breast.

THE THANKSGIVING GUEST.

"We should be thankfuller if we were going to have turkey, and plum-pudding, and nuts, and raisins, and everything nice for dessert; if we were going to have lots of company, and lived in a big house, like we used to, we should be a good deal thankfuller, shouldn't we, mamma?" said Say, with rather a rueful face at the cold joint of meat that was to serve as their Thanksgiving dinner.

"We ought to be just as thankful for what we have, my dear," said Mrs. Harris. "We'll make believe that we have just as good as anybody, and forget all about the turkey and plum-pudding. Poor folks should be just as thankful as rich ones." She tried to speak cheerfully, but sharp-eyed little Say saw that her eyes were moist.

"But I do want plum-pudding. I warnt be thankful!" shouted Will, in most unorthodox rebellion. And he began to cry lustily.

"Be quiet, Will," said Say, "and I'll tell you the story mamma told me last night while you were sleeping."

"No, no!" persisted Will. "I will have—"

"Once there were two little brooks born side by side up in a great mountain," began Say, and his tears were stayed with surprising suddenness. "'Now these were merry little brooks, and they played together for a long time in a little green hollow on the top of the mountain; but when they grew larger and older, and their voices, so clear and ringing, were heard far down in the valley, their Queen thought it was time they should be doing something in the world, and bade them set out for the river as soon as they could. And they were glad enough to obey her, for they were tired of running in one little green place."

"I say I want plum-pudding!" piped Will again, the absence of giants making the story rather tame to his critical ears.

But Say went on, never heeding the interruption: "So they started together one sunshiny morning. They took great leaps over the rocks; they struggled through little fairy forests of fern. When it was dark they sang to themselves to keep from being frightened; and when it was bright they laughed and shouted so that all the birds began to mimic them. And at last, after they had traveled very far, they found themselves in a merry green meadow.

"'What a wide world it is!' said one little brook, blinking its eyes with surprise.

"'And what a bonnie one!' said the other, tripping a blue-bell that stood in its way.

"They found so many friends in the meadow that they could hardly get along for greeting this one and that one. There were the daisies, keeping housein little grassy tents, who sent them an invitation to dine. The roses nodded at them, and begged them not to hurry so so fast. The birds pressed them to attend a grand concert in the woods near by. The butter-cups rustled their satin dresses, and begged them to come and sit at their feet, if only for one moment; and the bees, though they were always so busy, half promised to keep holiday with them, if they would wait.

"'Let us stay,' said one little brook to the other. 'See how dark our path is growing before us; and it is so pleasant and sunny here, and there are such merry folks to keep us company. Besides, we need not hurry to reach the river; and we have traveled such a long distance. Why shouldn't we have a holiday now?'

"But the other little brook said:

"'No. I have holidays enough, and I shall hasten on. The Queen said it was time I was doing good in the world, and I long to be in the river, and help carry the beautiful ships.'

"'Well,' said the other little brook, you can go, but I shall stay here until nightfall. And, when you are in that dreadfully dark wood, you will look back at me playing in the sunshine, and wish you had stayed with me, I'm sure.'

"So they kissed each other good-by over the nose of a blue-bell, and went their separate ways. It was dark and fearful in the woods; the trees frowned down on the little brook like tall, grim giants, and it could not see the sky. But it kept heart by singing a merry song; and before it had time to grow discouraged it reached the river. The great wide sky, without a cloud, was bending over it, and all the waves were filled with strange, beautiful voices. It felt great sails rustle over it; it seemed to be carried along in the arms of cool winds, without any effort of its own; and its heart was filled with a delight it had never dreamed of before.

"But the little brook found it so pleasant in the meadows that he forgot after a while that there was any other life than that; that there was anything to do in the world but to kiss a daisy-bud and flatter a rose. When he did get tired of it at last, and remembered that he was on the way to the river, he found he had lost his path; and, after a long and vain search for it, finally died of weariness in the noontide heat. And nobody remembered or cared anything about it, only a forlorn little bird, that had loved its singing. He came and mourned a little in its vacant place, but he thought, after all, what a foolish brook it was, for it might have lived forever, when it only lived a day."

Will looked rather bewildered, but seemed deeply impressed by the rewarded virtue of the good brook, and clamored no more for plum-pudding. Say had made the moral of the story rather more prominent than her mother had done when she had told it to her.

"Mamma," said Say, after a little serious meditation, "things happen to everybody else; why doesn't anything happen to us? Everything's always just the same. Nobody comes to see us, and we never go to see anybody; and you do nothing but just work, work, all the time. There is Hetty Eaton, she's poor, too, but her uncle came home from sea one day and brought her a parrot; and sometimes two aunts come to see her. Then there's little Mary Murphy, she's awful poor; her mother washes, but she's going to have company to-day. Her mother told her she might invite Bridget Collins. I wish I could invite somebody to dinner. Wouldn't it seem more thankful to have somebody besides ourselves, anyway?"

"Who would you invite, my dear?" said Mrs. Harris, laughing. "I don't know of anyone who would be likely to come, with the exception of old Uncle Toby. He would be highly flattered by an invitation from you, I've no doubt."

Uncle Toby was an old colored man, who sawed wood in the neighborhood, and with whom May was very intimate. She was socially inclined, and made friends with him in the street.

"Uncle Toby has been invited to his daughter's and he is going to have turkey for dinner," said Say, regretfully.

The unfortunate mention of turkey roused Will again, who, after the quieting influence of Say's story, had been meditatively pulling off the head of his sister's rubber doll.

"Don't fret, Will, and I'll take you out to walk, after I have helped mamma set the table," said Say, coaxingly.

"Mamma, if I meet anybody while I'm out—any very poor body, perhaps—who would not be likely to have as good a dinner as ours, may I ask her to come and dine with us? May I ask anybody that I please? I'll only ask one."

And Mrs. Harris, whose thoughts were far away in happier Thanksgiving days, said yes, though she had not heeded Say's question.

So Say smoothed every wrinkle out of the snowy table-cloth, arranged all the dishes with the nicest care, and, after everything else was completed, she plucked a bright scarlet blossom from her geranium, and, shading it in the most artistic manner with a few green leaves, placed it in the center of the table in a little crystal vase. The sunshine came in, and made a great brightness of its rich petals, the glasses sparkled like silver, and Say thought things did begin to look a little like Thanksgiving, after all. It was a clear, bright day, with just enough snow on the ground to make it look like winter. Say's shoes were so thin and old that her feet were cold, but she had grown so light-hearted all of a sudden that she did not mind it at all.

"Mamma says sometimes that she feels as if something was going to happen, and I feel exactly so now," she remarked to Will, who trudged sturdily along by her side. "And it's something good, Will—something very good, remember."

"I've been good to-day, haven't I?" said Will, doubtfully. He had implicit faith in Say, and the idea of any good thing's happening made him reflect that he might be shut out in the cold. The bad boys in Say's stories were always as mercilessly punished as the good ones were vigorously rewarded.

"Well, pretty good," said Say, wishing to be as indulgent as her conscience would allow.

"I think I should be gooder if I were to have some candy," he remarked, as they stood before the tempting window of a confectioner's shop.

Say never could pass that window without peeping in. It was a little consolation to be allowed to look at such good things. There was a great candy castle in the center, with a little candy lady standing in the door, taking a view of the tempting heaps of bonbons that were piled up in her dooryard. Will wished he was in her place. Then there were dainty little baskets full of chocolate cream-drops and caramels, and wine drops; gilded sheaves full of rich-colored fruits, a great cake under a white frosting of lilies; and in the midst of this wilderness of sweets, in the courtyard of the castle, played a clear little fountain, whose trickle was wonderfully suggestive of melted sugar.

"Couldn't you get only one checkerberry peppermint?" pleaded Will, catching at Say's dress.

"No, dear, not to-day. I haven't any pennies. Some day I will."

"Well, I can't be good without it," he announced, despairingly, and began to cry with all his might.

"Dear me!" said Say; "I ought to have known better than to stop here with him. Will, you must stop crying, or I shall take you home now. Some day I'll buy you a lot of candy, if you are good."

"Taint no use to be good," said Will, despairingly. "I has been good."

"What's the matter with the little boy?" said a gentleman, who had been standing near by for some time, strangely observant of Say's pretty wistful face under the old red hood.

"Wants candy," said Will, speaking for himself.

Say blushed and tried to draw him away from the spot; but a ray of hope had crept into his greedy little mind, and he refused to stir an inch.

"Will you tell me what your name is?" said the gentleman, coming nearer, and bending over poor mortified Say.

"My name is Sarah Fairlee Harris," said she, smiling up into his face.

"I like him. He looks good," she thought; "and he is so handsome! He looks like the picture of the brave knight in my story-book."

The gentleman changed color, and looked down at the child's ragged old boots and faded gown with an expression in his face that puzzled her very much.

"And what's the name of the boy that wants candy?" he said, pinching Will's chubby cheek.

"William," said he, smiling with great amiability through his tears.

"Well, I suppose he may as well have candy, if he wants it." And he rushed into the store before Say could say a word.

"O Will! what will mamma say? You just the same as asked the gentleman to give you candy!"

Will could not be brought to feel his guilt, but expressed himself as being confident in his own goodness, and was quite satisfied with the world just then.

In a few moments the gentleman appeared, perfectly laden with dainties. Such a reckless profusion of chocolate cream-drops, caramels, cocoa-nut cakes and kisses had never fallen to the lot of either of the children before.

"O sir, how very good you are!" Say exclaimed. "But I am afraid mamma will not like it."

As for Will, he could hardly believe his own senses; and his eyes shone as much with wonder as delight.

"Do you live near here?" asked the gentleman. "I believe I used to know your mother. I used to know her when she was a little girl, no larger than you are. Weren't you named for her? You certainly are very like the little Say Fairlee I used to go to school with."

"Why, how nice," said Say, "to think that you used to know mamma when she was a little girl! I was named for her; papa named me."

There was a bit of a cloud on her friend's face when she named papa that did not escape Say's notice.

"If you used to know mamma once, p'raps you'd like to know her again. And I wish you'd come home with us," said she, artlessly. "I'd like to have you dine with us, and so would mamma, I'm sure, only"—and she hesitated—"we ain't going to have turkey or plum-pudding; not a nice dinner at all. We are very poor, you know, and mamma has had to work very hard since papa died to get any dinners."

"Then your papa is dead?"

"Yes," said Say, sorrowfully, "he's been dead ever since Will was a wee bit of a baby—a very long time." And she did not approve of the gentleman as highly as she had done, because he really looked pleased that her papa was dead.

"I should be delighted to go home with you," said he. "I'm a stranger in the village, and a hotel Thanksgiving dinner isn't likely to make one feel very thankful."

"I'm afraid you won't like our dinner; it's pretty bad, but then, we can have cocoa-nut cakes for dessert, you bought so many."

But before they reached home, her fears on that score had entirely vanished, and she was sure that Mr. Marsh—he had told her what his name was—was the very nicest gentleman she ever saw, as well as the handsomest. She chatted with him incessantly until she reached the door of their house. She confided to him all her little trials, all her little joys, and all mamma's grief and trouble, and he listened to her with such an interested, sympathetic face!

"Won't mamma be s'prised!" she said, leading the way into the poor little kitchen, that served them as dining-room and sitting-room also. And mamma was "s'prised" when she saw the tall stranger enter in such an unceremonious way.

"I invited some one to dinner!" explained Say, triumphantly.

"You surely haven't forgotten me entirely, Sarah?" said the stranger, approaching her, and holding out his hand.

"Frank!" she exclaimed; and grew so white that Say feared she was ill.

Then, to the little girl's utter amazement, what did Mr. Marsh do, but put his arms around her and kiss her! Say's sense of propriety was dreadfully shocked, and she looked on with severity.

But things grew worse and worse. Mamma placed her hand on his shoulder, and cried, and he comforted her with all sorts of endearing words and tender assurances. And they talked about things that she did not understand at all—something about a mistake, and losing a letter; and all the while they seemed to forget that there was any one else but themselves in the world.

"My dear little Say," said Mr. Marsh, at last, after they had said everything they had to say, ten times over, according to Say's idea, and the forgotten dinner had grown quite cold on the table, "you don't know how dear a friend your mamma was to me. Do you know she promised to marry me long before ever she saw your papa? Then something happened—a mistake was made, and we were separated. She thought that I had ceased to care for her, and I thought she had ceased to care for me; and we never found out the truth of the matter until it was too late. And now, after I have missed her all these long years, she has promised again to be my wife; and if I have my way, we are to be married this very day. What do you say, Say—will you be ashamed to have me for a papa? Are you glad you invited me to come and dine with you?"

Then Say repented of her severity, and accepted him as her papa very graciously.

"Mamma," she whispered, full of delight to see her so happy, "I think this is the thankfullest Thanksgiving we ever had, after all!" And Will, with his mouth full of the remnants of the candy-feast, agreed with her fully.

It was a thankful Thanksgiving truly; and after that there was a very different life for Say, and her mother, and Will. Mr. Marsh was a rich man, and he took them away from the miserable little place where they lived, to his own beautiful home in town the very next day. He and Mrs. Harris were married in the morning, and Say stood by her mother's side during the ceremony, the most dignified little bridesmaid in the world. And though she has never since then been obliged to eat a cold dinner in a smoky little kitchen, she looks back to it as the most delightful Thanksgiving day of her life. And so indeed do Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marsh, for its thankfulness has reached through all their other Thanksgiving days.

New England Thanksgiving.

It is November. The month of the year when chickens and turkeys go to roost nightly with fear and trembling, and shiver with apprehension at each approaching footstep; and as for the unhappy geese, they are goose-flesh all over with fright.

The proclamation is out, and Thanksgiving is at hand.

Grandma has read the Governor's primly-worded document through her steel-bowed spectacles, and pronounced it a real "pious" and "sensible" document.

The last Thursday in November, as usual.

She and Sally have talked over the number of kinds of pies it will be necessary to have; and the momentous question of roasting or broiling the chickens has been discussed, and the best way of serving up a turkey has been settled upon, and it is decided to have boiled cabbage and beets, by way of salad.

Charlie is coming home from Boston, and he likes apple "dowdy" and cream, and so that old-fashioned dish must have a place on the Thanksgiving dinner-table.

Then there is Sadie, who has a peculiar fondness for baked sweet apple pudding, and Sadie's taste is respected and provided for accordingly.

And Henry could eat his weight in mince pie, and Annie prefers her chicken fricasseed, and she is going to bring the baby, and the baby is crazy after jumbles.

What a bustle and stir prevails in the old farmhouse in preparation for Thanksgiving.

What stewing and roasting and boiling are going on.

The kitchen is redolent of the smell of meats and savory stuffings, and spiced pies, and luscious condiments.

Egg shells strew the back yard, and the few disconsolate-looking biddies who have escaped the grand slaughter, linger forlornly around, and peck shyly at the shells, and cackle, and retire precipitately when they hear the sound of an opening door anywhere. All their gay assurance of manner is gone, and the very rooster has ceased his lordly magnificence of strut, and, with his tail at half-mast, sneaks around and cuts short his sonorous crow, and hides behind the barn whenever he sees anybody who knows about Thanksgiving approaching.

Everybody is busy.

Such quantities of raisins to be stoned, and such lots of currants to be picked over and washed. And it is such a job to pick over currants. And there is the sugar to be sifted, and the eggs to be beaten, and such wonderful pyramids of cake to construct and frost and spot with currant jelly.

The night before Thanksgiving all the cupboards and pantries are crowded with the tempting good things, and the family, tired but happy, put on their "good clothes," and wait for the train—for, alas! the days are over when stage coaches brought the loved absent ones to the very door, and the driver got his drink of sweet cider and his hands full of doughnuts out of the household fund of edibles and overflowing happiness.

Thanksgiving! Holiday long observed and honored! Season of feasting and marriages—of rejoicing and festivity! Happy for those who have dear ones to come home and gather around the board! doubly sad for those whose kindred have taken the long journey from which no proclamation of Thanksgiving can bring them back!—Kate Thorn.

Household Fables.

"How many thumbs?" smilingly asks the sitting-room carpet, looking up at its colleague, the battered stove-pipe. With a wink at its disjointed elbow, the stove-pipe, riveting its gaze on its friend, replies, "Only three, but I've raked enough skin off the other knuckles to make a pair of boots." Chucklingly responds the carpet, "Not so well as you did last year. I got a couple of finger-nails, two whole trousers' knees, started a good crop of hang-nails on every finger in the house, and I think I have a divorce suit pending." "That's a pretty good spread," replies the pipe, and then, turning to an exhausted tack-hammer that was resting itself on the window-sill, asked, "How is your score?" "Oh, don't ask me," gasped the tack-hammer. "I've been busier than the Master's gavel on a Chapter night. I haven't missed but one knuckle since I started in, and then I caught the ball of a thumb, plumb center, and raised a blood blister as big as a walnut." And then the graceless trio smiled in silent chorus, and an old rheumatic mop that was standing on the porch listening to the conversation through the keyhole bumped itself against the door in an ecstasy of delight, and fell fainting across the wheelbarrow with one leg that was waiting on the walk for somebody to come along and fall over it.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

THE DEADLY COAL-MINE.

Fearful Explosion in a Pennsylvania Colliery.

[Scranton (Pa.) Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

A terrific explosion of fire-damp took place this morning in the Sumyn colliery, within the city limits, while the mine was in operation, killing and injuring a number of men and boys, and producing a scene of the most intense excitement. About 200 workmen were in the mine when the accident occurred, little dreaming of danger until they were enveloped in the awful darkness which followed the flash and the underground tempest by which they were overtaken. The explosion occurred nearly 2,800 feet from the foot of the shaft, where a force of workmen were building a cross-cut to regulate the course of the air in a distant portion of the colliery. It is supposed that one of their lamps was held too high, and came in contact with the explosive gas which usually seeks the surface. Then followed an appalling scene. The thundering shock was felt throughout the mine, and made the massive breaker above the shaft shake like an aspen leaf from base to tower. Men felt the coal-pillars which they clasped torn from their grasp and shattered into fragments. Mine props were swept from their places. Coal-cars were overturned and demolished, and mules were carried several chambers distant, and their drivers buried in the debris of the chaos. A miner named Malia, standing at the foot of the shaft, nearly 2,000 feet from the scene of the occurrence, was flung bodily into the dump, and the coal car by which he stood upset over him. In some instances loaded cars were swept twenty yards away. As soon as the storm had spent its force, those who had escaped unhurt proceeded to assist their less-fortunate comrades. At a short distance from the fearful spot Antony Collins and Patrick Brennan were found buried beneath a heap of rocks and coal, and moaning piteously. They were set free and carried out in a dying condition. Both are badly burned and lacerated about the head and body. They cannot possibly recover, although at last accounts they were still alive. A driver boy named Luke Burns was found lying crushed beneath a shattered coal-car, with one of his legs almost torn off. His recovery is doubtful. William Lanyon, of Green Ridge, was found with a leg broken. Max Phillips, of Ward street, was frightfully burned, the flesh almost dropping from his bones. He is also internally injured and cannot live. Mr. Metz is terribly burned and mangled, and several others are more or less injured. The news of the accident spread like wildfire, and men, women, and children ran from all parts of the city to the mouth of the shaft, each peering anxiously forward to see the faces of those brought up from the dismal depth, and fearful lest some dear friend had met his fate.

George Francis Train as a Witness.

Mr. Train stood up. He waved off the Bible which was handed him and professed himself ready to affirm.

"You do solemnly, sincerely and truly declare and affirm," the clerk began.

"No, no; not solemnly. I object to the word 'solemnly.'" But the court explained that it was necessary, and Mr. Train graciously overlooked the point, and Col. Scovel began the questioning:

Q. Where do you live? A. Madison square, New York.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am a loafer. [Great laughter.] I have no occupation. I sit ten hours a day in Madison square as a bummer and loafer. I have no business.

Q. You are a gentleman at large? A. I am a large gentleman. [Laughter.] Have been traveler, merchant, railway builder, lecturer, painter, author, and I have been in jail.

Q. On the charge of insanity? A. On charge of obscenity [laughter] at the time of my Presidential campaign.—New York Sun.

American Art.

W. W. Story, the sculptor, has been talking to a writer in the Boston Herald about the growth of American art abroad, and how it compares with that of other countries. He does not think that our painting is anything to brag of, but, as to sculpture, he says: "It has developed to such a degree that I think it compares excellently with England, or almost any other art nation. The idea of building soldiers' monuments has given a considerable impetus to American art. Some very fine ones have been made in Rome." Of American artists abroad, Mr. Story says that Florence is becoming a more favorite place for them than Rome, and that generally there is among them much genuine good-fellowship.

Seven Years a Military Prisoner.

Lieut. Lebrun, of the French artillery, who for the last seven years has been a prisoner in Germany, has just succeeded in escaping and has arrived in France. That officer was made captive at Sedan, and was interned at Strasbourg when the peace was signed. He quarreled with a German officer in a cafe, and in the heat of the moment slapped his face. For that offense he was condemned to ten years' imprisonment. He reached Marseilles through Austria, Italy and Genoa.

AT the mouth of the Humber river, England, is an island which 130 years ago comprised an area of two and a half square miles. Subsequently it came into the possession of the crown, which granted new leases on condition that at least 2,700 acres of alluvial deposits which had accumulated around the original embankment should be reclaimed. Not only was this secured, but as further deposits were made they also were reclaimed. In 1875 the lease fell in and the island was relet for $67,250 a year. It has still plenty of room to grow.

THE OLD TRAMP.

Good morning, boys, and how is biz? I'm a seedy-looking tramp;
You see, last night my little bed was just a trifle damp;
I missed the train—that's funny, too—and then I walked the rail;
I found my bed, as I always do, when the [illegible] fail.

Last night I dreamt a dream, and I wish I'd never woke—
Yes, boys, I dreamt I lived again before I took this yoke;
I saw the forms of other days—they've climbed the golden hill;
I mingled with a homely throng— wish it were so still.

'Twas a banquet spread in that old home, and all were gathered there,
[illegible] around the festal board—[illegible] faces there;
You see I lived my life again, ah, happy days so bright,
As I slept on my dew-damp bed in the darkness of last night.

A poor tramp printer has a heart beneath his ragged garb;
[illegible] have felt his barb;
And, strangers, when I woke this morn, with cramps and mental pain,
May God forgive my wicked wish—to never wake again.

I've made some justification in this [illegible], battered form,
And my benzine wash I've thrown aside, it's brought to me much harm;
My proof has been corrected, a revise will needed be,
For He who searcheth hearts will many errors see.

My tramp is almost ended now—old age will win the race;
You see my hands are trembly, and I cannot hold a case,
But I've made an application at the city built of gold,
And I long to hear the answer: "'Tis a case that you can hold."

PITH AND POINT.

AUTUMN leaves—Just before the first of December.

NO MAN can make any headway playing poker with a man who holds a hectic flush.

A GOOD many theatrical ventures nowadays begin with bill-board and end with board-bill.

IF a miller was to sell four bags of flour to an authoress, what would he be pretty sure to do? Answer—He would take her four sacks home.

SILLY-GISM.—Major: In all guns of great caliber you find a great bore. Minor: In a man of small caliber you find a great bore. Conclusion: A man of small caliber may easily pass for a great gun.—Harvard Lampoon.

A YOUNG POET'S LAMENT.

'Twas ever thus, from childhood's time,
I've seen my fondest hopes decay.
I ne'er sent in a little rhyme
But what it was returned next day.
I never offered e'en a verse,
A poem, ballad, or a sonnet,
But what, and oft with muttered curse,
The editor sat down upon it.

—New York Commercial.

COULD anything be more polite or considerate than this of "the gentlemanly Sheriff" of —— county, Ind., who, having discovered an almost successful attempt of his prisoners to break jail, rushed in upon them with drawn revolver, and exclaimed, "Gentlemen! gentlemen! desist from the further prosecution of your designs, or, by the power vested in me by the State of Indiana, I'll shoot you dead!"—Harper.

THE city chap had been out of town shooting his gun at a mark, when he suddenly turned and asked an old farmer standing near: "What's the law about shooting prairie-chickens in these parts?—when can I kill them?" "Never," was the old man's quiet response. "Never!" shouted the genteel gunner. "Never," again replied the aged plow-jogger. And then, looking from the mark on the fence to the would-be sportsman, he continued: "That is, if ye don't learn to shoot better'n ye do now, boy."

THE latest of the diagonal title series is "That Awful Boy." We dare say the young lady who wrote the same would like to get even with him for mixing prepared glue with her hair oil, putting tacks in her slippers, or hiding behind the sofa and telling at the breakfast table next morning that she had called young Sophted a dear man, and kissed twice to his once. No boy can ever have any fun in a house where there is a grown-up sister without stirring up a Nemesis that is surer than taxes, though it may be a trifle slow. Cincinnati Breakfast Table.

"How WAS the sermon this morning, my darling?" asked a fond mother of her daughter. "Oh, it was horrid, stupid and dull, ma—something about—let me see—'Thou shalt have no idols'—I don't remember exactly, for I was so put out by that silly flirt, Belle Hinesaw coming into the next pew with fourteen-button kids when I only had twelve that I couldn't keep my thoughts collected."—Cincinnati Breakfast Table.

HAWK-EYTEMS.

You can get a month of agony out of the sting of one week bumble-bee.

"Where there's swill there's away," as the pig remarked when it climbed a ten-rail fence and tunneled under an Osage hedge to get at a barrel of slop in the back yard.

"Alonzo" writes to ask who Mark Anthony was? He was an uncle of that noble old Roman, Susan B., and he was the author of the celebrated Fourth-of-July oration: "Dulcet decorum est Cleo patria mori."

Johnson's boy fell into a cistern the other day, and his mother, hooking the garden rake into the young man's suspenders, hauled him safely to the top of the cistern. And then Johnson went and called it "a raise for life."

Half an hour's practice on a piano every day will bring on fatal attacks of paralysis in eight months. (This is a lie, but, if the press will kindly assist in giving it the widest circulation, a grateful people will neither misinterpret nor fail to reward the generous and humane motive which prompts the item.)

They made ever so much more fuss in America about a little crooked whisky than they make in Egypt over a big crooked ile.

ARTIFICIAL parchment is made by dipping a sheet of strong paper into a solution of sulphuric acid, mixed with a tenth of its weight of pure water. It is held in this liquid for about three seconds, and then washed thoroughly and dried. Experiments lately made in Dresden show that the paper thus prepared has a power of resistance four times as great as before its immersion. The process is sometimes used in Germany for less delicate services, as envelopes for sausages and dynamite cartridges.

A NOTABLE COMMITTEE.

Origin of the Committee of Ways and Means—The Men Who Have Been at its Head.

(From the New York World.)

The origin in the Congress of the United States of the Committee of Ways and Means, and the names of the eminent men who have been placed at the head of this important committee during our national life, and the territorial or sectional distribution of its Chairmanship among the several States, are presented in the facts which we give below. The records of the House of Representatives exhibit the following orders:

July 24, 1789.—Ordered, That a Committee of Ways and Means, to consist of a member from each State, be appointed, to which it shall be referred to consider the report of a committee appointed to prepare an estimate of supplies requisite for the service of the United States the current year, and to report thereon. Chairman, Thomas Fitzsimmons, Pennsylvania.

Sept. 17, 1789.—Ordered, That the Committee of Ways and Means be discharged from further proceeding on the business to them referred, and that it be referred to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States to consider and report thereon.

Dec. 21, 1795.—Ordered, That a standing Committee of Ways and Means be appointed, whose duty it shall be to take into consideration all such reports of the Treasury Department and all such propositions relative to the revenue as may be referred to them by the House; to inquire into the state of the public debt, of the revenue, and of the expenditures, and to report from time to time their opinion thereon. Chairman, Mr. William Smith, South Carolina.

Dec. 24, 1795.—Ordered, That the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, accompanied with estimates of the sums necessary to be appropriated for the service of the year 1796, also statements of the application of certain sums of money granted by law, be referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

Dec. 16, 1796.—Resolved, That a standing Committee of Ways and Means be appointed, whose duty it shall be to take into consideration all such reports of the Treasury Department and all such propositions relative to the revenue as may be referred to them by the House; to inquire into the state of the public debt, of the revenue and of the expenditures, and to report from time to time their opinion thereon. Chairman, Mr. William Smith, South Carolina.

It would seem from this record that Congress began, in partial imitation of the House of Commons, by creating a committee of "supply," to which, probably, was referred the estimates coming from the President and the Treasury, and when this committee of supply reported, their report was referred, in 1789, to a Committee of Ways and Means, consisting not, as now, of nine members, but of "a member from each State." And this business was, on Sept. 17, 1789, taken from the Ways and Means Committee and referred back to the treasury for consideration and report. Under the English system at that time, the House of Commons did not vote money unless asked by the Crown. The foundation of all taxes was the declaration of the Crown that they were essential, but the Crown had no concern in the nature or distribution of the taxes. Thus it was, possibly, that the report of the Ways and Means Committee went back to the Executive for approval, since in England the Crown demanded money, the Commons granted, and the Lords assented to the grant.

In 1795 it seems that all the estimates of the treasury were sent directly to the Committee of Ways and Means, without any intervention of a committee on supply, and early in this century the present Ways and Means Committee had a permanent existence in each Congress as a select committee composed of nine members.

The records before us do not disclose clearly the constitution of the committee during the First, Second, and Third Congress, and, indeed, in those nearer our own day there is a want of precision as to dates of resignation and filling vacancies, but the following list of names of those members who have been at the head of this committee is otherwise substantially correct:

Year.	Name.	State.
1789	Thomas Fitzsimmons	Pennsylvania.
1795-7	William Smith	South Carolina.
1797-1801	Robert G. Harper	South Carolina.
1801-3	Roger Griswold	Connecticut.
1802-5	John Randolph	Virginia.
1805-7	Joseph Clay	Pennsylvania.
1807-9	George W. Campbell	Tennessee.
1809-11	John W. Eppes	Virginia.
1811-12	Ezekiel Bacon	Massachusetts.*
1812-13	Langdon Cheves	South Carolina.
1813-15	John W. Eppes	Virginia.
1815-18	William Lowndes	South Carolina.
1818-23	Samuel Smith	Maryland.
1823-7	Louis McLane	Delaware.
1827-8	John Randolph	Virginia.
1828-32	George McDuffie	South Carolina
1832-3	Gulian C. Verplanck	New York.
1833-5	James K. Polk	Tennessee.
1835-9	C. C. Cambreleng	New York.
1839-40	John W. Jones	Virginia.
1841-3	Millard Fillmore	New York.
1843-7	James J. McKay	North Carolina.
1847-9	Samuel F. Vinton	Ohio.
1849-51	Thomas H. Bayley	Virginia.
1851-5	George S. Houston	Alabama.
1855-7	Lewis D. Campbell	Ohio.
1857-60	J. Glancy Jones	Pennsylvania.
1861-3	John Sherman	Ohio.
1863-5	Thaddeus Stevens	Pennsylvania.
1865-7	Justin S. Morrill	Vermont.
1867-71	Robert C. Schenck	Ohio.
1871-5	Henry L. Dawes	Massachusetts.*
1875-7	William R. Morrison	Illinois.

From this statement it appears that the Southern States—known before the sectional war as the slave-labor States—have had the Chairmanship of the committee during much more than half the period since the Government has been in existence under the constitution, and that Virginia and South Carolina have each had the office longer than any other State—longer even than Ohio, which had it for nine years. New York has not been thus honored since 1843, when Mr. Fillmore was selected, and, since 1856, the head of the Ways and Means has been taken from the West and North.

Presidential Electors.

Mr. Eaton, of Connecticut, has introduced in the United States Senate a joint resolution amendatory of the constitution of the United States. It provides that the following article be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of said Legislatures, shall be valid as part of said constitution, viz.:

> A tribunal for the decision of all contested issues arising in the choice of electors of President and Vice President shall be appointed in each State in the following manner: Not less than twelve months prior to the time fixed by law for the choice of electors, the Governor of each State shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of the State, appoint not less than five persons learned in law and otherwise duly qualified, to whom shall be referred, in such manner as the Legislature of the State shall direct, all cases of contested elections arising in reference to electors of President and Vice President. The tribunal so constituted shall hear and determine every such contest, and certify, at least thirty days before the day on which electors shall be called upon to give their votes, their decision thereon, to the proper returning officer or officers of the State, and also transmit an authenticated copy thereof to the President of the Senate. The term of office of said tribunal shall expire upon the day fixed by law for the oath of office to be taken by the President and Vice President of the United States for the term ensuing after their appointment.

United States Land.

Maj. Powell, at the head of the geological survey of the Territories, is engaged in preparing an accurate statement of the amount of arable land owned by the Government. He divides the United States into three regions with respect to agriculture—the humid or arable, the sub-arid, and the arid. In the arable portion, which includes the country east of a line drawn from the eastern point of Lake Superior to the Gulf, the United States owns no lands not taken up. The belt of country 350 miles in width, from Canada to the Gulf adjoining that belt on the west, is the sub-arid division. In this the United States owns a considerable quantity of land which may be cultivated by irrigation. West of that, in the immense arid belt extending from the Rocky mountains into Eastern California, only 2 per cent. of the land can be cultivated, and of this per cent. 1 per cent. has already been taken up.

Gov. Morton's Disease.

The physician who predicted, thirteen years ago, Senator Morton's death exactly as it occurred, describes the way in which the Senator received the prediction. "Well," he said, after being quiet a little while, "I fear, doctor, there is more the matter with me than I have been aware of. Tell me what you think of my case, of the danger to life, of the possibility of recovery." I did so; I told him frankly that his disease was one from which none, or almost none, recovered; that it was one which was almost always, sooner or later, fatal. I saw from his face that it was an awful blow to him. But in a few moments it was over, and his face was as placid as any man's.

The cynical Philadelphia Times says: "People will go on in future ages as in the past, marrying where they ought not, and when they ought not, and whom they ought not. Nobody can rescue a person in love."

Mrs. General Sherman,

Wife of the General of the United States Army, says: "I have frequently purchased Durang's Rheumatic Remedy for friends suffering with Rheumatism, and in every instance it worked like magic." Send for circular to Helphenstine & Bentley, Druggists, Washington, D. C.

To Worry the Liver

And injure the system generally, take blue pills and calomel. To regulate it and endow the entire system with healthful vigor, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Bilious invalids, which of these two recipes will you adopt? We doubt not, the latter. By so doing, you will avoid the disastrous consequences which the persistent or frequent use of mercury entails, and effectuate the desired reform in the action of the biliary gland without danger, as well as speedily and thoroughly. The Bitters invariably remedy yellowness of the complexion and whites of the eyes, pains in the right side and under the right shoulder-blade, furred tongue, high-colored urine, nausea, vertigo, dyspepsia, constipation, heaviness of the head, mental despondency, and every other manifestation or accompaniment of a disordered condition of the liver. The stomach, bowels and kidneys also experience their regulating and tonic influence.

Gleason's Publications.

Great reduction in price for 1878 of GLEASON'S PICTORIAL to $2 a year. Single copies 5 cents.

The HOME CIRCLE to $2 a year, single copies 5 cents; for sale by all newsdealers.

GLEASON'S MONTHLY COMPANION to $1 a year, single copies 10 cents. All postage free.

The price of Chromos has just been greatly reduced. No one now gives such liberal terms to agents as we do. Send for new free circular. Address F. GLEASON & Co., 738 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

True Economy.

It has been found that the only true economy is that which stops the little leaks and saves in trifles. For instance, one saves in milk, butter, eggs and flour by the use of DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER, which is made from the purest cream-tartar, derived from grape-acid. Good housewives have proved this by experience.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

"Durang's Rheumatic Remedy," the great Internal Medicine, will positively cure any case of rheumatism on the face of the earth. Price, $1 a bottle, six bottles, $5. Sold by all druggists. Send for circular to Helphenstine & Bentley, Druggists, Washington, D. C.

BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS.—There is no subject which should more engross attention than the purity of the preparations which are used in flavoring the various compounds prepared for the human stomach. BURNETT'S EXTRACTS are prepared from fruits of the best quality, and are highly concentrated. The "Fifth Avenue," "Continental," "Grand Pacific" and other leading hotels use and indorse BURNETT'S EXTRACTS.

CHEW
The Celebrated
"MATCHLESS"
Wood Tag Plug
TOBACCO.
THE PIONEER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New York, Boston and Chicago.

GIVEN AWAY.—A superb pair of 9x12 Chromos, worthy to frame and adorn any home, and a Three-Months' subscription to LEISURE HOURS, a charming 16-page literary paper, full of the Choicest Stories, Poetry, etc. Sent Free to all sending Fifteen Cents (stamps taken) to pay postage. The Publishers, J. L. Patten & Co., 162 William St., N. Y. Guarantee every one Double Value of money sent. $1,500 in prizes, and big pay, given to agents. Write at once!

BEFORE YOU Subscribe for any paper, send for a copy of the TOLEDO BLADE (Nasby's Paper), the best News and Family Paper in the United States. Specimen copies FREE. Address THE BLADE, Toledo, Ohio.

THE GREAT REGULATOR.
SIMMONS REGULATOR
PURELY VEGETABLE.
An Effectual Specific for
Malarious Fevers,
Bowel Complaints, Dyspepsia,
Mental Depression,
Restlessness,
Jaundice,
Nausea, Colic,
Sick Headache,
Constipation and Biliousness.
ASK the recovered dyspeptics, Bilious sufferers, victims of Fever and Ague, the mercurial diseased patient, how they recovered health, cheerful spirits and good appetite—they will tell you by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator.
This justly celebrated medicine regulates the Liver, promotes digestion, and fortifies the system against malarial diseases.
Extract of a letter from Hon. Alexander H. Stephens: "I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect. It is mild, and suits me better than more active remedies."
CONSTIPATION.
TESTIMONY OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF GEORGIA.—"I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it."—HIRAM WARNER, Chief Justice of Georgia.
ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Price, $1.00. Sold by all Druggists.

MADAME FOY'S PATENT
GLOVE-FITTING CORSETS.
The friends of this UNRIVALLED CORSET are now numbered by MILLIONS. Prices are much reduced. MEDAL RECEIVED AT CENTENNIAL. Get the Genuine, and beware of Imitations. ASK ALSO FOR THOMSON'S UNBREAKABLE STEELS. The best goods made. See that the name of THOMSON and the Trade Mark a CROWN are stamped on every Corset & Steel.

COMFORT
SURPASSES
COMPLETE SATISFACTION
FITS THE FIGURE PERFECTLY

WHITNEY & HOLMES
ORGANS.
The Finest Toned and Most Durable Made.
New Styles. New Solo Stops.
Warranted Five Years. Send for Price-Lists.
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., QUINCY, ILL.

"The Best Polish in the World."
THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH

AGENTS WANTED!
FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS
WILSON SEWING MACHINE CO.
829 Broadway, New York City;
Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.;
or San Francisco, Cal.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT.

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay FULL PRICE for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $6. Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss WILL CURE more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

PRINTERS
SHOULD [illegible] PRINTING PRESSES
AND [illegible] SMALL FONTS OF
[illegible]
BENTON, GOVE & CO.
MILWAUKEE, WIS.

TEACHERS of VOCAL MUSIC,
Desiring the Best Book extant, should try
FAVORITE SONGS
An unequaled collection of Gems compiled for their use by Profs. H. R. and T. H. R. Christie, and supervised by Prof. R. M. McIntosh, the eminent author and teacher. Price $6.00 a dozen. Sample by mail, 50 cents. SPECIMEN PAGES FREE. R. W. CARROLL & CO., Publishers, Cincinnati, or LYON & HEALY, Chicago.

JACKSON'S BEST
SWEET NAVY CHEWING TOBACCO
was awarded the highest prize at Centennial Exposition for its fine chewing qualities, the excellence and lasting character of its sweetening and flavoring. If you want the best tobacco ever made, ask your grocer for this, and see that each plug bears our blue-strip trade-mark, with words Jackson's Best on it. Sold wholesale by all jobbers. Send for sample to C. A. JACKSON & CO., Manufacturers, Petersburg, Va.

NATURE'S REMEDY.
VEGETINE
THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.
GOOD FOR THE CHILDREN.
BOSTON HOME, 14 Tyler street,
Boston, April, 1876.
H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—We feel that the children in our Home have been greatly benefited by the VEGETINE you have so kindly given us from time to time, especially those troubled with the Scrofula.
With respect,
MRS. N. WORMELL, Matron.
Vegetine is Sold by All Druggists.

CONSUMPTION CURED.
An old physician, retired from practice, having received from an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections; also a cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions. Address, with stamp, W. W. SHERAR, 16 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

KEEP'S SHIRTS—only one quality—The Best. Keep's Patent Partly-Made Dress Shirts can be finished as easy as hemming a Handkerchief. The very best, six for $7.00. Keep's Custom Shirts—made to measure. The very best, six for $9.00. An elegant set of genuine Gold-Plate Collar and Sleeve Buttons given with each half doz. Keep's Shirts. Keep's Shirts are delivered FREE on receipt of price in any part of the Union—no express charges to pay. Samples, with full directions for self-measurement, sent Free to any address. No stamp required. Deal directly with the Manufacturer and get Bottom Prices. Keep Manufacturing Co., 165 Mercer St., N.Y.

BABBITT'S TOILET SOAP.

Unrivalled for the Toilet and the Bath. No artificial and deceptive odors to cover common and deleterious ingredients. After years of scientific experiment the manufacturer of B. T. Babbitt's Best Soap has perfected and now offers to the public The FINEST TOILET SOAP in the World. Only the purest vegetable oils used in its manufacture.
For Use in the Nursery it has No Equal.
Worth ten times its cost to every mother and family in Christendom. Sample box, containing 3 cakes of 6 ozs. each, sent free to any address on receipt of 75 cents. Address
B. T. BABBITT, New York City.
For Sale by all Druggists.

ALL FOR 3 CTS.! An Unparalleled Offer! Upon receipt of only 3 cts. (stamp or silver), we will send a copy of our large, new and beautiful Lithographic Engraving, entitled "The Proffered Kiss," also a specimen copy of "The Cricket on the Hearth," a mammoth 16-page, 64-column illustrated paper, (size of Harper's Weekly), filled with splendid Continued and Short Stories, Sketches, Poems, Useful Knowledge, Wit and Humor, etc., etc. Just the paper for the Home Circle, and the Largest, Handsomest, Best, and Cheapest of its class in the world. This Great Offer is made to introduce it into New Homes. Don't miss this chance. Write Now! Address F. M. LUPTON & CO., Publishers, 346 Broadway, New York.

10,000 A YEAR.
It is estimated that this number die yearly in the United States of CONSUMPTION.
ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will at once allay the pain and irritated parts, stop the cough, and prevent what would be consumption. All persons with weak Lungs, or afflicted with Cough, should at once test the merits of this good Cough and Lung Balsam.
Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

THE GOOD OLD STAND-BY.
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
FOR MAN AND BEAST.
ESTABLISHED 35 YEARS. Always cures. Always ready. Always handy. Has never yet failed. Thirty millions have tested it. The whole world approves the glorious old Mustang—the Best and Cheapest Liniment in existence. 25 cents a bottle. The Mustang Liniment cures when nothing else will.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE VENDERS.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED
The prevention and cure of CONSUMPTION, as also of Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the LUNGS and THROAT, may be realized in
PULMONA,
which is also recommended as a certain and radical cure for all general and special derangements of the Nervous System, Disorders of the Blood, and FUNCTIONAL Disorders of the STOMACH and BOWELS, and as a general BRAIN, NERVE and BLOOD TONIC.
PULMONA banishes, with wonderful rapidity, all the usual symptoms of CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. It imparts strength and color to the pale blood, subdues the CHILLS and FEVER, and diminishes the expectoration. It checks the NIGHT SWEATS, invigorates the appetite, relieves the cough and difficult breathing, stops the wasting of flesh, and induces a calm and refreshing sleep.
PULMONA is adapted to every disease, however called by name, in which is exhibited any derangement of either the NERVOUS or the BLOOD SYSTEMS. For Female Disorders it is positively unequaled.
PULMONA supplies the place of "Cough Mixtures" for the Cough, "Tonics" for the Appetite, "Expectorants" for the Expectoration, Anodynes for the Nervous Irritation, and Iron for the Blood, and thus is both the best and the most economical medicine that can be taken. By a specific action upon the Constitutional Condition it reaches and has a direct effect upon the whole series of symptoms. PULMONA is confidently recommended in all cases wherein are exhibited any one or more of the following symptoms:
COUGH, DIFFICULTY OR IRREGULARITY OF BREATHING, WASTING OF THE FLESH, LOSS OF APPETITE OR STRENGTH, BLEEDING FROM THE LUNGS, GENERAL DEBILITY, FLYING PAINS THROUGH THE CHEST, LIMBS OR FACE, NERVOUS HEADACHE, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, NIGHT SWEATS, DIZZINESS OR VERTIGO, SORE THROAT, SLEEPLESSNESS, INDIGESTION, SINKING OF THE STOMACH, REMITTENT FEVER, and especially in all Female Diseases or Uterine Irregularities.
Read the Following Certificates.
COLLEGE HILL, CINCINNATI, O.—"I was in the last stage of Consumption. Ten days after taking PULMONA my Chills, Night Sweats, Fever, &c., decreased, and finally ceased altogether. My restored health is a marvel to all who know me."—T. J. CARSON.
"PULMONA saved my daughter's life, and probably saved me hundreds of dollars."—REV. E. JONES, Remsen, N. Y.
"We bless God for the benefit we received from your PULMONA."—REV. P. WARREN, Canton, Pa.
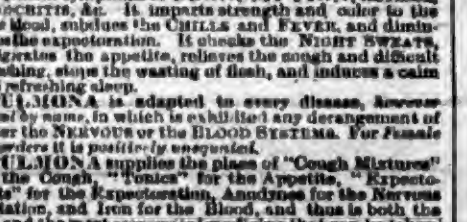
A SUFFERER FROM ASTHMA writes: "Your PULMONA is decidedly the best remedy we have ever had, and the only one that has produced entirely favorable results."—GEO. M. GRAHAM, Amsterdam, N. Y.
The price of the PULMONA is $1 per bottle. It may be obtained through Druggists generally, or directly from the Proprietor, OSCAR G. MOSES, 18 Cortlandt Street, New York. Send for free circular, containing particulars of MANY cases successfully treated.

GRACE'S
SALVE



A VEGETABLE PREPARATION,
Invented in the 17th century by Dr. William Grace, Surgeon in King James' army. Through its agency he cured thousands of the most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor. 25 cents a box. For Sale by Druggists generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, 86 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.
Absolutely Pure.
All Grocers authorized to guarantee it full weight, and absolutely pure.
To try it, send 60 cents for 1-pound can to ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., N. Y.
Sent by mail free of postage.

$10 to $25 A DAY SURE made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent, postpaid, for 85 Cents. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, Boston. [Established 1830.]

$1.00 $1.00
Osgood's Heliotype Engravings.
The choicest household ornaments. Price One Dollar each. Send for catalogue.
JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO.,
BOSTON, MASS.
$1.00 $1.00

TO ADVERTISERS! We will send free to all applicants who do any newspaper advertising, the THIRD EDITION of
AYER & SON'S MANUAL
FOR ADVERTISERS. 160 8vo. pp. More complete than any which have preceded it. Gives the names, circulation, and advertising rates of several thousand newspapers in the United States and Canada, and contains more information of value to an advertiser than can be found in any other publication. All lists have been carefully revised, and where practicable prices have been reduced. The special offers are numerous and unusually advantageous. Be sure to send for it before spending any money in newspaper advertising. Address N. W. AYER & SON, ADVERTISING AGENTS, Times Building, Philadelphia.

Ladies' Elegant Imitation Rose Coral Set, Brooch and Eardrops, sent post-paid to any reader of this paper for 25 cents. Three sets for 50 cents. Imitation CORAL SLEEVE BUTTONS to match 25 cents per set, or three sets for 50 cents. Elegant Necklaces with Charms, $1 each. Currency or Postage Stamps. Extra Inducements to Agents.
BRIDE & CO.,
11 Clinton Place,
New York City.

Burnett's Cocoaine
Prevents the Hair from Falling.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Promotes its Healthy Growth.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Is not Greasy nor Sticky.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Leaves no Disagreeable Odor.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Subdues Refractory Hair.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Soothes the Irritated Scalp-Skin.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Affords the Richest Lustre.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Is not an Alcoholic Wash.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Kills Dandruff.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Gives New Life to the Hair.
Burnett's Cocoaine
Remains Longest in Effect.

BURNETT'S
KALLISTON
FOR THE SKIN
TRADE MARK
As a wash for the complexion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc., curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes and other annoying insects. The Kalliston is highly recommended
After Shaving,
Softening the beard and rendering the skin smooth.
In the Nursery,
Peculiarly adapted to the bathing of Infants. A few drops sufficient for a bowl of water.
For Chapped Hands,
An effective application.
After Sea-Bathing,
Relieving the disagreeable action of the salt water and the sun.
A Wash for the Head,
Cooling, Cleansing and Refreshing.
For Bites of Mosquitoes and other Insects,
Neutralizing the poison almost instantaneously.
To allay Heat and Irritation of the Skin, to remove Dandruff, to prevent the Hair from falling off, and promote its vigorous growth.
Apply the Kalliston thoroughly with a sponge or soft brush. For the Hair it should be applied night and morning.
The greatest efficacy of the COCOAINE is best secured by a perfect cleansing, before its application, of the hair and scalp (for which purpose the KALLISTON is recommended, because its ingredients are co-operative with those of COCOAINE), under which circumstances it allays irritation, removes all tendency to dandruff, and invigorates the action of the capillaries in the highest degree.
Prepared only by JOSEPH BURNETT & CO. Boston. For sale by all Druggists.

BOOK AGENTS, TAKE NOTICE!
JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE
Has "wrote another book," and it is really
SAMANTHA AT THE CENTENNIAL!
As a P. A. and P. I. outdoes herself, and WIDOW DOODLE leaves BETSY BOBBET far behind. Don't wait and lose your chance; send for circulars, territory, &c., at once. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O., and HARTFORD, CONN.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES FOR COUGHS AND COLDS
A
Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat,
Requires immediate attention, as neglect oftentimes results in some incurable Lung disease. BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES are a simple remedy, and will almost invariably give immediate relief.
SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS and dealers in medicines.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

$50 to $75 a week with our popular Books, Bibles, Chromos & Maps. Goodspeed's Empire House, Chicago.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

WORTHINGTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Evanston. Send for circular to Chicago, Ill.

GUNS REVOLVERS. Price-List free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

$3300 A YEAR. How to Make it. [illegible] COE & YONGE, St. Louis, Mo.

PAT [illegible] for Wood-Sawing; fancy work, 12 designs, 12c postpaid. J. JAY GOULD, Boston, Mass.

WANTED—Ladies and Gentlemen open for engagement in light, respectable and profitable employment at home. No peddling. Address, with stamp, W. ABBOTT & CO., Box 371, Defiance, Ohio.

WANTED—Lady Agents in every city, town and village in the United States and Canada. Every lady will become your customer. Business permanent and profitable. No letters answered unless stamp is inclosed. G. E. Wilson & Co., 39 Exchange Building, Chicago, Ill.

$2500 a year. Agents wanted everywhere. Business strictly legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

$$$ Persons, male or female, old or young, who desire liberal pay for honest industry, address W. F. SEMPLE & CO., Mt. Vernon, O.

$350 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED 36 best selling articles in the world; one sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & CO., Chicago, Ill.

BEATTY Piano, Organ best. Look! startling news. Organs, 13 stops $55. Pianos only $130, cost $650. Cir. Free. Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

$400 A MONTH. AGENTS WANTED. 250 of the latest novelties. Send for Catalog. VAN & CO., Chicago.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 35 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

PENSIONS Procured, or NO PAY, for every wounded, ruptured, accidentally injured or diseased Soldier. Address Col. N. W. FITZGERALD, U. S. Claim Att'y, Washington, D. C.

NASBY. A novel by this celebrated Humorist, and eight other charming stories, all for 25 cents. Would cost $5.00 in book form. Address BLADE, Toledo, Ohio.

SUNSHINE A 16-page monthly, for one year; 1 fine Chromo; Box of Fine French Stationery; Centennial Puzzle; Pair Sleeve-Buttons and Magic Pen. All for 25c. AGENTS WANTED. SUNSHINE PUBLISHING CO., 116 East Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

SELF-INKING TRIUMPH PRINTING PRESS, $5.50; Outfit & Press, $8.50. Young America hand & self-inkers the best for business. Send 2 stamps for catalogue to D. W. WATSON, 73 Cornhill, Boston, Mass.

CLOCKS E. INGRAHAM & CO.'S are superior in design and not equaled in quality, or as timekeepers. Ask your Jeweler for them. Manufactory—Bristol, Ct.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.
BEST AND CHEAPEST in the WORLD For Cash or Installments. Send for Illustrated Catalogues. AGENTS Wanted. Horace Waters & Sons, 40 E. 14th St., N. Y.

BOSTON WEEKLY TRANSCRIPT
The best family newspaper published; eight pages; fifty-six columns reading.
Terms—$2 per annum; clubs of eleven, $15 per annum, in advance.
SPECIMEN COPY GRATIS.

WORK FOR ALL
In their own localities, canvassing for the Fireside Visitor (enlarged), Weekly and Monthly. Largest Paper in the World, with Mammoth Chromos Free. Big Commissions to Agents. Terms and Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

NEW DISCOVERY.
Cure for PILES. Not a quack's worthless stuff, but an honest remedy, discovered by one who suffered for many years, who was pronounced by the leading physicians of New York as incurable, but cured himself in ten days. Has tested the merits of the remedy on nearly 100 cases, and now offers $100 for any case of Piles he cannot cure. Remedy, with full instructions, $1.00. GEO. E. WILSON, 39 Exchange Building, Chicago, Ill.

BOYS AND GIRLS Wanted Everywhere to send for a sample copy of "The Home Companion," beyond dispute the cheapest and best young folks' paper published. An immense circulation built up in 4 years. Great premiums for getting up clubs, including Organs, Gold Watches, &c. Only 50c a year. Eight pages full of puzzles, stories & choicest reading. Samples and terms free. S. L. THORPE, Publisher, 14 Bolivar St., Cleveland, O.

THE QUARTERLY
Cancer Journal.
CONTAINING the causes and treatment of Cancer during the past thirty years. Over 800 cases under the new treatment. Edited by Robt. S. Newton, M. D., Professor of Surgery, Eclectic Medical College of the City of New York. Subscription—$1 00 Per Annum; Single Numbers, 25 Cents.
Address ROBT. S. NEWTON,
No. 1 Livingston Place, New York.

Send for Reduced Price-List of
MASON & HAMLIN
CABINET ORGANS.
NEW and SPLENDID STYLES; PRICES REDUCED $10 to $50 EACH THIS MONTH (NOV., 1877). Address MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., Boston, New York, or Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
Creative Science;
Or, MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD, AND THEIR MUTUAL INTER-RELATIONS; LOVE, ITS LAWS, POWER, ETC.
Agents are selling from 15 to 25 copies a day. Send for specimen pages and our extra terms to Agents, and see why it sells faster than any other book. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

SANDAL-WOOD.
A positive remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs; also, good in Dropsical Complaints. It never produces sickness, is certain and speedy in its action. It is fast superseding all other remedies. Sixty capsules cure in six or eight days. No other medicine can do this.
Beware of Imitations, for, owing to its great success, many have been offered; some are most dangerous, causing piles, &c.
DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S Genuine Soft Capsules, containing Oil of Sandal-Wood, sold at all Drug Stores. Ask for circular, or send for one to 35 and 37 Wooster street, New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

The Lakeside Library. Good Cheap Reading for Winter Evenings.

The aim of THE LAKESIDE LIBRARY is to produce cheap, clearly printed, handsomely illustrated, unabridged, and unaltered reprints of the Best Books of the Best Authors.

The type used is a large, clear, open letter, which can be read with ease and comfort.

Send us an order for one dollar's worth, and you will receive enough pleasant and entertaining reading for the long evenings of a month or more.

There is no pleasure so cheap and so lasting. The Entire Household is benefited and made happy for a month, at the cost of One Dollar!

Beware of cheap, poorly executed Counterfeits and Imitations of our popular LAKESIDE LIBRARY editions. They are printed in a miserably small, unreadable type, whose perusal will soon dim or even utterly destroy the strongest eyesight. Their dishonorable publishers endeavor to deceive the public by Counterfeiting our name as closely as they dare, and imitating our size and general appearance. See that you get only THE LAKESIDE LIBRARY and look out for the Frauds and Counterfeits.

Sample illustration from "The Survivors of The Chancellor," No. 96.

$15.75 FOR ONE DOLLAR.
Rosine, by J. C. Whyte-Melville, 7 illustrations. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $1.25.) A vivid story of the French Revolution.
Guy Livingstone, by Geo. Lawrence. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $1.00.) One of the most celebrated books of late years.
Survivors of the Chancellor, by Verne, 36 illus. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $3.00.) A realistic story of adventures.
To the North Pole, by Jules Verne, 77 illus. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $3.00.) A masterpiece of entertaining story-telling.
Field of Ice, by Jules Verne, 77 illustrations. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $2.00.) A sequel to the above, and equally absorbing.
Jack, by Alphonse Daudet, Author of "Sidonie," etc. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $1.00.) Superior to the famous "Sidonie."
Hunchback of Notre Dame, by Victor Hugo. With 30 illustrations. Price, 20 cents. (Ordinary price, without illustrations $2.00.)
Terrible Temptation, by Charles Reade. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $2.00.) One of his master pieces of word painting.
The Talisman, by Sir Walter Scott. Price, 10 cents. (Price in ordinary book form, $1.00.) One of the most famous books of the great Scottish novelist.
The above list of Attractive and Entertaining Books by Celebrated Authors, costing $15.75 in ordinary book form, cloth bindings, will be sent in THE LAKESIDE LIBRARY editions, POSTPAID, on receipt of ONE DOLLAR!
Address, DONNELLEY, LOYD & CO.,
Publishers, CHICAGO, ILL.
SOLD BY ALL NEWSDEALERS.

HOW TO ORDER.
If there are any Books on the preceding List that you may have read, select others from the following list in their stead, drawing a pencil mark through those not wanted, and leaving those wanted unmarked.
Cut out this advertisement, enclose one dollar with your name and post office address plainly written, and send to us by mail, and the books selected will be sent to you by return post.
No. 109. Fur Country, I, Jules Verne, 25 illus. 10 cents.
No. 110. Fur Country, II, Jules Verne, 25 illus. 10 cents.
Nos. 114-115. The Woman Hater, by C. Reade. 20 cents.
No. 97. Captain's Last Love, by Wilkie Collins, 9 illus. 10c.
Nos. 112-113. The Centenary, by Jules Verne, with 75 illustrations. 20 cents.
No. 98. The Frozen Deep, by Wilkie Collins, 10 illus. 10 cts.
No. 111. Michael Strogoff, by Jules Verne, 18 illus. 10 cts.
No. 99. Weavers and Weft, by Miss M. E. Braddon, with 7 illustrations. Price, 10 cents.
A full stock of The Lakeside Library is kept for sale by nearly all newsdealers, or will be procured to your order. But if your newsdealer is out of the books you want, or tries to persuade you to accept Counterfeits, printed in [illegible] the publishers, [illegible] postage.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 29, 1877.

We hear it talked on the streets that an abortion trial will soon commence before our Courts. The parties live east of the city.

Our splendid friend Dan McDonald, of the Plymouth Democrat, has sent us an invitation to be present at a Reception he gave last night, on which occasion he was to throw open that office in the evening to the inspection of the public. It has been recently remodeled, painted &c., and is no doubt as attractive as Dan himself. Presses are to be in motion, while men will be setting and distributing type, &c. and everything mechanical is to be shown in the house. Dan, don't forget that little jug on the shelf.

The Kendallville Standard says Dan Voorhees has been placed upon the House Committee of pensioners by Speaker Randall. Aint the Standard a little off? Dan Voorhees is higher up than that. A Republican Vive President put Dan on that committee. The Standard continues: "The idea of placing a man who did all in his power to aid the rebels in their infamous war against the Union, upon a committee that has in charge the claims of the Union soldiers against the Government for services rendered in surpressing the rebellion." That's rather hard on Vice President Wheeler.

CHURCH MUSIC.

"Y" assumes to be the defender of the church choirs and endeavors to answer my recent article, in which I endeavored to show the important and necessary part music has become in our sacred services, praising it for its refining and holy influences, and criticising and condemning it when it is bad, wrong or unsuited for the object intended. Is it right to give credit for the right? Is it wrong to condemn the wrong? Because I would stimulate the members of the choirs to excellence in singing, or if I encourage them to excel others, then Y says I would create "jealousy and envy." For shame on such a silly statement. For the same reason you ought to burn down every school house and college, and dismiss from school every child attending them. If you encourage education, refinement and a spirit to excel others, then those whom you excel will be jealous and envious. Y had better have applied his other arguments, (?) that "X had a bad stomach" and that "X's liver is out of order, you need some soothing syrup, and how much does X pay to support the choir?" Now, I would say that such arguments (?) are so kind, so gentle so christian like, so profound and so unanswerable that I feel dumbfounded in the presence of the defender and "great I am" of the choirs. The logic of Y's article is not so apparent as its would be nastiness or pure cussedness. Besides your nastiness which you use in besmearing yourself, not me, don't give yourself credit for lying by saying I "criticised our choir." I did not specify any particular one. You also said I compared our choirs to the bellowing of an ox, etc., which is not truthful in you. No, Y, with the choirs, intends to keep on "bellowing," they won't improve for fear somebody will become jealous or envious. Y intimates that they might sing better if they were paid or had their books bought for them. Let me ask, what use is there in paying them or buying them books, if they will not improve, (for fear of somebody getting jealous), but will get mad and paw up and throw dirt, just like an ox, and continue to "bellow" as before, whenever some one, in kindness, makes a suggestion for their good and the good of the church and all people. No, you can't stand it to be criticised nor instructed,—you think you are immaculate, and if we don't like your singing must either say nothing or keep away from church. If your church members and ministers uphold you in this, then keep up your "bellowing," and in ten years you will not sing any better than to-day. Of course the church members ought to buy you your books for your singing for them, and of course the choir ought to buy the members hymn books because they help you sing very often, if they can tell from your "bellowing" what tune you are singing.—And still I can't help but hope to note improvement in church music. X.

Newville Items.

FRIEND COURIER.—As this place has two correspondents, one to the Auburn Republican and one to the Butler Record, I thought there should be one to the COURIER.

—We have had quite dull times since our old bridge has been torn down, and the only way of crossing is by a small boat.

—We have a picture gallery here from Butler, Mr. I. Johnson, proprietor. Something long needed.

—School has commenced here with Mr. Ovit as principal. The schollars were on hand at the ringing of the bell, and if they only hold out it will do.

—The bridge that was built by G. N. Rex & Co., after the old one was taken down, was washed down the river by a little rise in the water. Losses not known.

—Mrs. I S. Huggins died on the 8th inst. She was an old resident of this county, came here in an early day, her age 54 years. She has no relations to mourn her loss here, but many friends.

—The hotel has plenty of business while the hands are to work on the bridge. Mr. Hathaway, proprietor of the house, proposes giving them a dance after the bridge is completed.

—Mr. McGonigal is making an effort to revive up the red ribbon club, as there has been a draw-back on account of the bridge being down. He has made a call for a meeting Nov. 30th, Rev. W. H. Hendricks to address the club. His programme is somewhat lengthy,—cannot give full details at present.

—We have been somewhat disappointed in our bridge as the piles which were just driven did not prove to be sufficient to support the structure, and the Commissioners had to let a second contract and have iron abutments, and extended the time to the contractors of the bridge. The rain and bad roads set things back a little, but the men are pushing the work on rapidly. They mean business. For the past few weeks things looked blue here and our merchants looked down hearted.

Yours Respectfully,

WANDERER.

HASHED UP

For the Many Readers of the Courier.

—What are you thankful for?

—Schools are largely attended.

—Constable sales are numerous.

—Celery is good for nervousness.

—Our gunsmith shop has a new sign.

—Hair oils and perfumery at Davenport's.

—Samuel Grosh will re-occupy the lower mill.

—Court commences the third Monday in December.

—The County Commissioners meet next Monday.

—Mr. Berry is putting a new roof on his machine shop.

—The front of the Excelsior Hardware is being re-painted.

—We are obliged to Senator Voorhees for public documents.

—The remains of the old Fluke property is being used for fuel.

—The finest present is a nice gold pen. Get prices at Davenport's

—O. J. Powel, Esq., of the Garrett Herald was in town last Sabbath.

—Burglars are around Ligonier and the town board have put on night police.

—Schaab Beugnot & Co., are keeping a fine line of groceries now, at lowest rates.

—We acknowledge an invitation to the club dance which came off last night.

—There has been a tramp printer in town for a few days, the first for a long time.

—One of James McClellan's horses came near dying with lock jaw last week.

—F. D. Ryan and Dr. Ford got some quail in the vicinity of Hicksville last week.

—The Sheriff and deputy have a hard time putting up sale notices. The roads.

—Mr. Kiblinger is here on a visit to his son, our enterprising hardware merchant.

—Mr. R. Elson again conducts his Sunday school class at the Presbyterian church.

—It is said that Joe. Beugnot will quit the saloon business when his license runs out.

—The weather is growing colder and the trade in marriage licenses is improving.

—The finest stock of Autograph and Photograph Albums at Davenport the druggist.

—The boys take in all the churches Sunday evening, if they don't find her at the first one.

—This week three prisoners escaped from the jail at Napoleon by knocking down the Sheriff.

—The Kendallville Glee Club, led by Walt Peterson, sang at the Fort Wayne Rink last week.

—The livery men are not doing a profitable business now. Too much juice in the soil.

—We hear that Ed. Eldridge has sold his stock of liquors and building to parties at Fort Wayne.

—The B. & O. railroad has taken off its Sunday train. New time card next week in COURIER.

—Three dog fights last Saturday created some excitement. Doc. Strouse owns the boss cur.

Weamer has the rheumatism in his neck so badly that he has to use a boot jack for a pillow.

—About ten feet of the new foundation under Jno. Brittons residence gave way Monday night.

—The reading exercises at the Presbyterian church Monday evening were not largely attended.

—The corn is not all husked yet. The fields are so soft that it is imposible to get into them.

—The sheriff's daughter, Lizzie Pague at Warsaw, was badly burned last week by the falling of a lamp.

—The Corunna school commenced Monday. We learn the structure has been made substantial.

—Fort Wayne has a young girl of 13 years old, who has been ruined by a married man named Bair.

—Will we have a city ordinance prohibiting cattle from foraging on wagons on the street this winter?

—The court house bell tolled for the hook and ladder company Monday night and the boys met promptly.

—The Central House is talking of employing colored cooks. Well, the "colored cooks hash it up nobly."

—Davenport the Druggist has a fine stock of toilet powder, also Toilet mirrors, brushes etc. Ladies call in.

—The probability is that Parker will make as big a failure with his paper at Kendallville as he did at Garrett.

—R. McDougal spent several days in Indianapolis last week in attendance upon the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

—One of Milt Roth's dray horses sprained itself so badly this week, that it could not be removed from the stable.

The old Fruit House stock has been moved into the Odd Fellows' building. A large stock of new groceries will be added.

That buggy that was lost in the woods south of town has been found. Frank Griswold can furnish the particulars.

—There was a fellow inclined to get a glimpse of her the other night, but he succeeded not.

—Two fellows robbed a man named Butler, at Garrett of his coat and boots, and are now in jail.

—The other end of the Boot Upside Down, from Wabash, is here on a Thanksgiving visit.

The New York Store will move their goods west in a few weeks, and are offering great bargains in their stock.

If the license law was obeyed no minors could get liquor, nor no veterans could have their Sunday morning drinks.

Billy Humes has a new sign. Johny Canon has his imprint upon it, and Geo. Steel says he painted the same sign three years ago.

Mr. E. J. Born, formerly of Butler, has been in the city for several days visiting friends. He left yesterday for Colon, Michigan.

—The Hicksville calaboose was burned by two prisoners last week. There was hardly enough of it to make much fire—8x10.

"Silver is marching on," enthusiastically exclaims a Cincinnati paper. From which it might appear, silver treads among the gold.

A lady at Plymouth by the name of Chaney has been assaulted the third time. She knows who her victim is but insists on not telling.

We were thinking the former part of this week to say something appropriate for Indian summer, but this rain and wind blasts the whole business.

Tarney offered to sell a game rooster for 30c, but last Saturday night some of the boys took a notion to have it for nothing. Their game worked well.

A number of the farmers of this vicinity have warned hunters not to encroach on their premises, by putting up notices in prominent positions on their farms.

There will be more turkeys eaten today than thanks given if we were allowed to judge from the number sold by our dealers.

The people at Butler secured the services of the Watterloo fire company, and never as much as let our fire company know that they had a fire.

Thirty-three years have passed since the introduction of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and it still stands unrivald. 25 cen's a bottle; 5 bottles $1. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Baxter says the time will come when he will welcome us to sound financial grounds. Charley would welcome us with bloody hands to a hospitable grave, too, but we wont welcome.

MARRIED.—Nov. 25th, 1877, at the residence of the bride's father in Auburn, by Justice Walborn, Mr. Orren Jones, of Miami County, to Miss Abagail F. Turnpaugh, of this city. She might "turn her paugh" on somebody's head, Mr. Jones.

You should not forget the Dry goods establishment of Schaab Beugnot & Co. when you come to town. They keep a splendid stock of everything in that line, together with their fine line of ready made clothing, Gents furnishing goods, &c. Go and learn their prices.

The Zimmerman Bros. have purchased the right of this county for the manufacture of the new folding clothes basket. This is one of the best things out and will take well with everybody, as it is handy and very cheap.

We are obliged to Hon. J. H. Baker for several public documents. We are glad to see our member on the side of the people, though regret to observe that this position necessarily puts Mr. Baker in opposition to our friend Baxter, of the Press.

Our accomplished friend, J. W. Baxter, editor of the Butler "Record," was married yesterday to Miss Ella E. Chamberlain, of Waterloo. We extend our hearty congratulations, and wish them a won'rous happy journey down the stream of life together.

The United States Steamer Huron, went ashore on the coast of North Carolina last Saturday morning about one o'clock, and over one hundred lives were lost. Thirty persons swam two miles through a heavy serf to the shore, and were saved.

Mothers should be very careful to see that their daughters are well wrapped up while sitting out on the front porch. A coat sleeve, of course, is good as far as it goes, and, to tell the truth, it generally goes as far as it can, but at best it can cover only about so much territory.

All who desire to pay for the COURIER for the year 1878 in wood, corn, oats, potatoes, apples, &c., are reminded that now is the time to do so. Cold weather will soon be upon us, and it is better, therefore, to have a plentiful supply of fuel in the wood house and edibles in the cellar.

The following interesting diary was found on the street the other day. 'Curried hores May 20th, curried horses again June 1st, curried horses again June 12th. Got a small boy to curry horses June 23d. Wore out curry-comb Had to quit. Will put in big bill for the same.' There was no name on the diary, but we suspect Sime Snyder knows something about it.

Corunna Jottings.

—The prospects at present are favorable for sleighriding—in a mud boat.

—We noticed Haskins, the livery man from Butler, on our streets a few days ago.

—The U. B. minister moved from this place to Waterloo last week where he will continue to reside.

—The case of typhoid alluded to in the COURIER's last issue, proved to be scarlet fever instead. The patient is now convalescent.

—The school house has been undergoing repairs during the past week and is now considered in a safe condition. The school commenced on Monday last.

La Otto Items.

—Mell Hines, from near Albion, visited [illegible]

—Nate Benjamin started for Ohio last Wednesday to spend thanksgiving day at home.

—The young people anticipate a lively time to-night at the Grand Rapids House. "Turkeys must yield up the ghost."

—Tom. Scott and other officers of the Pennsylvania R. R., passed over the G. R. & I. R. R. one day last week, on a special train.

—Wheat has been coming in slowly at $1 20 per bu.; Hogs plenty at $3.75; Corn at 22c per bu.; Clover seed not wanted at any price; Butter 18c.; Eggs 15c.; Oysters 25c. per can.

—There is rather a bad feeling existing among some of the good citizens of this otherwise quiet village, caused by too much talebearing. If everybody would attend to their own affairs and let others along, trouble and ill-feeling would become less numerous. "Let us have peace."

OUVRIER.

A quiet, inoffensive looking fellow stepped into Austin's store the other day to buy a pair of shoes. A dozen varieties were shown to him, one of which he decided to take. Looking around he spied a pair of rubber boots, three cases of which had just arrived. He priced them and found the price to be the same as asked for the shoes. "Suppose I trade you the shoes for a pair of those boots," said the customer. "All right," said Austin. The exchange was made and the fellow went for the door. "Hold on," said Austin, "I want pay for the boots." "Why, did I not trade the shoes for the boots." "I want pay for the shoes then." "Well, but you've got the shoes." And now, morning and night, you can find Austin at his desk, with a large sheet of paper and several led pencils, trying to find out how the dickens he made any money on that speculation. But he did not loose much, for he sells goods so cheap that the loss of one pair would be but a drop in the bucket.

Several of our subscribers have come in and paid up this week. If we had just what was due us on subscription, scattered in sums of $2.00 $4.00, $6.00, and $8.00 over the county you would see no more duns in the paper. It seems that all we get now is from our prompt paying subscribers, while those in arrears are as carless and indifferent as ever. We must have these amounts, if we have to employ an attorney to collect them and that very soon.

The holidays are not far off, and already the subject of appropriate presents are being canvassed. Joe. Abright is getting ready to meet the demand and will open out a fine line of watches, jewelry, silver ware and toys, from which a good selection can be made. He is also attending personally to repairing watches and is ready to do a good job at reasonable rates.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein John A. Garver is plaintiff, and Hubbell and Bordner and Solomon Bordner are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty Dollars and fifty cents with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots number eighteen [18] and nineteen [19] in Danford's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Chas. W. Pitcairn, Att'y. for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Indianan, Nov. 13th, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Stephen W. Hackley is plaintiff, and Julius Proctor is defendant, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Ninety-Five Dollars and Forty-Five cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877,

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Southeast quarter of the Northwest quarter of section twelve [12], township thirty-four [34] north of range fourteen [14], east in DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Atty's. for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 20th, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an Execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein J. M. Combs et al. are plaintiffs, and Burgett & Freeburn, are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Fourteen Dollars with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot number seventy-three (73) in Egnew's addition to the town of Butler, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Best & McClellan, Att'ys for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Nov 20th, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit in a cause wherein Joseph C. Silvers is plaintiff and John Rinehart and Christiana Rinehart are defendants requiring me to make the sum of three hundred and thirty nine (339) dollars and fifteen, 15, cents with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22d, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

The west half of the south half of the south east quarter of section thirty six, 36, township thirty-five, 35, north of range twelve, 12, east containing forty acres of land more or less in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys for plaintiffs.

Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877.

Pf. $8.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Chas. Kelly is plaintiff, and Orpheus L. Hall et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and sixty, 460, dollars and fifty, 50, cents, with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lots number sixteen, 16 seventeen, 17, eighteen, 18, and nineteen, 19, in McAnally's addition to the town of Waterloo, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

C. Kelly, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn, Nov. 6th, 1877.

Pf. $6.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Thomas Richardson is plaintiff and Robert Zacher, et al are defendents require me to make the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven dollars, with interest on said decree and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lot number seventy-two [72] in Ensley's 2nd addition to the town of Auburn, in DeKalb County and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

A. A. Chapin, atty for plff.

Nov. 21st, 1877.

Pf. $7.75.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Alonzo Lockwood is plaintiff and Samuel Hickman, et al, are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Eighty-Five dollars and Seventy-Four cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 8th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court house of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Town lots number twenty-three [23] and twenty-four 24, in Ralston's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation and appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff,

THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

Altenberg & Lockwood Att'ys. for plaintiff.

Aubur Indiana, Nov. 14th, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles Kelly is plaintiff, and Geo. Haines, Henry O. Haines, et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty Dollars with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number eighty six [86], old plat, Waterloo DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.

D. Y. Husselman, Attorneys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 14th A. D. 1877.

Prin., fee $7 25

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Elleta Bristol and George P Bristol are plaintiffs and Jesse K. Woodford, Henrietta E. Woodford et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of nine hundred and 42, 942, dollars, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-one, 21, in Parks addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, and State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

Penfield & Emanuel, Attorneys for plaintiffs.

Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877.

Pf. $7.75.

Liquor License.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn, in DeKalb County, in the State of Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their next regular session in December, A. D. 1877, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, in the lower story of the building situated on the north one-third of lot sixty-three in the original plat of said town, with the privilege of having the same drank where sold.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

$2500 A YEAR. Agents wanted. Business legitimate. Particulars free. Address J. WORTH & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit absolutely and speedily cured. Painless; no publicity. Send stamp for particulars. Dr. Carlton, 187 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

HUR RAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE.
SIMPLEST & BEST.

A MAN CRAZY

Selling

SEWING MACHINES!

For 30 DOLLARS

Go and see them.

G. H. YESBERA, AGT

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an Execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Sumner K. Randall is plaintiff, and Charles G. Smith and Daniel W. Smith are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Ninety-Eight Dollars and Seventy-Two cents, with interest on said judgment and costs I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number twenty-five [25] and forty-five [45] in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuations appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By THOS. D. GROSS Deputy.

Moody & Huffman, Att'ys for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 21, 1877.

P. fee $7.50

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein the Auburn Building Loan and Saving Association is plaintiff, and Thomas Baldock and Esther Baldock are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and seventy-four, 474, dollars and sixty-two, 62, cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit.

Lot number one hundred and sixty-five, 165, in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county and state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

By THOS. D. GROSS, Deputy.

H. C. Peterson, Attorney for plaintiff.

Auburn, Nov. 8th, 1877.

Pf. $25.

Sheriff Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb county Circuit Court in a cause wherein Joseph Boyer et al. are plaintiffs and Joseph Jones et al are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Forty-Four Dollars, and Twelve cents, with interest on said judgment and costs. I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number fifty-six [56], in the town of Lawrence, now Sedan,) in DeKalb County, Ind.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment interests and costs. I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morian & Leas, Att'ys for plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind, Nov. 20, 1877.

Pr. fee $7.50.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff and John A. Scholfield, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and thirteen cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 7187.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of the northeast quarter of section ten [10], township thirty five [35] north of rang fourteen [14 east, containing forty acres of land, more or less, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

McBride, Morian & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 13th, 1877.

Pr. fee $8.00

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Stiefle & Och- are plaintiffs and George M. Taggart is defendent, require me to make the sum of Two hundred and fifteen [215] and fifty [50]cents with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1877.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day, at the door of the Court House, in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

The undivided one seventh (1-7) of one hundred acres off the north part of the southeast quarter of section twelve, 12, township thirty-four, 34, north of range fourteen, 14, east in DeKalb County Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest, and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. StCLAIR, Sheriff.

Young & Ralston, Attorneys for plaintiffs.

Auburn, Nov. 21st, 1877.

Pf. $7.30.

WHAT IS THE LATEST ?

CUSTOME MADE

Artie Coats, Ulsters, Broadway OverCoats, Winter Suits, Diagonial Coats And Vests.

SAM, PETE & MAX.

FORT WAYNE.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

Although the swallows have departed for a southern clime; the icy fingers of old Winter been laid upon the vehicle; "Spiked lemonades" given place to whisky stews, the noble, fascinating and innocent game of seven-up is yet played along the creek banks, and in unoccupied houses. Some of our "promising" youths have a fascination for this game, and they hang to it like a blind dog to a meat market.

As to-day is set apart as a day of thanksgiving, would it not be a good and charitable thing for those of our people who are blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, to look around them and see that their less fortunate neighbors are provided with something on that occasion to be thankful for? Come friends, in the midst of prosperity, do not overlook those who have been less successful in the battle of life, but let us try to make it a day of thanksgiving indeed.

A town without a brass band is indeed a dry affair. Each town of any consequence whatever should, next to a local newspaper, support a musical organization of this kind. When the evenings are pleasant and we can sit out upon our verandahs, what is more pleasant than to hear strains of beautiful music filling the air? But, like anything else, the band needs help from the citizens in order to make it prosperous. Our band boys should re-organize and our citizens should give them encouragement.

This is the way it is done. Monday night a tramp went into one of our saloons and amused himself by playing several games of pool. At the close of the games he gave the bar tender a big game of talk for a stand-off until the next morning, and if he couldn't succeed he would pawn some small article and leave for another place. In a short time after his "wife" comes in, describing him and inquires how he paid for his games. She claims the article pawned and demands it immediately, and if not "forked over," she tells a long pitiful story and most generally succeeds in melting the beer slinger's heart.

After church last Sunday evening, a young fellow Link-ed on to his dulcenia to see her safely home, but when on a back street, and not a star from Heaven even twinkled to guide them on their way, some unknown shoulder bumper took him over the eye, remarking at the same time, "This is too thin." The girl's breath fortunately held out until she reached her home, and he, poor unlucky creature, succeeded also by taking cross lots and alleys, to reach his father's house. It will take half a dozen pair of blue glass spectacles to bring his eyes to their natural color again.

We regret to announce that Dr. J. J. Littlefield will remove from this place to Hudson, in a few days He will exchange places with Dr. Matheny, of that town. We can safely say that Dr L. is a splendid physician and an accomplished gentleman. His practice here has been a large and successful one, and personally has the esteem of all. We wish him every success in his new field of labor. Dr. Matheny who takes his place is a reliable successful practitioner, has experience of many years, and is a most agreeable gentleman. The doctor has been a subscriber to the COURIER since its first issue, which to us is a greater recommend than all the literati of the country. Besides the doctor is a splendid looking gentleman, and will be a large addition to our town. We trust he will have no reason to regret the change he is about to make.

A CARD.

DEAR COURIER—Permit me through your columns to say to patrons and friends before leaving them, that I do not exchange with Dr. Matheny, because of any lack of support on their part, or any want of confidence on my part, but simply, I believe it to be for the best interests of myself and family. I have enjoyed the confidence and patronage of many good people of Auburn and vicinity, for which I am truly thankful, and which I hope I have merited. I leave this field of labor for another with many feelings of regret in leaving behind so many pleasant associations I would further say to my friends and patrons, that I congratulate you, in my successors experience and professional excellence and also in his friendly, and social qualities, believing that what you loose in me will be more than supplied in him.

Yours, truly,
J. J. LITTLEFIELD.

The Presbyterian choir discoursed some splendid music last Sabbath evening Our musical criticisers should have been there

A tramp tailor, from Cleveland, came to the city Monday evening and got buggy. The result was he measured himself in one of the cells of the lock-up.

C. C. Shaffer has traded his residence on South VanBuren street, for forty acres of land four miles east of town to John Link. Christ. seems delighted over the swap.

Parties laid lawful hands upon Reub Stevens' overcoat and satchel Monday, but the property was immediately replevied. It made "Billyum," his attorney, full of vim.

Reub Stevens returned home last Saturday and in the evening was locked within the bars by R Parent who was on a bail bond for Reub for some two thousand dollars.

An army of tramps, 1,000 strong, is moving along through central Pennsylvania, taking possession of trains, or at least trying to capture them, and stealing right and left.

The trial of Mr. Esselburn "versus" H. J. Luce, to have the latter keep the peace, was tried before Justice Walborn Saturday last. and the defendant was acquitted.

Some of our young men can't go to school when it is raining. They are afraid of injuring their health, you know, but they can run from one saloon to another all the same.

The weather which was dished out to us on last week beat anything that old weather prophecy ever dreamed of before. We were not favored with the sight of Old Sol for one even week.

A fellow from the country came to town last Saturday for the purpose of purchasing a pair of spectacles, but couldn't find any to suit him on account of the size of his nasal appendage.

The South Bend Herald is laboring under a false impression, when it thinks we were making fun of its new head. Not at all, but we do think it would look handsome worked in colors. Eh.

We are sorry that we made a mistake last week in stating that the Hook & Ladder dance would be given on Thanksgiving eve. We should have said Christmas eve. Its our mistake and your treat, boys.

Billy Little has a placard in his shop which reads: "Boys who bottom chairs are not allowed in this shop." It puzzles Theo, our German cigar maker so badly that he scratched the skin off of his "right leg."

Out-door laborers can now set with their feet elevated upon the bar-room stove until asked to "take something," when they gradually let one foot to the floor at a time and in a slow breath say, "Well, I don't care if I do."

When you return thanks to-day for the many blessings and comforts bestowed upon you during the yast year, call on your neighbors and see if some of them are not suffering for food and raiment. Remember the poor.

A horse hitched in front of Mr. Kessler's broke loose Sunday. The flaps of the Stirups on his ribs gave him plenty of life, and when he got about half way down Main-St., he looked more like a runaway mud-hole than a horse.

We hear it said that a young lady who was married a short time ago, living in the north end, will apply to the next Board of Commissioners for assistance. We know her husband but do not use names in respect for the lady.

Our 'bus men have come to their senses and now put a tariff on each male and female inhabitant "of this once glorious country," who ride with them. "Carry you up town for a quarter," now takes the place of "free 'bus up town."

Some of our sidewalks should, by all means, be repaired. If it had not have been for the size of a lady's foot she might have broken her ankle Sunday night on Jackson street. The hole wasn't quite large enough to let a No. 9 shoe through.

Wm. A. Bray, a compositor in the LaPorte Argus office, has fallen heir to $75,000 from a distant relative in Scotland. Don't throw up your cases Billy until you get the "chink." We know of several parties here who have fallen heir the same way.

RACKET IN THE SNOW

Full Grist of Locals Gathered Together

—Its getting cold.

—The creek is high.

—Bank your houses.

—Shoot the wood thief.

—To-day is Thanksgiving.

—Prayer meeting to-night.

—Go to the dinner to-day.

—The pork market is dull.

—The junior band has played out.

—"Shut that door," is now the cry.

—The leaves still cling to the trees.

—Local matter on the opposite page.

—Mr. M. Kline is gaining better slowly

—Michael Long, Sr., is a little better.

—Court in Steuben county this week.

—Pay car on the B. & O. last Saturday.

—Coop Ralston runs a delivery wagon.

—Christmas comes on Tuesday this year.

—Bunch Jr., has recovered from his fall.

—Mr. Grubb goes to Pensylvania this week.

—Blacksmiths are busy ironing new cutters.

—The poultry men are crowded with business.

—Steel & Weyer have disolved partnership.

—A new house is going up in Ensley's addition.

—Cook Ford will occupy the Humes property.

—The railroad time cards have been changed.

—The Milford Independent has pulled up stakes.

—Prepare your cutters for the beautiful snow.

—Billy Rickel has returned from his Ohio visit.

—Peter Brandon's old house is used for a henry.

—Get your work in on the christmas trees now.

—Mr. Eckhart is building an addition to his shop.

—Mr. Hoover, of Laporte, is the guest of Chas. Raut.

—C. O. Myers has abandoned the Kendallville P. O.

—The season has come for mush and milk festivals.

—The "Freemont News" had two heads last week.

—Elder Ward is building an addition to his residence.

—The Saginaw road runs several extra freights daily.

—Mrs. Searight, of Butler, was in the city last Saturday.

—The rabbit crop is said to be immense this season.

—A. J. Little has moved his office in with Dr. Casebeer.

—The store of Martin & Son has disolved partnership.

—A good theater troupe would take well here just now.

—We have secured a regular correspondent at Corunna.

—We hear of a little trouble in the Baptist church again.

—Our merchants are laying in a supply of holiday goods.

—And now they call them the "Infidelity" Savings Banks.

—Sam. Pommert and Dr. Spooner are expert checker players.

—Coop. Ralston's celebrated steed is working on Roth's dray.

—Will our merchants close their stores to-day and attend church?

—Mr. Wm. Brooks and his wife are again located in Avburn.

—The obstinate stove pipe to the bat; the sheet iron oath on deck.

—The lumbermen at the Saginaw depot are building a new shed.

—It rained steady from Sunday evening until Monday evening.

—About eight working hours now between sun up and sun down.

—Billy Little is the only man in town who can patch rubber boots.

—Jake Smith and Lady have returned from an extended visit to Ohio.

—J. Decker, of Garrett, has moved his livery stock to Kendallville.

—The roads have been the worst that they were known for some years.

—Mr. Freid, one of Corunna's merchants, was in the city Tuesday.

—Constable Miller was going to Michigan but has changed his mind.

—Protracted meetings are talked of The Waterloo people have began.

—Mr. Gregg's son and daughter-in-law have returned to the city again.

—Mrs. M. F. Long and family were visiting in Waterloo last Saturday.

—The new bridge over the St. Joe River at Spencerville is completed.

—Thanksgiving turkeys gobbled their last yesterday. They were gobbled.

—Not one of our merchants have laid in a winter's supply of potatoes.

J. B. Hoover, of Waterloo, is assisting in collecting the town taxes.

—The contract for grading the 9th-st. bridge has been let to S. Culver & Co.

—Have you arranged it with your better-half to build the fires this winter.

A Burn at Butler.

Last Tuesday morning, several frame buildings on the east side of the principal street at Butler, were destroyed by fire. It is thought that the fire first started in the north-east corner of the billiard hall. The alarm was given about 3 o'clock and though a stiff breeze was blowing at the time, yet, the thoroughly soaked condition of surounding buildings from the recent rains, prevented an extensive conflagation in the east part of the town. The fire soon made headway, and in less than an hour the entire row was pretty well consumed. The first building on the south next to Hensler's hardware store was owned by Hugh Maxwell, the lower floor being unoccupied at the time. The second story was occupied by Frank Anderson and family, most of whose household goods were saved.

The next building belonged to Aaron Teegarden, the lower story of which was used as a billiard hall. The widow Pane lived in the second story, the front part being used as a barber shop. The third building was owned by A. Kinmont of this place. T. P. Sutton's Jewelry store was located in the first story and Frank Anderson had shoe shop in second story.

The next building, on the alley, was occupied by Mr. Jones and son as a grocery and bakery, and belonged to Taylor, Rodgers & Co. of Toledo, in which was also the boot and shoe shop of R. J. Matheny. North of the alley, was the Waverly House, belonging to Samuel Haverstock, and leased by G. W. Thompson.

Adjoining this was a building owned by Samuel Searight, and the last house on the north, belonged to J. J. Rank, as a butcher shop.

These buildings were entirely consumed, but very little of their contents were destroyed. As for we could learn the losses are about as follows:

Hugh Maxwell,	$1,500,	No Insurance,
Aaron Teegarden	1,500,	" "
A. Kinmont,	600,	" "
Taylor & Co.	600, 800,	"
S. Haverstock,	2,500,	" "
S. Searight,	250,	Insured
J. J. Rank,	300,	150 Insurance
F. Anderson.	100,	no "
Mrs. Pane,	100,	" "
P. J. Matheny	75,	" "
Geo. Hensler,	100,	fully Insured
W. W. Tomlinson,	150,	" "

Mr. Tomlinson removed a greater part of his stock, but Mr Hensler, next to the fire, would not permit a single article to be taken from his store. It is said George went out, looked at the fire a moment, and said "Dot fire may kiss my foot, I no cares for him." Mrs. Turner in the alarm and confusion, went out of her house near by, and leaving the door open, a flaming ember entered and lodged upon the bed. By timely arrival the fire was put out and the baby saved.

The fire has made a great gap on that side of the street, and the smoldering ruins presents a sad spectacle. It is a severe loss to our neighbor, one that she can illy afford these hard times, but they are far from being discouraged, and it will not be long until a new brick block will appear, that will be a credit to the town.

We learn that Dr. W. T. Knapp, of Fort Wayne, formerly of Delphi, Ind., will locate at this place, occupying the residence of Mr. Ralston, on Seventh street. The doctor comes highly recommended as a physician, and personally is a genial, cultivated gentleman. His father was at one time editor of the Times and Sentinel, at Ft. Wayne and afterwards wrote a history of the Maume Valley, which met with a large sale We welcome the doctor to our place, and while we cannot wish an increase of patronage in the line of a physician, we trust a fare share will be tendered him.

It has been some time since business was duller in Auburn than during the present week. In proportion as the roads get bad trade grows slack. Two or three additional pikes leading into the city would remedy the evil in a great measure. The roads leading to the Junction, and the one on the west side of the Hall farm, north of the city, are almost impassible.

Some people will let their hogs run at large. Our Marshal caught sight of several the other day, and marched Mr. piggies to the pond. They didn't seem ready to go, but Sam appeared to "hold the fort" and we suppose made the riffle. Its "root hog or die" with him when he takes a notion, and those having hogs running out had better take warning.

The enemies of C. O. Myers have triumphed at last and have succeeded in inducing the senate to refuse to confirm him as postmaster at Kendallville. We are not fully advised on the subject but the fight against Myers has been long continued and vindictive. A gentleman by the name of James Nellis is the new man appointed.

A meeting was held at the Lutheran church Tuesday evening in the interest of a musical convention. Prof Straub was present. The attendance was good and everything promises an interesting institute. The Professor is very thorough and practical and no one should fail to attend.

These sudden changes of the weather seldom fails to bring a cough or cold, and we can recommend Dr Marshall's Lung Syrup as a certain cure for all diseases of the Lungs and Chest. Sold in every drug store.

LOOK AT THIS!

Never has our Millinery Department been so full and complete and

PRICES LOWER.

Than has ever been known.

HATS. HATS.

Misses and children's untrimmed hats at 25c. 50c. 75c. and $1.00
" " well trimmed hats for 50c. 75c, and $1.00 and upward
Ladies silk ties 15c, 20c, 25c, and 50c

FUR AND FEATHER TRIMMINGS,

A good assortment. Ball ahd Silk Fringes, all prices.

FURS. FURS.

Our line of Furs has never been better. Children's sets 50c, 75c, and upward. Ladies Mink, full set 7, 12, and $18. Ladies Bever, sets 2, 2 50, $3 per set

CLOAKS.

A new lot of Ladies Cloaks just received for 4 50, 5, 6, and $7, and as high as $20

SHAWKS AND SKIRTS

A find assortment. Ladies and Children Unddrwear 35c, 40c, and 50 cents

NOTIONS.

Our Notion department is full. Gloves, hose, buttons, Misses knit sacques and hoods, etc.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT.

Waterproof all styles 75c, 1 00, $1 25, per yard, Calico 5c, Gingham the best 10c, black alpacca 20c, 25c, 40c, and upward.
Germantown and Zephyrs Yarns all shades. Mottos and splits 2 to 5 cents.

H. H. STAMETS.

AUSTIN ALWAYS ALIVE!

EUREKA!

Eat Buckwheat Cakes
And Buy Your
BOOTS AND SHOES
AT THE

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN!

And you will always have plenty of money and be happy—because they have $12000.00 worth of goods which they sell

20 Per Cent. CHEAPER

Than any other house in this county.

MEN'S GUM BOOTS $3.50

Save your money by trading at the
BOOT UPSIDE DOWN.

German Syrup.

No other medicine in the world was ever given such a test of its curative qualities as Boschee's German Syrup. In three years two million four hundred thousand small bottles of this medicine was distributed free of charge by Druggists in this country to those afflicted with Consumtion, Asthama, Croupe, Severe Coughs, Pheumonia and other diseases of the throat and lungs, giving the American people undeniable proof that German Syrup will cure them The result has been that Druggists in every town an village in the United States are recommending it to their cutomers. Go to your Druggist, F. E. Dvenport, and ask what he knows about it. Sample bottles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case.

For sale by F. E. Davenport.

An unpleasant passenger in a street car is a crying baby. In such cases Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup should be given to the little sufferer to ease its troubles. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

HEADACHE.

A remedy for the positive cure of Sick or Nervous Headache is found in Lawson's Curative. A trial of a single bottle will save much suffering, and the cost should not be counted, when wheghed in the balance, against days and nights of pain Sold by F. E. Davenport.

A terrible flood occurred in parts of Virginia, and Maryland, destroying many dollars worth of property, last Friday and Saturday. Richmond, was partly submerged.

We are glad to hear that Dr. Marshal's Lung Syrup geves such general satisfaction; our druggists say it sells better than any other preparation for coughs, colds, etc Price 25 cents. Sold in every drug store.

James Anderson is now fully prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing at his shop on Seventh street. Mr. Anderson makes a speciality of shoeing lame, and interfering horses. Give him a call and you will be satisfied that he does as he says.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOV. 22, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

GREAT excitement was caused the other day in R[illegible], Pa., by the [illegible] closing of three [illegible] banks. The total liabilities of the [illegible] are about $2,000,000.

THE office of the Pittsburgh Dispatch has been destroyed by fire.

A MONUMENT to Bishop Janes has just been unveiled in Boston.

A HARTFORD (Ct.) telegram chronicles the death of Jonathan Edwards, the eminent Presbyterian and theologian.

THE Borden City Mill No. 1, at Fall River, Mass., was destroyed by fire last week. The loss is estimated at $450,000....Conrad Poppenhausen, the owner of all the railroads on Long Island, N. Y., has gone into voluntary bankruptcy. Liabilities, $3,500,000; assets (on paper), $7,300,000.

ASA MAGOON, wife-murderer, is to be hanged at M[illegible], Vt., on the fourth Friday in November, 1879, eighteen months of the interim to be spent at hard labor and six months in solitary confinement....A sensational tragedy was enacted in the city of Philadelphia last Sunday. During services at the Church of the Ascension, Alexander H. Sayres walked up an aisle, drew a pistol, and shot his wife Elizabeth, who occupied a pew several feet in advance of where Sayres had been sitting. The bullet entered her back, inflicting a mortal wound. Sayres was arrested. Both parties have been regular attendants at church, but have been separated for two years....S. B. W. Gill, a prominent Pittsburgh lawyer, and reputed to be very wealthy, disappeared very suddenly some weeks ago, and his friends were unable to account for his absence except on the theory that he had been foully dealt with. The mystery has been cleared, however. An investigation of his affairs shows that instead of possessing a fortune of $500,000, as was generally believed, his assets amount to almost nothing, while his debts figure up about $300,000.

THE extensive rubber factory of L. Candee & Co., New Haven, Ct., was destroyed by fire last week. Loss, $500,000; insurance, $350,000. Several of the workmen were badly injured in escaping from the burning buildings....The collegiate institute buildings at Fort Edward, N. Y., were burned a few days ago. Loss, $125,000; insurance, $90,000.

THE daughter of William H. Vanderbilt, the millionaire, was married in New York last week to a wealthy young Bostonian named Twombley. The affair was as gorgeous as money could make it.

THE WEST.

NEARLY 1,000 people were employed in the great Chicago dry-goods house of Field, Leiter & Co., many of whom were women clerks and sewing girls. All of the female help are temporarily thrown out of employment by the burning of the establishment. They will not long remain idle, however, as the firm has secured new quarters, and will in a few days have all their old employes at work again....Frank Rande, a noted desperado, who killed two men and wounded another in St. Elmo, Ill., last August, was arrested in St. Louis last week, after a desperate struggle. With a companion he went to a pawnbroker's to redeem a sachel. He was recognized, and the police were called in. In the fight that ensued everybody took a hand, and at its close one of the officers was found to be shot dangerously, while Rande had several bullets in him and a pair of handcuffs ornamented his wrists. He was taken to jail. The arsenal he carried with him contained two large revolvers, a knife, a pair of brass knuckles, and a billet....The President the other day communicated to the House the amounts received from the Spanish Government for the killing of Gen. Ryan and other Americans at Santiago de Cuba, on Nov. 1, 1873. Something over $30,000 of this money still lies in the hands of the Government because the heirs have failed to prove the men killed were American citizens. The largest claimant still unsatisfied is the mother of Gen Ryan. She is a resident of Chicago, and, it seems, has not yet proven her son's citizenship.

THE policeman who was shot in St. Louis by the outlaw Rande, while resisting arrest, has since died of his wound.

AMONG the effects of the bloody outlaw Frank Rande, captured at St. Louis, was found a diary showing that he had at one time been an inmate of the Illinois penitentiary, and the resolution to become an outlaw, with a sworn and deadly hatred against all peace-officers, was formed while there. According to his diary, the cruel and inhuman treatment received from officers of the penitentiary incited the convict to a desperate vow, that if he ever got out of prison he would devote his life to crime and to the killing of any officer of the law who should undertake to arrest him....Advices from Lincoln, Neb., report a terrible battle between a lot of riotous railroad men and citizens of the town of Utica, Neb., in which several persons were killed and wounded.

THE Third National Bank, of Chicago, has gone into liquidation. There will be no loss to depositors, and whatever loss there is will fall upon the stockholders alone. The liabilities are a little over $1,000,000, the nominal assets $1,800,000, and back of them the personal responsibility of ninety stockholders for double their stock, or $1,500,000.

THE United States District Attorney at St. Louis, Mo., has opened a vigorous war on the quack doctors of that city, by having indictments preferred against the most notorious and dangerous ones.

THE failure is announced of Phillips & Co., bankers of Georgetown, Ohio, with liabilities of $85,000....Gen. Sheridan has given orders for the removal of the Nez Perces Indians from Fort Lincoln to Fort Leavenworth....Shields & May, wholesale liquor dealers, Cincinnati, have failed. Liabilities, $80,000.

THE SOUTH.

BY way of Galveston we get the following news from the Texas border: Several large parties of Indians, one of them composed of thirty-five bucks, have crossed into Texas to raid. It is rumored that Col. Villareal has invaded Mexico, forty-five miles above Matamoras, in the interest of Escobedo and Lerdo, and to stir up a revolution in Tamaulipas. Lieut. Bullis destroyed an Indian camp at Saragossa. A party of Mexicans and Indians from Chihuahua and Northern Mexico have crossed into Texas on the war-path in revenge for the invasion by Lieut. Bullis. The latest from El Paso county is that the entire region is under the control of a Mexican mob backed by Mexicans south of the river, defying the United States authorities, and claiming allegiance to the Mexican flag. The trial of Gen. Escobedo, at Brownsville, for violation of the United States neutrality laws resulted in his acquittal.

GENERAL.

A CORRESPONDENT of a New York journal recently interviewed Sitting Bull, and from him learned the true story of the Custer massacre. He said: "The fight was hell. A thousand devils—the squaws—were like flying birds; the bullets like humming-bees. We thought we were whipped—not at first, but by-and-by. Afterward no. Your people were killed. I tell no lies about dead men. These men who came with the Long Hair (Custer) were as good men as ever fought. When they rode up their horses were tired and they were tired. When they got off their horses they could not stand firmly on their feet. They swayed to and fro, so my young men have told me, like limbs of cypresses in a great wind. Some of them staggered under the weight of their guns, but they began to fight at once. By this time our camps were aroused, and there were plenty of warriors to meet them. They fired with needle-guns. We replied with magazine guns—repeating-rifles." Sitting Bull illustrated by patting his palms together the rapidity of a fusilade. "Our young men rained lead across the river, and drove the white braves back, and then rushed across themselves; and then they found that they had a good deal to do. The trouble was with the soldiers. They were so exhausted, and their horses bothered them so much, they could not take good aim. Some of their horses broke away from them, and left them to stand and drop and die. All the men fell back, fighting and dropping. They could not fire fast enough, though. They kept in pretty good order. They would fall back across a gully, and make a fresh stand beyond, on higher ground. There were a great many brave men in that fight, and from time to time, while it was going on, they were shot down like pigs. They could not help themselves. One of the officers fell where the last fight took place, where the last stand was made. The Long Hair stood like a sheaf of corn with all the ears fallen around him." Sitting Bull says the brave Custer was the last white man to die on the bloody field.

THE schooner Kate L. Bruce, with all on board, has been lost on Lake Huron.

GEORGE L. BANGS, General Superintendent of the American Express Company, formerly Superintendent of the Railway Postal Service, and lately U. S. Sub-Treasurer at Chicago, died a few days ago in Washington, of Bright's disease of the kidneys.

THE National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry met at Cincinnati, Ohio, last week. The Master's annual address recommends a modification of the rules so as to allow persons or societies engaged in industrial pursuits to become stockholders. The Executive Committee advise a discontinuance of the general agencies, and that the grange establish wholesale and retail stores on the co-operative principle. It also advises the discontinuance of grange lecturers....The steamship Strathroy, which sailed from Montreal, Nov. 12, for Aberdeen, Scotland, is reported to have been lost on the Island of Miquelon, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. All persons on board were saved. The vessel and cargo were valued at $245,000.

THE total liabilities of Mulholland & Baker, hardware merchants of Montreal, Canada, who recently failed, are $760,000....George Frazier, dry goods merchant of Montreal, has failed; liabilities, $89,000....Harrison P. Thomson, a Clark county (Ky.) cattle-dealer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy; liabilities, $278,591.

CAPT. HOWGATE has received a letter via Scotland from Capt. Tyson, in command of the Florence, the advance vessel of the American Arctic expedition, under date of Sept. 29, in which he reports his safe arrival at Niuntilick harbor, Cumberland gulf. He proposed moving to the head of the gulf in a few days to go into winter quarters and carry out his instructions in relation to the collection of material.

WASHINGTON.

ON the 1st day of the present month there was on hand in the national treasury $116,267,363 in gold and silver coin and bullion. This amount is liable to be reduced, by drafts for sundry purposes to $65,913,566. Of the $116,267,363, there is in silver coin and estimated silver bullion $84,775.14. The net amount available in gold coin and estimated gold bullion is $57,436,071.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says: "The House Election Committee considered the case of Judge Belford, of Colorado, coming only to the decision that nothing can be settled at this session, and postponing the case until the regular session. It appears that the Republicans even of the committee are not agreed as to the propriety of recommending the seating of Belford. The difficulties are of a legal character."

POLITICAL.

ANOTHER caucus of Republican Senators was held at Washington last week. The Senators who waited upon the President to acquaint him with the comments of the previous caucus gave an account of what took place. They reported that the President, in response to the statement of the widespread uneasiness and dissatisfaction which had been created among his party friends by his appointment of Democrats to Southern offices, etc., has argued that his policy in this regard was not prejudicial to the interests of the Republican party, and certainly was not adopted by him from any want of earnest desire for the perpetuation and maintenance of Republican power and principles. On the contrary, it was his expectation and belief that the pursuance of this policy would promote the coalition of the old Whig and various other elements opposed to the Democratic party in the South, and eventually secure six or eight Southern States for the Republicans. A free discussion followed as to the propriety and probable effects of the President's policy, in case it should be pursued by him and acquiesced in by the Senate. The interchange of views developed the almost unanimous opinion that the policy of appointing Democrats to office in the South is not wise or sound, and Senators known as friends of the administration expressed doubts whether its pursuance would have the effect of which the President is sanguine.

OFFICIAL vote for Governor of Wisconsin at the recent election: Smith, Republican, 78,753; Mallory, Democrat, 70,482; Allis, Greenback, 26,163. Smith's majority over Mallory, 8,271....Col. Robert G. Ingersoll positively declines the Berlin mission.

OFFICIAL vote for Governor of New Jersey at the recent election: McClellan, Democrat, 97,830; Newell, Republican, 85,120; Hoxsey, Greenback, 5,568; Bingham, Temperance, 1,386. McClellan over Newell, 12,710; McClellan over all, 5,757.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

THE Russian losses in killed, wounded and missing, from the commencement of the war to Nov. 7, are 84,863....The Montenegrins have taken by assault all the defenses of Antivari, except the principal fort, which is damaged by bombardment....Cable dispatches indicate that the fortune of war is again turning in favor of the Turkish arms, at least in the operations in Asia.

RUSSIAN dispatches report the capture of Kars after a severe engagement lasting twelve hours.

THE reported capture of Kars is fully confirmed. The fortress was captured by about 15,000 Russians, who climbed the steep rocks, the ramparts, and walls, and stormed an equal number of desperately fighting Turks, in headlong flight over their ditches and parapets, compelling them to die or surrender. Three hundred cannon, and large supplies of provisions and ammunition, together with all the treasure, fell into the hands of the Russians. The Turks lost 5,000 in killed and wounded, 10,000 prisoners, and many flags. The Russian loss was about 2,700. The Russian soldiers made but trifling booty, and spared peaceful citizens, women and children. ....The brave Montenegrins are again making things lively for their ancient foes. They have stormed and captured the citadel of Spitza, which gives them possession of the coast from the Austrian frontier to the Boyana.

THE relative strength of the opposing forces of Russia and Turkey, in Bulgaria, south of the Danube and north of the Balkan mountains, is stated to be, in round numbers—Russian, 280,000, and Turkish, 240,000 men....After the fall of Kars the main body of the Russian army immediately began to march upon Erzeroum.

THERE has been some heavy but indecisive fighting on the river Lom....The Roumanians, after a three days' engagement, have captured Rahova, on the Danube, and are crossing the river in large numbers at that point.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

PARIS telegrams of the 17th announce that the members of the MacMahon Cabinet had tendered their resignations, to take effect upon the appointment of their successors.

A POLE has been arrested in Berlin on suspicion of intending to attempt the assassination of Bismarck and the Emperor William....The war between Egypt and Abyssinia is at an end, the Abyssinian king having accepted the terms of peace proposed by the Khedive.

A ROME dispatch says another surgeon has been summoned to give hourly attention to the sores in the legs of the Pope, as the suppuration continues. The physicians consider the state of his Holiness' health decidedly precarious, but declare that the symptoms are not aggravated.

THREE of the London detective inspectors and a lawyer have been found guilty of conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice by assisting turf gamblers in swindling, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment each.

THE London Times thus concludes a leader on the French situation: "The moderate Right of the Senate did not mean to produce the mischief they have occasioned, but the result is before us. The powers of France are arrayed against one another like army against army."

LATE advices from Hong Kong, China, state that "there is great excitement in American circles in consequence of the conviction of O. B. Bradford, formerly United States Vice Consul General to Shanghai, on a charge of opening and copying letters sent through the United States mails for the purpose of making the contents known to Minister G. T. Seward. After a long and elaborate trial, Mr. G. Wiley Wells, the newly-arrived Consul General, delivered a sentence and fine of $250 and costs and imprisonment for twenty days. It is generally reported that remarkable revelations are still to follow this affair, and a thorough investigation is promised of many long-suspected abuses."

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

FRIDAY, Nov. 16.—SENATE.—Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, occupied almost the entire time of the Senate in delivering a speech on the subject of alleged discrepancies in the Treasury Department. ....Mr. Ingalls introduced a bill repealing the act authorizing the coinage of the 20-cent silver piece. ....Mr. Cameron, of Wisconsin, introduced a bill fixing the salaries of Judges of the District Courts of the United States.

HOUSE.—Mr. Swann reported a bill relative to the Paris Exposition. It accepts the invitation from France to take part in the Exposition, and appropriates $150,000. Mr. Cox, of New York, offered a substitute appropriating $50,000. Both were referred. ....Mr. Singleton reported a deficiency bill. The total appropriations asked for foot up $1,580,822. The principal items are: Postoffice salaries, $681,881; Treasury Department, $126,000; library of Congress, $32,500....The House had a lengthy debate, extending far into the evening, on the subject of repealing the Resumption law. The speeches were delivered by Messrs. Garfield and Hewitt in opposition to the repeal.

SATURDAY, Nov. 17.—SENATE.—Not in session.

HOUSE.—Mr. Atkins reported back the Army Appropriation bill with the Senate amendments, recommending concurrence in some of the amendments and non-concurrence in others. Mr. Atkins explained that the Senate amendments were mainly immaterial, the chief point of difference between the two houses being the clauses limiting the army to 20,000 men and limiting it to 25,000 men. The House then proceeded to vote upon the amendment. The Senate amendment reducing the appropriation for the expenses of the Commanding General's office from $3,000 to $2,500 was concurred in. The next amendment was one striking out the clause providing that four full cavalry regiments shall be kept up on the Texas frontier, and inserting, instead of it, a proviso that cavalry regiments may be recruited to 1,000 men, and that a sufficient force of cavalry shall be employed in the defense of the Texas frontier. The recommendation of the Committee on Appropriations was to non-concur, but Mr. Foster moved to concur. Agreed to—yeas, 140; nays, 120. ....L. S. Metcalfe was sworn in as Representative from the Third District of Missouri, taking the iron-clad oath....Mr. Stephens introduced a bill for the financial relief of the country, and to facilitate the return to specie payment without injuriously affecting the commercial business and general industries of the people.

MONDAY, Nov. 19.—SENATE.—The resolution of Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, for the appointment of a committee to inquire into alleged discrepancies in the books of the Treasury Department, was passed in the Senate....The Senate receded from its amendments to the Army bill which were non-concurred in by the House, and passed the bill....The Senate, in executive session, confirmed several nominations, including that of Filley to be Postmaster at St. Louis.

HOUSE.—The Paris Exposition Appropriation bill was under consideration in the House. Sunset Cox made a very humorous speech on Mr. Hewitt's proposition to make an exhibit of the American method of cooking hoe cake and corn dodger.

TUESDAY, Nov. 20.—SENATE.—The bill to enable Indians to become citizens was discussed and postponed till Dec. 10....A motion was made by Mr. Thurman to discharge the Committee on Privileges and Elections from further consideration of the credentials of M. C. Butler as Senator from South Carolina. After considerable discussion the matter went over. ....The Vice President appointed Messrs. Davis (of West Virginia), Beck, Allison, Ingalls, and Cameron (of Pennsylvania), as the special committee to examine the books and accounts of the Treasury Department in regard to the alleged discrepancies, etc., authorized by the resolution of Mr. Davis.

HOUSE.—The House passed the bill appropriating $150,000 to defray the expenses of Commissioners to the Paris Exposition....Mr. O'Neil presented the petition of all but one of the Philadelphia national banks, and of certain trust and saving fund companies, against the unlimited circulation of silver coin.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 21.—SENATE.—The resolution of Mr. Thurman ordering the discharge of the Committee on Privileges and Elections from further consideration of the credentials of M. C. Butler, claiming a seat from South Carolina, were, after a long debate, adopted by a vote of 30 yeas to 29 nays—the Democrats thus achieving their first victory in the Senate since 1861. They were aided in this by the vote of Conover (Rep.), of Florida, and the absence of two other Republicans—Patterson, of South Carolina, and Sharon, of Nevada.

HOUSE.—The House devoted the entire day in debating the Deficiency Appropriation bill without passing it. The debate took a partisan turn toward its close, and the following colloquy occurred between Messrs. Crittenden (Dem.) and Frye (Rep.): "Mr. Crittenden—Does the gentleman think that the President was wrong in putting an ex-Confederate in his Cabinet? Mr. Frye (emphatically)—I do. Mr. Killinger and others on the Republican side—So do I; so do I."

THURSDAY, Nov. 22.—SENATE.—The Senate, by a vote of yeas 29 to nays 32, refused to lay on the table the resolution of Mr. Thurman to discharge the Committee on Privileges and Elections from further consideration of the credentials of M. C. Butler as Senator from South Carolina. Messrs. Davis (Illinois), Conover (Florida), and Patterson (South Carolina) voted with the Democrats in the negative. The question then being on the adoption of the resolution, Mr. Edmunds moved to amend the resolution so as to discharge the committee from further consideration of the credentials of Mr Kellogg as Senator from Louisiana, instead of M. C. Butler, as Senator from South Carolina. This was rejected—yeas, 30; nays, 31. Mr. Conkling then submitted an amendment as follows: Resolved, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections be directed to report in the matter of the credentials of William P. Kellogg and Henry M. Spofford, claiming seats as Senators from Louisiana, and that, meanwhile, the case of South Carolina be postponed. Rejected—yeas, 30; nays, 32. Mr. Edmunds' motion to adjourn till Monday resulted in a tie, and Vice President Wheeler cast the deciding vote in the affirmative.

HOUSE.—Bills were introduced and referred: By Mr. Franklin, for the organization of the Territory of Oklahoma; by Mr. Davis, to exempt steam-plow machinery from payment of duty; by Mr. Stone (Iowa), creating postal savings banks....Mr. Hale, of Maine, made a motion to the effect that the Committee on Privileges and Elections be discharged from further consideration of the contested case of Belford vs. Patterson, of Colorado. Laid on the table—yeas, 158; nays, 94....Mr. Ewing made a long and earnest speech in support of his bill to repeal the Resumption law.

NATIONAL LEGISLATION.

Bills Pending in Congress.

SENATOR MITCHELL, of Oregon, has a bill to extend the time for the construction and completion of the Northern Pacific railroad, and, by readjustment of the grants, without increasing the appropriation, to secure the construction of the Portland, Salt Lake, and South Pass railroad. Mr. Mitchell gave notice that he would call the bill up for reference at an early day, and have something to say.

Senator Dawes introduces a bill giving the District Courts of Utah exclusive original jurisdiction in all divorce proceedings, and transferring all processes and proceedings now pending in Probate Courts to the District Court. The bill provides for an appeal from the final decision of the District Court to the Supreme Court of the Territory, and repeals all laws of the Territory inconsistent with the act.

Senator Windom, of Minnesota, proposes to establish a Bureau of Commerce. His bill provides for the creation of a new Executive Department, with a Secretary and Assistant Secretary, to be appointed by the President, and confirmed by the Senate, the said department to be charged with the supervision and care of the commercial, agricultural, manufacturing and mining interests of the United States, in so far as the same are confided to the National Government by the constitution.

Representative Keifer, of Ohio, offers a bill authorizing the President to appoint a Commissioner, who shall be eminently qualified for the duties by his special education and experience, for the purpose of visiting Europe to examine and report upon the condition and management of the cultivated forests in the several countries of Europe, their cost and estimated value; and also their observed influence, if any, upon the climate and natural water supply of the country in which they are located; and, further, to examine and report upon the best species and varieties of trees to plant for forests, fuel, and other purposes, in the timbered portions of the United States; the rapidity of growth, time of maturity, and length of life of the several species and varieties of trees which may be thought suitable and desirable for such planting.

Representative Willis, of New York, introduced a bill entitled, "An act to simplify the National Banking laws, and to remove all unnecessary restrictions and burdens therefrom." It removes taxes on capital and deposits, provides for a reserve to be controlled by the banks themselves, on an average throughout the year of 25 per cent., allows banks to keep their moneys where their best interests dictate, removes the special privilege for banks having $5,000,000 capital, provides that signatures to bills can be written or engraved as the banks may elect, modifies and greatly narrows the discretionary power of the Comptroller, provides that the State authorities shall not impose a tax beyond 1 per cent. on the shares of national banks, and for only quarterly reports, and abolishes Bank-Examiners. Finally, it provides that all expenses whatsoever relating to national banks shall be taken from a fund derived from the tax on national banks.

Delegate Cannon, of Utah, has introduced a bill to enable the Territory of Utah to become a State, and for its admission into the Union on an equal footing with the original States. He wants it called the State of "Deseret," and provides that the constitution of the proposed State shall be republican in form, and make no distinction in civil or political rights on account of race or color, except Indians not taxed, and not be repugnant to the constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence. His bill further provides that perfect toleration of religious sentiment shall be secured, and no inhabitant of said State shall ever be molested, in person or property, on account of his or her mode of religious worship.

Representative Loring, of Massachusetts, presents a bill to establish additional telegraphic communication between the United States and Europe. It grants to the American Cable Company, of New York, for a period of twenty-five years from the day of the taking effect of the act, the exclusive right, power, and privilege of crossing the boundary line and eminent domain of the United States with telegraph lines, and cables, and telegraphic dispatches, and cable messages, and across the Atlantic ocean from the United States to any foreign country. The bill excepts from this exclusive privilege any company now operating, providing that it conforms to the same requirements as those imposed upon the Cable Company by the bill, the United States Government to have rates free of charge and priority in the transmission of messages. The rate of charge to the public is twenty-five cents a word, no message to be counted less than ten words. After the expiration of five years this rate is to be reduced to twenty cents a word; after eight years to seventeen cents; after ten years to fifteen cents; after twelve years to thirteen cents, and after fifteen years to ten cents a word.

Representative Lapham, of New York, introduces a joint petition recommending the adoption of an amendment to the constitution fixing the day for the annual meeting of Congress on the first Monday in January, except when the first day of January falls on Monday, when the time of such meeting shall be on the first Tuesday in January. Mr. Lapham proposes another amendment to the constitution providing that the term of the President of the United States shall begin on the first day of May instead of the fourth day of March, except when the first day of May shall fall on Sunday, in which case it shall begin on the first Tuesday in May. The proposed amendment provides that every President elected shall hold office until his successor shall have been duly elected and qualified.

Important to Newspaper Publishers.

The greatest annoyance experienced by postal clerks and mail agents, whose duty it is to distribute newspaper packages from the offices of publication, comes from the custom adopted by some publishers of using printed paper for wrappers, the labels on which are printed or written so small and indistinctly that they are not readily made out; besides such wrappers are very apt to burst open either before or after they reach the [illegible] clerk, and they cause serious delay and trouble. Having heard much complaint on this account from postal clerks, we are not surprised to learn that an order has been issued from the department to the effect that hereafter newspapers sent to regular subscribers from the office of publication must not be done up in old newspapers or any sort of printed matter. If they are, they are subject to transient postage.

HAYES AND THE SENATE.

Judge Edmunds and Other Senators Have a Conference with the President.

A gentleman who was present at the conference Senator Edmunds and others had with the President, says a Washington telegram, represents that the latter gave no evidences of weakening. After Edmunds had recited the substance of the proceedings of the Republican caucus, to which the President gave earnest attention, he stated that he thought a few concessions on the part of both the President and certain Senators would result in a better understanding between them, and would tend to draw them together rather than to widen the breach already made. The President, in reply, said that those who saw fit to differ with him in his general policy not only criticised it without reason, but, worse than that, grossly misrepresented it; that when he was inducted into office he had made up his mind to try his Southern policy as an experiment; that he believed at the time that it would contribute to the general good and peace of the country, and he was pleased to say that the experiment had more than fully realized his expectations. As to the appointment of Democrats to office, he had also tried the experiment of placing one in his Cabinet; that the Senate had seen fit to confirm him, and he was also well satisfied that the country as well as himself was well pleased with the management of the Postoffice Department under a Democrat. With respect to the appointment of Fitzsimmons to be Marshal of Georgia, who seemed to be the most objectionable of any of his appointees, the President said that complaint had been made by the revenue officers that in some of the districts of the South there was great trouble to collect the revenue; that the officers charged with its collection, at least some of them, indicated that it might be necessary to have the services of a portion of the army to made their collections; that he was averse to employing the army for any such purpose. On the other hand, he wanted the revenue honestly collected, and he meant that it should be; that he had consulted with the Georgia delegation with reference to the trouble, and after a full interchange of views of the several gentlemen thus consulted he had concluded to appoint Fitzsimmons, who seemed to possess all the necessary qualifications to make a good Marshal. The only thing he knew that could be used against him was that he was a Democrat; that he had received assurances in which he put trust that Fitzsimmons would see that the revenue was collected without the use of armed United States forces; and that, inasmuch as the former Marshal had indicated that it would be necessary to have the army to support him, he concluded to give a Democrat a chance to do what his Republican predecessor admitted he could not do. The President also spoke of the appointment of Hilliard to be Minister to Brazil. He said he desired to give the South representation in the diplomatic service, and that the indorsements Hilliard had brought to his attention were sufficient to convince him that the country would secure in his appointment a gentleman eminently fitted to represent the United States abroad; that it likewise still further tended to promote that peace so necessary between the sections, and gave the people of the South fitting evidence that the policy of peace was one they were not only to accept in name, but in the benefits of which they should have a proportionate share. In conclusion, the President said that, while he recognized that he was vested with power to make appointments, he also recognized fully the power of the Senate to reject them; and if the Senate did not like any of his nominations they could reject them, and he would then make new ones.

Making a Piute Doctor.

It has been a question unsolved by many how the doctors of the tribes of Indians got their sheepskins. We have of late heard of several executions for inability to bring about a cure among the Piutes, and now we have the particulars at hand of how they elect a successor in case of the death of a medicine man or woman. All the adult members of the tribe are called together; a white round stone is provided for each and all except one, and that is a black one; these are put in a sack together and passed around, each hand drawing out a pebble. The one drawing the black stone is thereafter to act as medicine man or woman, as the case may be, for women and men have to take their chances of drawing. The doctor-elect then must qualify himself as best he can—the more the better—for he will have a longer lease of his life; because, on the death of his third patient, he is put to death in a summary manner—sometimes shot, again stoned to death, and at others burned.—Aurora (Nev.) Herald.

IT appears, from the statistics of the English Home Office, that the number of persons executed for murder in the year 1863 was 22 out of 29 sentenced to death. From that period the numbers executed and sentenced respectively were as follows: In 1864, 19 executed out of 32 sentenced; in 1865, 7 out of 20; 1866, 12 out of 26; 1867, 10 out of 27; 1868, 12 out of 21; 1869, 10 out of 18; 1870, 6 out of 15; 1871, 4 out of 12; 1872, 15 out of 30; 1873, 11 out of 18; 1874, 16 out of 25; 1075, 18 out of 33.

THE annual report to the department shows that in the last fiscal year 1,825 postoffices have been established and 863 discontinued, making an increase of 962 over offices established in the previous year. The whole number of officers employed under the department is 53,000. There are 83 free delivery offices and 2,265 letter-carriers in the United States.

EMPEROR WILLIAM, of Germany, is troubled with the ear-ache.

WILLIAM F. COOLBAUGH.

The Suicide of Chicago's Great Banker and Financier.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The startling death of the late William F. Coolbaugh by his own hand has cast a gloom over the whole city, and will occasion a feeling of profound regret and sadness in the business circles of the East and West, in which he was well known, formerly as a leading merchant, and for many years a great banker. The unexpectedness of the event has added to the force of the shock. If the question had been asked of any resident of Chicago which one of her prominent citizens would be likely to end his life by suicide on the morrow, William F. Coolbaugh would have been almost the last to be selected. Apparently he had everything about him to make life agreeable and worth living for. He had hosts of warm friends. His genial nature had made him widely esteemed. He had amassed a large fortune by honorable means, and lived in the midst of all the luxuries that wealth can procure. He was at the head of a powerful, solvent, influential banking institution. His children were comfortably settled in life. Passionately fond of field sports, he had a robustness of physique which enabled him to enjoy them. Fond of good living, he was able to gratify his tastes. Possessing many friends, his natural generosity made him a most hospitable entertainer. Thus situated, living in a palatial residence, and surrounded by all the pleasant things that culture can suggest and wealth procure, in one fatal instant of time he ends it all, and passes from the pleasures and hopes of life into the gloomy and solemn shades of the dead.

The incidents of his career may be briefly told. He was born in 1821, in Pike county, Pa., and went into mercantile business for himself as soon as he came of age. From 1842 to 1860 he was a successful merchant in Burlington, Iowa, but in the latter year he retired from mercantile business and organized the banking-house of Coolbaugh & Brooks. Twelve years later he removed to Chicago and established the banking-house of Coolbaugh & Co., which in February, 1865, became the Union National Bank, with himself as President. Upon the organization of the Clearing-House he was made its President, and was also President of the National Bankers' Association for the West and the Southwest. Mr. Coolbaugh had also occupied important political positions. He was appointed Loan Agent by the first General Assembly of Iowa, negotiated the first loans ever made by that State, and directed the issue of its first bonds. He was a Douglas Democrat during the eventful career of that Illinois statesman, and voted for him from first to last in the Baltimore Convention. For eight years he was a member of the Iowa Senate. In 1856 he was a delegate in the Democratic Convention at Cincinnati, and voted for Buchanan and Breckinridge, but during the war, like the other Douglas Democrats, he gave Mr. Lincoln and the Government his hearty support. Although not taking a thoroughly active part in politics, his name had been mentioned in connection with the United States Senate. If Tilden had been elected, there is reason to believe that he would have been offered the treasury portfolio. He was a leading member of the Illinois Constitutional Convention, and largely, if not chiefly, to his efforts in that body is due the important provision limiting the issuing of bonds and incurring municipal indebtedness in excess of 5 per cent. on the taxable value of property.

A Monster Cheese.

Canada claims to have produced the largest cheese on record. From the Ingersoll factory has been turned out a cheese weighing 7,000 pounds. It was 6 feet 10 inches in diameter and 21 feet in circumference. It required one milking of 7,000 cows, or 35 tons of milk to produce it.

THE assertion that ex-Gov. Coburn, of Maine, is the largest land-owner in the United States is disputed in favor of Wilson Waddingham, of New York, who owns 665,000 acres in one lot on the Canadian river, in New Mexico, and enough more in other parts of the same Territory to to make a total of 1,256,000 acres, or more than twice as many as are claimed for Mr. Coburn.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$7 25	@11 75
HOGS	4 60	@ 5 25
COTTON	11	@ 11¼
FLOUR—Superfine	4 75	@ 5 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 30	@ 1 31
CORN—Western Mixed	62	@ 64½
OATS—Mixed	35	@ 40
RYE—Western	72	@ 74
PORK—New Mess	14 15	@14 25
LARD	8¾	@ 8¾
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@ 5 75
Choice Natives	4 75	@ 5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 25	@ 3 50
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 50
HOGS—Live	4 00	@ 4 75
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 25	@ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 10	@ 1 11
No. 3 Spring	1 02½	@ 1 05
CORN—No. 2	47	@ 48
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
RYE—No. 2	54	@ 55
BARLEY—No. 2	60	@ 64
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	31	@ 33
EGGS—Fresh	19	@ 20
PORK—Mess	12 10	@12 15
LARD	7¾	@ 8
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 13½	@ 1 15½
No. 2	1 09	@ 1 09½
CORN—No. 2	48	@ 49
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 26
RYE—No. 1	55	@ 56
BARLEY—No. 2	57	@ 58
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 3 Red Fall	1 34	@ 1 35
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	42	@ 44½
OATS—No. 2	26	@ 27
RYE	55	@ 56
PORK—Mess	12 30	@12 40
LARD	7¾	@ 8
HOGS	3 85	@ 4 50
CATTLE	2 50	@ 4 85
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 18	@ 1 20
CORN—New	39	@ 41
OATS	27	@ 31
RYE	60	@ 62
PORK—Mess	12 25	@12 37½
LARD	7¾	@ 8
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White Michigan	1 32	@ 1 33
No. 2 Red Winter	1 31	@ 1 32
CORN	46	@ 50½
OATS—No. 2	29	@ 30
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Choice White	6 00	@ 6 50
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 29	@ 1 30
No. 1 Amber	1 28	@ 1 29
CORN—No. 1	47	@ 52
OATS—Mixed	29	@ 30
BARLEY (per cental)	1 10	@ 1 40
PORK—Mess	10 50	@13 75
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Fair	4 50	@ 5 00
Common	4 00	@ 4 25
HOGS	4 25	@ 4 75
SHEEP	3 00	@ 4 [illegible]

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

It is an established fact that the value of farming lands everywhere in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and some parts of Wisconsin, is steadily increasing, and we look upon this fact as a turning point in the depression of all kinds of real estate.—Chicago Tribune.

The Spanish peasants think that birds eat the grain, and that trees harbor birds, so they cut down the trees, and the country presents the character of endless, melancholy, treeless plains, with a poor, stunted, cereal vegetation.—London Gardeners' Chronicle.

A dozen fowls would do very well in a yard fifty feet square, with a little grass plot in one corner, as fowls must have grass. This space is as small as can be used for that number, and if one cannot give that space to them he had better buy his eggs and chickens.

There should be a large stencil plate for marking meal bags, grain sacks and similar articles, and a smaller rubber stamp for printing the owner's name on hoes, shovels, rakes and the many small tools which are often lent, often used away from home, and consequently liable to be lost or stolen.—N. E. Homestead.

The woods which are heavier than water are Dutch box, Indian cedar, ebony, lignum-vitæ, mahogany, heart of oak, pomegranate and vine. Lignum-vitæ is one-third heavier, pomegranate rather more. On the other hand, cork having a specific gravity of 24, and poplar 38.3, are the lightest woody products. —Germantown Telegraph.

A wonderfully strange prejudice exists against cattle without horns. The absurd and contemptuous name "mulley" sticks to them, although they may belong to a breed as old and as high-bred as the short-horns. The polled Angus cattle are equal to the best beef breeds living. That they are without horns is an additional recommendation that should make them very popular among graziers and drovers. Without the injurious weapons of attack they are docile and easily controlled, and the stronger cannot abuse or injure the weaker, as it is the nature of all animals to do.—American Agriculturist.

Farmers generally use shingles on the roofs of their buildings, and without doubt they make a good covering. Good pine shingles will last from twenty to thirty years, and the best of shaved cedar nearly as long. Sawed shingles are not near so durable as shaved ones. The nails seem to rust off with the sawed shingles, and the roof in a few years becomes leaky. We have repeatedly been told that if the shingles, whether shaved or sawed, be dipped in lime-water before being laid they will last much longer. We have recently seen shingles laid that were first dipped in strong lime-water, and, when dried, into thin red paint; and after the roof was covered, it was again painted. It is claimed that a roof so treated will last more than enough longer to pay the additional cost. In a country where shingles are very cheap this would not be of much consequence, but generally it would be, and we call attention to it because the lime-water and paint are within reach of all and can be easily used. —Congregationalist.

Where our climate is not too severe, the Osage orange has proved the best material for a live fence. The great trouble with it, however, as with all live fences, is to get it started with an even thickness along the row; plants here and there will fail to grow. Hence, resort has been had to cutting off at the ground, or to bending or plashing to remedy this difficulty. The mode I have lately learned, and which I think is far better than all others, is to allow the new hedge to grow, say, three or four years, or until the stems will measure an inch in diameter or more at the ground. Then, early in the spring, cut off the branches close to the body; clean out the row of all rubbish and all the branches; saw each plant partly off at the ground, bind it down and peg it there, following the row until all are cut and neatly pegged to the ground, overlying each other. Many persons have practiced cutting and bending down, but have omitted to trim off the branches, and have had poor success. It is this trimming that insures a growth of new wood all along the line, and makes a hedge that a rabbit cannot pass through nor a bullock go over. Cultivate well and trim into proper shape annually.—Phrenological Journal.

About the House.

Remedy for Bruises.—Apply castor oil immediately; it will remove soreness.

Jumbles.—One cup butter, two sugar, three eggs, four cups flour; mix soft; bake in round cakes.

For chapped hands, drop a teaspoonful of honey in the basin of water used for washing.—Western Rural.

Cure for Chills.—Take, the first day, ten whole black pepper-corns, second day nine, and so on until you get down to one.

French Toast.—Beat four eggs until very light and add one pint of milk; slice thin some bakers' bread; dip each piece into the egg and milk and fry brown; sprinkle powdered sugar and cinnamon upon each piece and serve hot.

Tapioca Pudding.—Soak two-thirds of a cupful of tapioca over night in one quart of milk; then add three beaten eggs, five table-spoonfuls of sugar, butter the size of an egg, one whole lemon, grated; bake three-quarters of an hour; serve with milk or cream.

Calla Lily, etc.—With good care callas should bloom the second year. Callas on the Atlantic coast are generally kept too warm, and are, therefore, unhealthy. In California they only bloom during the winter months; always outdoors in the coldest rains. Hyacinth bulbs can be started in water in the house, late in the winter, and planted as soon as the frost is out of the ground. German ivy will grow nicely in a bottle of water.

Remedy for Corns or Bunions.—I have had a very troublesome corn for years, and finally bound on a small piece of porous plaster, which soon relieved it; wore it about three months, occasionally cutting off the corn and applying a fresh piece when necessary. It is now entirely cured.

Eccles Cake.—Make a rich and delicate puff paste; roll it out thin, cut it round, using a bowl for that purpose; sprinkle each round with nicely-washed currants, a little sugar, chopped lemon (only a small quantity of lemon), and nutmeg; wet the edges well, then place another round of paste on the top, pressing the edges neatly together; put in a hot oven and bake quickly.

To Clean White Ostrich Feathers.—To clean white ostrich feathers, let four ounces of white curd soap be cut small and dissolved in four pints of water, rather hot, in a basin. Make the solution into a lather by beating it with birch rods or wires. Introduce the feathers, and rub well with the hands for five or six minutes. After the soaping wash in clean water as hot as the hand can bear. Shake until dry.—Springfield Union.

A Vapor Bath at Home.—A vapor bath may be easily prepared by taking a pail about half full of hot, but not quite boiling, water, which may be placed under a cane-bottom chair, if one is at hand, or if not, a narrow piece of wood may be placed across the pail, and the patient should sit on it for about half an hour with a blanket over his shoulders, reaching to the floor to keep in the steam. Should any faintness be felt it is a sign that the water is too hot, and the blanket may be held open for a short time to allow the steam to escape. These simple remedies are within the reach of every one, and if promptly resorted to, on the first appearance of a cold, would save many a dollar in doctors' bills.—Cor. Toronto Globe.

Echoes from Dead Voices.

The Scientific American of last week contains the first announcement of what may be the most wonderful invention of the day.

Nothing could be more incredible than the likelihood of once more hearing the voice of the dead, yet the invention of the new instrument is said to render this possible hereafter. It is true that the voices are stilled, but whoever has spoken or whoever may speak into the mouthpiece of the phonograph, and whose words are recorded by it, has the assurance that his speech may be reproduced audibly in his own tones long after he himself has turned to dust. A strip of indented paper travels through a little machine, the sounds of the latter are magnified, and posterity, centuries hence, hear us as plainly as if we were present. Speech has become, as it were, immortal. The Scientific American says:

"The possibilities of the future are not much more wonderful than those of the present. The orator in Boston speaks, the indented strip of paper is the intangible result; but this travels under a second machine which may connect with the telephone. Not only is the speaker heard now in San Francisco, for example, but by passing the strip again under the reproducer he may be heard to-morrow, or next year, or next century. His speech, in the first instance, is recorded and transmitted simultaneously, and indefinite repetition is possible.

"The new invention is purely mechanical—no electricity is involved. It is a simple affair of vibrating plates, thrown into vibration by the human voice. It is crude yet, but the principle has been found, and modifications and improvements are only a matter of time. So also are its possibilities other than those already noted. Will letter-writing be a thing of the past? Why not, if by simply talking into a mouth-piece our speech is recorded on paper, and our correspondent can by the same paper hear us speak? Are we to have a new kind of books? There is no reason why the orations of our modern Ciceros should not be recorded and detachably bound so that we can run the indented slips through the machine, and, in the quiet of our own apartments, listen again, and as often as we will, to the eloquent words. Nor are we restricted to spoken words. Music may be crystallized as well. Imagine an opera or an oratorio, sung by the greatest living vocalists, thus recorded, and capable of being repeated as we desire."

A Hot Fight.

One of the most ludicrous combats on record occurred at a Turkish bath in St. Louis a few days ago. Two mortal enemies, a physician and a bank cashier, happened to occupy neighboring coaches in the hottest room of the establishment, and were enjoying a thorough steaming before they noticed each other. A wordy warfare was instantly begun, which soon developed into blows, and the two naked citizens, each drenched in perspiration, were locked in a deadly struggle. The strip of matting, which protects the bathers' feet from the almost red-hot floor, was soon pushed aside, and the fight went on furiously upon the blistering pavement. As the floor began to burn their bare feet, the combatants capered up and down in agony, pounding each other's faces with the fury of despair. The wildest dervish dance never exhibited so extraordinary a spectacle. At last the attendants rushed in and separated the performers, and proceeded to bind up their many wounds. The shriveled skin peeled from the doctor's feet like parchment, and the cashier was also pretty well roasted. They parted full of threats, but when they fight again it probably won't be in the midst of a furnace.

Anecdote of Daniel Webster.

During one of the college vacations Daniel and his brother returned to their father's, in Salisbury. Thinking he had a right to some return for the money he had expended on their education, the father put scythes into their hands and ordered them to mow. Daniel made a few sweeps, and then, resting his scythe, wiped the sweat from his brow. His father said, "What's the matter, Dan?" "My scythe don't hang right, sir," he answered. His father fixed it, and Dan went to work again, but with no better success. Something was the matter with the scythe, and it was not long before it wanted fixing again, and the father said, in a pet, "Well, hang it to suit yourself." Daniel, with great composure, hung it in the next tree and retired.

THE IMPERISHABLE BOY.

His Sportive Endurance—An Animating Pastime.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

The best authorities among scientific persons have long conceded the fact that it is impossible to kill a boy by any of the recognized processes of demolition. He tumbles off chestnut trees and falls down wells with impunity; he is perfectly happy in the midst of harrowing railroad accidents, and prematurely enthusiastic Fourth of July explosions afford him intense delight; the most persistent book agents have done little more than discourage him, and able-bodied streaks of summer lightning have passed him by with disgust.

Yesterday afternoon there was a persistent recurrence of ominous silence and hilarious laughter among the two dozen or more carriers of the Free Press that became so monotonous that we felt called upon to investigate. We looked, and behold! the boys had invented a new game, having all the elements of dangerous fun necessary to perfect enjoyment.

One boy stood with his back against the wall; the next boy stooped down with his head in the first boy's stomach; the third boy stooped with his head on the second boy's back, and in this way the line of boys was continued back as far as desirable. Then all the spare boys took a running leap in succession, and, putting their hands on the hindmost boy, jumped over as many as possible, to come down at the end of the jump on a boy's neck with the force of an infantile pile-driver, and the next boy comes down on him in the same way, the efforts of the jumpers being directed to breaking the line of the stoopers or their necks, either object appearing to be equally desirable and attainable. The position of the boy against the wall is one of great honor and responsibility. It requires a boy of strong stomach to enjoy the process of having the head of another boy driven into his waistband by the continued efforts of fifteen of his fellows. Sometimes the jumpers become unbearably enthusiastic, and the boy against the wall finds it necessary to step aside to re-swallow his dinner. This gives the stooping boy a chance to distinguish himself, as his head is jammed against the wall so hard that he feels his ears sticking out under his arms. Sometimes it happens that a small, consumptive boy gets into the line of stoopers, and when a big boy comes down on his back he breaks in two, and this causes a hiatus that is immediately filled by the stoopers in the rear, who sprawl on their noses and elbows, while the remaining jumpers cavort over them like a cavalry charge.

We always like to encourage little games of this kind. They have a soothing effect upon market bills, the noise outside and the undertaker. The game to which we refer has resulted in no mortality so far; but it is only three days old, and we have an abiding hope.

Why a Chicago Wedding is Postponed.

The guests at a recent expected marriage in a certain church on the West Side were treated to a singular and rather startling sensation at the very moment when the connubial knot was to be tied. The bride and groom were a young couple, and had made all the necessary preparations for the anticipated happy event that was to unite them as one, and it was thought by the respective friends of the pair that the course of true love had run smoothly with them, and a genuine mutual affection existed between them. The invited company had entered the house of worship, and the attendants on the couple had taken their places around the altar, while the minister remained in waiting to perform the ceremony. The bride, attired in all the gorgeous finery customary on such occasions, alighted from the carriage, and the groom stepped blithely and lightly after her and upon her long trail. As he did so the fair lady uttered a low cry, and exclaimed, sharply, "Oh, dear, how awkward you are!" The young man's face colored as he stumbled off the rich garment, and he gave his arm to the lady while laboring under a confused mind. The pair walked into the church and down the aisle to the altar. All eyes rested upon their movements, and a murmur of voices arose as they came in and took their positions before the minister. The ceremony proceeded, the minister asked the bride if she would accept the groom for her wedded husband and received the usual affirmative answer, and was about to interrogate the young man when the latter impulsively and unexpectedly said to the bride: "Oh, dear, how awkward you are!" and, quickly turning on his heel, walked out of the edifice without another word of explanation, leaving the astonished bride standing at the altar in mute bewilderment and the minister and guests in blank amazement. The young man went his way in a carriage, and the disappointed bride and the maids who sought to comfort her left the church for their homes. The occurrence was an actual one, and has created no small amount of gossip in the vicinity where the church is situated.—Chicago Tribune.

A Texan Tries It on a Confidence Man.

Beware of the Texan. He carries a gun in his pocket, and, although Chicago is a civilized community, the Texan will use his gun with the same recklessness here that he does on the banks of the Red river. He is not to be played on as a sucker. The hero of this story came to Chicago from Dallas. He roamed about town as long as he wanted to and took a morning train for his Southern home. Soon after, another man, calling himself Jackson, entered and said he was a Dallas Texan himself. The two commenced to talk. Very soon after a third came in. He went for Jackson and told him if he didn't pay for those goods that he wouldn't ship. Jackson said he must have the goods, and if the merchant would stay on the train until it arrived at a certain station, he, Jackson, would give him the amount, $150. This didn't suit; the merchant was imperative. Jackson then turned to the genuine Texan and asked him if he wouldn't loan him the money until the train got to the next station. The Texan said "yes," but told Jackson that he couldn't leave that train without him. The loan was made, and when the train reached Sixteenth street Jackson arose to go out. The Texan also arose, but the "merchant" held the door against the genuine Lone-Star man. The L. S. M. then drew his navy just as deliberately as he would a toothpick, and shoved it under the nose of the "merchant," who dropped his grip and fled. The Jackson youth had, by this time, got considerable start ahead, but the "sure enough" Texan followed like an Indian and corraled Jackson, who disgorged under the mild six-shooter persuader.

The Texan then reboarded the train, and remarked to the conductor that the confidence game had played out in Texas soon after the war. "I helped to play it out myself," he said very coolly, "and when a Chicago sharper tries to play it on me, he'll get beautifully left, I can tell you. And I ain't a bad man to fool around either."—Chicago Times.

Morton's Memory.

The Morton Monument Association, of Indianapolis, of which Gen. Lew Wallace is President, have issued an address to the people of Indiana, in which they say:

"Without losing sight of the proposed honor to the illustrious dead—in fact, to give it the sanction of the wildest possible utterance on the part of the people of the State, without respect to class or party, and further, to do what we think has long been the wish, if not the intention, of the people of the State, we venture to extend the idea of the founders of the association, and attempt the building of a memorial hall, to be situated, if leave can be obtained, in the lot known as the Governor's circle, here in Indianapolis, a most beautiful site, seemingly reserved throughout all the changes of the city for such a service. Our desire is to set about building a depository of things of historical interest connected with the growth of the State, past and to come, such as portraits, busts and statues of high officials and public men, drums, flags and military trophies, legislative volumes, and works of our citizens in the field of science, literature and exploration generally. We conceive that nothing would be more in harmony with such a design than the perfection of suitable panels of marble in which to write imperishably the names of those who have died in the performance of duty to the State, as well as those whose services to the State and mankind, wherever rendered, fairly entitle them to perpetuation after death. We think every good soldier should have his name so publicly written, without reference to rank or position, and in the center of all, under a fitting dome, it is our especial desire to erect the statue, in bronze or marble, of Oliver P. Morton. Our resort will be to subscription alone, for which we shall organize a thorough canvass of the whole State, down even to school districts. Everybody will have an opportunity to join in the work. We will not think our efforts successful if the subscription stop short of $200,000."

How the French Workman Lives.

The French laborer probably gets more for his wages than any other. His food is cheaper and more nourishing. His bouillon is the liquid essence of beef at a penny per bowl. His bread at the restaurants is thrown in without any charge, and is the best bread in the world. His hot coffee and milk is peddled about the streets in the morning at a sou per cup. It is coffee, not slops. His half bottle of claret is thrown in at a meal costing 12 cents. For a few cents he may enjoy an evening's amusement at one of the many minor theaters, with his coffee free. Sixpence pays for a nicely cushioned seat at the theater. No gallery gods, no peanuts, pipes, smoke, drunkenness, yelling or howling. The Jardin des Plantes, the vast galleries and museums of the Louvre, Hotel Cluny, Palace of the Luxembourg, and Versailles are free for him to enter. Art and science hold out to him their choicest treasures at small cost, or no cost at all. French economy and frugality do not mean that constant retrenchment and self-denial which would deprive life of everything which makes it worth living for. Economy in France, more than in any other country, means a utilization of what America throws away, but it does not mean a pinching process of reducing life to a barren existence of work and bread and water.

A Mighty Fall.

There was a mighty fall in the Senate to-day. Senator Maxey with much warmth was eloquently depicting the grievances of Texas people by reason of frequent incursions on their territory by Mexican Greasers. The big heart of Senator Davis, of Illinois, was touched, and leaving his own seat he passed over nearer Maxey's position and planted himself in a seat made for ordinary Senators. He had no sooner got into the seat than the cane-seat ripped away like so much blotting-paper, and the spectacle was presented to the dignified Senate of David Davis, weighing over 300 pounds, jammed into a position too small by odds to contain his adipose, with his feet elevated, head down, pantaloons torn, and helpless as a child until righted by his colleagues. He looked after the accident very much like a school-boy who had been the victim of a practical joke at the hands of his fellows. Of course Senators didn't laugh, but the galleries broke out in a guffaw. —Washington Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Politics in the Household.

In the village of C. the children are as strong partisans in politics as their parents. A little girl of Democratic persuasion had been taking tea with a little Republican friend, and was amicably helping her wipe dishes when the news of Hayes' election was announced, whereupon, dropping the spoons she was wiping, she caught up her sun-bonnet and disappeared. "What brings you home so early?" asked her mother, as the little Democrat rushed into the house. "Why, I happened to think that there I was wiping Republican dishes, and I just threw down the towel and ran," was the excited answer.—Christian Union.

The Thanksgiving proclamation of Gov. Van Zandt, of Rhode Island, is perhaps the shortest on record: "I appoint Thursday, the 29th inst., as Thanksgiving day, and request the people of this State to assemble in their houses of public worship and return thanks to God for His tender mercies and loving kindness, and may those who are blessed with abundance give liberally to the poor."

CURRENCY REFORM.

Texts for the People.

"Exorbitant rent (commonly called interest) is silently but surely devouring the substance of the people."—Peter Cooper.

"However fertile a country may be, interest, even at 2 per cent. will inevitably oppress the producers."—Edward Kellogg.

"Bank paper must be suppressed and the circulation restored to the nation, to whom it rightfully belongs."—Thomas Jefferson.

"If the bond-holder refuses to take the same kind of money with which he bought the bonds, he is an extortioner and a robber."—John Sherman.

"The amount of money needed in a country should be determined by the wants of the people, and can only be done by a national paper money."—Henry Carey Baird.

"When the country will realize the glories of a 'gold basis' and learn what is meant by 'irredeemable trash,' the fallacy and cheat of a 'gold basis' will have been demonstrated for the thousandth time."—Samuel F. Cary.

"President Hayes' salary is paid in greenbacks, so is Gov. Robinson's. Why, then, should we pay gold to the bondholder, seeing that the bondholder lent greenbacks to the Government and not gold?"—Richard Montgomery Griffin.

"That millions of people should be idle, and in many cases absolutely starving, not because there is no work to do, but because there is no medium of exchange, is a disgrace to our Government."—A New York mechanic.

"While our present monetary system, which is a shameless fraud, continues, the poor man will become poorer, while fraudulent money-brokers and bank-note manipulators will absorb the products of labor."—F. Hughes, of Pennsylvania.

"Foreign debt, carrying gold interest, is what is crushing the hearts and hopes of the laboring people of our country. It is that indebtedness which is filling our almshouses with skilled mechanics, and stripping the thrifty laborer of his earnings."—Judge Kelley.

"We should do foul injustice to the Government and the people of the United States, after we have sold these bonds on an average for not more than 60 cents on the dollar, now to propose to make a new contract for the benefit of the holders."—O. P. Morton.

"What is a government good for, if in such a country as this, with all its material resources and vast extent, it cannot prevent a large part of its people from the distress of want of work and of bread. This seems to me the first duty of government."—Peter Cooper.

"When the bill was on its passage (the bill for the payment of the 5-20 bonds), the question was expressly asked if the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, and as expressly answered by him, that only the interest was payable in coin."—Thaddeus Stevens.

"The gold gamblers have manipulated Congress so as to discredit its own paper, that they might swindle the people. They accomplished that end, and now they would destroy the money of the people that they might largely appreciate their ill-gotten gains."—Thaddeus Stevens.

"I look upon this contest [the discussion in Congress as to whether the interest on the public debt should be paid in greenbacks or gold] as a contest between the curb-stone brokers, the Jew brokers, the money-changers, the men who speculate in stocks, and the productive toiling men of our country."—Henry Wilson.

"The people are the sovereign power, and no man can question their right (through Congress) to make as much of the medium of exchange (money) as will be necessary for the wants of trade. Paper money is better than either gold or silver, as its volume cannot be contracted by using it as merchandise."—John Magwire, of St. Louis.

"I am convinced that when a true American system of finance is adopted which shall put all that circulates as money entirely and exclusively under the control of the Government, making it receivable for all dues and debts, employment for all the working classes, and prosperity for the whole country will be natural and permanent."—Peter Cooper.

"One great purpose of the money power, who have brought about contraction, is to control the mass of the people, that they may further enrich themselves, and pander to their lust of power. Further impoverishment may render further resistance hopeless, and they who would be free from this great money despotism must strike the blow before it is too late."—F. Hughes, of Philadelphia.

"Money should be a thing of or belonging to the country. An exportable commodity is not fitted to be money. And nothing could be more monstrous than England's principle, followed by the United States, of forcing people to be buyers of gold, and making their possession of gold—one of the sacredest articles in the world—the condition of being able to furnish themselves with bread and clothing."—Isaac Buchanan, of Canada.

"No single interest touches the domestic comfort and prosperity of the people as this one of the currency, and in the present condition of the country none is of such immediate importance, or calls for more immediate solution. To put off this question, therefore, with vague expressions of reform, and the desirableness of 'specie payments,' is to ignore the ruling interest of the hour. It is to surrender the people to their sufferings without any promise of remedy."—Peter Cooper.

"We boast of having liberated 4,000,000 of slaves. True, we have stricken the shackles from the former bondsmen, and brought all laborers to a common level, but not so much by elevating the former slave as by reducing the whole working population to a state of practical serfdom. While boasting of our noble deeds we are careful to conceal the ugly fact that by our iniquitous monetary system we have practically nationalized a system of oppression which, though more refined, is [illegible] cruel than the old system of chattel slavery." —Alexander Campbell, of Illinois.

Ben Butler on Finance and Taxation.

Gen. Butler was invited to address a public meeting, under the auspices of the Legal-Tender Club of New York city. Other engagements making it impossible for him to be present, the General writes: "I am unable to comprehend, appreciate and much less admire that system of Government finances which has so wrought upon the business and production of the country that over 2,000,000 workingmen and women who desire productive employment have not had it for the last two years, and by which the production they would have added to the wealth of the country during that time is lost. Assuming that each one in that number, skilled and unskilled, could have averaged two dollars per day for the working days of the past year, then we have lost $1,200,000,000, or about equal to half the national debt, by their enforced idleness, to say nothing of the loss of the morals of working-men and women. How long men in active business, and property-holders, and holders of those kinds of property which are open to tax-gatherers, will permit a system of financial administration to go on, by which their property shall depreciate 33 per cent. in its value, while the holders of property, such as notes, mortgages and bonds, which are untaxed because not open to the tax-gatherer, have their property appreciated and escape taxation, is a problem which the good sense of this country will solve at the coming Presidential election.

* * * * *

"I am informed that Mr. Duncan, of Duncan, Sherman & Co., went to Washington when the Currency bill was before the President and advised him to veto it because it was necessary to depreciate values. The President did veto the bill, values have been depreciated, I trust to an amount entirely satisfactory to Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co., however little their creditors may relish the process."

Lord & Taylor,

NEW YORK.

WE INFORM THE LADIES OF AUBURN THAT OUR MAIL AND EXPRESS DEPARTMENT IS NOW SO THOROUGHLY ORGANIZED THEY CAN DO THEIR OWN SHOPPING IN NEW YORK WITHOUT THE EXPENSE OF TRAVELING THERE. WE SEND SAMPLES OF PIECE GOODS WITH PRICES PLAINLY MARKED, AND CATALOGUES OF LADIES', MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S FURNISHING GOODS BY MAIL TO APPLICANTS WHO SEND US THEIR PROPER ADDRESS, FREE OF CHARGE, AND IF THEY EXPLAIN CLEARLY THE KIND OF GOODS WANTED, WE SELDOM FAIL IN SUITING THEM. FROM THE PRINTED CATALOGUE THEY CAN ALWAYS MAKE SELECTION OF GARMENTS THAT WILL GIVE SATISFACTION, AND IT IS ONLY NECESSARY TO GIVE THE PROPER MEASUREMENTS TO INSURE SUCCESS.

OUR IMPORTATIONS

OF THIS SEASON GIVE US AN UNEQUALED STOCK OF GOODS.

BLACK SILKS, handsome and durable, all widths, $1.00 to $3.50. The GREAT AMERICAN INDESTRUCTIBLE SILK, $1.20, $1.35, and $1.50.

PLAIN COLORED SILKS, new shades, commencing as low as 75c. per yard, and at $1.00 same as quality of last season at $1.35.

Fancy Broche and Damasse Figures of the new Paris shades, from $2.00 upwards. Trimming Satins at $1.00, worth $1.25.

THE PRICES AT WHICH WE OFFER OUR SILKS ARE ONE-QUARTER TO ONE-THIRD LESS THAN LAST SEASON.

NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS

give a richer display of colorings and brilliant effects this season than for many years past, and we are receiving by every European Steamer fresh additions to our stock.

The mixed COSTUME CLOTHS range in price from 50c. a yard to $3.00, and on low-priced DRESS GOODS from 10c. a yard up, many of them being as effective as the heavier fabrics.

SHAWLS, MANTLES & WRAPS.

India Valley Cashmere Shawls from $100.00 up. India Filled Centers at $50.00 and up.

Real Decca, Chudda and Striped India Shawls, new designs, from $10.00 upwards. Also, full lines British, French and German Shawls in beautiful new styles, of the best and most reliable manufacture. Paris Mantles and Cloaks of the latest modes from $15.00 up, and [illegible] from $8.00.

Ladies' and Children's Suits and Fine Under-Clothing.

These departments embrace everything pertaining to Female Costume, suited to all ages and circumstances. For full particulars see catalogues.

HOSIERY.

Ladies', Misses' and Children's Hosiery from $1.50 a dozen up to the finest goods. All the newest and prettiest designs in Hosiery are represented in our stock in Silk, Cotton and Merino.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," and beautiful stockings are now considered an indispensable part of female attire.

GLOVES.

Kid, Silk, Lisle Thread and Merino Gloves of the new colors and shapes, in great variety.

Lord & Taylor's Kid Gloves, 2 buttons, warranted, at $1.00 per pair; price last season, $1.50.

ALSO,

Lace, Cambric, Linen and Silk Handkerchiefs, and beautiful Neckerchiefs, all prices, from 25c. upward, and all kinds Dress Trimmings to match our Goods.

MOURNING DEPARTMENT.

French and English Crapes, Grenadines and Organdies, Bombazines, Henrietta Cloth, $1.00 up; French Cashmere, 50c. up; Biarritz Cloth, Serges, Australian Crapes and other desirable fabrics at very low prices.

We make up full suits of MOURNING from measure at short notice. Mourning Jet Jewelry and all small articles of Mourning in variety.

DOMESTIC AND HOUSEKEEPING GOODS.

Sheetings, Pillow Cloths, Blankets, Quilts, Comfortables, Flannels, and, in fact, every article required in this line, we always sell at manufacturers' prices.

White Goods and Linens, from the finest White Cambric to the best Linen Damask of all grades and qualities, and at satisfactory prices.

FURS.

Alaska Seal Sacques, from $65.00 up.
Alaska Seal Muffs, from $6.00 up.
Alaska Seal Boas, from $6.00 up.
Mink Muffs and Boas, from $12.50 a set upward.
Silk Fur-Lined Garments, from $65.00.
Alaska Sable Sets, from $7.50.
A good set of Furs as low as $5.00.

☞ Our Goods are all first-class. We make a point to fill all orders exactly and to the interest of purchasers. We guarantee all purchases to be satisfactory to buyers, and stand ready to remedy all errors. We invite orders, convinced that a first trial will insure us the regular custom hereafter.

All orders for Goods to be accompanied by the money, or where parties wish Goods will be sent by Express C. O. D. Where the remittance is too large, we always return the difference.

Broadway and Twentieth St.,
Grand, Chrystie and Forsyth Sts.,
NEW YORK.

FRUIT HOUSE PRICES!

Great Reduction on Sugars

All grades reduced 1 cent per pound; the lowest they have sold for fifteen years. Best white coffee sugar 10c, best coffee C 9c, choice yellow sugar 8c.

An immense stock of all goods for

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEARS!

Candies, Nuts, Toys, Liquors and Cigars.

TEAS!

Fifty more chests of the choice 40c tea and 40 chests of the good 25c tea. We sell large amounts of these two teas; being good drawers, strong and well flavored. We now sell more chests of tea in a month than we used to in a year, and this comes simply from our purchasing direct of the importers and selling direct to our customers, thereby saving the profit of the middle men, which is 20 to 40c on the pound.

Young Hyson Tea,	25, 50, 70, best 90 cents per pound
Gunpowder Tea,	60, 70, best 90 cents per pound
Imperial Tea,	40, 60, best 90 cents per pound
Oolong Tea.	25, 60, best 70 cents per pound
Japan Uncolored Tea.	35, 50, best 70 cents per pound

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Our Best Rio, 22 cents. Good Fine Rio, 20 cents. Old Government Java, 30 cents.

SYRUPS.

Cuba 40 and 50 cents. New Orleans, 50 and 75 cents White Drips, 75 cts. and $1.

RAISENS, and ZANTEE CURRENTS for CHRISTMAS CAKE, CITRON, LEMON and ORANGE PEEL.

Valencia raisins per pound 8c. Best layers raisins 12½c. Zantee currents 9c Leghorn citron 35c. Orange and Lemon peal 30c,

CANDIES.

Toy candies of all kinds. Stick candy per pound 18c. French mixed 20c. Toy candy all sorts and varieties 30c. Toys for Santa Claus from a penny whistle to a nice album to make presents with a thousand different things to amuse the little ones—Dogs, cats, rats, mice, birds, elephants, lions, tigars, drums, wagons, horses, Chineese lanterns, pistol caps, &c., something for every little one in the country.

And for Christmas tree candles we have a large assortment of every color, from ½ cent to 2 cents e ch or 50c per box.

OILS. OILS. OIL!!

Coal Oil per gallon, 20 cents.	Headlight Oil per gallon 25 cents.	Lard Oil, per gallon, $1.00
Fish Oil per gallon, $1.00.	Best Golden Machine Oil per gal. 70c.	Machine Oil per gal. 30ct

Nuts for Christmas and New Years.

Brasil nuts 10c. Filberts, quart 15c. Almons, qurrt 25c. English walnuts, quart 15c. Pecans, quart 12 1-2c. Roasted pea nuts quart 5c.

Liqnors of all Kinds for Medical use Whisky, Rum, Brandy, Gin, Wines and Ales.

Good old bourbon $1 and $1.25. 2 years old $1.40 and 1.50. Best old 76 for medical use $2.50. Sherry Wine as good as any in the country $1.50. Port wine best in the market $1.50. California Angelica wine best $1.50. Gin $1.50 and $2.50. Dublin and London Porter 22c. Scotch 22c.

TOBACCOS AND CIGRS-

A No. 1 smoking for 30c per pound. Choice fine cut 50c per pound. No. 1 Plug Tobacco 50c per pound.

We have a large assortment and can sell a good cigar at $1.25 per box. And a choice No. 1 cigar for $1.75 per e00.

FRESH OYSTERS LOWER THIS YEAR THAN MEAT.—We sell a fine Oyster at 15c. No. 1 full count saloon oyster 20c. Large A standard 30c.

You can save at least 25 per cent. on the dollar at the

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

JOHN L. DAVIS,

OF THE

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE,

Would respectfully announce that he has made large additions in every department, and is prepared to turnish everything in the Hardwase line·

He keeps a full stock of

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Whichhe can sell at prices to suit the times. All kinds of

STOVES and TINWARE

on hand. He keeps a first-class TINMR and prepared todo all kinds of Eaves Trough hangnig Rooting, on short notice, and in a workmanlike manner.

MAIN STREET, OPPOSITE COURT HOUSE AUBURN, IND

STILL AHEAD AT F. E. DAVENPORT'S DRUG STORE!

NEW AS SORTMENTO F

Fine Albums, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county Remember the place

DAVENPORT'S.

West of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BOSS HARNESS SHOP.

I have purchased the harness stock of Geo. Neck, and added largely to every description of stock that is usually kept in my line of trade, such as

HARNESS, DOUBLE AND SINGLE!

Bufalo Robes, Lap Robes, Horse Blankets, Collars, Whips, Brushes, Combs, Harness Oil, Axel Greese. Fine Ready-made Harness, Double and Single a Specialty.

Manufactured by the most experienced workmau that can be found in Northern Indiana, I employ none other, none other need apply. I would say to all customer frends that I will warrant all stock and work that goes out of my shop as recommended. I us none but the best Oak tanned Leather. I would invite all in need of goods in my line to call at my shop before purchasing elsewhere Shop in Flukes old Tannery Building on corner Jackson and seventh St. As I am bound not be undersold in the same class of goods in Northern Indiana

Being an old farmer formily I keep a very effable experienced Foreman to see that all work is well done. Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.

J. E. SHILLING, Sole Proprietor.

W. SHEFFER, Foreman.

Geo. De Wald & Co.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our ctizens when of visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!

FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

HARNESS, SADELES, COLLARS, WHIPS, &c.,

At my new shop on seventh street, opposite Court House, in old Post Office building. Come and see me and I will sell you a good article for less money than you ever heard of before. All work warranted.

G. RHODENBAUGH & C

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

In order to introduce our 40-page illustrated Catalogue (in book form) of Jewelry and Watches, with full information How to Become Agents, and Make Money, we will send, on receipt of One Dollar, by return mail, this Illustrated Catalogue, together with

OUR ONE DOLLAR GOLDEN CASKET.

OUR DOLLAR CASKET Contains one elegantly engraved Lady's Brooch and Ear Drops, Amethyst settings, inlaid with Pearls; one beautiful Cut Cameo Ring; one fine pair of Engraved Sleeve Buttons; three (3) grand spiral Amethyst Studs, inlaid with Pearls; one nobby Collar Button; one latest pattern Lady's or Gent's Pompadour Neck Chain; one elegant Cameo Seal; one beautiful chased Band Ring; one solitaire Lake George Diamond Pin; one pair (2) elegant engraved Bracelets. All the above are the Finest Gold Plate, and arranged in a beautiful white, pink-lined casket. Illustrated Catalogue of Jewelry and Watches sent with each casket. On receipt of One Dollar we will send one of these Dollar Caskets, by mail, post-paid, or Four Caskets on receipt of $3.50. Address,

GEO. G. JACCBY & CO., Importers of Jewelry and Watches,
27 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after June 10 1877, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 15 a m	12 [illegible] a m	4 00 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 07 "	5 30 "
Bryan	1 00 "	1 50 "	6 28 "
Butler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterloo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Sedan	2 00 "	2 40 "	7 40 "
Corunna	2 07 "	2 54 "	7 47 "
Kendallville	2 20 "	3 05 "	8 04 "
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	8 50 "
Goshen	3 28 "	4 12 "	9 35 "
Elkhart	3 50 "	4 35 "	10 00 "

GOING EAST

Elkhart	7 53 p m	9 50 p m	7 00 "
Goshen	8 08 "	10 10 "	7 25 "
Ligonier	8 25 "	10 42 "	8 [illegible] "
Kendallville	8 40 "	11 17 "	8 45 a m
Corunna	8 56 "	11 31 "	9 00 "
Sedan	9 00 "	11 36 "	9 05 "
Waterloo	9 05 "	11 45 "	9 15 "
Butler	"	12 01 a m	9 35 "
Bryan	"	12 40 "	10 17 "
Wauseon	"	1 25 "	11 12 "
Toledo	"	2 40 "	12 30 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 11, 1877.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 54 am	10 15	2 58	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 45	2 26	7 12	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 15	2 40
Plymouth	3 45	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 30	7 58

GOING EAST.

	No. 4 Nig't ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 20 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 25	9 03
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 15 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 10	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 20	2 37
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 20
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 30	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 00	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 37	7 10	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R R

TAKE EFFECT Nov. 19 1877.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 4,	LOCAL FT No. 6,
lv. Logansport	8 15am	7 30pm	6 [illegible]am
Mexico	8 37	8 25	7 40
Denver	9 09	9 00	8 25
Chili	9 17	9 12	8 47
Roann	9 35	9 37	9 35
Laketon	9 53	10 00	10 10
N. Manchester	10 05	10 17	10 35
Liberty Mills	10 17	10 30	11 00
Collamer	10 31	10 50	11 40
S. Whitley	10 35	10 55	11 50
Columbia City	11 01	11 31	12 50
Col en's	11 20	11 55	2 05
Churubusco	11 34	12 12	2 31
La Otto	11 57	12 42	3 25
Cedar Creek	12 05	12 53	3 45
Auburn Junct'n	12 22	1 12	4 25
Auburn	12 25	1 17	4 35
Butler	1 00am	2 00am	5 45pm

Going West.

Stations	No. 1.	No.	No. 7.
Logansport ar	7 00pm	1 00pm	6 30pm
Mexico	6 26	12 00	5 40
Denver	6 17	11 40	5 20
Chili	6 10	11 28	5 00
Roann	5 57	11 12	4 15
Laketon	5 43	10 56	3 30
North Manchester	5 38	10 35	3 00
Liberty Mills	5 27	10 17	2 35
Collamur	5 15	9 57	2 03
South Whitley	5 12	9 52	1 53
Columbia City	4 50	9 28	12 10
Collin's	4 32	8 53	11 20
Cherubusco	20	8 38	10 35
La Otto	3 53	8 10	10 05
Cedar Creek	3 45	8 00	9 48
Auburn Junction	3 27	7 40	9 15
Auburn	3 22	7 35	8 30
Butler lv	2 45pm	6 55am	7 15

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT JUNE 24, 1877.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Express	Com'l A
lv New York	8 15am	8 25pm
Philadelphia	12 15pm	11 30
Baltimore	4 30	6 15am
Washington	5 45	7 35
Wheeling	8 10am	10 05pm	4 30pm
Bellaire	8 30am	10 20	00
Barnesville	9 45	11 48	6 15
Cambridge	10 46	1 02	7 30
Zanesville	11 55	2	8 50
ar Newark	1 00pm	3	9 00
Columbus	3 00	5 8
Shawnee	4 20	10 [illegible]
lv Columbus	12 40	10 45pm
Newark	2 00	[illegible]am	4 20pm
Mt Vernon	3 00	5	6 25
Mansfield	4 28	6	10 00
Shelby	4 54	7	11 35
Monroeville
ar Sandusky
lv Chicago Junction	6 00	7 45	7 55am
Republic
Tiffin	7 15	8 30	10 30
Fostoria	7 45	9 10	11 40
Deshler	8 50	10 09	1 50pm
Defiance	9 52	11 06	3 50
Hicksville	10 41	11 53	6 15
Auburn Junction	11 22	12 35pm	7 50
Garrett	11 40pm	1 05	8 00am
Avilla	11 55	1 24	8 24
Albion	12 17	1 47	9 01
Milford Junction	1 08	2 37	10 34
Walkertown Junction	2 38	3 53	1 05pm
Chicago	6 40	6 40

GOING EAST.

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 20pm	1 14am	11 20am
Milford Junction	1 45	2 34	2 37pm
Albion	2 30	3 10	4 15
Avilla	2 50	3 30	4 55
Garrett	3 20	3 53	6 00am
Auburn Junction	3 27	4 02	6 17
Hicksville	4 07	4 42	7 42
Defiance	4 54	5 27	9 10
Deshler	5 48	6 23	11 35
Fostoria	6 47	7 23	2 14pm
Tiffin	7 15	7 54	3 20
Republic
Sandusky
Monroeville
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 30
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 03
Mansfield	9 44	10 38	4 28
Mt. Vernon	11 14	12 08pm	7 40
ar Newark	12 15am	1 10	9 45
lv Columbus	12 40	3 10
Shawnee	10 25
Newark	12 45am	2 05	5 55am
Lv Zanesville	1 50	3 10	7 10
Cambridge	2 51	4 10	8 14
Barnesville	3 58	5 10	9 25
Ar Bellaire	5 05	6 20	10 40
Wheeling	6 00	7 40	11 55
Washington	7 20pm	7 55am
Baltimore	8 30	9 00
Philadelphia	3 10am	1 15pm
New York	6 25	5 05pm

Zanesville Accommodation leaves Zanesville daily except Sunday at 6:30 a. m., and arrives at Columbus at 9:45 a. m.

Express trains run daily, other trains daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect July 1st, 1877.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mail.	3. Express.	5 Acco.m
FORT WAYNE	5 10 am	6 31 pm	......
Bluffton	6 17 am	7 45 pm	......
Montpelier	6 55 am	8 20 pm	......
Hartford	7 [illegible] am	8 [illegible] pm
MUNCIE	8 10 am	9 30 pm	5 00 a m
Newcastle	9 05 am	......	6 [illegible] p m
Cambridge	[illegible] am	......	7 45 p m
Connersville	10 20 am	......	8 50 p m
Cincinnati	1 20 pm	......	11 45 p m
INDIANAPOLIS	10 35 am	11 55 pm
Louisville	10 50 pm	8 20 am
Terre Haute	3 15 pm	1 50 am
St. Louis	9 00 pm	8 20 am

GOING NORTH

STATIONS	2	6 Express.	4 Accom.
St. Louis	......	2 00 am	......
Terre Haute	......	2 55 pm	......
Louisville	......	3 30 pm	......
Cincinnati	7 00 am	......	7 00 am
Indianapolis	......	8 20 pm	......
Connersville	1 50 am	......	10 40 am
Cambridge City	1 45 am	......	11 44 am
New Castle	1 36 am	......	12 55 pm
Muncie	1 01 pm	10 45 pm	2 30 pm
Hartford	pm	11 20 pm	......
Montpelier	pm	11 57 pm	......
Bluffton	[illegible] pm	12 23 pm	......
Fort Wayne	[illegible] pm	1 45 am	......

All trains daily except Sunday. Trains run on Columbus time. Through cars attached to trains 1 and 4, and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect Nov. 18—run by Chicago time

Going South.

Stations	Mail	Exp.	Fr't.
Jackson	6 55 am	11 40 am	[illegible] 10 pm
Air Line Junc
Wilsons	7 15	11 [illegible]	5 45
Baldwins	7 28	12 11 pm	6 05
Hanover	7 37	12 20	6 30
Stony Point	7 42	12 25	6 40
Mosherville	7 53	12 34	6 55
Ar Jonesville	8 10	12 5[illegible]	7 20
Bankers	8 28	1 07	7 47
Reading	8 41	1 20	8 15
Montgomery	9 00	1 35	8 38
State Line	9 11	1 44	8 55
Fremont	9 22	1 55	9 12
Ar Angola	9 45	2 13	9 40
Pleasant Lake	9 58	2 22	10 02
Summit	10 11	2 33	10 24
Waterloo	10 28	2 47	10 50
Auburn	10 41	3 01	11 15
Auburn Junc	10 46	3 05	11 25
St. Johns	10 58	3 15	11 [illegible]
New Era	11 00	3 20	11 5[illegible]
Stoners	11 10	3 28	12 11am
Huntertown	11 16	3 33	12 18
Carell's Crossing	11 22	3 30	12 28
Academie	11 28	3 45	12 36
Ft Wayne	11 40 am	4 00 pm	1 00am

Going North.

Dep. Fort Wayne	4 15 pm	11 15 am	1 30am
Academie	4 31	11 30	1 52
Carell's Crossing	4 38	11 23	2 00
Huntertown	4 45	11 38	2 06
Stoners	4 50	11 41	2 16
New Era	5 00	11 51	2 28
St. Johns	5 5	11 55	2 35
Auburn Junction	5 15	12 05 pm	3 00
Auburn	5 14	12 08	3 25
Waterloo	5 32	2 19	4 05
Summit	5 47	2 31	4 30
Pleasant Lake	6 02	2 45	4 55
Ar Angola	6 35	2 57	5 15
Fremont	6 55	1 15	6 00
State Line	7 06	1 25	6 15
Montgomery	7 20	1 33	6 40
Reading	7 35	1 49	7 15
Bankers	7 47	2 04	7 40
Jonesville	8 05	2 22	8 10
Mosherville	8 22	2 47	8 32
Stoney Point	8 31	2 55	8 44
Hanover	8 37	3 01	8 53
Baldwins	8 48	3 10	9 15
Wilsons	9 00	3 21	9 33
Air Line Junc
Jackso	9 20 pm	3 40 pm	10 00am

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choices brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Woo. First door south of the railroad

---

GOLD. Great chance to make money. If you can't get gold you can get greenbacks. We need a person in every town to take subscriptions for the largest, cheapest and best illustrated family publication in the world. Any one can become a successful agent. The most elegant works of art given free to subscribers. The price is so low that almost every body subscribes. One Agent reports making over $150 in a week. A lady agent reports taking over 400 subscribers in ten days. All who engage make money fast You can devote all your time to the business, or only your spare time. You need not be away from home over night. You can do it as well as others. Full directions and terms free. Elegant and expensive outfit free If you want profitable work send us your address at once. It costs nothing to try the business. No one who engages fails to make great pay. Address "The People's Journal," Portland Maine.

Dr. A. G. OLIN'S Private Hospital, 187 East Washington St. Chicago, Ills, for the cure of all Diseases of a Private nature, resulting from early abuses or infection of either Sex. Seminal Weakness producing Emissions, Loss of Memory, Impaired Sight, Lost Manhood or Impotency, Nervous Debility, permanently cured; diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Asthma, Catarrh, Piles, all Chronic Diseases, and DISEASES OF FEMALES, yield to his treatment. Dr. Olin has had a life-long experience, and cures where others fail. He is a graduate of the Reformed School, uses no mercury, has the largest practice in the U. S. LADIES requiring treatment with private home and board, call or write. Every convenience for patients. Send fifty cents for sample of Rubber Goods and circular of important information by express. DR. OLIN'S Female Pills, $5 per Box. Consultation free.

MARRIAGE GUIDE 275 pages. Secrets & information for the young and middle aged of both Sexes, on all diseases of a private nature. Valuable advice to the married and those contemplating marriage. How to be healthy and truly happy in the married relation. Everybody should get this book. Price 50 cents, to any address, sealed.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL

View of Marriage!

WOMAN AND MARRIAGE A Guide to Wedlock and confidential Treatise on the duties of marriage and the causes that unfit for it; the secrets of Reproduction and the Diseases of Women. A book for private, considerate reading. 260 pages, price 50 cts.

A PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER! On all disorders of a Private Nature arising from Self Abuse, Excesses, or Secret Diseases, with the best means of cure, 224 large pages, price 50 cts.

A CLINICAL LECTURE on the above diseases and those of the Throat and Lungs, Catarrh, Rupture, the Opium Habit, &c., price 10 cts.

Either book sent postpaid on receipt of price; or all three, containing 500 pages, beautifully illustrated, for 75 cts.

Address DR. BUTTS, No. 12 N. 8th St. St. Louis, Mo.

$45 PREMIUM WATCH AND CHAIN—a stem-winder. Free with every order. Outfit free. J. B. Gaylord & Co., Chicago, Ill.

$3 GOLD PLATED WATCHES. Cheapest in the known world. Sample Watch Free to Agents. Address, A. COULTER & Co., Chicago.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 7. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, DECEMBER 6th, 1877. Number 4

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2.| Six Months,........

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	2 00	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 0
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 0
1 Column........	15 00	25 00	50 00	100 00

Local Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion 5cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

TERMS OF COURT.

COURTS IN DEKALB CO.	COURTS IN STEUBEN CO
2d Monday in February	1st Monday in Febr'y
3rd Monday in May.	4th Monday in April.
4th Monday in Septem'r	1st Monday in Sept'r.
3rd Monday in Decem'r	4th Monday in Nov'r.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Botts' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

J. W. RICKEL,

ATTORNEY AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

GUY PLUM

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

D. D. MOODY. F. V. HOFFMAN.

Moody and Hoffman,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Odd Fellows' building, opposite Court House, Auburn, Ind.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

S. A. FRANKS. O. S. HUBBELL.

Franks & Hubbell,

ATTORNEYS at law, will practice in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Special attention given to the collection of claims, settlements of decendent estates and conveyance. Office on Broadway opposite Haskins & Son's livery stable, Butler, Ind.

R. WES. M'BRIDE, J. L. MORLAN, W. H. LEAS

McBRIDE, MORLAN and LEAS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, NOTARIES PUBLIC, COLLECTING AND INSURANCE AGENCY Office over Fisher's Clothing Store, corner of Wayne and Marion streets, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in all parts of the State. Especial Attention given to collections in DeKalb, Steuben, LaGrange and Noble counties.

PHYSICIANS.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m.

DR. TRITCH,

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn Indiana.

DR. S. B. JOHNSTON.

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

AVELINE HOUSE.

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. S. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

MAYER HOUSE,

ENOCH ZOLLARS Proprietor, Corner Calhoun and Wayne Streets, Fort Wayne, Ind, Good Sample Rooms.

TREMONT HOUSE,

WASHINGTON, D. C. Accommodates three hundred guests. Terms $2.50 per day. Located corner Second street and Indiana Avenue, in full view of the Capitol City Hall. E. P. HILL.

SANDS HOUSE,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, (Late of City Hotel.) Clerk. O. Sampe, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examination begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNES Co. Sup't.

BILL BRITTON

THE DRAY MAN

Will attend promptly to all orders for

DRAYING AND HAULING.

Rattling good teams and reasonab

EAGLE MILLS.

FLOUR, CORN MEAL, FEED, &c.

The reputation of the Eagle Mills, its excellent facilities for making good flour together with the advantages it possesses in the way of improved machinery enables the proprietor to announce that he is now prepared to meet all demands in the way of custom work. The Eagle Mill brand of flour will be found on hand at reasonable rates. Orders delivered in any part of town free of charge. G. W. SILVERS.

CARPETS

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & Co.,

Offer a large and choice stock of Carpets in all the newest designs.

Body Brussels Carpets,
Tapestry Carpets,
Ingrain Carpets,
COTTON CHAIN CARPETS,
HEMP CARPETS,
RAG CARPETS.

Terry's Reps, Cretonnes, Lace Curtains, Shades, Wall Paper, Stair Rods.

OIL CLOTHS,

Mattings, Rugs and Mats, Druggets

And all goods pertaining to the carpet and upholestry business.

Lambrequins
A Specialty.

Prices Low to Compete with the Times

ELLSWORTH, ANDREW & CO.
29 East Berry Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the larkest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

AND

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Ch'ldren's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Merchant Tailoring

All work done in all the latest styles, prom attended. satisfaction[illegible]

HURRAH.

THE NEW AMERICAN
SEWING MACHINE
SIMPLEST & BEST

A MAN CRAZY

Selling

SEWING MACHINES!

For 30 DOLLARS

Go and see them.

G. H. YESBERA, AGT

True Merit Will Win.

A few years since the proprietor of Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound introduced it there.—Our people soon found it out to be the reliable and already it has become the most staple and popular pulmonary remedy in the market. It quickly cures the worst colds, coughs, croups, bronchitis, asthma and incipient consumption. Nothing acts so nicely in whooping cough, and it is so pleasant that children really like it. Containing no opium, or other dangerous drug, it is as safe as it is sure. Trial size 10c; large sizes 50c and $1.00. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which is sure death to worms, pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25 cts. Try it.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitas, Catarrh, Asthama, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for general debility and all nervous complaints, after having thouroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. The receipt will be sent free of charge, to all who desire it, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Address with stamp naming this paper, Dr. J. C. Stone, 44 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia Pa.

For Kansas and Colorado.

Take the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, extending from Kansas City and Atichison, on the Missouri river, via Topeka, the capital of Kansas, through the fertile Arkansas Valley, to Pueblo, where direct connections is made with the Denver & Rio Grande Railway for Colorado Springs, Manitou, Denver, Cannon City, and all points of note on the Denver & Rio Grande. The track is excelled by that of no road in the West, and the passenger equipment embraces all the modern improvements for comfort and safety. Through express trains leave union depots, Kansas City and Atichison, daily, on the arrival of trains from the East, and run through to the Rocky Mountains, with Pulman Sleeping Cars attached. For maps, circulars and detailed information send to T. J. ANDERSON,
Gen. Pass. Ag't., Topeka, Kan.

A Few Words of Wisdom.

For all who are seeking new homes in the West. If you are going to change your location, by all means you should keep on about the same latitude as where you formerly lived for in this way you will escape the severe climatic changes in the weather incident to the extreme North or South, having none of these things to contend with, yourself and family are healthy and you become a producer at once, consequently soon independent; on the other hand should you listen to the many glowing accounts of the sunny South, or the mild climate of the North, and thus be induced to try your fortunes there, you will find the reality is not all your fancy painted it. If you go South it usually takes about two years to get accli mated to the climate, during which time, not being able to work, yourself and family are consumers, besides being constantly exposed to the malarial fevers which abound there, and the experience of many is that they return discouraged, leaving not a few loved ones beneath the sod in the sunny South. Therefore, in going West keep on about the same latitude which will insure health and happiness. There are most excellent lands in Northern Missouri on the line of the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R. and in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, "just as cheap and good as the sun ever shown upon," why not accept a certainty rather than run the risk of losing all? Through day and sleeping cars are run from Toledo, Ohio, via the Wabash R'y and Quincy to St. Jo., Atchison and Kansas city, and from Chicago via Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., whereby all arre furnished firstclass accomodations.

Send for map and time-table to J. A. S. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, C. W. Boardman, Decatur, Ill., or T. Penfield, G P. and T. A., Hanibal, Mo.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the De Kalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein Charles Kelly is plaintiff, and Geo. Haines, Henry O. Haines, et al. are defendants requiring me to make the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty Dollars with interest on said judgment and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1877

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House in DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

Lot number eighty-six [86], old plat, Waterloo DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said judgment, interests and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. SYCLAIR, Sheriff DeKalb Co.
D. Y. Husselman, Attorneys for plaintiff.
Auburn, Indiana, Nov. 14th A. D. 1877.
Prs., fee $7.80

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. J. H. Bevin, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,

Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

BAPTIST CHURCH,

Rev. E. L. Sanders pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 7½ P. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH,

Rev. L. Rice, pastor. Services every two weeks forenoon and afternoon alternately. Sabbath school each sabbath at 2½ o'clock P. M.

GERMAN METHODIST CHURCH,

Rev. Chas. Treuschel, pastor. Services each Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. and 7½ P. M. alternately. Sabbath school at 2 P. M.

GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH,

Rev. Bohlman, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 10 o'clock P. M.

GERMAN REFORM CHURCH,

Rev. P. Ruhl, pastor. Services every other Sabbath at 10½ o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M.

CATHOLIC CHURCH,

Rev. R. Young, pastor. Services every Sabbath at 8 and 10 o'clock A. M., alternately.

Speech of Hon. W. D. Banning.

When the subject of an appropriation for the army came up in the House a few days ago, Mr. Banning said:

Before proceeding to a vote upon this measure, I have some remarks to make upon the subject which I consider of vital importance to the country. I shall be very brief, because in a statement of the case the argument is made.

The Forty-fourth Congress adjourned without making the usual appropriations for the support of the Army. How this happened is well understood. The House of Representatives, exercising its clear prerogative, placed in the Army appropriation bill a proviso the same in principle as was put into a similar bill by a republican House in 1856 at the suggestion and upon the motion of the present Secretary of the Treasury. The purpose sought to be accomplished by the proviso in question was to direct or rather to restrict by law the use of the Army in certain cases.

In addition to the precedent made by a republican House to which I have referred, we have the authority of so eminent a republican leader as the late William H. Seward, who said:

"The House of Representatives may, therefore, lawfully pass a bill prohibiting the employment of the Army of the United States in executing laws in Kansas which it does not approve, no matter by whom those laws were made. Since the House of Representatives has power to pass a bill, distinctly it has power also to pass an equivalent prohibition in any bill which it has constitutional power to pass; and so it has a constitutional right to place the prohibition in the annual appropriation bill."

When we separated last March it was the universal expectation that a special session of Congress would be called before the expiration of the then current fiscal year, to provide for the support of the Army. In this, however, the country was disappointed. The President, without giving any reason therefore, fixed the date for the convening of Congress months after the old appropriation had been exhausted. The result is that since the 30th day of June last we have had no legal or constitutional Army. The responsibility for this unfortunate condition of affairs rests solely upon the Executive. Between the 4th day of March and the 30 day of June there was ample time in which to call Congress together, and if the soldiers have served without pay and the officers have been compelled to sell their accounts they have the President and his advisors to thank for it. It cannot be said that the fault rests with the House of Representatives of the last Congress, for the President, in doing just what was demanded should be done in South Carolina and Louisiana, has fully vindicated the wisdom and the patriotism of the position assumed by that House.

But, sir, the important point in this whole matter is the constitutional principle involved in it. While under the circumstances we feel impelled to vote these appropriations, yet we cannot be true to our oaths of office or faithful to the trusts confided to us by our constituents if we permit the grave infraction of the constitution which has been committed to pass by unnoticed and unrebuked to become a precedent for future Presidents. All history teaches that an army under the unrestrained control of Executive power is a great and constant danger, against which constitutional government must ever be jealously guarded.

The framers of the Constitution realised this fact. They were familiar with the history of England, where, after a prolonged and sanguinary struggle, a King was disposed because he had endervored to subvert the laws and liberties of the kingdom "by raising and keeping a standing army within this kingdom in time of peace without consent of Parlament." They had suffered in their own persons and property from the exercise of arbitrary power, and in our immortal Declaration of Independence had read a similar indictment against another King of Great Britian for keeping "among us in time of peace standing armies without the consent of our Legislatures." In framing a Constitution they stripped the Chief Executive of the prerogatives possessed by the King of Great Britian "to make war and peace, to issue letters of marque and reprisal, to regulate weights and measures, to coin money, to erect offices, to naturalize aliens," and other important powers concerning internal and foreign relations, and placed them in the hands of Congress. But lest the Representatives elected by the people might, from corruption or apathy, grant supplies for an Army for an indefinite time, they limited the power of Congress to make an appropriation of money for the Army to a period of two years, so that every House of Representatives would be required to vote supplies or the Army disband. This feature of the Constitution is somewhat similar to the English law which provided, "That the raising or keeping a standing army within the kingdom in time of peace, unless it be with the consent of Parliament, is against law." I might occupy the time of the House for hours in reading from English history and law to show that the British army cannot be legally maintained without consent of Parliament.

Suffice it, however, to give the following extract from Blackstone's Commentaries, (chapter 13,) where the question is discussed at length: "But as the fashion of keeping standing armies, which was first introduced by Charles VII in France, A. D. 1445, has of late years universally prevailed over Europe it has also for many years past been annually judged necessary by our Legislature for safety of the kingdom, the defense of the posession of the crown of Great Britian, and the preservation of the balance of power in Europe, to maintain even in time of peace a standing body of troops under the command of the crown; who are, however, ipso facto disbanded at the expiration of every yeary unless continued by Parliament."

The provisions of the Constitution in relation to the Army, as reported by Pinckney, gave Congress the power "to raise armies," which was subsequently amended by adding after "raise" the words "and support," and still further amended by the convention by the convention by the addition of the words, "but no appropriation of moneys to that use shall be for a longer period than two years." This clause of the Constitution is a grant of power to the Legislature. Nowhere in that instrument can be found a grant of such power to the President. He cannot "raise" an army, nor can he "support" one when raised by Congress. What follows as a necessary consequence? Why, sir, that when Congress fails to pass a bill to support our armies, there are no means by which they can be kept in existance by Executive authority. The intention of the framers of the Constitution is plain. They meant not only to deprive the Executive of the power to fix the number of the military establishment, but also to prevent a willing Congress from granting supples for an indefinite period. Discussing this very question, Alexander Hamilton, in No. 28 of the Federalist, uses the following emphatic language:

"The Legislature of the United States will be obliged by the provision, once at least in every two years, to deliberate upon the propriety of keeping a military force on foot; to come to a new resolution on the point; and to declare their senses of the matter by a formal vote in the face of their constituents."

How is "the propriety of keeping a military force on foot" to be determined by Congress? Simply and solely by making or failing to make an appropriation for the support of the Army, and "these senses of the matter" is "declared" in the same way.

In commenting upon this clause of the Constitution, Mr. Justice Story says, (sec. 1188:) "Unless the necessary supplies are vote by the Representatives of the people every two years, the whole establishment must fail." Upon the same subject, Tucker, in a note to his edition of Blackstone, says, (page 414:) "They can only be raised and kept by authority of Congress." Now, sir, if the President has the power to continue in service an Army once authorized by Congress (but for the support of which no appropriation has been made) for three months and a-half, then he has the power to keep a standing army for an indefinite period without such appropriations. If this were so, then the President would have a power in relation to raising and supporting armies greater than that lodged in Congress. To claim any such power, either for the President or for Congress, is to fly into the face of one of the plainest provisions of the Constitution and to destroy one of the most valuable guarantees of the rights and liberties of the people. I have searched the debates and the early writers on the Constitution in vain to find any such dangerous theory advanced. The great men who made our Constitution and carried into effect its provisions by the necessary legislation never dreamed of such an interpretation.

Mr. Speaker, believing, as I do, that the military establishment which has been maintained by the Executive since the 1st day of July last is in no legal or constitutional sense the Army of the United States; that its maintance has been in violation alike of the letter and the spirit of our Constitution and laws and contrary to the genius of our institutions, I shall vote to pay its officers and soldiers only with extreme reluctance. I should never cast my vote for such an appropriation as this were there any possible way by which these men could recover compensation for their services from those who have illegally employed them and failed to convene Congress to support them. But that cannot be done; and in voting for this appropriation I protest, as I think the House ought to protest, in the most solemn terms against this case becoming a precedent for the future.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing consumption, severe coughs, croup, asthma, pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 40,000 dozen bottles was sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by F. E Davenport.

People are to apt to leave valuable clothes over night on the clothes lines it should be remembered that tramps are very apt to have their eyes on good garments thus exposed. It is more temptation than they can resist. We see that in some of our neighboring towns tramps have been vigilant and made "judicious" preparations for winter, where opportunities have thus been afforded them. Put your clothes out of the reach of tramps after night, or you will come out like Rob McDougal did last Thursday. His wife has several shirts less to wash now than she had a week ago.

We have repeatedly called attention to the fact that in wet weather the street crossings are in a very bad muddy condition. Let the proper official employ some poor fellow to keep them clean when necessary. That will furnish some one a job and the people decent crossings for which they will cheerfully foot the necessary bill. Don't compell strangers to wade through mud in order to cross our streets, when they are in the city. We have good clean side walks. Let the crossings correspond.

The opinion of weather prophets is that this approaching winter will be unusually severe. For our part we are not much inclined to weather predictions. In fact we have come to look upon the weather as a matter of uncertainity. Like the "dead beat," the promises of the weather signs are very unreliable. But some say the winter will be a mild one. Well, we welcome the "mild" and will put up with the "severe" as best we can. Take it as it comes, is the law of fate.

If we take a baby of, say six months old, and of the weight of about thirty pounds, and drop it from a hight of four feet to the floor, it will break into from two to eight pieces. Of course, the pieces remain attached to each other by clothing and pins, but that its framework is broken a very superficial inspection will show It is this extreme liability to break which renders careful men so reluctant to hold babies.

Let no one hereafter insinuate that teachers' institutes produce no good. At the late Bucks county institute a fairhaired, blue-eyed darling of a teacher of the female persuasion forever demolished the base insinuation by the following conundrum: "How do you make a Maltese cross?" Ans.—Tread on her tail. The institute adjourned without further remarks.

That was a long-headed, sharp-sighted, penetrating set of teachers who, in institute assembled in one of the "out townships," recently adjourned their meeting until the fifth Saturday of this month, well knowing that there was no such day laid down in the calendar. The ways of the pedagogue are sometimes past finding out.

The young ladies(?) who have been seen so frequently on Jackson street, about 10 o'clock at night, had better be a little more cautious. They are carrying the thing to far. Girls remember your failing and turn a cold shoulder to these night rambles. "Birds of a feather flock together.

Nothing unnerves the average small boy so much as to be obliged to steal cookies out of a crock. To his strained senses the jarring of the cover sounds like the crack of doom. And if caught in the act the crack of his mother's hand on the sat of his breeches, hurts like the d—l.

A disgusted editor of an exchange suggests that a suitable opening for many choirs now a days should be: "Lord have mercy on us, miserable singers." He must heave an ear for music equal to our correspondent, Mr. X.

The Fort Wayne grave snatchers are yet at large.

F. Palmer visited Albion this week.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Samuel Gowdy is plaintiff and John A. Scholfield, et al. are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and thirteen cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 7187.

Between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M.. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

The south half of the west half of the northeast quarter of section ten [10], township thirty five [35], north of rang fourteen [14, east, containing forty acres of land, more or less, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. STCLAIR, Sheriff.
McBride, Morlan & Leas, Atty's for plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind., Nov. 13th, 1877.
Pr. fee $8.00

$777 is not easily earned in these times but it can be made in three months by any one of either sex, in any part of the country who is willing to work steadily at the employment we furnish. $66 per week in your own town. You need not be away from home over night. You can give your whole time to the work, or only your spare time We have agents who are making over $20 per day. All who engage at once can make money fast. At the present time money cannot be made so easily and rapidly at any other business It costs nothing to try the business. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address at once.
H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine.
October 11,—6m noll.

CHRONIC Diseases Cured. New paths marked out by that plainest of all books—"Plain Home Talk and Medical Common sense,"—nearly 1,000 pages, 200 illustrations by Dr. E. B. Foote, of 120 Lexington Avenue, N. Y. Purchasers of this book are at liberty to consult its author in person or by mail free. Price by mail $3.25 for the standard edition, or $1.50 for the popular edition, which contains all the same matter and illustrations. Contents free. Agents wanted. MURRAY HILL PUBLISHING Co. 129 East 28th St. N. Y.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DEC. 6, 1877.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

JOHN V. L. PRUYN, an ex-member of Congress, and one of the foremost men of New York State, died at Albany last week....Louis F. Theresson, of New York, lawyer, church vestryman, treasurer of St. Luke's Hospital Society, and Sunday-school superintendent, has proved to be a defaulter to the extent of $130,-[illegible]

MOSES H. GRINNELL, one of New York's wealthy and leading citizens, died last week, aged 75.

I. H. JONES, JR., wool broker, of Boston, has disappeared. His name is connected with a series of alleged dishonest transactions, by which several firms have been victimized to an amount estimated at $60,000.

CASE, the President of the collapsed Security Life Insurance Company, of New York, who was lately convicted of perjury in making affidavits to false statements of the company's business, has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.....The steamer C. H. Northam, plying between New York and New Haven, was burned at her dock, at New York, last week. Three colored men perished. Loss, $175,000; insurance, $120,000.

A SAD casualty occurred at Pittsburgh last week. A frail craft upon which a party of emigrants, destined for Arkansas, where they were going to found a colony, was capsized in the Ohio river, and five of the unfortunate people were drowned....Matthew Davenport, of Northampton, Mass., fatally stabbed his wife and one Pratt, her alleged paramour....Abel T. Fifield, late Water Register of Cambridge, Mass., has been found guilty of embezzlement upon nine counts....Evans, Dalzell & Co., heavy iron dealers in Pittsburgh, have failed. Liabilities about $700,000.

THE WEST.

ANOTHER sickly Chicago bank has kicked the bucket. It was called the Central National, and was an insignificant concern. Depositors, it is believed, will be paid in full....A mail coach was attacked by Indians between Deadwood and Bismarck last week. The red devils fired a volley at the driver and passengers, but all escaped unhurt by leaving the coach and taking to the bluffs. The Indians captured the coach and horses. They ransacked the mail-bags and tried, but unsuccessfully, to open the treasure-box. They killed two of the horses and decamped with the other two.

JOAQUIN MILLER's great play, the "Danites," is being produced at Haverly's Theater, Chicago, with an unusually strong cast, including those fine actors, McKee Rankin and C. T. Parsloe. Haverly's Theater has become one of the most popular amusement resorts in the Garden City.

INFORMATION comes from the West that, while moving the Sioux from the Red Cloud Agency to the Missouri river, 1,700 of them broke away, and are now on the war-path. Gen. Terry has ordered the cavalry to prepare for a winter campaign. Those who thus deserted are operating in the Deadwood country, and have already attacked trains and caused general consternation.

Frank Rande, the St. Elmo murderer, was taken from St. Louis, on the 28th ult., to Galesburg, Ill., and safely lodged in jail. Contrary to general expectation no attempt was made to lynch the desperado. Rande glories in his crimes, but is artful enough to evade all remarks which might fix any special offense upon him. He chatters incessantly, and not always coherently, and there are rumors that his lawyers will offer a plea of insanity. The gravest doubts exist as to the possibility of obtaining a verdict of murder in the first degree.

CHARLES T. MAYO, Cashier of the Second National Bank of Lafayette, Ind., has stolen about $60,000 of the institution's funds, causing it to suspend business. The creditors, it is said, will be paid in full.

THE SOUTH.

HEAVY rains and destructive floods are reported from Virginia and South Carolina. It is estimated that over $1,000,000 was destroyed at Richmond by the overflow of the James river.

CONGRESSMAN Smalls, of South Carolina, has been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary....Bishop Enoch W. Marvin, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died last week at his residence in St. Louis. Bishop Marvin was a native of Missouri and was 54 years old.

GENERAL.

A TELEGRAM from Halifax, N. S., announces that the Fishery Commission has awarded $5,500,000 as the damages due Great Britain on account of the exercise by the United States of the fishing privileges in Canadian waters under the Washington treaty. Mr. Delfosse, the supposed neutral member of the commission, joined with the British representative in making the award, the American Commissioner voting against it.

DURING a heavy gale on the night of the 23d of November, the United States war steamer Huron was driven ashore at Currituck, on the coast of North Carolina, and broken to pieces by the heavy sea. There were 139 persons on board, about 100 of whom forrened a watery grave. The Huron was a third-rate iron screw steamer, of 541 tons, and a displacement of 1,020 tons, and carried an armament of four guns. She was a comparatively new vessel, being one of three—the Alert, the Ranger, and the Huron—built by the Government three years ago with a peculiar rig as an experiment. They had three masts, but were fitted with schooner sails only. She was on route for Havana, with a lot of stores for a United States surveying expedition on the coast of Cuba. The vessel was caught in the height of the gale off Cape Hatteras, and, while trying to hold on, head to the wind, her machinery gave way, and, her sails being useless against such a wind, she slowly drifted ashore. The sea was running tremendously high, and, being an iron vessel, the Huron soon became a total wreck. Her foremast and main topmast were the first to go by the board, and in an incredibly short time she was literally dashed to pieces. Attempts were made to lower the boats, but without avail. The sea made a clean breach over the hull, sweeping her unfortunate crew into the breakers. In the darkness and the storm escape was rendered almost impossible, and only thirty persons, out of a total of 139 souls on board, managed to reach the beach in safety, most of them in a shockingly bruised condition. The remainder, so far as is known at present writing, were drowned in the surf or killed by the floating timbers. The ill-fated vessel was in charge of Commander G. P. Ryan, of the United States navy, who is among the lost. A private dispatch received from one of the survivors of the wrecked United States war steamer Huron, furnishes a skeleton description of the disaster. The immediate cause, the officer says, was the foggy weather and a fresh gale blowing directly upon the shore. The thick weather prevented any estimate of the locality of the vessel. The Huron struck between 1 and 1:30 o'clock a. m. There was instantly a scene of great confusion, as a heavy sea broke at once over the fated vessel. Before any concert of action could be taken the boats were all washed from the boat-davits. The first cutter was lowered, but it swamped ten minutes after in the boiling surf. None of the saved escaped in boats, nor did they receive any assistance from the shore. The thirty-four who escaped did so by swimming. The feat of swimming two miles through breakers where the toughest surf-boat could not live required tremendous endurance. The inward land current sided them, and toward the end the surfmen came out after them and helped them in. A boat belonging to the life-saving service, containing five men, was swamped in an attempt to reach the wrecked steamer, and all on board perished, thus swelling the total death-list to 109.

A DISPATCH from Matamoros, Mexico, says the troops which left the City of Mexico some days ago, under command of Gen. Trevino, for the Rio Grande, are not to repel the United States troops, but to co-operate with the United States authorities in maintaining peace between the two countries.

THE blame for the loss of the ill-fated steamer Huron, in the opinion of naval officers, rests upon the commander—first, in putting to sea in the face of an impending storm, of which they had been warned by the danger signal of the signal service; and, second, by the display of bad seamanship in running the vessel in close to shore instead of putting directly out to sea. A dispatch from Norfolk says: "Twenty-one dead bodies can be seen from the shore lashed to the main and mizzen rigging of the Huron."

THE National Grange, at its session in Cincinnati, elected the following officers for the current year: Overseer, Woodman of Michigan; Lecturer, Mortimer, of Cincinnati; Steward, Houghan, of Iowa; Assistant Steward, Symmes, of Kansas; Chaplain, Forsythe, of Illinois; Treasurer, McDowell, of New York; Secretary, Kelly of Louisville; Gatekeeper, Dinwiddie, of Indiana; Ceres, Mrs. Adams, of Minnesota; Pomona, Mrs. Woodman, of Michigan; Flora, Mrs. Moore, of Indiana; Lady Assistant Steward, Mrs. Hall, of Louisville. Resolutions were adopted in favor of the remonetizing of silver and the repeal of the Resumption law.

WASHINGTON.

FEDERAL appointments: William H. Fitzpatrick, of Kansas, Register of the Land Office at Topeka; Charles M. Howard, of Michigan, Receiver of Public Moneys at Santa Fe; Albert G. Boone, of Colorado, Indian Agent at the Ponca Agency; A. Bertram, Postmaster at Adams, Minn.

EX-CONGRESSMAN J. B. HAWLEY, of Illinois, has been appointed Assistant Secretary of State, vice J. B. McCormick, resigned.

POLITICAL.

THE official vote of New York, at the November election, for Secretary of State is as follows: Beach, Democratic, 383,091; Churchill, Republican, 371,811; Junio, Workingmen, 20,167; Harkness, Prohibition, 6,166.

THE official vote of Nebraska at the recent election shows that Lake, for Chief Justice, has 1,569 votes; Howe, 15,639. For Regents—Holmes, 29,698; Persinger, 28,937; Grims, 8,015; Case, 6,330. Total vote, 45,868.

THE TURKO-RUSSIAN WAR.

A CONSTANTINOPLE dispatch says that Gen. Melikoff, when summoning Mukhtar Pasha to evacuate Erzeroum, informed him of the capture of Kars, and that if he resisted he would be attacked by 80,000 men with overwhelming artillery. Mukhtar Pasha replied that he would hold Erzeroum to the last.

A LONDON telegram says the Russians have captured, with trifling loss, the fortified town of Etropol, the Turks fleeing in disorder. Etropol is situated on a spur of the Balkan mountains, about twenty miles to the northeast of Sophia, on a road leading to Lovatz. It is an important point in connection with the probable passage of the Balkans by way of the Sophia road....The Sultan is reported as desirous of treating for peace directly with the Czar. The feeling in Russia is stated to be favorable to the reestablishment of peace, but an intention is manifested of excluding England from participation in the negotiations. In London but little dependence is placed on the prevailing peace "talk."

A BELGRADE correspondent states that a Servian battalion recently crossed the frontier near Vratarnitza to protect some Bulgarian women and children. The Turks drove the Servians back, and many were killed and wounded on both sides. A commission left Belgrade to investigate the matter. Various Consuls have been informed of the affair.

FOUR HUNDRED Turks have surrendered to the Russians in Schipka Pass....Some severe fighting, resulting in the defeat of the Turks, is reported near Biela....The Grabhoffs have been unconditionally released....A great storm with snow has been prevailing in the Balkans.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

THE new French Ministry is constituted as follows: President of the Senate and Minister of War, Gen. Grimaudet de Rochebouet; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Marquis de Bonneville; Minister of the Interior, M. de Welche; Minister of Justice, M. LePelletier; Minister of Finance, M. Dutilleul; Minister of Commerce, M. Ozenne; Minister of Public Works, M. Graeff; Minister of Public Instruction, M. Faye....A dispatch from Athens says: "In consequence of the recent speeches in Parliament, the Ministry have resigned. The King refused to accept their resignations, and the crisis continues. The populace have become very warlike since the late Russian victories."

A PARIS dispatch announces that the Cabinet selected by President MacMahon has been rejected by the House of Deputies, and the obstinate MacMahon refuses to appoint another....Gen. Grant has been dining with Emile de Girardin, the distinguished French republican statesman. Gambetta, Grevy and other noted republican leaders were present.

SEVENTEEN political, military, and priestly leaders of the recent conspiracy in the Central American republic of Guatemala to assassinate its President and overturn the Government by violence have been arrested, condemned, and executed.

ADVICES from Mexico report that Lerdo has proposed to forego all claims to the Presidency of the republic if he is given Lower California, Chihuahua, Durango and Sonora, leaving the other provinces to Diaz....A Paris dispatch says "the various groups of the Left look upon M. Dufaure as the future President of the republic."

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

FRIDAY, Nov. 23.—SENATE.—Not in session. HOUSE.—The House, after a lengthy debate, passed the bill repealing the Resumption act by a vote of 133 to 120. The following is the text of the bill: A bill to repeal all that part of the act approved Jan. 14, 1875, known as the Resumption act, which authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to dispose of United States bonds and redeem and cancel greenback currency. That all that portion of the act approved Jan. 14, 1875, entitled "An act to provide for the resumption of specie payments," which reads as follows, to-wit: "And whenever and so often as circulating notes shall be issued to any such banking association so increasing its capital or circulating notes or so newly-organized as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem the legal-tender United States notes in excess only of $300,000,000 to the amount of 80 per cent. of the sum of national-bank notes so issued to any such banking association as aforesaid; and to continue such redemption as such circulating notes are issued until there shall be outstanding the sum of $300,000,000 of such legal-tender United States notes and no more, and, on and after the 1st day of January, Anno Domini, 1879, the Secretary of the Treasury shall redeem in coin United States legal-tender notes then outstanding on their presentation for redemption at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States in the city of New York in sums of not less than $50, and, to enable the Secretary of the Treasury to prepare and provide for redemption in this act authorized or required, he is authorized to use any surplus revenues from time to time in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, and to issue, sell and dispose of, at not less than par in coin, either of the description of bonds of the United States described in the act of Congress approved July 14, 1870, entitled 'an act to authorize the refunding of national debt,' with like qualities, privileges and exemptions, to the extent necessary to carry this act into full effect, and to use the proceeds thereof for the purposes aforesaid," be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

SATURDAY, Nov. 24.—SENATE.—Not in session.

HOUSE.—The House spent the entire day in consideration of the Deficiency Appropriation bill, and did not succeed in completing it. A protracted struggle occurred over an amendment to reappropriate the unexpended balance of the appropriation made last year for carrying the mails, amounting to over $700,000. The amendment was stricken out by a vote of 129 to 108.

MONDAY, Nov. 26.—SENATE.—The political contest in the Senate was renewed. The Committee on Privileges and Elections reported in favor of seating W. P. Kellogg from Louisiana, a minority of the committee reporting in favor of Spofford. The consideration of the [illegible] was postponed. In the case of M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, Mr. Thurman's resolution to discharge the committee from further consideration thereof came up as the regular order, and Judge Davis, of Illinois, addressed the Senate in support of the resolution. Mr. Edmunds, after a brief reply to Mr. Davis, moved that the Senate proceed to executive business. Rejected—yeas, 28; nays, 29, Messrs. Conover and Patterson voting with the Democrats in the negative. The debate was then reopened and continued all night, the Republicans now and then varying the monotony by making motions to adjourn. The Democrats, however, were firm, and obstinately refused to yield their advantage. During the debate Messrs. Patterson and Conover addressed the Senate at some length in explanation of their positions.

HOUSE.—The House transacted no business of importance.

TUESDAY, Nov. 27.—SENATE.—The Senate remained in continuous session Monday night, every motion of the Republicans to adjourn or take a recess being voted down by the Democrats. The Republicans were equally obstinate in their determination to prevent a vote on Thurman's resolution discharging the Committee on Privileges and Elections from further consideration of the case of M. C. Butler, but to force it over until 12 o'clock Tuesday, when, as it was claimed, the Senate would enter upon a new legislative day, the report of the committee in the case of W. P. Kellogg could be called up as a question of high privilege, and take precedence. When that hour arrived, however, Mr. Hoar, who occupied the chair, decided that the legislative day would continue until an adjournment was had. There were many interesting and some exciting scenes in the Senate during the progress of the parliamentary contest. To kill time, the Republicans called for the reading of the testimony in regard to the Hamburg (S. C.) massacre, taken by a committee of the Senate a year ago, and also the brief of Mr. Corbin, claiming a seat in the Senate from South Carolina. These documents consisted of several hundred pages of closely-printed matter, and the reading of them consumed some fifteen hours of time. Motions without number to adjourn, to take a recess, etc., were made and promptly voted down by the Democrats, with the aid of Messrs. Davis, Patterson and Conover. At about 3 o'clock in the afternoon the protracted parliamentary battle was brought to a close by the adoption of the Thurman resolution by a vote of 28 to 27, and the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr. Morrison addressed the House on the currency question....Bills were introduced: By Mr. Mackey, for the revival of the franking privilege; by Mr. Biddle, restoring to the pension rolls the names of all soldiers stricken off on account of disloyalty; also, repealing the act prohibiting the payment by any officer to any person not known to have been opposed to the rebellion; by Mr. Banning, providing for the repeal of the special taxes now imposed by the United States Government upon brewers, rectifiers, wholesale liquor-dealers, saloon-keepers, manufacturers, and wholesale and retail dealers in tobacco, cigars, etc.; by Mr. Corlett, amending the constitution so as to give to each of the Territories and the District of Columbia one member of Congress.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 28.—SENATE.—The contest between the opposing political forces in the Senate was resumed directly after the journal was read. Mr. Wadleigh, Chairman of the Elections Committee, moved, as a privileged question, to proceed to the consideration of the case of Kellogg over that of Butler. The Chair ruled Mr. Wadleigh's motion in order. Mr. Thurman appealed from the decision of the Chair, and the Vice President was sustained by a majority of one—Mr. Conover voting with the Republicans and Mr. Patterson with the Democrats, Mr. Davis, of Illinois, not voting. Upon a motion to proceed with the Kellogg case the vote was a tie—29 to 29—and the Vice President gave the casting vote in the affirmative. Mr. Thurman challenged the right of the Vice President to vote on questions pertaining to legislation. Mr. Wheeler said he had carefully considered the question as to his right to vote upon the case, and he had no doubt of his right to do so under the constitution. Mr. Thurman then moved to recommit the Kellogg case, upon which a general debate ensued, which was participated in by Messrs. Hill, Saulsbury, Wadleigh and McMillan. Pending discussion the Senate voted, by a majority of one, to adjourn.

HOUSE.—The House was not in session.

THURSDAY, Nov. 29.—SENATE.—Immediately after the reading of the journal, objection being offered to any new business, consideration was resumed of the resolution for the admission of William Pitt Kellogg as Senator from Louisiana for six years from March 4, 1877, the pending question being on the amendment of Mr. Saulsbury to commit the whole subject to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, with instructions to take testimony upon certain charges of the complicity of Gov. Kellogg with the Returning Board in frauds for the purpose of having himself elected to the Senate. A long discussion followed. The Democrats charged that they had witnesses ready to prove conclusively that Gov. Kellogg was in complicity with the Returning Board in frauds to elect himself to the Senate. Without action on the matter the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—Not in session.

A Terrible Crime in Mexico.

Details of a horrible crime reach here from Matamoros. About the 10th of September, Donna Rita Chapa de Menchaca, a wealthy lady of Matamoras, accompanied by her niece, Senorita Orila, and one female and two male attendants, left Matamoros bound for Monterey. The bodies of the whole party were found four days ago near Lobita Rancho, about forty miles from Matamoros. The women had been assaulted, bound hand and foot and gagged. There were no marks of shooting or stabbing, and it is believed they were left to die a horrible death from starvation and exposure.

Donna Rita had a large amount of money and much valuable jewelry on her person. The greater part of the money was in drafts, which the robbers left undisturbed. Her rings and other jewelry and money, amounting to some $300, were taken by the murderers. The mules were killed, and the ambulance by which the party was traveling was thrown into a lagoon. It is reported that in an old well a short distance from the scene of this horrible crime were found the remains of thirteen persons. The authorities are doing their utmost to obtain some clew to the perpetrators of these atrocities, but with little prospect of success.—Dispatch to the Galveston (Texas) News.

IT is said that from 12,000 to 15,000 chignons are annually imported from France to England, beside sufficient additional hair to make 10,000 more; the total value of the hair being £88,000. It is computed that many thousand pounds of hair are annually picked up in Marseilles alone by the rag-pickers and children engaged for that purpose from the "combings" which are thrown away from the ladies' dressing tables.

IT is said that the Chinaman is incapable of civilization. Facts disprove this assertion. Ah Chung had been working in San Gabriel, Cal., and received a check for $151. The figures were raised by Chung to $951, and the amount was paid on demand at the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Los Angeles. No trace of the Chinaman has since been discovered.

WHAT is the difference between a man who is guarded in his conversation and one who expresses himself freely? The former minds his talk and the latter talks his mind.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

TREASURY EXHIBIT.

ABSTRACT OF THE REPORT OF TREASURER [illegible]

The Treasurer of the United States in his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury during the last fiscal year, makes the following exhibit regarding the receipts and expenditures, as compared with the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876. That ending June 30, 1877, shows a decrease in net revenue amounting to $18,[illegible], and a decrease in net expenditures of $19,799,738. The net revenues for the fiscal year were $269,000,586; net expenditures, $238,660,[illegible], leaving an increase of funds amounting to $30,340,577. It is observed that, while the revenue from customs, lands and miscellaneous sources has diminished year after year since 1873, the revenue derived from internal revenue, so-called, has increased, the receipts from that source in 1874 having been $102,409,784, and in the fiscal year of 1877, $118,630,407.

The total amount of "unavailable moneys" carried in balances of accounts in the Treasurer's offices was as follows: June 30, 1876, $29,899,520; June 30, 1877, $29,620,833. The theory of public accounts is that the Treasurer of the United States shall be charged, upon a warrant of the Secretary, with all moneys received into the treasury, and for which, whenever received, he is held accountable until the same are properly disbursed under some appropriation made pursuant to law. It has, however, occurred that, since 1836, the sum of $29,625,833 over and above the amount of public money which has been properly accounted for, has, by reason of a deposit of surplus revenue with twenty-six States of the Union, by deficit, by default, by theft, in various places, and by failure in depository banks, gone from the custody of the Treasurer, which it seems he cannot, from the nature of the case, account for, and thereby obtain credit therefor on the books of the department, and, for the convenience of the operations of the department, this amount is carried in the accounts as unavailable. The Treasurer thinks there should be legislation authorizing the opening of an "appropriation account" upon the books of the department in which, under the head of "unavailable," the Treasurer may receive credit for the sums now and hereafter from time to time becoming unavailable, and that the person, bank, or State properly chargeable may be debited with the various items by warrant upon their account stated by the proper accounting officers of the treasury.

Although the monthly debt statement of the department was never intended to show the condition of the treasury and the amount and kinds of funds on hand, yet many deductions are sought to be made from time to time, as if that publication gave the liabilities and assets, and not merely the condition of the debt. The only items of cash in the treasury which the debt statement includes are the general currency balance and the general coin balance. The currency balance, as it appears in the monthly statement under the term "cash in treasury, currency," is simply the amount of currency that would be left in the treasury after the payment of all currency demands in full, and also of the item "cash in treasury, coin." There is, in addition, the amounts held for the redemption of Clearing-House certificates, of which the amounts outstanding are noted in the statement, beside which, not mentioned there are funds to the credit of the disbursing officers for redemption of notes of national banks failed, in liquidation and reducing circulation, to meet outstanding checks and drafts for the benefit of the creditors of national banks, the balance of the 5 per-cent fund, and others. A comparative statement is given showing in detail, both in coin and currency, the liabilities and assets of the treasury on Sept. 30, 1876 and 1877. These aggregates are as follows: Coin, Sept. 30, 1876, $67,586,805; Sept. 30, 1877, $133,585,072. Currency, Sept. 30, 1876, $100,437,766; Sept. 30, 1877, $110,096,032.

Regarding the long-mooted question whether legal-tender notes deposited for redemption of the circulation of failed, reducing and liquidating banks are held as a separate fund, it may be said that there is no provision of law which requires that such notes should be so held, and, as a fact, they have never been held set apart and distinct from other funds in the treasury. There is, without doubt, in the various offices and various vaults of the treasury a sufficient amount of United States notes to redeem all such banks' notes if presented simultaneously for redemption, but they are not always in the vaults of the office where redemption is required to be made.

A recapitulation of the silver payments made in pursuance of the act of April 17, 1876, including payments from April 19, 1876, until and including October, 1877, shows an aggregate of $23,156,163 of silver issued for fractional currency redeemed and destroyed, and $13,464,569 of silver issued in lieu of or in exchange for currency, making a total of $36,620,732. Upon an official estimate of $8,083,573 fractional currency lost in circulation, there may be still issued, before the limit of $50,000,000 is reached, $10,269,061 in exchange for fractional and $3,110,206 for currency obligations.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

SYNOPSIS OF COMMISSIONER RAUM'S REPORT.

From the report of Hon. Green B. Raum, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, we glean the following: During the last fiscal year 4,952 distilleries were registered and 4,510 operated. The net aggregate increase of receipts from the several sources relating to distilled spirits for the fiscal year were $1,048,344. An abstract is given of the reports of District Attorneys for the fiscal year, showing the whole number of suits commenced to be 5,828; suits decided in favor of the United States, 3,327; suits decided against the United States, 605; suits settled or dismissed, 3,046; suits pending July 1, 1877, 6,065. The statement is made, showing a falling off in the amounts assessed in the year 1877 of $1,704,324 from the amount assessed in the previous year, an amount almost equal to the decrease of assessments on the single article of distilled spirits seized or fraudulently removed, on which there was assessed in 1877 $1,767,299 less than in 1876, in which latter year very large assessments were made on account of stupendous frauds committed by distillers in various parts of the country, and discovered in the latter part of the year 1875.

The tax on deposits, capital and circulation of banks, etc., in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, was $93,437 less than in the previous year, a decrease which must be accounted for by the general depression of business prevailing in the past year, and to which many banks, and particularly savings institutions were compelled to succumb. It should, however, be remembered that the amount reported in 1876 showed an unusual increase of $211,852 of the tax on current banking business of that year over previous years.

The amount assessed on tobacco, snuff and cigars removed from factory unstamped shows the large increase of $314,505 over the amount assessed in the previous year, the amount so assessed in 1877 being about four times the amount assessed in 1876, to wit, $419,808. It is true that assessments equaling in amount this excess were made against certain manufacturers in Virginia and North Carolina, on tobacco alleged to have been fraudulently removed nearly fifteen months prior to the date of the assessments, and that additional evidence was subsequently filed upon which a large part of the assessments were made. Nevertheless, even after making these deductions, the value of the safeguards provided by law, other than that of affixing the stamp, is demonstrated by figures above given.

The total quantity of distilled spirits in taxable gallons at the 70 and 90 cents tax placed in distillery warehouses, withdrawn therefrom, and remaining therein at the beginning and close of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, is given at 74,143,388.

Statements showing the gross amount of average capital and deposits of savings banks, bankers, and banks other than national banks, for the year ending May 31, 1876 and 1877, are given:

	1876.	1877.
Capital of savings banks	$5,016,009	$4,965,509
Capital of banks and bankers	211,[illegible]	217,31[illegible]
Deposits of savings banks having capital	36,2[illegible]	[illegible],840
Deposits of savings banks having no capital	845,1[illegible]7	[illegible],027
Deposits of banks and bankers	463,[illegible]	475,[illegible],604
Totals	$1,5[illegible],426,[illegible]	$1,561,082,319

The total collections from tobacco for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, were $41,[illegible]. In addition to the collection of specific taxes from manufactured tobacco, snuff, and cigars in their various forms there are included in the above total collections from special taxes [illegible] the manufacture and sale of tobacco, special taxes upon raw or leaf tobacco, and from the sale of export stamps.

The following exhibit gives the number of persons [illegible] during the fiscal year in the handling of raw or leaf tobacco, in the manufacture of tobacco, snuff and cigars, and in the distribution of manufactured products, ascertained from the amount of collections from the sale of special-tax stamps:

Leaf dealers	1,308
Manufacturers of tobacco	[illegible]
Manufacturers of cigars	15,442
Peddlers of manufactured tobacco	[illegible]

The exhibit presented by the foregoing figures is, in many respects, a gratifying one both to the Government and to the numerous persons engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling tobacco.

There are three facts in this connection which the Commissioner deems especially worthy of note. The first is, that the production of manufactured tobacco for the last fiscal year was greater than for any other fiscal year embraced within the records of this office, with the single exception of the year ending June 30, 1875. The second fact is, that a larger amount of money was collected from manufactured tobacco put upon the market for consumption than during any previous fiscal year; and the third fact is the pleasing one that a greater quantity of manufactured tobacco and more cigars and cigarettes were removed directly from manufactories for exportation to foreign countries during the last year than during any previous year of which an account has been kept by the office of internal revenue. These results are believed to be largely due to those provisions of law which were designed to give the Government a general control over the movements of raw or leaf tobacco, regulating its sale, transfer and shipment, and preventing its being sold for direct consumption without payment of any tax, and in competition with manufactured and tax-paid. The Commissioner says: "A continuance of these features of the said law is necessary to maintain the present amount of receipts from said source.

"The manufacture of perfumery for exportation is a large and growing interest. About 2,5000 barrels of alcohol are used in this business, all of which are imported and withdrawn without payment of duty, and used in the manufacture of perfumeries in bonded manufactories, and finally exported free of tax or duty. Under existing laws, American alcohol can not be used in the business without payment of tax, and there is no provision of law authorizing a drawback upon the exportation of goods so manufactured. I see no reason for this discrimination against American distillers." The Commissioner, therefore, respectfully recommends that an act be passed authorizing the withdrawal of alcohol without payment of tax, to be used by manufacturing perfumers in the production of goods for export, under such restrictions as to prevent fraud and protect the rights of the Government.

"It has been found that, in some portions of the country, match manufacturers have put up matches in boxes containing so great a number as to facilitate frauds upon the revenue by reuse of stamped boxes. I respectfully recommend that a law be passed limiting the number of matches to be contained in a single box to 500.

"I recommend legislation upon the following additional points: First, that a retail liquor-dealer be authorized to close out his stock without incurring a wholesale liquor dealer's tax; second, that a bona-fide mortgagee of spirits should be authorized to sell and deliver the same under mortgage to any person qualified to buy them, without incurring a wholesale dealer's tax, and the person so receiving spirits without reference to the amount should not be liable to any penalty therefor; third, where members of a firm who have paid a special tax for pursuing any business are changed by the withdrawal or admission of a partner, the new firm that is created should be allowed to pursue business upon giving notice of such change to the Collector of their district without the payment of a new tax; fourth, that a person caught in the act of manufacturing or selling illicit spirits may be arrested on view, without a warrant, by a Marshal or Deputy Marshal, and forthwith taken before the proper tribunal for examination; fifth, that the existing law be so changed as to authorize the employment of thirty-five revenue agents.

"The total amount of drawback of internal-revenue taxes allowed during the fiscal year on exported merchandise is $69,546, an increase of $24,545 in claims allowed during the past year."

THE ARMY.

WHAT GEN. SHERMAN'S REPORT SHOWS.

The annual report of Gen. Sherman shows that on Oct. 12 the regular army was composed of:

General officers	11
General staff officers	566
Hospital stewards	185
Engineer battalion	199
Ordinance enlisted men	346
Enlisted men of staff corps	731
Cavalry officers, for ten regiments	439
Enlisted men	7,911
Cavalry	8,350
Artillery officers, for five regiments	284
Enlisted men	2,321
Artillery	2,605
Infantry officers, for twenty-five regiments	877
Enlisted men	8,778
Infantry	9,656

Besides which there are reported as non-commissioned staff, unattached to regiments, Military Academy, recruits unassigned, Indian scouts, and prison guards, amounting to:

Men	1,877
Signal corps	404
Retired officers	301
Captain of [illegible] General	1
Aggregating officers and men	24,501

[illegible] the service to 100 men, expressed the opinion that, had this been done some time ago, the Indian troubles would have been [illegible], with a [illegible] probability that they would not have occurred at all. Gen. Sherman adds: "The Indian [illegible] in this [illegible] are over for the present. I cannot say that they are finally ended. Complications [illegible] liable to arise, and our experience [illegible] us to be better prepared than we have been [illegible]."

Gen. Sherman [illegible] 25,000 men, [illegible] in such opposition to Congress [illegible]

"I believe it to be wrong and damaging to increase the cavalry at the expense of the artillery and infantry. The latter do as good service as cavalry, are as necessary, and cost much less for maintenance. All are equally necessary and should be on a par, but the President should have the right to increase companies stationed at exposed points at the loss of others not similarly situated."

The concluding portion of the report is devoted to the account of Howard's movements in pursuit of the Nez Perces and their final capture by Miles. Gen. Sherman says Col. Miles and his officers and men are entitled to all honor and praise for their prompt, skillful and successful work, while others, by their long and toilsome pursuit, are entitled to corresponding credit because they made that success possible. The General hopes these Indians will be provided with homes in the spring on the Indian reservation, near the Modocs, where, by moderate labor, they can soon be able to support themselves in peace. They should never again be allowed to return to Oregon or to Lapwai.

THE NATIONAL DOMAIN.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

Hon. J. C. Williamson, the Commissioner General of the Land Office, in his annual report, says the sales of public lands for cash are about 100,000 acres more than the previous year, while the number entered under the Homestead and Timber-Culture laws is 785,128 less. There were certified for railroad purposes 700,791 acres. The total disposals of public lands were [illegible] acres. Public surveys have been extended over [illegible] acres. The total [illegible] is 1,101,[illegible] acres. There were surveyed the past year 11,848,[illegible] acres at a cost of $215,942.

The consolidation of all the offices of the [illegible] also, the abolition of the contract system, and the appointment of a Surveyor General, who may appoint assistants required to personally make surveys. A large number of grants for railroads have expired by limitation, and it is regarded important that action should be taken by Congress either to enforce the forfeiture of the grants or extend the time for the completion of the roads. Should the latter course be pursued, the claims of bona-fide settlers upon lapsed lands should be protected. It is recommended that Congress withdraw all lands chiefly valuable for pine timber from the Homestead and Pre-emption laws, and from sale except for cash; also, that the Secretary of the Interior be authorized to sell timber from public lands in the mining districts; also, to sell timber upon any unsurveyed land (not mineral), when needed for actual settlement before public surveys; also, that a law be enacted providing for the care and custody of timber-lands unfit for agriculture, and for the gradual sale of timber, and for the perpetuation of the growth of timber of such lands.

Legislation authorizing seizures of timber cut from public lands, without resort to the tedious process of the courts, is also recommended.

The United States Marshal for the Southern District of Mississippi has seized, in three counties bordering on the Gulf of Mexico, in the suit of the United States against John Manning and others, large amounts of timber, principally pine logs, estimated at over 75,000 in number. There will also be seized a large amount of charcoal and turpentine. This action stops a trade which has employed many vessels carrying timber or lumber to foreign and domestic markets.

THE POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.

REPORT OF POSTMASTER GENERAL KEY.

The report of the operations of the Postoffice Department for the last fiscal year shows an increase in the number of postoffices of 962; 1,826 having been established, and 863 discontinued. Of the Postmasters, 4,500 have resigned, 711 have been removed, and 397 have died. There are 35,989 offices with a salary less than $1,000, and 1,897 with a larger salary, the last being known as Presidential offices. The letter-carriers system has cost $1,893,618.85, paid to 2,265 letter carriers in eighty-five places having free delivery, at whose postoffices the receipts for local postage were $2,254,957.83. The expenditures of the department show a nominal deficiency of $1,500,000, and a real deficiency of less than $500,000.

David B. Barker, Superintendent of Special Agents of the Postoffice Department, reports that during the year 542 persons were arrested for offenses against the Postal laws, being 104 greater than in the preceding year, though during the last year the number of special agents had been reduced. The persons arrested had committed every variety of offense known to the Postal laws, and 172 of the number were transferred to the State courts to be tried for burglaries of postoffices, highway robberies of mails while in transit, murder of mail-drivers, etc. Many cases of alleged improper sales of postage stamps were investigated, and Postmasters removed for that cause. The whole number of complaints of lost registered letter during the year was 2,209, with a reported aggregate value of $54,410, of which 714 letters were recovered, and 215 valued at $10,510 accounted for by the recovery of their contents from persons who had stolen them, or through whose carelessness they were lost. The percentage of actual losses compared with the total number of letters registered during the year, viz., $4,348,127, is about one-fiftieth of 1 per cent., or one in every 5,000 registered letters sent through the mail. Many of the losses occurred through unavoidable causes, such as railroad and steamboat accidents, fires, etc.

A Vegetable Curiosity.

Mr. Isaac Martin, of Smith's Hill, showed a natural curiosity the other day in the shape of a Canada thistle with a well-formed potato on the root. The article was quite genuine, and the anomaly can be accounted for by the supposition that the thistle was beneath the growing potato and forced its way through it, and then reached the surface, and both potato and thistle "grew in beauty side by side."—Montreal Gazette.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$7 75	@ $11 50
HOGS	4 75	@ 6 12
COTTON	11¼	@ 11½
FLOUR—Superfine	[illegible]	@ 5 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 20	@ 1 31
CORN—Western Mixed	[illegible]	@ [illegible]
OATS—Mixed	[illegible]	@ 41
RYE—Western	74	@ 78
PORK—New Mess	13 60	@ 13 75
LARD	8½	@ [illegible]
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@ 5 50
Choice Natives	4 60	@ 5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 25	@ 3 50
Butchers' Steers	3 25	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	3 90	@ 4 40
HOGS—Live	3 75	@ 4 55
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 25	@ 5 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 05½	@ 1 10
No. 3 Spring	1 02	@ 1 03
CORN—No. 2	44	@ 46
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 27
RYE—No. 2	55	@ 56
BARLEY—No. 2	62	@ 63
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	31	@ 35
EGGS—Fresh	20	@ 21
PORK—Mess	11 80	@ 11 90
LARD	7½	@ 8
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 12½	@ 1 13½
No. 2	1 08	@ 1 09½
CORN—No. 2	44	@ 45
OATS—No. 2	25	@ 25½
RYE—No. 1	56	@ 57
BARLEY—No. 2	[illegible]	@ 79
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 24	@ 1 27
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	44	@ 47
OATS—No. 2	26	@ 27
RYE	56	@ 56½
PORK—Mess	12 25	@ 12 50
LARD	8	@ 8¼
HOGS	3 75	@ 4 60
CATTLE	3 00	@ 5 00
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	1 18	@ 1 25
CORN—New	40	@ 42
OATS	28	@ 31
RYE	62	@ 63
PORK—Mess	11 00	@ 12 00
LARD	7½	@ 8
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White Michigan	1 31	@ 1 32
No. 2 Red Winter	1 30	@ 1 30½
CORN	48	@ 49
OATS—No. 2	29	@ 30
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Choice White	5 75	@ 6 40
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 30	@ 1 31
No. 1 Amber	1 28	@ [illegible]
CORN—No. 1	[illegible]	@ 53½
OATS—Mixed	[illegible]	@ [illegible]
BARLEY (per cental)	1 25	@ 1 60
PORK—Mess	12 25	@ 12 50
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	5 50	@ [illegible]
Fair	4 50	@ [illegible]
Common	3 25	@ [illegible]
HOGS	[illegible]	@ [illegible]
SHEEP	3 50	@ 4 50

AUBURN COURIER.

T. C. MAYO, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Around the Farm.

Soot, scattered over plum trees when in full bloom, has proven very efficacious in checking the ravages of the curculio, with us.—Moore's Rural.

In selecting fruit trees, or any others, be careful to choose those with smooth, healthy-looking bark, which have entirely shed their leaves. Trees on which the leaves remain after frost sets in, and stick to the branches, may be regarded as not healthy, and in some way lacking stamina.—Exchange.

Good seasoned muck is of immense service to farmers when used as an absorbent, and the stalls for animals should be so constructed as to admit of a wide passage in the rear, with generous room for the muck to be used daily with the droppings.—Journal of Chemistry.

To a farm like mine, not favored with any living brook or spring, I consider a good windmill a most important and valuable piece of machinery. Mine not only saves the labor of pumping, but furnishes an abundant supply of water at all times for house use as well as for all stock on the farm.—Detroit Tribune.

The carrot crop is rendered useless in many gardens by grubs eating into the roots. The best remedy that I have tried is to scatter a quantity of soot and lime over the surface of the ground before forking it over the carrots. This works into the ground, and keeps the soil free from all sorts of grubs for the whole season. The next best plan is to sow the lime and soot between the rows and hoe it into the ground.—Exchange.

The best fertilizer for potatoes, to be applied in the hill at planting, is superphosphate and muriate of potash, in equal proportions, at the rate of 500 pounds per acre, mixed with earth. A good teaspoonful of each is the usual quantity to the hill. Bone dust is almost as good as the superphosphate. Hen manure mixed with wood ashes and salt and put in the hill, would also be good, but is somewhat hard to get.—Toronto Globe.

Rats are accomplished rope-walkers, and are able to make their way along even very small cords. Consequently, so long as they can mount upon the lines, nothing edible suspended therefrom is safe from their attacks. A correspondent uses horizontal wires, upon which circular pieces of tin are strung, and hangs his meat, grain, etc., between the tin pieces. The rats cannot pass the tin circles, because, as they attempt to climb over them, after walking out on the wire, the pieces revolve.—San Francisco Chronicle.

It would only require a very small sum from each man in a county to raise a fund which, offered in premiums for rat-tails, would go far toward cleaning out these pests, and if a combined effort was made by all the societies of the country for a few years rats would cease to be a nuisance. Let us have more rat-hunts and fewer horse races, and thus give the boys a chance to win a few honest dollars in premiums at our county fairs.—Ohio Farmer.

Looking over the grape vine you will observe many slender canes not having more than half the diameter of the stronger ones; these must be cut close to the parent stock. Then cut off the stronger canes at the point where they began to decrease in diameter. This point is generally from three to six feet from the terminal bud, and may be known from the fainter color of the wood and immatured leaves. This done, and the vine is pruned.—Dutchess Farmer.

With respect to the wire worm, I may mention one significant fact. Last season a field of turnips suffered very severely from its ravages; in the same field there were a few rows of carrots, in the manuring of which gas-lime was used; and next to these were about an acre of potatoes. The carrots quite escaped, and the potatoes were a good crop. This year the whole field is sown with barley. On the portion where the turnips were last year the wire worm is conspicuous in the plant; but on the portion where the carrots and the potatoes were no trace of it is visible.—London Agricultural Gazette.

A writer in the Country Gentleman urges greater care in maturing seed, with the view of sustaining the quality of corn and other grain, as well as of all crops and plants raised from seed. The perfection in form of the individual seed is not so important as its thorough ripeness. The seed should be allowed to draw all the nutriment possible from the plant before gathering, and the little wasted in the case of wheat, etc., by the seeds filling will be more than compensated by the greater vigor and productiveness of that allowed to remain till fully ripened. Corn especially may and should be left till stalk and husk are completely dead and dry.

About the House.

To Prevent Mold on Catchup.—To keep mold from rising on catchup or pickles, add a table-spoonful of ground horseradish to every quart.—Toronto Globe.

Remedy for a Cough.—One ounce of elecampane root; one ounce of wild cherry bark; one ounce of comfrey root; one ounce of hoarhound. Boil well in two quarts of water; add one pound of brown sugar; strain and add one pint of the best spirits. Take half a wine glass three times a day.

To Wash Red Table Linen.—Use tepid water, with a little powdered borax (borax sets the color); wash the linen separately and quickly, using very little soap; rinse in tepid water, containing a little boiled starch; hang to dry in the shade, and iron when almost dry.—Sacramento Record-Union.

Whitening the Skin.—A mixture of lemon juice and powdered borax is a fine whitener of the skin, but should be used only in warm weather. This is admirably suited to those ladies whose general health is not good, and who have, consequently, bluish hands, in which the blue veins show too strongly.—Exchange.

Apple Sauce.—Pare, quarter, and core the apples; boil in just enough water to cover; do not stir them when cooking; keep covered; when tender drain off the water, and when the cooked apples are dry rub them through a fine sieve; then sweeten a very little with white sugar; sprinkle on more sugar when serving if desired.

Piccalilli.—Slice one peck of green tomatoes and stew a pint of salt through them; let this stand twenty-four hours, then drain, and add three heads of cabbage, twelve onions and six green peppers, all chopped fine. Boil three quarts of vinegar, one pint of molasses, one pint of sugar, one cup of whole mustard, one table-spoonful each of ground cloves and allspice together, and throw hot over the above.

Variety Desirable in Food.—We must not restrict ourselves to a few articles of food, but must have a great variety of foods to select from; we must not partake of the same fare day after day, but must vary it as much as possible. Only with a varied and alternating dietary can we be sure that what is lacking in one food will be supplied in another, and what we fail to get to-day we shall have to-morrow. What is commonly regarded as simply the result of a spoiled palate—the repugnance excited by the steady recurrence of the same dish—is an uprising of the organism itself against a food which does not meet its requirements; or, rather, the consequence of a deficiency already established.—Housekeeper.

A Magnificent Wedding Dress.

A correspondent of New York Times describes the wedding dress of Miss Florence Adele Vanderbilt, daughter of William H. Vanderbilt, who was married in Boston the other day to Mr. Hamilton McK. Twombley: The dress is of white satin brocade, trimmed with three kinds of lace—round point, point Venice, and point applique—with pearl trimmings and orange blossoms. It is in the princesse style, with the neck cut low a la Pompadour, and the bosom filled with lace fichu and pearl trimmings. The corsage is short, and finished with a belt at the waist. The front of the dress is trimmed with festoons of lace, supported by three folds of satin drapery, coming to the front and caught up by orange-blossom bouquets. The pattern of the lace is exquisite. Each festoon is a quarter of a yard deep, and bears a beautifully interwoven design in flowers, representing roses, lilies, and baskets overflowing with floral treasures of all sorts. Each alternate festoon is of point Venice and point applique, and the intermediate ones are of round point and point Venice. The lace is the finest that the ateliers of the Paris modistes could furnish, and eclipses anything heretofore seen in this country.

The bottom of the skirt in front is trimmed with sectional shirrings of white satin, filled in between with bouquets of orange blossoms. At the sides the trimming is deep, and grows gradually narrow towards the front. An elegant court train of white satin brocade extends three and a half yards back from the body of the dress. The brocade runs into points at the bottom, with several rows of white satin pelisses laid under the points, making a very stylish effect. A choice trimming of round point, point applique, and point Venice embellishes the train, which is also adorned with pearl trimmings of great beauty. The sleeves are entirely of lace, set off with orange blossoms. This dress cost over $5,000.

Luck of the Lorillard Brothers.

A fresh interest in turf matters was aroused in this city by the great contest at Baltimore between Ten Broeck, Parole and Tom Ochiltree. The victory of Parole over the staunch Western champion, Ten Broeck, was a fitting close to one of the most remarkable records ever made by a turfman in a single season. At the spring meeting at Jerome Park, at the Long Branch July meeting, at Saratoga, at Jerome Park again in September and October, and finally at Baltimore, Mr. Pierre Lorillard's horses have captured nearly every prize for which they have been entered. During the season it has been the constant remark that if Pierre Lorillard should start a goat, he would win, so constantly have his colors been first at the winning-post. His name heads the list of winners of the season, and the amount of his winnings is upward of $50,000. Next on the list comes George Lorillard, Pierre's brother, with winnings of between $35,000 and $40,000. Both have frequently competed in the same race, but Pierre has been the ever-lucky one, and the great victory of his horse Parole over Harper Ten Broeck and his brother's Tom Ochiltree is the brightest triumph of all the season. It is a noticeable fact that while the brothers Lorillard, who are comparatively young on the turf, have been thus overwhelmingly successful, such veterans as Col. McDaniel and August Belmont are far down in the list, and it is believed by those who are well-informed that the first-named "old stager" has been a large loser on the season's work.—New York Cor. Detroit Post.

Nevada Personals.

Our citizens generally will be glad to know that Miss Trewella, who last Christmas broke both thigh bones and her jaw by falling from a swing on the Divide, is now able to walk without crutch or cane, and to do the housework at home. Notwithstanding all the drawbacks of the case, the attendant surgeons have made a good job of it. Both legs are of exactly the same length.

Miss Sullivan, who had her head cracked by an upset on the Geiger grade last summer, and who lost two square inches of her cranium, is reported by Dr. Grant as once more clothed and in her right mind. She gets up at 7 o'clock, combs her hair, dresses, breakfasts, and during the day knits, crochets and does other light work. Her mind has resumed full sway.—Virginia Enterprise.

It is computed that the grain used for liquors in a year in the United States reaches 70,000,000 bushels, which would make 1,050,000,000 four-pound loaves of bread. Great Britain uses 80,000,000 bushels of grain yearly for the same purpose, and annually imports food to the value of nearly $400,000,000.

THE FINANCES IN CONGRESS.

Synopsis of Gen. Ewing's Great Speech in the House in Support of the Repeal Bill.

Mr. Ewing said it was a characteristic of popular government that the people gave their exclusive thought to one leading subject. Thus before the war slavery was the controlling question. During the war it was how to maintain the Government. Since then it was how to govern the Southern States. Now the question of paramount interest was the question of debt and currency. It would have been happy for the people if they had considered these questions earlier. They would have been saved among other things the passage of the act of repudiation and extortion of 1869 by which a contract, on which $1,600,000,000 of public debt was made, was changed to the detriment of the people and to the advantage of the holders of public securities, without consideration, to a sum not less than $500,000,000, and they would have been saved that stealthy and rascally act for the demonetization of silver, and the crowning scheme of the money power for the oppression of the people—the Resumption law. He went on to argue that when the Resumption law was passed the volume of currency in circulation was $733,000,000, and that was only $2.50 per capita more than was in circulation in 1860, which his colleague (Garfield) had held up to admiration as a year of sound business and sound money. That act had put into the hands of capitalists the control of the industries of the Government. Proceeding to discuss Secretary Sherman's construction of the law on the subject of reissuing legal tenders, he said that that gentleman was very apt to change his views, because in 1868 he told the people of Ohio that the payment of United States bonds in coin, while on their face they were to be paid in lawful money, would be repudiation and extortion, and yet within six months afterward he had reported in the Senate that act of repudiation and extortion falsely labeled, "an act to strengthen the public credit." If it were possible (Mr. Ewing continued) to substitute $354,000,000 of gold for greenback money, and if that gold so substituted would remain in circulation just as greenback money, there would be no very great mischief done by the Resumption act further than the useless increase of the bonded debt to the amount of $354,000,000, but the trouble was that an attempt to make $354,000,000 in gold take the place of greenback money in the currency was utterly impossible. Gold could not remain in circulation in the present condition of the country, and every greenback redeemed was so much withdrawn from the effective currency, and its proportionate effect was the reduction of values. He said that before the greenback era there never had been kept afloat in this country more than $214,000,000 of paper money, with $285,000,000 in coin, and now, with $733,000,000 of paper money, there was not $150,000,000 of gold in the United States. Since 1860 the mines of the country had produced $1,257,000,000 of precious metals, and yet there was not in the country three-fifths of the little volume of coin that there was in 1860. Where had all the gold and silver gone? It has gone to pay the debt of this country, and there was where would go all the coin that could be scraped together in the treasury or banks. This was the great debtor nation of the world. No nation owed outside of its own borders half the amount which America owed. More than half of the bonded debt of the country was held abroad, and there were State, city, railroad and other debts due abroad, the aggregate coin interest on which ran from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 a year. From $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year was paid for shipping and as much more for the expenses of foreign travel, so that the annual drain of coin from this country was from $175,000,000 to $250,000,000. How was that paid? Not by the balance of trade, as might be said, because that balance for the last seven years had been $4,000,000 against this country. The interest was, therefore, as a rule, not paid by the balance of trade. It was paid partly by shipping $56,000,000 a year of precious metal. Discussing the preparations for resumption, "Here we are," said he, "within thirteen months of resumption, with $733,000,000 of paper money to be floated and with less than $40,000,000 of accumulated gold in the treasury and banks." He declared that if this country were entirely free from debt, specie payment could not be resumed without a contraction of the currency by at least one-half. Where, he asked, were gold and silver to be got? Could it be got in foreign markets? That had never been done and never could be done. The silver and gold mines in the country could not in twenty-five years furnish all that was needed even if gold and silver could be kept here. Whether this mad scheme of resumption were repealed now or forced on until popular indignation tore it to pieces, resumption had to be waited for until it became possible, and until a volume of coin had been accumulated in the country larger than the volume of paper money. Equalization would not be resumption. Paper money might be brought to par with gold and still there would not be resumption. Replying to Mr. Garfield's argument that no one would want coin on resumption day, and taking up Mr. Garfield's illustration of the farmer who sold his farm for $10,000 and would not take his pay in gold but in bills, he said it was not a question whether the people want gold or not. It is a question whether the Jim Fisks, the Jay Goulds, the bankers, the brokers, the importers, the savings banks, want it, and they certainly will want it faster than the Secretary of the Treasury will be able to give gold to them.

Mr. Ewing spoke of the enormous depreciation of values which he attributed to the Resumption act, and which he estimated at one-third of the whole. He characterized the Resumption law as practical confiscation by law of $3,500,000,000 of property. Three-fourths of all the classes of the country were debtors, and it was their hard-earned accumulations that were being wrested from them by this robber law. He spoke of the loss of the laboring classes as amounting to $3,000,000 a day, or $900,000,000 a year, and mentioned the statement made to him recently by the President of the Dayton and Southeastern Railroad Company, in Ohio, to the effect that hundreds of men had been offering to work on the road for bread and meat. "Nothing," said he, "for clothes, nothing for wives and children, nothing to lay up in store for winter. Merely enough to keep the poor human body that was doing the labor able to exercise the necessary force. Oh, God! that bread should be so dear, and flesh and blood so cheap!" The law he continued, was not going to stop with that fall of values. Whoever hugged the hope that the bottom had been touched had only to look at the facts to know that lower and lower ground had to be reached. A further fall of values had to be witnessed. There had also to be witnessed an increase of poverty and suffering, the practical confiscation of property and repudiation of a large part of the public debts of the country. He appealed to the moneyed men whether they would persist in their scheme of infatuation. Had they not heard enough to warn them that they had better stop? What meaning had the labor riots—that almost civil war—six months ago? The meaning of them was that labor had been trampled upon as much as it would stand. "Go," said he, "to any of our cities and see the hundreds and thousands and tens of thousands of pale, wan, ragged, hungry people." I have seen them clubbed out of the parks of New York city at night—men who went there hoping to lie down on the grass and get a little fresh air and a cool resting-place. The thing has been pushed just as far as it will bear. What are we to gain by inflicting such losses on our industry and labor? What is the great advantage to be accomplished? It costs this country, in the loss of productive industries, in the unjust transfer of wealth from the debtor to the creditor, in the unjust increase of taxation, in the loss of labor to the wage people, more than all the wastes of the rebellion combined; and what are we to gain by adding to the enormous sacrifices of the rebellion a self-inflicted sacrifice even more stupendous? Why we are to get back the banking system which existed before the war, modified a little, a little better in one respect than the old State-bank system, but a system the genius of which will be panic—a system which, in the nature of things, cannot be stable." He spoke of the law for the payment of bonds in gold as an act of repudiation of $2,000,000,000 of contracts whose value rested on it, and declared that the repeal of the law and the putting back of those contracts to what was the understanding of the parties at the time they were made was an act demanded by every consideration of individual interest and national honor. If the repeal of that law were repudiation, the hapless sufferers would not be the people at large, but the men probably who had instigated the passage of the law. He quoted Edmund Burke to the effect that it is to the property of the citizen and not to the demands of the creditor of the State that the original faith of the nation is given, and that the claim of the citizen is prior in time, paramount in title, and superior in equity. In conclusion he said:

"No greater question than this was ever presented to an American Congress for its action. It touches the happiness, the prosperity, the future of three-fourths of the men, women and children in this land. Thousands of men have been driven by the Resumption law to insanity or suicide. Hundreds of thousands had been cast down from competency to poverty. Millions have been deprived of employment for their labor, on which rests the dependence of their families. It is now too late to right that wrong, but we may avert any greater wrong from them and millions of others by prompt action on the part of Congress and the President. I do not appeal to that money power which seeks its fortune over the wrecked happiness and accumulations of its fellow-men—a power to which our unhappy civil war gave birth, which has grown so enormous through unjust financial legislation, which now bestrides our narrow world like a colossus, which subsidizes the press, which captures statesmen and parties and makes them its subservient tools, which hounds down and vilifies every public man who dares to raise his voice against it—that power which in the flush and arrogance of its enormous and ill-gotten gains has a heart of stone not to be touched by human sympathy and compassion. I appeal to the masses, to their faithful representatives, I thank God, of both political parties on this floor. The true aim of government is the greatest good to the greatest number, and whoever, by legislation or otherwise, changes the value of a contract is as accursed as he who removes his neighbor's land-marks. For twelve years past the financial legislation of this country has been dictated, one would think, in Lombard street or Wall street, and the people have been plundered by every fresh enactment. They have suffered the fate of the Giant Gulliver when tied down by Liliputians. Thank God, they are now about to rise, to burst the bonds which their petty foes have fastened upon them while sleeping, and to walk abroad again in their own majesty."

An Affectionate Goose.

A visitor to the public gardens during the summer must have noticed the eccentric conduct of one of the wild geese which frequent the pond in the northern gardens. Whenever a certain old gentleman, whose name we do not know, approaches the pond and calls "Bobby," the goose will leave the pond and sit beside him, and, when he leaves to go home, will follow close at his feet like a dog to the gate, and sometimes into the street, when it has to be forcibly put back, to its manifest disgust, for it goes off to its native element twisting its tail with indignation, and giving vent to sundry discordant squeaks. The old gentleman says he has never fed it, or petted it in any way, which makes it more remarkable; but we are told by a frequenter of the gardens that about two or three years ago a man used to come there and feed this identical goose regularly, so we are inclined to think that it is a case of mistaken identity on the part of his gooseship. Any way, it is an interesting question for ornithologists to solve, whether geese (supposed to be the most stupid of birds) have memory and can experience the sensation of gratitude.—Halifax Chronicle.

WILKES BOOTH IN FICTION.

A Project to Write a Novel on the Life of the Assassin of Lincoln, and a Rebuke.

(From the New York Evening Post.)

It is reported that Mr. W. D. Trammel, the author of "Ca Ira," is engaged in writing a novel in which Wilkes Booth will be a prominent figure, and the newspaper that announces the fact adds that Mr. Trammel "will weave a pleasant romance into the life of J. Wilkes Booth, culminating in the assassination of President Lincoln."

If the assertions here made are true, Mr. Trammel is on the point of committing a blunder in art which will go far to contradict any pretension he may have to rank as a dramatic writer of fiction. Wilkes Booth was a romantic young man, when he was young, and if he had never assassinated Mr. Lincoln it would have been easy, no doubt, to find enough material in his life to furnish the groundwork of a romance. His habits were eccentric and well adapted to the uses of a romance writer. A good chapter might have been made out of a scene which the writer of this article saw in the actor's room one morning before the war. Invited to breakfast with Booth, the writer called at his room about 10 o'clock and found him lying in bed, shooting at a picture on the wall with a pair of dueling pistols which a young negro by the bedside was loading for him. Upon his guest's entrance he hastily arose and apologized for his forgetfulness, explaining that the man whose picture he had been firing at was an enemy who had injured him, and adding: "I was taking a sort of weak-tea satisfaction out of his photograph."

A man who could be guilty of such a freak must have done many things to delight the heart of a romance-writer who is out of a subject, and, as we have said, Wilkes Booth would have been an admirable hero of romance but for his great crime; but that crime—not because it was a crime, but because it is history—made him peculiarly unfit for the novelist's use. The assassination was a dramatic affair, certainly, and even melodramatic in some of its circumstances, but it was an event of so much and so terrible moment that it became present matter of fact to every English-speaking person of this generation. Its facts were the current news of the day; its details were reported in all of the newspapers; it became fact, hard, prosaic fact, to everybody, and, until time shall have softened its outlines, it cannot be made romance, any more than a photograph of the New York postoffice can be made a work of art. To write of it in a novel will be to turn the novel into an old newspaper.

But this terrible fact overshadows everything else in Wilkes Booth's life, and to mention his name is to bring the assassination and only the assassination to every mind. All else that he did in life is rendered insignificant by comparison, and any romance founded upon his life before the assassination must make as vague an impression as a half-remembered dream does. Wilkes Booth is, therefore, a wholly impracticable subject of romance. Something might be made out of his career, perhaps, in the way of a Bowery melodrama, or a wildly "sensational" drama of the lowest order, but any attempt to make legitimate use of the man, or his life, or his character, or anything pertaining to him, must be a disastrous failure.

Typos and Actors.

It is a fact not generally known that a great many of the prominent actors of the day have soared from the printer's case to the stage. In an interview with Stuart Robson, the comedian (himself an ex-printer), a New York reporter asked:

"Who of the actors of the present day are printers by trade?"

"Let me see," said Mr. Robson, musingly. "There's J. H. Stoddart, one of our best 'old men;' he was a typo, and a good one too. Then there's Montague, of Wallack's; one wouldn't think to see him bowling up Fifth avenue behind his span of bang-tail thoroughbreds that he was once a printer."

"Is that so?" queried the reporter. "I heard that he was in some way connected with a nobleman, and that he had the exceptional advantages of good surroundings and a university education."

"You've been misinformed my boy. Montague, the gallant that half Murray Hill is breaking its heart over, was a type-setter on the London Era, and that at not a very remote period, either. Then there's Harry Crisp and Lawrence Barrett; both were printers. Barrett had an humble origin, but he has been studious, and is now one of the best-read men in the profession. John Moore, of the Fifth Avenue Theater, is another typo. Joe Jefferson, the best actor of modern times, once earned his bread at the case. So did that capital comedian, W. H. Crane; as did William Warren, of Boston, and Charlie Burke, of Philadelphia. Of dead actors who achieved world-wide fame, William E. Burton and James W. Wallack, Jr., belonged to the craft. John Parselle was a compositor. So was your humble servant; but I think I was a better printer than I am an actor. I believe Neil Bryant was a flyboy; and I am sure Barney Williams was one. Steve Fiske, of the Fifth Avenue Theater, had something to do with newspapers, but I am not certain that he was ever employed in a composing-room. Theodore Hamilton, another good actor, was a 'sub' printer for years. I had almost forgotten Charley Fisher. He used to stick type like a race-horse. Not long ago he told me that he went into a printing-office for the first time in thirty years. He said he found the situation of all the boxes readily, except the receptacle for the interrogation marks; and that 'wanted to know what the mischief I was doing there?'"

To this list might be added the name of that fine actor and successful manager, James H. McVicker, of Chicago, the proprietor of the finest theater west of New York. McVicker was a compositor on the St. Louis Republican when the writer occupied the honorable post of "printer's devil."

An Actor's Misfortune.

Mr. E. Eberle, an actor of over twenty years' experience, was seen to be strangely at fault in his part in the Albany Theater a few nights ago. He had the reputation of being "letter perfect," but on this occasion he was at a loss for words, went on and off the stage at wrong points in the play, and gave the audience the impression that he was drunk. At length he advanced to the footlights and said: "I don't know what the matter is with me, but I certainly am not drunk—I never drink anything intoxicating. I was perfect in my part at rehearsal this morning, but now I cannot recall a word of it." He retired, and another actor read the rest of his part. His trouble was paralysis of the brain, and there is not much hope of his recovery.

Casualties to Superior Officers.

